

Suzanne Spitaletta has called Asbury Park home since 2007, sharing daily beachfront views that resonated with her social media followers. In 2016, inspired by her passion for photography and a love for the local arts scene, she founded Black Glass Gallery, recognizing the need for photographers to converge, share inspiration, and nurture a collective creative spirit.

With extensive research into unique locations, Suzanne orchestrates immersive experiences, often securing private tours for an inside perspective. Her dedication extends beyond the lens, curating exhibitions that transform various venues into showcases of artistic expression. Through social media content, she invites others to join this creative journey, forging connections within the community and beyond.

Today, Black Glass Gallery stands as a vibrant virtual community, converging in awe-inspiring locales such as beaches, piers, parks, castles, theaters, and even abandoned buildings. BGG's members capture the heart of each place, kindling a similar spark in others. Suzanne brings these shared experiences to life through the online gallery, offering a glimpse into their collective journey.

Over the years, Suzanne has orchestrated numerous exhibits, providing Black Glass Gallery members a stage to showcase their remarkable talent. These showcases are favorably received by the public, providing a valuable platform for these talented artists.

Black Glass Gallery continues to redefine the boundaries of photography, with Suzanne at the helm, grateful for the opportunity to share her photographic zeal and contribute to the flourishing community.

In October 2022, Suzanne served as a photography judge for the Guild of Creative Art's Annual Juried Show, showcasing her ability to identify exceptional talent.

With each sunrise, exhibition, and shared moment, Suzanne Spitaletta continues to illuminate the world of photography, inviting others to see through her lens and discover the beauty that surrounds us.
