April 26, 2025: The Rise (11-15) fell in a heartbreaking five-set battle to the Atlanta Vibe, 25-23, 25-22, 21-25, 23-25, 15-13, despite setting a franchise record with 103 digs. Bastianelli led the way with a season-high 20 kills and three blocks, while Turner set a franchise assist record with 58 and added 21 digs. Libero Oglivie also broke the team record with 30 digs. INFORMATION

There have been three collegiate player drafts for Major League Volleyball with the draft being held in the fall the year prior to that season starting in January. The first draft was a snake format with Grand Rapids selecting in the middle of the seven teams. The second draft used the 2024 regular-season final standings to determine the first round order before using a random lottery to generate the draft order for Rounds 2-5. New franchise Indy Ignite was granted the No. 1 overall selection. The 2025 draft order slotted teams into two groups (playoff and non-playoff teams) and used reverse regular-season records in the first round followed by rotating the order within the two groups for Rounds 2-4. Trades can be made for players, draft picks, future considerations, or any combination thereof.

DRAFT ELIGIBILITY

Any player drafted must be at least 18 years or older on the day of the draft and must be defined as a collegiate athlete, which is defined as a female volleyball player who is:

- Enrolled in a four-year college or university in the United States and who (i) did not graduate prior to August of the draft year and (ii) who has remaining eligibility to play collegiately during the current college indoor season; or
- Enrolled in a two-year junior college or community college in the United States and (i) who did not graduate prior to August of the draft year and (ii) who has remaining eligibility to play collegiately during the current college indoor season.

Any athlete who meets the criteria of a collegiate player is eligible to be drafted during the respective year's MLV Draft.
