Chemistry

Faithful Learning Series

DANIEL R. ZUIDEMA

God has given human beings many different gifts and talents. What if your talents and interests lie in the field of chemistry? As a Christian, you may feel that studies in chemistry are valid only if you are planning to use them as part of an overtly Christian career. But this view leaves a lot out of the picture.

Our creator God speaks in the language of chemistry. Recognizing this, Christian chemists bring a powerful, necessary worldview to this discipline. Step by step, Daniel Zuidema guides you in cementing this worldview as the foundation for excellent, God-glorifying work in a fascinating field of science. Engage with chemistry in a way that helps others, serves the church, and shows profound appreciation for God's created order.

DANIEL R. ZUIDEMA (PhD, Wake Forest University) is professor of chemistry and chair of the chemistry department at Covenant College in Lookout Mountain, Georgia, where he has taught since 2005.

Music

Faithful Learning Series

TIMOTHY H. STEELE

Many Christian musicians enter college without a clear understanding of the discipline of music or how it might deepen their love for God and their commitment to Christian service. In this invitation to the subject, the themes order, meaning, and function provide a biblical framework for thinking about the central questions of the discipline, pointing to ways in which Christians may faithfully and responsibly enter into its practices. For students considering a major in music or just looking for ways to increase their engagement with the discipline, this booklet not only provides a Christian perspective but promotes reflection on the call to serve as musical agents of renewal in God's world.

TIMOTHY H. STEELE is associate professor of music and chair of the music department at Calvin College. He is a past president of the Society for Christian Scholarship in Music, and is director of the Christian Voices in Musicology study group. In addition to teaching and scholarship in musicology, he is an active performer on early wind and string instruments.

Outstanding Features

- Answers questions about why music is a worthy field of study for a Christian.
- Helps Christians to be faithful servants of God in the world of music.
- Uses the headings order, meaning, and function to explore the subject biblically.

Political Science

Faithful Learning Series

CALE HORNE

Many Christians think of politics in terms of daily headlines, newsfeeds, sound bites, and talking heads—or as an ideological battleground cluttered with winners and losers. Much, much more is going on. The academic field of political science is an empirically based, theoretically driven social science that addresses human endeavors of a political nature. Political scientists create hypotheses and test them using data and carefully selected research methods, and understanding their findings in light of God's common grace will change the way we work in government, journalism, the military, and other fields. Cale Horne overviews the discipline; presents a Christian framework for approaching political science; and illustrates the potential for faithful learning in and through the study of politics.

CALE HORNE (MA, University of South Carolina; PhD, University of Georgia) is associate professor of political studies at Covenant College in Lookout Mountain, Georgia, where he has taught since 2011.

Outstanding Features

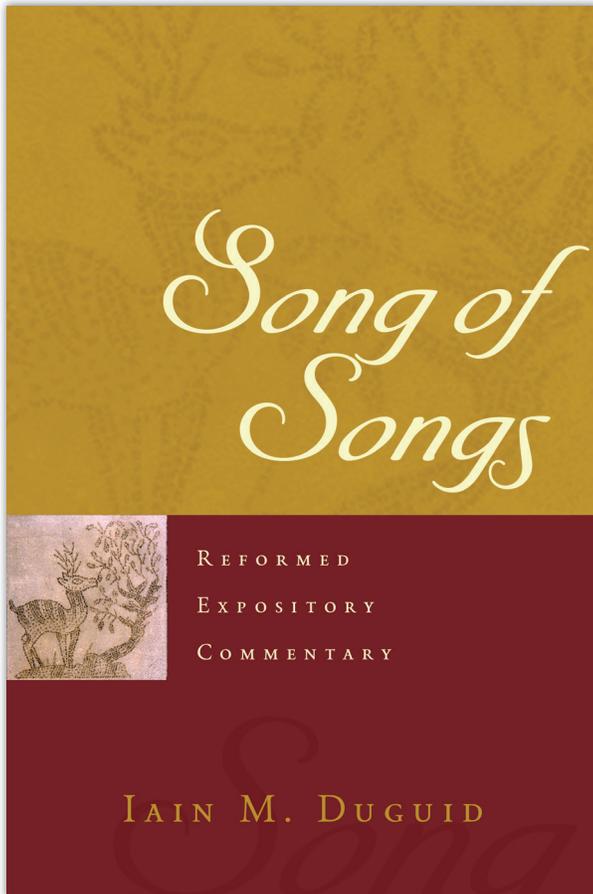

- Answers questions about why political science is a worthy field of study for a Christian.
- Demystifies and clarifies some of what political science entails, showing how it touches on government, journalism, and the military.
- Helps Christians to make sense of some of the ideologies and theories at play within the field.

Song of Songs

Reformed Expository Commentary Series

IAIN M. DUGUID

Should we read Song of Songs as romantic poetry—or as an allegory? Should some people even read it at all? Pastor-scholar Iain Duguid steers a middle way between allegorical and literal approaches, and shows that this book’s celebration of the love between a man and woman not only shapes Christians’ thinking about human relationships but reveals the love that Christ has for his bride, the church.

IAIN M. DUGUID (PhD, University of Cambridge) is professor of Old Testament at Westminster Theological Seminary, Philadelphia. He has written numerous works of biblical exposition, including Esther & Ruth in the Reformed Expository Commentary series, Ezekiel in the NIV Application Commentary series, and Numbers in the Preaching the Word series.

Outstanding Features

- Steers a well-reasoned middle way through the different proposed interpretations of the text of Song of Songs.
- Addresses a wide audience in many stages of life, making this a warm, accessible companion for anyone who is devotionally reading or studying this book of the Bible.
- Applies pastoral truths gleaned from a theologically conservative and Christ-centered viewpoint.

Endorsements

“So is the Song of Songs really about sex or Jesus? Iain Duguid steers a wise and pastoral path between those simplistic choices. He demonstrates how this poetic book on the excellencies of human love is not merely a practical marriage guide nor an allegorical representation of the coming Christ. Rather, this book is the best song of all songs because it provides divinely inspired insights into the blessings and weaknesses of human love in order to point us toward the goodness and necessity of the grace of God, whose love is perfected in Christ alone.”

BRYAN CHAPPELL, Pastor, Grace Presbyterian Church, Peoria, Illinois

“This book helps us. As a wise and seasoned pastor, Iain gently weeps with us in our broken search for false loves. Yet he strongly rouses our affections to the One whose love is true, satisfying, lasting, romantic, and alluring. Practical, tasty, and invigorating, Iain’s prose and poetry offer a timely guide for those who desire the lovers of Solomon’s Song to disciple them in Jesus.”

In contrast, Christians stand firmly on objective truth, clinging to a lasting treasure that cannot fade or disappoint. Rod Mays and K. Scott Oliphint delve into John Newton's great hymn "Glorious Things of Thee Are Spoken"—and into the gospel truth of Scripture behind it—showing how it brings timeless, biblical answers to issues that daily press us in our Christian walk

Includes discussion questions. Previously published by Crossway as Things That Cannot Be Shaken.

K. SCOTT OLIPHINT (MAR, ThM, PhD, Westminster Theological Seminary is professor of apologetics and systematic theology at Westminster Seminary, Philadelphia. He has written numerous journal articles in the field of apologetics and is a world authority on the works of Cornelius Van Til. Among his many books are The Battle Belongs to the Lord and Reasons for Faith.

ROD MAYS is executive pastor at Mitchell Road Presbyterian Church in Greenville, SC; Director of Greenville Fellows; and adjunct professor of practical theology at Reformed Theological Seminary, Charlotte.

- Equips you to stand firm, with certainty and confidence, amid everyday challenges and doubts.

EDITED BY DAVID R. HELM

It is a wonderful privilege to watch children start to grasp the precious truths of Scripture. Parents may hope to see this in a family devotion time, only to become overwhelmed and exhausted by the daily difficulties involved. We need help! Three weekly readings accompanied by suggested Scripture passages introduce and simply explain thirty-three key theological concepts found in the Westminster Confession of Faith (included in its entirety, in modern English). The Revolt

A Novel in Wycliffe's England

DOUGLAS BOND

As a secretary at the battle of Crécy, Hugh West'all has come close to death. But when he meets John Wycliffe, he embraces a mission even more exciting—and just as dangerous: translating the Bible into English, the language of the common people. Hugh's work helps him to understand the Gospel even as a corrupt and decadent church plots to choke Wycliffe's translation—and silence him forever.

DOUGLAS BOND is the author of a number of books of historical fiction and biography. He and his wife have two daughters and four sons. Bond is an elder in the Presbyterian Church of America, a teacher, a conference speaker, and a leader of church history tours. Visit his website at www.bondbooks.net.

Outstanding Features

- Weaves its plot around the unusual formative college years of a significant figure of church history.
- Explores Wycliffe's story through two very different characters—a bookish scholar and a commoner—providing contrasting, yet relatable, viewpoints.
- Includes well-researched and gripping action scenes for historical fiction readers interested in battles.

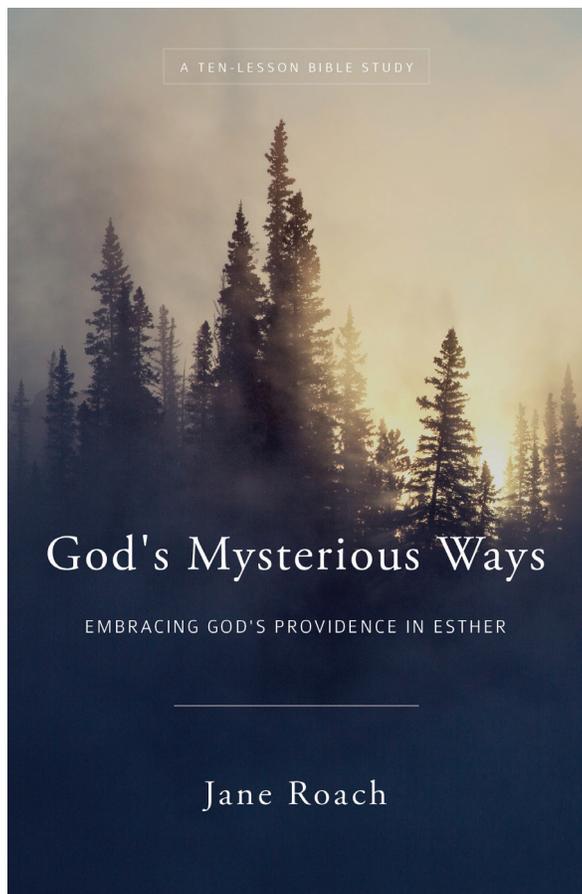

Endorsement

"The gilded histories often fail to note how extraordinary times invade ordinary lives. Douglas Bond paints the days of John Wycliffe in full color, showing that the Morningstar rose over filthy streets and jaded lives—and brought real hope to hearts in bondage."

JEREMIAH W. MONTGOMERY, Pastor, Resurrection Orthodox Presbyterian Church, State College, PA; Author of The Dark Harvest trilogy

"In The Revolt, Douglas Bond uses his unique writing style to produce a highly readable imagining of the travails of John Wycliffe, the 14th century 'heretic' who dared to make the eternal truths of the Bible accessible to the marginalized people group of his day: English peasants. This vivid and exciting narrative reminds us of the very real challenges to Bible translation over the centuries, and of the importance in carrying out the work he started."
