Shain, a homeowner in Newport Beach, wanted to downsize. Before his home could be listed, however, his realtor advised he make some updates. She suggested new flooring, fresh paint, and staging. Although Shain's agent explained these changes would increase the speed and value of the sale, Shain was hesitant to pay for the improvements. That's when his realtor told him about Revive and how they front the costs of these updates.

Immediately after Shain agreed, his realtor began managing the entire process from obtaining bids to overseeing the service providers' work. When the home was ready, it sold faster and for more than expected, leaving both Shain and his realtor happy.
