Who qualifies?

For life and disability cover you'll need to be a South African citizen under age 65 and earning an income.

Both SA citizens and foreigners who are legally living in South Africa qualify for the funeral benefit, even without an income. You'll need to be under age 75, although you can also add parents and grandparents up to age 79.

Accidental-only variant

To check if you qualify for the life and disability benefits, Simply will ask 3 health questions. If you have an existing condition, your life and disability cover will be limited to accidental causes only. You will always get standard funeral cover.

Why should I consider family cover?

Taking care of our families is what gives our lives purpose. What would happen to them if tragedy struck and you were no longer around to take care of them? Or if you became disabled, and could no longer provide for them, and they have to take care of you?
