Last Week

We've made it to the last full week of school. Well done to everyone on adapting to these strange times and well done to all the children who've continued to do some school work — we're all really proud of you!

Our Thanks

Our painted stones with positive messages of encouragement to the NHS and key workers have continued to grow at the bottom of the Knocknagin Road. Ours, along with pupils and staff at Knocknagin and from members of the community have certainly brightened up Desertmartin village and are always putting a smile on our faces when we drive past.

New Skills...

Well done to Ryan on mastering how to ride a bike during this time! We know that you all have been enjoying being outside when the sun is shining, compared to being in the classroom — Ryan has certainly made the most of his time!

Working Hard

Pupils!

> Do you want to let everyone know what you're doing or have news to share of your own? If you do, you can have a section in this newsletter. Just write it up on See-Saw, send it to your teacher and it will feature here!

Both McKay families have been working hard this week. Father's Day and a special birthday for one of the daddy's was last week so Jacob, Sofia, Joshua, Wyatt and Conor all used their time in school to make personalised cards for their daddy's. Of course, working hard means you need more time to play outside. Wyatt and Jacob were becoming very creative with the foam mats.

Helping Out

Ryan has been very busy helping to walk both Mutley and Dash throughout last week. We're glad the weather has been good to exercise the dogs (and ourselves!)

DESERTMARTIN PS NEWS

The named foal....

A name has been picked for Sarah's donkey.

The name of the new foal is Bella, which is very fitting as the foal was born in a field with bluebells and buttercups!

Busy at home

Whilst Miss Jones, Miss Brown and Mrs Hartin have been in school, Mrs Patterson and Mrs Dickson have continued to work hard at home too! Mrs Patterson has been baking these lovely cakes and buns (which look yummy!) while Mrs Dickson has been planting gorgeous flowers and walking Bobby in the sun.

As the final week of this school term is officially upon us, please continue to send your photos through to Miss Jones. Thank you very much for all the photos you have sent us so far. We appreciate all the support you have given us.
