General Notes

- Total vote counts exclude invalid votes.
- All Thiessen polygons across countries use consistent country borders from geoBoundaries. In some rare cases, like Taiwan, where the geoBoundaries lack precise definition, dated OpenStreetMap boundaries are used instead.
- A single dash with a space on either side, " - ", in the party column indicates a coalition between two or more parties; an em-dash is used when either a dash or an em-dash is formally in the party's name.

Variable Definitions

The release has a long-format schema: one row per (country, election, electoral unit, party-or-candidate, vote-tier). Not every column is present for every country; columns are populated where source data supports them and are absent (or NA-filled) otherwise. Suffix conventions: `_b` typically denotes a parallel native-language or alternate-encoding version of the same field (e.g., `NAME1_b` is the localized name; `party_b` is the original-language party name); `_c` carries a third variant such as a coalition or alliance label; `_imp` indicates an imputed value where a primary source was missing.

`country` English country name (e.g., "Germany").

`iso3` ISO 3166-1 alpha-3 country code (e.g., "DEU"). Provided for joining to cross-national datasets.

`NAME1`, `NAME2`, ..., `NAME`k Hierarchical administrative names, from coarsest (`NAME1`, typically state/province/region) to finest (the polling station, municipality, or constituency). The maximum depth k varies by country (e.g., 2 for small unitary states, 5–7 for federations with sub-municipal precincts). `NAME`j`_b` is the localized version of `NAME`j where it differs from English.

`NAME1_raw` (South Korea only) Pre-cleaning original `NAME1` string, before NFC normalization and the digit-prefix repair documented in the country section.

`year` Calendar year of the election. Where two-round elections cross calendar years, the year of the first round is used; the round is recorded in `special_type`/`special_type_b`.

`election_type` Coarse type of the contest. Common values include "Legislative (lower house)", "Presidential", "Legislative (upper house)", "Local". Specialized contests use country-specific labels documented in the country section.

`special_type`, `special_type_b` Disambiguators within an (`year`, `election_type`) cell. Used to distinguish: rounds in a runoff system (First Round/Second Round); separate vote tiers in mixed-member systems (e.g., First Vote/Second Vote in Germany); special vote categories collected on different ballots (Abroad, Postal, Advance, Special, Indigenous); by-elections; and re-runs. Encoding conventions vary across countries; see each country's Notes subsection for the values used.

`party` Standardized English-language party label, harmonized across years within a country. Mergers, splits, and renames are recorded as new `party` values rather than tracked through a stable identifier; the `partyfacts_id` column provides the cross-time hub identifier where it is available.

`party_b` Original-language or original-script party name as printed in source records (e.g., "中國國民黨" for Taiwan's Kuomintang, "Bündnis 90/Die Grünen" for Germany's Greens).

party_c, party_d Where applicable, additional party-name variants: party_c typically holds an alliance/coalition grouping, while party_d is reserved for further disambiguation in countries with multiple parallel naming systems.

candidate (Eleven countries) Standardized candidate name. Where present, each row carries both party and candidate; in single-member-district systems the candidate is the de facto unit of competition.

votes Number of valid votes the party (or candidate) received in the electoral unit identified by NAME1...NAMEk. Excludes blank, null, and invalid ballots.

total_votes Total valid votes cast in the electoral unit for the contest identified by (year, election_type, special_type, special_type_b). Used as the denominator for vote shares.

reg, turnout_reg Number of registered voters and turnout among registered voters (i.e., total_votes_with_invalid / reg) in the electoral unit, where this is reported by the source.

evp, turnout_evp Number of eligible voting-age persons and turnout among the voting-eligible population, where this is reported by the source. Distinguished from reg because not all eligible voters are registered in every system.

latitude, longitude WGS84 coordinates of the electoral unit centroid. For polling-station-level countries this is the geocoded address; for higher-aggregation countries it is the centroid of the named administrative or electoral unit. NA where geocoding was not possible (the unit is still identified by its NAMEj columns).

geometry sf-style polygon geometry for the electoral unit, where the source data provides explicit boundaries or where Thiessen polygons were constructed from polling-station coordinates. Coordinate reference system: WGS84 / EPSG:4326. Absent for countries released as plain data frames without geometry.

geometry_type, geometry_type_b Provenance of the geometry: "Thiessen" for constructed polygons, "Official" for polygons taken from electoral-commission shapefiles, "Administrative" for polygons taken from civilian administrative-boundary sources (e.g., geoBoundaries). geometry_type_b carries a secondary qualifier in the rare cases where a country mixes provenance within a single release.

geometry_level Integer indicating which level of the NAMEj hierarchy the geometry corresponds to (e.g., geometry_level = 4 means the polygon traces the boundary of NAME4). Useful when the polygon is coarser than the data row (e.g., votes are at polling-station level but geometry is at municipality level, as in Germany).

partyfacts_id Integer hub identifier from Party Facts (https://partyfacts.herokuapp.com). Where assigned, joins the row to MARPOR/CMP, V-Party, ParlGov, CSES, ESS, and other party-level external datasets through Party Facts' external-parties.csv crosswalk. NA where no confident match exists in current Party Facts core data; coalitions and ad-hoc alliances typically receive no partyfacts_id.

`partyfacts_name` Canonical English party name carried alongside `partyfacts_id` for human readability. Equivalent to Party Facts' `name_english`.

`match_confidence` Quality of the `partyfacts_id` assignment: high (unambiguous name + abbreviation match), medium (name match with minor ambiguity such as a continuous lineage party that has been renamed), low (judgment call), no_match (no Party Facts entry exists for this party in the current core data, or the SAGE row aggregates a coalition rather than a single party), long_tail (deferred: party received less than 0.5% of country-wide votes and ranks below 50; matching effort prioritized higher-volume parties).

Thiessen-polygon caveats

For most countries, the polygon released in `geometry` is constructed via Thiessen tessellation of geocoded polling-station coordinates within the country's external boundary, rather than taken from an official electoral-commission shapefile. Thiessen polygons are a convenience for choropleth mapping; they are not the official catchment boundaries of polling stations and should be interpreted with the following caveats in mind.

- Voters do not always vote at the closest polling station. The Thiessen construction assumes voters cast their ballots at the polling station nearest to their registered address (or, equivalently, at the polling station whose Thiessen cell they fall in). In practice voters often cast ballots near workplaces, transit hubs, or family addresses; in some countries voters can request to vote at any polling station within the constituency. A Thiessen cell therefore overstates how cleanly its polling station identifies a population of voters.
- Thiessen cells cross election-relevant administrative boundaries. The construction does not respect boundaries that voters cannot cross when voting: state or province lines in federal systems (Australia, Germany, Spain, the United States), electoral district lines elsewhere, or municipal boundaries that define separate ballots. A Thiessen neighbor on the other side of such a boundary may be a misleading point of comparison even when geographically close. Where users care about formal boundaries they should prefer the `NAME`j columns over polygon adjacency.
- Cell shape and size are sensitive to coordinate precision. The geocoded coordinates released in `latitude/longitude` are rounded to three decimal places (about 100–110 m) for privacy, which can move a polling station across a Thiessen edge with respect to a higher-resolution geocode. The aggregate area of any single cell is robust to this; the precise edge between two adjacent cells is not.
- Where official polygons exist, they are used in preference. Country sections in this codebook indicate which countries supply official polygons (`geometry_type = "Official"` or `"Administrative"`) and which release Thiessen approximations (`geometry_type = "Thiessen"`). Several country releases mix provenance across years; the per-row column `geometry_type` is authoritative.
- For some countries, geometry is at a coarser level than the data row. In Germany, for instance, votes are released at the polling-station level but the `geometry` column stores polygons at `geometry_level = 1` (Bundesland). This is documented in the country section. Users mapping such cases should aggregate the data to the geometry level before joining.

Geographic aggregation per country

Several SAGE countries release polling-station-level vote counts but resolve coordinates to a coarser unit (a municipality, district, or first-tier administrative region), with the consequence that many vote rows share the same `(latitude, longitude)` pair. The `geocode_duplicates` column on every row records exactly how many distinct finest-level units (defined by `NAME`k) collide at that row's coordinate; `1` means the geocode is unique to one polling station, while values > 1 mark a centroid-style aggregation. The supplementary file `aggregation_levels.csv` (released alongside the parquet under `gs://sage-archive/`) gives, per country, the row count, modal `geometry_level`, modal `geometry_type`, and the mean / median / collapsed-share statistics derived from `geocode_duplicates`. Users mapping or modelling at the polling-station level should consult this file before treating coordinates as polling-station identifiers.

The most heavily aggregated countries (mean $\geq$ 20 polling stations per coordinate) are: Afghanistan (657), Bolivia (147), India (80), Bangladesh (58), Chile (52), Dominican Republic (49), Guyana (46), Jamaica (44), Slovenia (38), Paraguay (37), Albania (30), Colombia (29), Tunisia (28), Bhutan (23), Kyrgyzstan (22). For these, mapping at the row level will visibly overlap many points; choropleth users should aggregate to the `NAME`j level appropriate to their analysis. Germany is a special case: 24.6M polling-station vote rows but `geometry_level = 1` (Bundesland) polygons, so `geocode_duplicates` is 1 for every row even though geometry is materially coarser than the data grain.

20.1 Notes

- Party coalitions in the ”party” column follow the same ordering as in the original data (”party_b”), leading to duplicate coalitions of different party orderings.
- Several party name-party acronym correspondences are assumed due to variability in reporting as coalition members.
- The _p suffix on geometry columns refers to latitude-longitude geocodings on individual polling stations, whereas geometry is provided at a higher level in the supplementary shapefiles.
- Smallest physical unit: Polling Station

31.1 Notes

- Missing several overseas commune boundaries (partially addressed for 2017, but not 2012 or before).
- 2022 and 2024 boundaries are constructed from Thiessen polygons first run on each individual point, then grouped together by bureau to vote according to the home address to bureau de vote correspondence file published by INSEE. 2022 mappings are used for 2024; according to INSEE, "only 65 creations and 4 deletions of polling stations were observed between February 2023 and February 2024 (out of a total of 69,400 polling stations)." Note that this can produce enclaves which are nonetheless accurate. Thiessen polygons are only generated within, not across, municipalities; that is, the procedure is run one municipality at a time for all points assigned to the respective municipality. There are three exceptions: overseas departments of code 97, where I generate Thiessen from polling station addresses (type = "Thiessen"); units in Paris, which are reported exactly (type = "Actual"); and municipalities with only one polling station, which use the full municipality boundary (type = "Actual").
- Supplementary shapefiles for France (<= 2012) are provided at the NAME3_b (commune) level.
- Smallest physical unit: Polling Station

44 Indonesia

44.1 Notes

- Villages are matched to boundaries via a two-step process, whereby the name of the village is geocoded and the resulting latitude-longitude are matched to village boundaries.
- Identifier code NAME columns (i.e., NAME1_b, NAME2_b, etc.) change between 2019 and 2024 election, but the names of places themselves (provinsi, kota, kecamatan, kelurahan) are largely consistent across years.
- Supplementary shapefiles for Indonesia are provided at the NAME4 (village) level.
- Smallest physical unit: Polling Station

45 Iran

45.1 Notes

- Iranian election results are purportedly reported by city, though in some instances (Chardavol specifically) the unit is above or below that level; furthermore, there appears to be some degree of undercounting in the results. Polygons are obtained by getting "city" centroids then constructing Thiessen polygons, so between the apparent result undercounting and the absence of formal unit boundaries there is more error than expected on average here.
- Smallest physical unit: City

85 Russia

85.1 Notes

- Systematic missingness of polling station coordinates by region means that Thiessen polygons are generated separately by region by year. This is also necessary to address Russian annexation of Crimea and Sevastopol.
- Tens of polling stations reported as belonging to Moscow Oblast in 2012 actually fall within the bounds of the Moscow federal subject; the region was manually adjusted to account for this discrepancy.
- Smallest physical unit: Polling Station
