

The MESSY BOOK

Maudie Powell-Tuck
Richard Smythe

I've made a mess.

Maybe you should tidy it up?

Maybe. Or we could just . . .

... shove it
over here!

Ummm. Are we being naughty?

Hey!

That's not our mess!

This is an outrage!

I like that hat.

Push it back!

Hello,
hat.

HEAVE!

Drat. The mess is back.

I can help you tidy, Cat.
We can sing a tidy up song.

No. Let's JUMP on it.

Are we sinking?

Get your mess
OUT of our ocean.

Uh-oh.

It's not staying here.

I like penguins.

Beat it!

Go on,
shoo!

Ew. I'm wet.

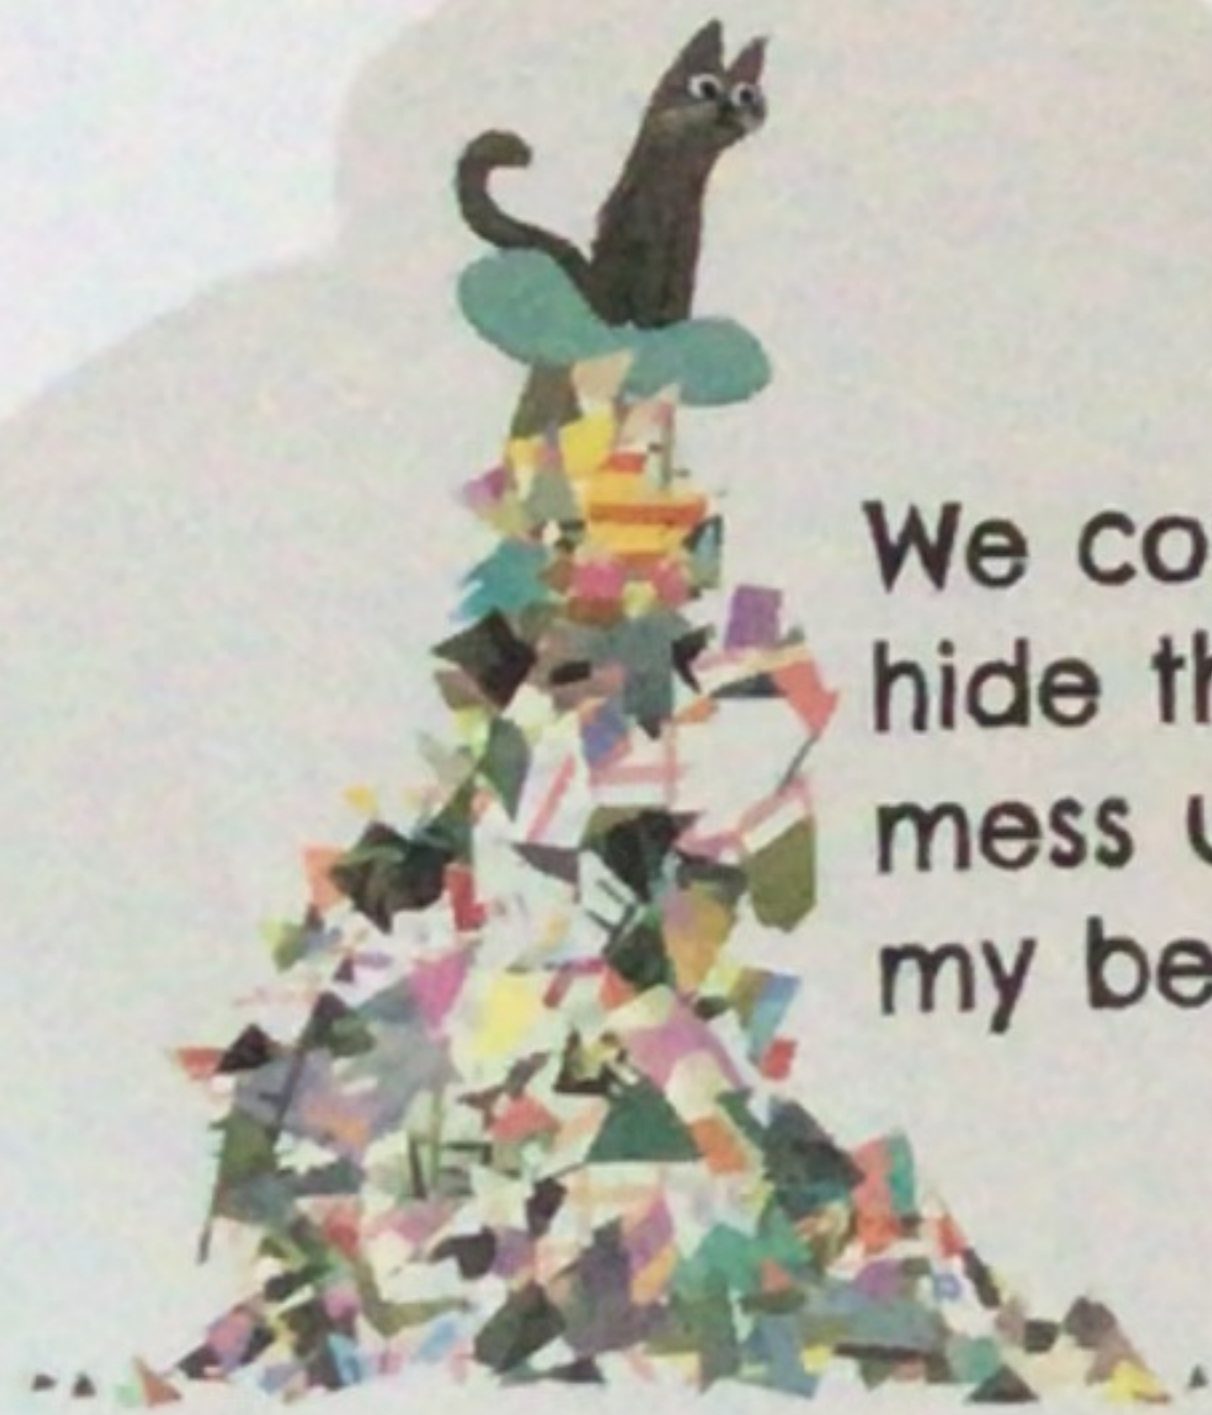

And now the mess
is soggy. Please, please,
PLEASE can we tidy up?

Hello,
penguin
hat.

But tidying is boring.

We could hide the mess under my bed . . .

or blow
it up . . .

. . . or eat it.

NO.

That is IT. We are tidying up this mess
RIGHT NOW!

OK.

wheeeeee!

That is NOT proper tidying.

RUMBLE
RUMBLE
RUMBLE

All done.

I have a bad feeling about this.

BOOM!

That was FUN.

GRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRRR!

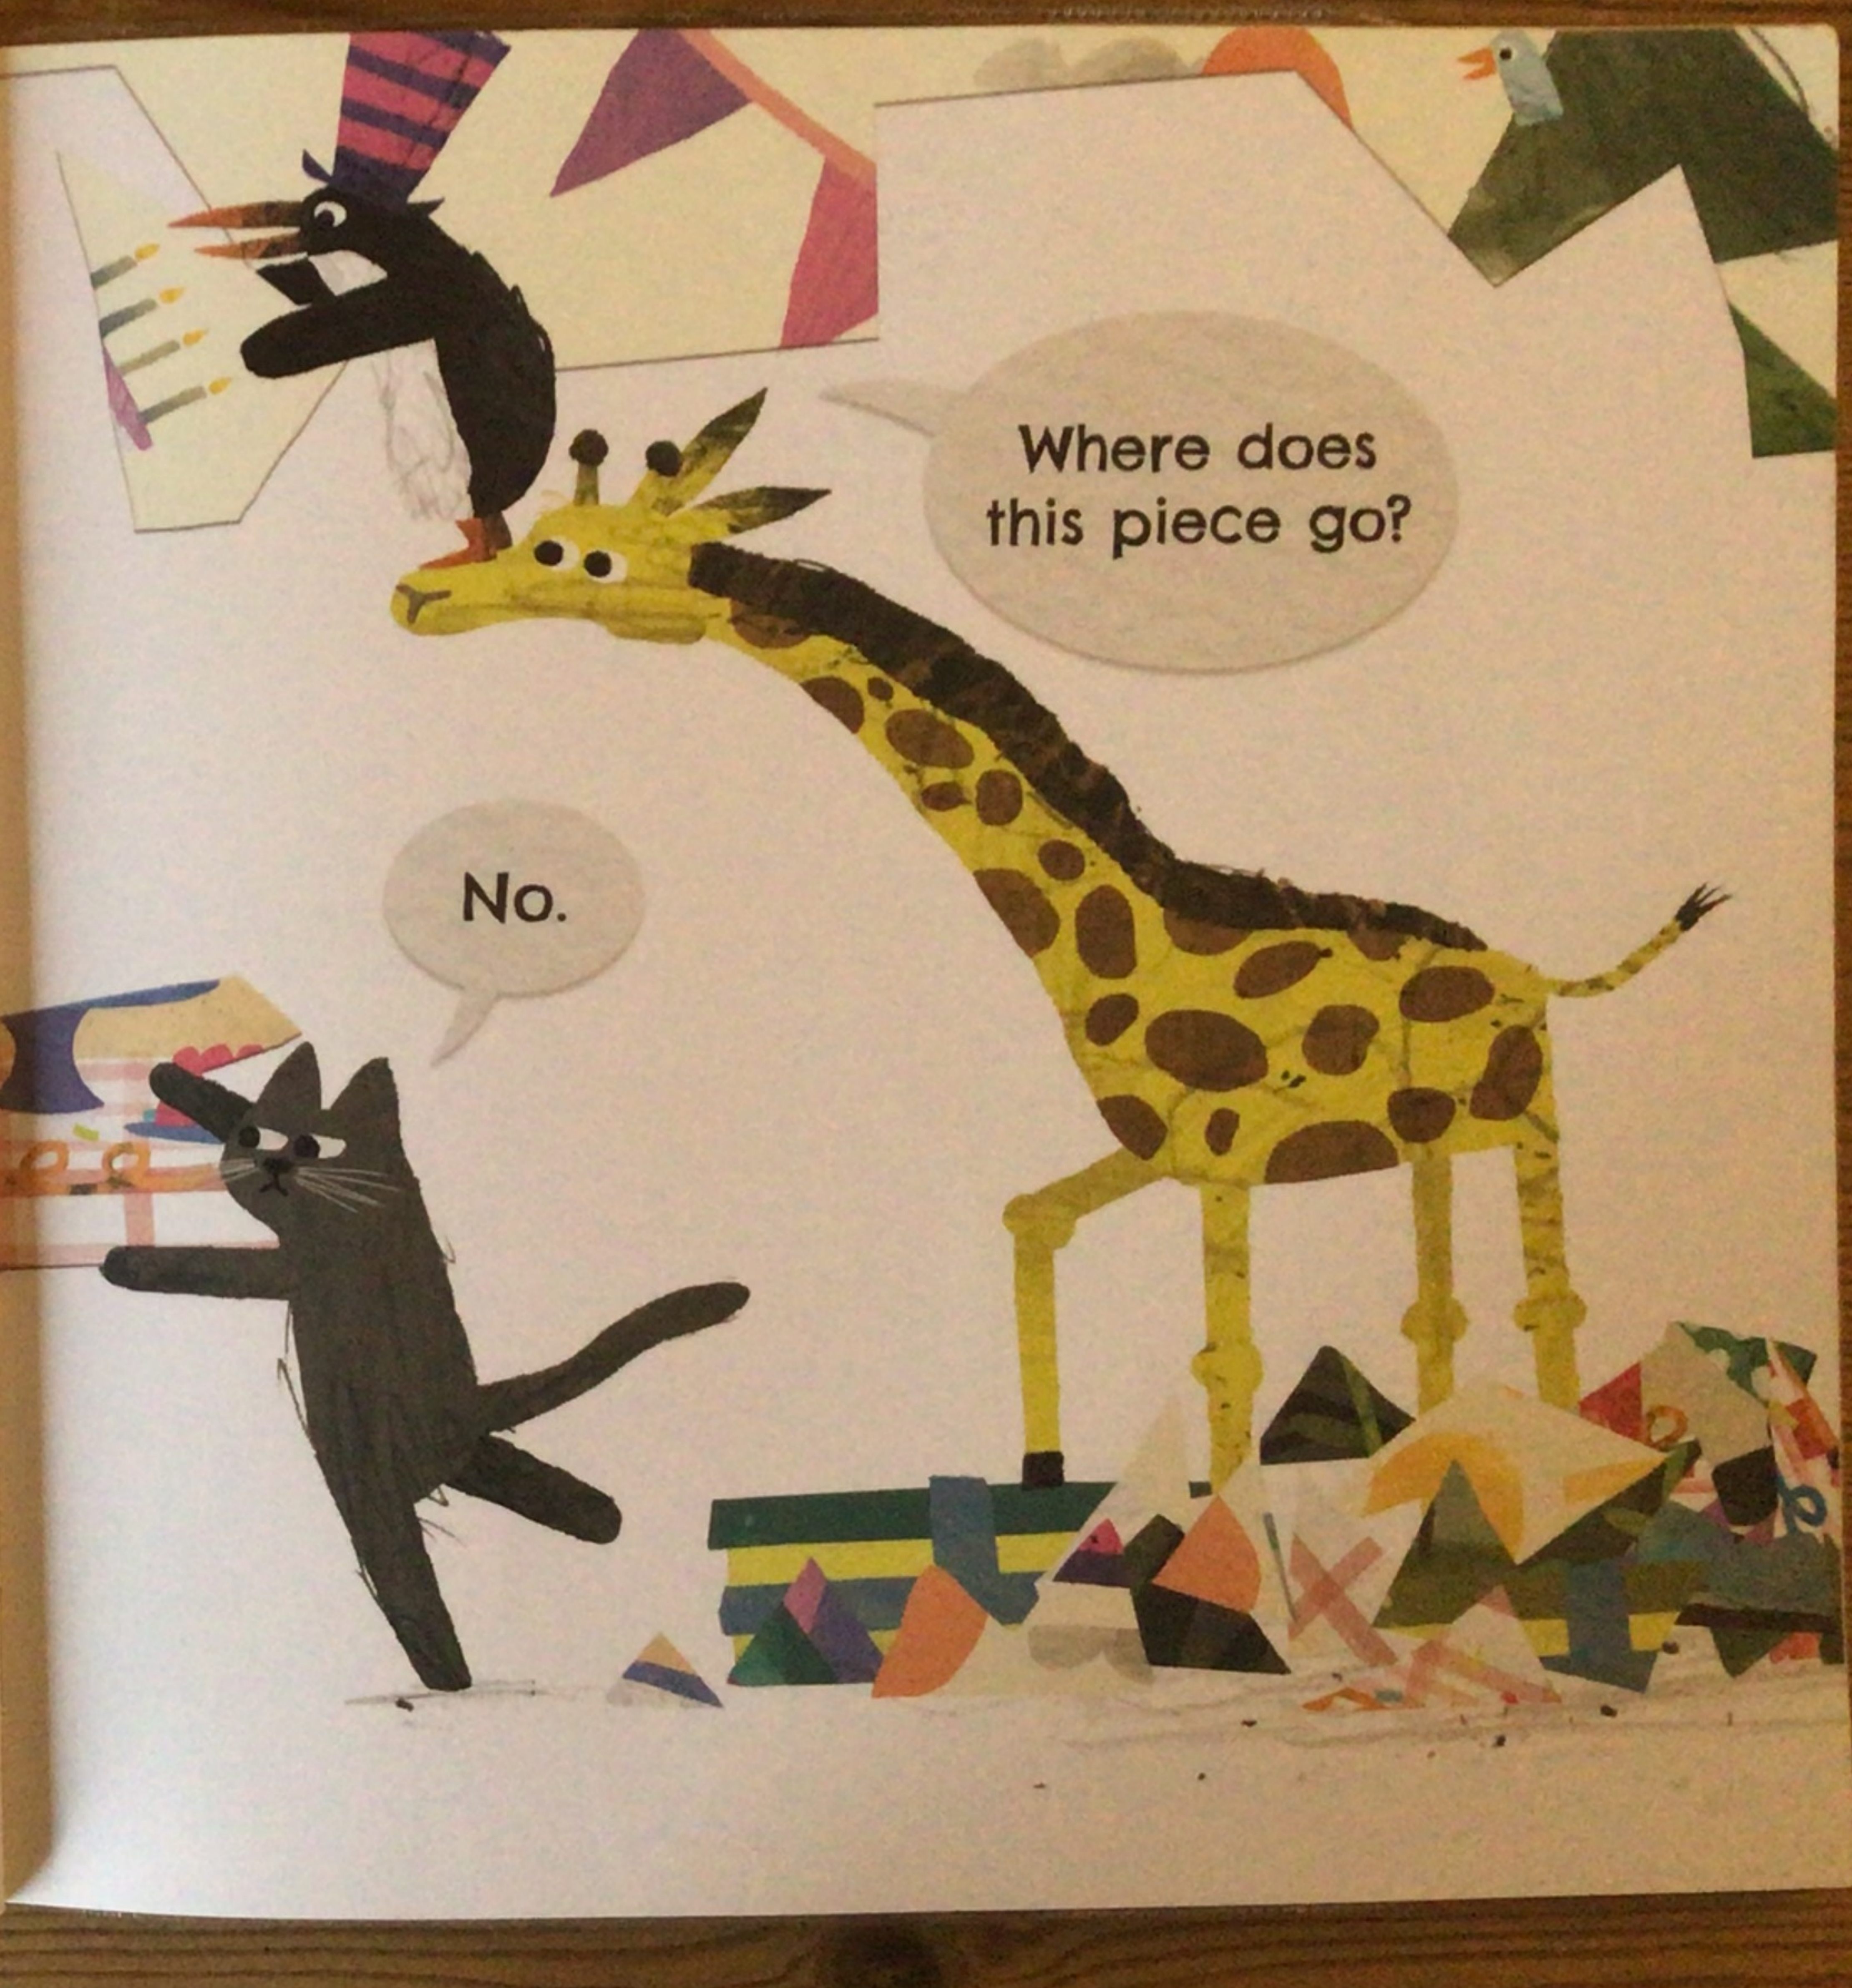

I'm sorry, buddy. Let's tidy up.

Cake
hat.

Isn't tidying up fun?

Where does this piece go?

No.

Woo hoo!
Everything is back where it belongs.
No more mess!

LET'S PARTY!

Yay!

We've made a mess.

Sorry.

Cat h s made a m ss and she w n't ti y up.

No m tter how ma y tim s Dog asks h r.

Can Dog co vince her to t dy?

This book is a mess!
Quick, let's tidy up before the reader notices.

Maybe
after lunch.
