Hoping this will get read by board members prior to the APCD meeting on the 27th.

My wife & I live on the mesa & are in the direct path of the wind that blows particulate matter our way from the Oceano dunes. We moved here in 2014 with no health issues.

Since 2014 we both have fought lung problems, continuous itchy eyes and coughing attacks due to the particulate matter emanating from the dunes. Doctor visits are commonplace!

I can sweep off my backyard area one day, and the next day the darkish silt will reappear. There are numerous days that as we drive home on Hyw 1 that we can actually see the plumes of matter coursing thru the air.

Granted, there are days when it is not as bad. But particularly on weekend days we can hear the riding machines tearing up the dune's sand and the air quality is much worse.

Any lay person, person with a high school diploma, person with a college degree or a PhD scholar would know this fact: DISTURBING THE OCEANO DUNE'S SAND CAUSES PARTICULATE MATTER TO BE THROWN INTO THE AIR. AS THE WIND BLOWS IT TO THE WEST/SOUTHWEST THE HEALTH OF HUMAN BEINGS IS BEING SEVERELY COMPROMISED!

Appreciatively,

Michael Elliott
