

BACKFLOW PREVENTION ASSEMBLY TESTERS

The following list of companies is provided to you for your convenience only and is not intended to be an endorsement of any of the listed testing companies nor does this list purport to be all inclusive. A testing company that is not on the list may still be qualified to do testing in the City of Santa Ana upon their obtaining a City of Santa Ana business license. The information on this list is subject to change without prior notice from the City of Santa Ana. It is your responsibility to confirm that the testing company you hire meets all legal requirements to perform backflow testing and/or repair work that may be required.

Any company testing a backflow assembly in the City of Santa Ana is required to have personnel certified with a current County of Orange backflow prevention testing assembly certificate and have a current license to do business in the City of Santa Ana. Please note that if the testing company will be performing repairs to a backflow assembly that exceeds $500, the company must also have a State contractor's license. Furthermore, if you are the owner of the device and perform any repairs of your own on the assembly, you must submit to our office the listed repairs, parts used and have the device re-tested.
