

First Responder Specialty Counseling

Support. Just When You Need It.

To help you better deal with life's challenges

As First Responders, you often face extreme stressors in the course of your daily duties.

Stressful and traumatic situations can leave you profoundly affected. When you want help, you deserve to work with a counselor who understands you and can provide the support you need. You talked, and we listened.

What Are Your Benefits?

- Eligible for up to 10 counseling visits per case
- Eligible for new authorized visits for a separate and different issue/problem

Who Are the Counselors?

- Trauma trained specialists
- Years of experience seeing First Responders
- Many are former First Responders
- Many are vetted by First Responder peer review panels
- Located throughout Concern's service area
- All are passionate about supporting you and will quickly make themselves available to schedule appointments.

To activate, call Concern and tell them you are a first responder. All calls are confidential.
