Steven Yee is a celebrated Professional Travel photographer and a full time photography lecturer. He is an Associate Faculty Lecturer at Singapore University of Social Sciences lecturing on two core compulsory photography modules in the Multimedia and Technology Design Degree program. He is also one of the youngest to be conferred the Fellowship of the prestigious Royal Photographic Society UK in 2003 at age 24. Being a passionate photography educator, he teaches at Knowledge Bowl School of Photography and practices his trade in travel photography with assignments from travel magazines. As founder of PhotoVivo, he runs the monthly international photography circuits and organizes overseas photography trip. In 2015, he was engaged by ArtScience Museum to conduct a series of portraiture photography workshops in conjunction with Annie Leibovitz's exhibition in Singapore. As President of the Association of Photographic Artists Singapore, he is instrumental in promoting photography exchanges between photographers in the world, notably the strong China-Singapore-Malaysia-Indonesia photo connection. His pictures have been published in Discovery Magazine, Silkwind inflight magazines and others. He covered an environmental documentary story "Dehli The Dump" with Mediacorp. Some of his works form part of the permanent collection in the contemporary section at the International Photography Museum (MIF) in Spain and he was featured in Discover Nikon gallery as one of the finest in Asia in 2006.
