

'LET'S LEARN TOGETHER' TRAINING ROAD SHOW

Free training for educators, parents and carers

Adopted children can face many challenges throughout their life, particularly during their education. Teachers and parents are often unaware that adopted children's early experiences can leave them vulnerable to varying degrees of distress and difficulty at school. This training aims to provide an insight into why these challenges might arise and various tips and ideas are suggested on how to manage key areas of difficulty for both parents and teachers.

'As an adoptive parent, this training was a real 'light bulb' moment for me. It joined the dots between what I knew about trauma and the behaviour my child was displaying.'

"As a teacher, I had no idea how developmental trauma could impact how children felt in my classroom."

"This training changed my perspective completely."
