Team Shondell Wins Inaugural PVF All-Star Match

The inaugural Pro Volleyball Federation All-Star Match lived up to its billing, and then some. In front of a thrilled capacity crowd of 6,943 on Saturday at Fishers Event Center in Fishers, Indiana. The Team Shondell All-Stars, coached by Purdue University volleyball coach Dave Shondell, defeated Team Collier coached by Georgia Tech's Michelle Collier by a total point score of 58-47.

But the magnitude of the event reached far beyond the final score. The All-Star Match was the first women's pro volleyball match to be shown on a traditional American over-the-air network with PVF broadcast partner CBS. Those tuning in and in the stands were treated to a high-intensity match highlighting the extreme athleticism of the players competing.

"The level of play today, I thought was remarkable," winning coach Shondell said. "For them to go out and play with the intensity and focus and the cohesion, it was just fun to be a part of. It was just a thrill."

While the match was played in a traditional three-set format on the home court of the Indy Ignite, the winning team was determined by overall points.

After winning the first sets 25-22 and 25-20, Team Shondell needed only to reach eight points in the third set to clinch the victory. That came when Shondell's squad took an 8-5 lead to make the final score 58-47. The teams completed the third set anyway, with Team Shondell securing the sweep with a 15-10 triumph.

While the competitive spirit was high between the two teams, so was the level of enjoyment.

"It's really fun to play with people you typically play across the net from," Team Collier libero Morgan Hentz of the Atlanta Vibe said. "Just such a high level of play and high level of talent, it's been a blast. I'm really happy to get to do something like this and showcase our sport to the world, especially young, aspiring volleyball players. We didn't have this growing up and get to see it, so we're glad to have that first meeting to showcase our sport."

And that, after all, was the primary reason for this first of an expected many PVF All-Star Matches, to present the energy, athleticism and excitement of women's volleyball to an eager, growing audience.

"That's why this is so important," Team Shondell setter Alisha Childress of the Vegas Thrill said. "It's why having a league here in the U.S. is so important, it's why treating the league with the utmost respect and having an All-Star game and getting it on a major broadcast station on CBS (is important)."

"We want to continue this not just this year, but for years and years to come. We feel that energy; we can feel that that's what we're doing here. We're older and we're playing, and to see the younger generation get to look up to us, it's our responsibility but it's one we take very seriously to make sure they see volleyball at a high level all the way."
