

What is the BMR Program?

The Below Market Rate (BMR) Program has developed in response to zoning provisions in effect in most Marin County jurisdictions which require that developers on new residential projects over a certain size sell at least 10% of the units at below-market prices to first-time, moderate-income homebuyers.

Called "inclusionary zoning," these ordinances represent an effort by Marin's cities and towns and the County of Marin to increase this region's stock of affordable housing.

Marin Housing, acting as coordinator of BMR sales for most local jurisdictions in Marin County, administers the sale of newly constructed units as well as previously-owned units being offered for resale.

Questions and Answers

Q How many properties are available through the program?

A There are over 340 properties administered by Marin Housing in the BMR Program.

Q How frequently do units come up for sale?

A Very little new housing is currently being built in Marin County, which means that most units available under this program are resales. In a typical year, ten to twenty will be offered. Whenever a unit is offered, applicants who have applied during the year will be considered.

Q How are prospective purchasers selected?

A A drawing is held each time a unit becomes available. Priority is given to applicants living or working in Marin County.

Q Are there any restrictions attached to BMR units?

A Yes. A resale restriction agreement is recorded with each unit, limiting the profit which can be realized through future resale. The purpose is to preserve its affordability for future low-to-moderate-income first-time homebuyers.

Q How are resale prices determined?

A The resale price of a unit is based on the original purchase price, plus the LEAST of three calculations: the percentage increase in the "median income" for Marin County; or the percentage increase in the Consumer Price Index for the San Francisco Bay Area; or the fair market value.

Q Will the equity in my BMR unit be protected?

A Your equity investment usually appreciates over time, but at a slower rate than a market rate investment.

Q Can I rent or lease my BMR unit to someone else?

A No. The BMR deed restrictions require continuous owner occupancy.

Step-By-Step: What and When

While each city and town has its own inclusionary requirement that results in the creation of new BMR units within its jurisdiction, the procedures for applying for and buying a unit under the Marin Housing BMR Program are essentially the same for all areas.

1 Once you have determined that you are eligible for the program and filed your application (good for the current calendar year), your name will be entered in our pool of BMR applicants.

2 A drawing is held each time a BMR unit becomes available. Your name will be entered in every drawing for which you are eligible by household size and income level.

3 Starting with the first name drawn, applicants are interviewed to verify program eligibility and ability to qualify for financing by obtaining timely approval from a Participating BMR lender.

4 If selected, you enter into a purchase contract with the seller and pay an initial deposit to an escrow account opened at the title company.

5 You shop around among Participating BMR lenders for the most favorable financing and then apply for your loan.

6 Upon approval of your loan, you sign the loan papers, and with the closing of escrow, you become the proud owner of your new home.
