In the Making Sense theology series, Vern Poythress develops insights on the Trinity, man, and God by viewing them from multiple perspectives that arise from biblical themes. God is the ultimate source of truth and is always consistent with himself. Thus, the truths discovered through multiple perspectives are harmonious, complementary, and mutually enriching.

#651-0, Cloth, ~~$49.99~~, $34.99

Adam Smith
Jan van Vliet

Adam Smith’s religion drove his prescriptions for a virtuous humanity and a free and flourishing society. Jan Van Vliet examines how the practical implications of these strike a common chord with Scripture.

#406-6, Pbk, ~~$19.99~~, $13.99

“Van Vliet’s study of Adam Smith masterfully uncovers this influential progenitor’s entire philosophy. . . . Flying in the face of caricatures . . . so often falsely attributed to Smith, this reading reveals how profoundly concerned this philosopher was for the poor and the destitute. . . . At the same time, van Vliet sharply criticizes Smith for his lack of a robust Reformed theological undergirding.”

My Only Comfort

edited by Amanda Martin

“Rather than reading as a long series of questions and answers, [the Catechism] now reads as a kind of poetic devotional.

And it works well! I trust and I pray that this will spark a new wave of interest and help a new generation to both read and benefit from it.”
