Owl was out on his first ever hunting trip when a storm blew up.

A sudden gust of wind made Owl lose his balance and tumble into the chimney.

Owl felt frightened, but the house was warm and calm after the stormy night. He shook his sooty feathers and flew off.

In the hall, Owl stood still and spread his wings. No wind ruffled his feathers. There were no smells of trees or grass, earth or rain. So Owl knew the house was locked up tight, like a big sealed box.
