NO CAP FOR EIDL LOAN

As of today 4/13/20, according to SBA, there is no cap for the EIDL loan amount.

There was much press last week about the money running out and a $15K cap in place, but we just heard from SBA that as of today 4/13/20, there is still plenty of money to lend out and there is no cap.

We will send out any updates as we get them.

PPP PROGRAM - UPDATES

Here is the best link to find lenders:

<https://www.sba.gov/paycheckprotection/find>

There have been no changes to the application for sole proprietors and 1099 people. Everyone is now allowed to apply including agricultural businesses.

So far, this is what we have heard on banks opting in on PPP loans.

These banks are currently accepting applications ONLY to current customers:

Umpqua Bank
Bank of America
Heritage Bank of Commerce
Mechanics Bank
Bank of Marin
Banner Bank
SAFE Credit Union
Redwood Credit Union
SF Fire Credit Union
Wells Fargo

These banks may be accepting applications outside of current customers:

US Bank
Summit State Bank
1st Capital Bank
Chase
US Business Bank

These are Online Lenders/Fintech accepting applications (some may charge a fee to apply - not sure all the protocols with each program):
