Dear Butterfield Families,

We have had a very musical week at school! Our fourth, fifth, and sixth grade band and orchestra students visited The Young People's Concert at the Tucson Community Center on Tuesday. They had a great time and heard some amazing music.

On Tuesday evening our fifth and sixth grade orchestras joined with the fifth and sixth grade orchestras from Degrazia Elementary to perform in concert for their parents, family, and friends. The Orchestra was directed by Ms. Chapman and accompanied by Ms. Hamman. The students played wonderfully and everyone enjoyed the concert. They learned some things too!

On Thursday the fifth and sixth grade bands performed for their families and relatives. They are directed by Mr. Gibson. The performance was great and everyone played their personal best!

Please encourage your children to continue to do their very best at school. We want and need their best effort and best respectful behavior until the very end of the school year. We are continuing to learn new material every day.

Activities to Keep Kids' Brains Active in Summer

Here are some more ideas to keep your children engaged in learning throughout the summer. Many of these activities link to online resources. In most cases, however, these activities can be completed even by those without internet access.

1. Create musical instruments from materials found around the house. Enchanted Learning provides instructions for such musical instruments as a rattle, box guitar, maraca, and rain stick.
2. Cool down by making Ice Cream in a Bag. The simple technique produces delicious ice cream in about 5 minutes. What ice cream varieties will you and your child concoct?
3. Read aloud a selection from Candlelight Storybooks or your own favorite myths or fairy tales. Discuss the stories with your child. Then invite your child to choose a favorite story, and together make a diorama depicting a pivotal moment in the tale.
4. Print a grid of dots from Connect the Dots by Math Cats and invite your child to make an original tessellation.
5. Soar into space (the space in your bedroom, kitchen, or dining room) by constructing Science Bob's Balloon Rocket. This simple science experiment using a balloon, string, straw, and tape, illustrates the use of air pressure to produce movement.

More ideas next week!

Stock up for summer reading!

Summer Reading Fast Facts for Parents

Reading over the summer really does make a difference!

Many students and families regard the summer break as just that – a break from school and other “requirements.” However, research shows that kids who never open a book during their summer break fall behind in reading, while kids who do read maintain or even excel in their reading skills.

What do researchers have to say about the importance of summer reading?

“... the best predictor of summer loss or summer gain is whether or not a child reads during the summer. And the best predictor of whether a child reads is whether or not he or she has access to books.”

--Allington, Richard L. and McGill-Franzen, Anne. “Bridging the Summer Reading Gap,” Scholastic Instructor (2003, May/June).

“Regardless of ethnicity, socioeconomic level, or previous achievement, children who read four or more books over the summer fare better on reading comprehension tests in the fall than their peers who read one or no books over the summer.”

--Kim, Jimmy. “Summer Reading and the Ethnic Achievement Gap,” The Journal of Education for Students Placed at Risk (2004).

“Students with access to books and other reading material over the summer have a significantly higher level of reading achievement than those without access. In fact, students in our study continued to reap the benefits of summertime reading throughout the following school year, when they showed a 35 to 40 percent grade-level increase in reading achievement.”

— Allington, R. L., & McGill-Franzen, A. (2013). Summer reading: Closing the rich/poor reading achievement gap. New York: Teachers College Press.

LEAP

Learning, Enrichment and Play

Enriching care offered before & after school, and during school and summer breaks

The Learning, Enrichment, and Play (LEAP) program offers secure, supervised learning and play experiences that enhance the time a child spends away from home and school.
