

Welcome to the port of Antwerp

In a major international port such as Antwerp which receives more than 14,500 visits by seagoing ships every year, there are always large numbers of seafarers from all over the world staying for a short or long period. Antwerp Port Authority and the port community in general are concerned for the welfare of seafarers staying with us. We offer them various services, such as free bus transport to the city centre.

Various associations and charities in the port team up with the Port Authority to make seafarers from all over the world welcome. Antwerp has no fewer than four seafarers’ churches and various other organisations that provide medical care, emergency assistance and recreation. The Seafarers' Centre is a meeting place for all, regardless of nationality or religion. In this way the Antwerp port community seeks to create a “home port” for seafarers far from home, family and friends.
