

OVERVIEW

In this unit learners gain an awareness of what happens at a picnic. This awareness is developed and embedded through a range of carefully planned and personalised sensory experiences such as poetry, stories, songs, games and musical experiences.

These activities are suggestions only. You can adapt or extend them to suit your learners' age, cognitive ability and specific needs.

Please note: before beginning an activity, check that all the resources are suitable for your individual learners. For example, some essential oils may not be appropriate for young children and others may have contraindications for learners with complex medical needs, life-threatening conditions and/or epilepsy. It is advisable to consult a trained therapist before using essential oils.

Setting the Scene

Outings to a local park, seaside, forest area or the countryside, as well as around the school grounds, are an ideal way to give your learners a wide range of sensory experiences. Each season will bring its own range of smells, sounds and natural stimuli. You can bring these back to the classroom to use for further exploration and as prompts for the theme.

As well as planned outings to a range of picnic venues, you could prepare for this unit by creating an area in the classroom to support class-based activities and individual sensory experiences.

Some of the suggestions may not be practical for your school. You can adapt and select what is most appropriate.

Make several visits to different sites before deciding where to have your picnic.

Take photographs and recordings of suitable sites for the picnic, as well as your learners' responses to them.

Record any sounds you can hear, such as bird song, lawnmowers and rustling leaves. Use these sounds as prompts and stimuli in related activities back in the classroom.

Identify each learner's preferred sensory cue to support your learners' individual needs.

Arrange a number of visits to the places you've identified to give your learners opportunities to experience, encounter and engage with different spaces and environments.

During the exploration activities, take time to investigate the different sights, sounds and smells, for example:

- cut grass;
- leaves;
- fruit;
- berries;
- blossom;
- bird song; and
- animal calls.

Observe your learners' responses to each place you visit. Base your choice of picnic venue on these responses. Make several visits to your chosen place before you have your picnic.

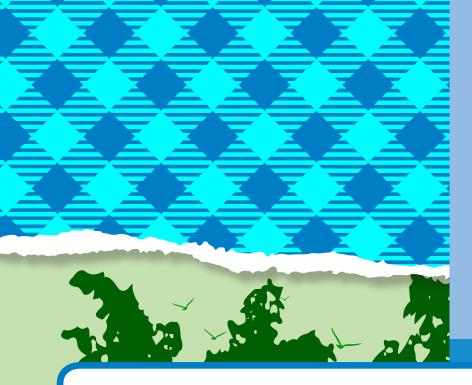

What to Do

Create sensory containers using some of the items listed above.

Be careful not to overload your learners with sensory experiences. Allow them to encounter one sensory experience at a time giving them sufficient time for processing. They may find trying to process a range of different sensory experiences challenging.

Learning Activity 1 (continued)

Out and About

Ideas for sensory containers include:

Smells

Use cotton wool to soak up liquid scents such as essential oil or food essence. Place them in containers pierced with pinholes.

Alternatively, make or buy play dough (the recipe is available in Resource 2: Play Dough). Add scents of your choice, such as essential oils, food essences or liquid air freshener. Add food colourings to match the smells, for example red for strawberry or green for mint.

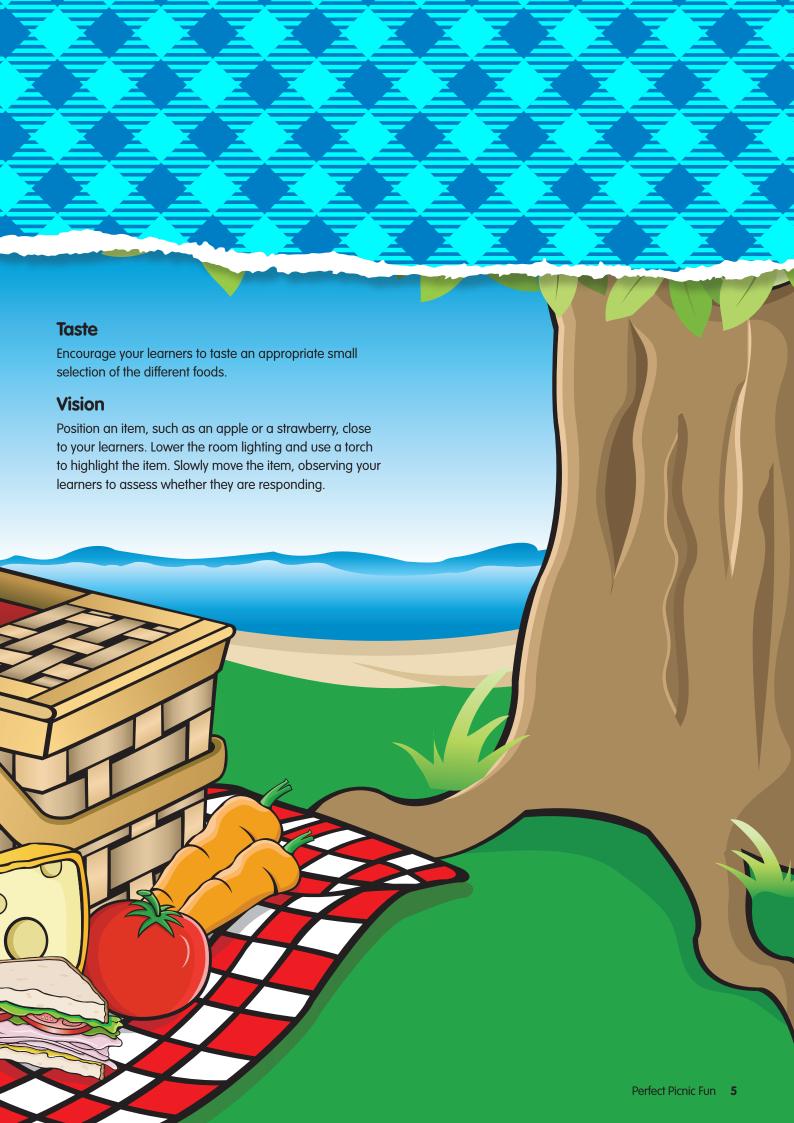

Sounds

Quieten the classroom as much as possible and perhaps darken it slightly. Gather the class together and play some selected sounds. Look for responses and, if sounds are repeated several times, anticipation.

Touch

Support your learners to feel and explore some of the different items.

Yum Tum

Setting the Scene

In this activity, learners consider foods that might be suitable for their picnic. The picnic basket must contain the learners' personal choices and preferred foods.

What to Do

In a circle activity, guide your learners to smell, feel, taste and look at the items you have collected as you reveal them. If appropriate, support your learners to help you to place each item in the basket.

Support your learners to try the following activities.

- Taste the different foods to experience the four main tastes:
 - salty: crisps, ham or bacon sandwiches;
 - sweet: jam, honey, fruit, juices, fruit yogurts;
 - bitter: dark chocolate, grapefruit, lemon; and
 - sour: natural yoghurt, sour cream.
- Smell the different items, for example:
 - flavoured milk shakes; or
 - chocolate spread.
- Feel the textures of items, for example:
 - fruit:
 - icing sugar; or
 - pretzels.

Support your learners to join in making the sandwiches. Once you have made the sandwiches, cut them into small slices. Place these in a container and then pack it into the picnic basket.

Bake some buns, letting your learners engage with the process. Encourage them to try decorating the buns with fun toppings such as icing, chocolate, buttercream, jam, coconut, sprinkles or chocolate buttons.

You can find alternative ideas for picnic food in Resource 3: Picnic Foods.

Further Suggestions

A shopping trip

Take your learners on a shopping expedition to experience buying the appropriate items.

Design a PowerPoint presentation based on your learners' preferred foods. This will reinforce learning and possibly cue their recall of the process.

Make the buns using an electric hand mixer and a plastic bowl. Use hand-over-hand support to help each learner to hold the mixer. The vibrations through the learner's hands can prompt a wide range of responses.

Led's Go

Setting the Scene

To help build anticipation and excitement of an imminent picnic, enact a short, simple drama with your learners.

Spray some water on the learners' hands and open umbrellas over them, while miming shivering with cold. Explain that sometimes when we go on a picnic the weather can turn out wet and cold.

Display a large cardboard sun and pass it over and in front of your learners. Place warm hot water bottles or hand warmers in their hands and explain that it could also be very hot on the picnic. Tell them that when the sun shines we need a hat to protect us from it. Encourage each learner to put on a fun hat.

Tell your learners that we also need sunscreen to protect our skin. Either rub sunscreen onto your learners' arms and legs or support them to do it. Encourage your learners to smell the sunscreen. Observe your learners closely for any indication of likes or dislikes.

What to Do

Line your learners up and sing a picnic song as you make your way to your chosen spot or onto the bus.

You can find suggestions for picnic songs in Resource 4: Picnic Songs.

When you arrive at your picnic area, arrange rugs for your learners to sit on with the checked tablecloth, picnic basket and a range of utensils in the centre.

Remove your learners' shoes and socks and encourage them to rub their feet and hands in the grass.

Sing some songs with your learners while you organise the picnic.

Take the picnic items out of the basket one by one, saying the names of each one as you set it down.

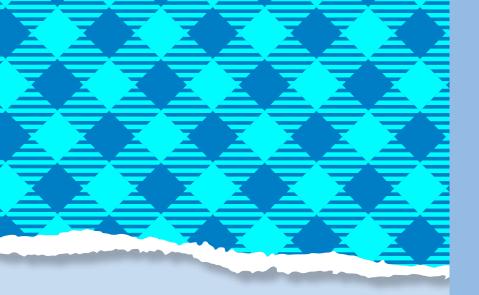

Offer each learner a choice of two drinks. Encourage them to indicate their preferred choice.

Cut a banana and an apple into small slices. Support each learner to smell and feel the fruit. Encourage them to indicate their favourite.

If appropriate, give each learner a paper plate. Ask him or her to indicate which sandwiches and picnic food to place on their plates.

For nil by mouth learners, you can provide an enjoyable sensory experience using their preferred smells, tactile experiences or picnic songs.

Further Suggestions

Ketchup and mustard bottle painting

Fill a squeezy ketchup bottle with thick red tempera paint and a squeezy mustard bottle with thick yellow tempera paint. Support your learners to create their own designs by squeezing the paint onto construction paper.

Decorate an old sheet, to use as a picnic blanket, with your learners' handprints and footprints. Learners could also decorate a placemat to use on the day of the picnic.

What You Need

- Sunhats
- Sunscreen
- Large, bright yellow cardboard sun (or hot water bottle wrapped up as a sun)
- Checked tablecloth
- Picnic basket
- Picnic foods
- Choice of drinks
- Paper plates
- Fruits
- Rubbish bag

Setting the Scene

Take your learners to a large open space to carry out the activities. You could use one of the picnic songs as a sensory cue.

What to Do Game 1

Arrange your learners in a circle and place the picnic hamper or basket in the centre. Give each learner a soft ball or beanbag. Demonstrate how to throw the ball into the basket. Support each learner to throw a ball or beanbag.

Game 2

Arrange your learners in a circle. Using different sizes and colours of balls, engage your learners in games that involve the skills of rolling, pushing, patting, throwing, catching and kicking. Encourage your learners to interact with each other and take turns, where possible.

Game 3

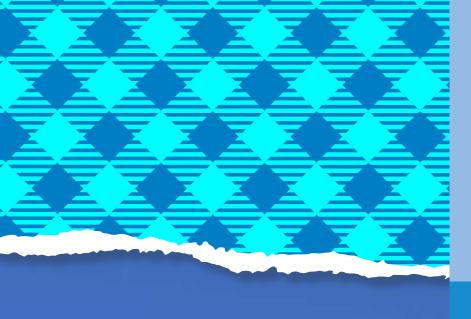

Sing one of the picnic songs and involve your learners in a simple movement activity. Divide your learners into pairs. Guide each learner to hold both of their partner's hands and then raise their arms to create an arch. Support your learners to move around and through the arch in time to the music.

Game 4

Give each learner a brightly coloured soft ball or a large sensory ball. Encourage them to throw and, where possible, catch the balls.

open space and let them experience flying a kite. You may support some learners to hold the kite string. Others can observe and enjoy the movements of the kite.

Primary

Physical Development and Movement

Post-Primary

Physical Education

If the weather is unsuitable for kite flying, you could adapt the game by using a fan to create a wind in the classroom.

Game 6

Hang a hammock between two trees or uprights and allow each learner to enjoy a gentle swinging motion. Be aware of health and safety precautions.

What You Need

- Balls/Sensory balls
- Beanbags
- Basket
- Kite

Picnic Proms

Setting the Scene

Position your learners in the picnic area, preferably on soft mats. Play some identified picnic music. This activity seeks to enhance your learners' body awareness by stimulating body movement in time with the rhythm of the music.

What to Do

Extend the musical experience with these sensory activities.

Remove your learners' shoes and socks. Spread some rough textured rugs on the ground. Position your learners on the rugs.

Gently move or roll each learner from side to side.

Move their hands and feet on the surfaces. Prompt and encourage independent movement. Give your learners plenty of time to process the sensations they feel.

Primary

The Arts (Music) Language and Literacy

Post-Primary

The Arts (Music) English

Encourage your learners to clap their hands or stamp their feet in time to the music. Alternatively, gently manipulate their hands and feet to create sounds.

Sing the Teddy Bears' Picnic song to your learners. Vary your voice with high, low and whispering tones. Keep this consistent so that, for example, the last line is always loud. This may help the development of anticipation.

Give your learners a range of different percussion instruments appropriate to their ability. Encourage or support them to beat, tap or shake their instruments in time to the music.

There are many apps available on the theme of picnics. Although your learners may not be able to use them independently, many learners respond well to these resources and engage with the animations, voices and sound effects.

What You Need

- Rough textured rugs
- Various percussion instruments

The Ant's Picnic

Setting the Scene

This is a class-based activity. You can adjust it to meet the needs of your learners or base it on one of the sensory stories listed opposite.

What to Do

Position your learners in a circle.

Begin with the custom-made sensory story and props from your picnic basket or box. For example:

'(Learner's name) went on a picnic and she brought a wonderful warm blanket to sit on.'

Encourage your learners to feel the texture of the blanket, giving them sufficient processing time.

• '(Learner's name) went on a picnic and he brought a smooth, hard plate to eat from.'

Support your learners to feel and explore the shape and texture of the plate.

• '(Learner's name) went on a picnic and he brought a spoon or fork to eat with."

Repeat with as many picnic items as appropriate.

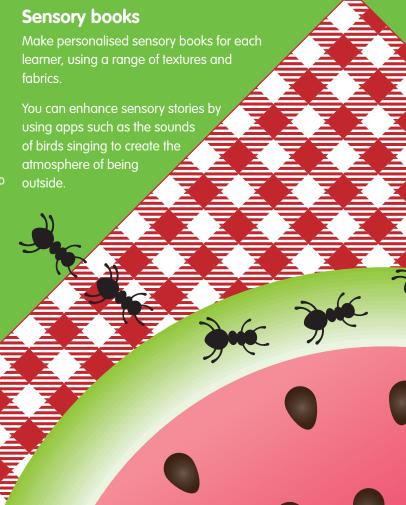

Help your learners to explore the spoon or fork and listen to the sound it can make when struck on a surface.

Introduce your learners to the cut-outs/pictures/replicas of ants and explain that sometimes when we are on a picnic, we can see little ants scurrying about in the grass searching for food. Use your fingertips to pretend that ants are scurrying over your learners' bodies.

Search online for the words, music and a video of the song The Ants Go Marching. Sing an appropriate number of verses from the song and model the actions as you sing.

Repeat the song, encouraging your learners to join in with the actions.
