Philosophy and Approach: My approach is grounded in humanistic and constructivist traditions, weaving in mindful, acceptance-based, narrative, and other creative elements, as well. I consider myself intentionally integrative. I aim to keep a social justice-oriented, culturally compassionate focused lens, taking an individualized approach to each client. My intention is always to listen with respect, patience, and curiosity to meet each client where they are and understand them as completely as possible from their perspective, helping them access the tools they need to be their most authentic versions of themselves.

Formal Education and Training: I received a Bachelor of Arts degree in Sociology/Anthropology and German Studies from Lewis & Clark College. I received a Master of Arts degree in Teaching from Simmons College. I received a Master of Arts degree in Professional Mental Health Counseling from Lewis & Clark Graduate School of Education and Counseling. I have enjoyed working with people of all ages and many diverse backgrounds in a variety of school, university, and community social service agency settings. Most recently I completed two year-long counseling internships during my counseling graduate program: one in mental health counseling at William Temple House and one in career counseling at Lewis & Clark College Career Center. Additionally, I completed a two-term direct service practicum at the Lewis & Clark College Community Mental Health Clinic and a one-semester group counseling experience with sixth graders at Ron Russell Middle School.

As a Registered Associate with the Oregon Board of Licensed Professional Counselors and Therapists (Board), I abide by its Code of Ethics. I am supervised by Kate Stidd, LPC, which means that while working towards full counseling licensure, I'm authorized by the state of Oregon to work with clients and receive regular supervision from a fully licensed therapist.

Fees: The company charges $200.00 per session for individuals, families, and couples and $50.00 per group counseling session. The company charges $60.00 for late cancellation/no show appointments. The company also offers some low cost appointments that are on a request basis.

As a client of an Oregon Registered Associate, you have the following rights:
