

The Tuesday 19 November 2024 is National Welly Day, a day when people wear wellies to support farmers and farming. The day encourages young people and businesses to wear wellies or work boots to school/work to show support for farmers. We all value the work of farmers and know how important their work is to our food available in the shops and on our tables.

Please show your support by sending your children into school wearing wellies, work boots or walking boots if they have them. They should still bring their trainers in their school bags to change into for PE lessons. Thank you for your support.
