

Once upon a time
there was Sleeping Beauty

The King and Queen wanted a child.

Eventually the Queen gave birth to a beautiful baby daughter.

They had a big party to celebrate.
Some fairies came with gifts for the new baby.

But a wicked fairy burst into the party, angry that she was not invited. She cursed the baby.

When the girl reaches 16, she will prick her finger on a spinning wheel needle and die!

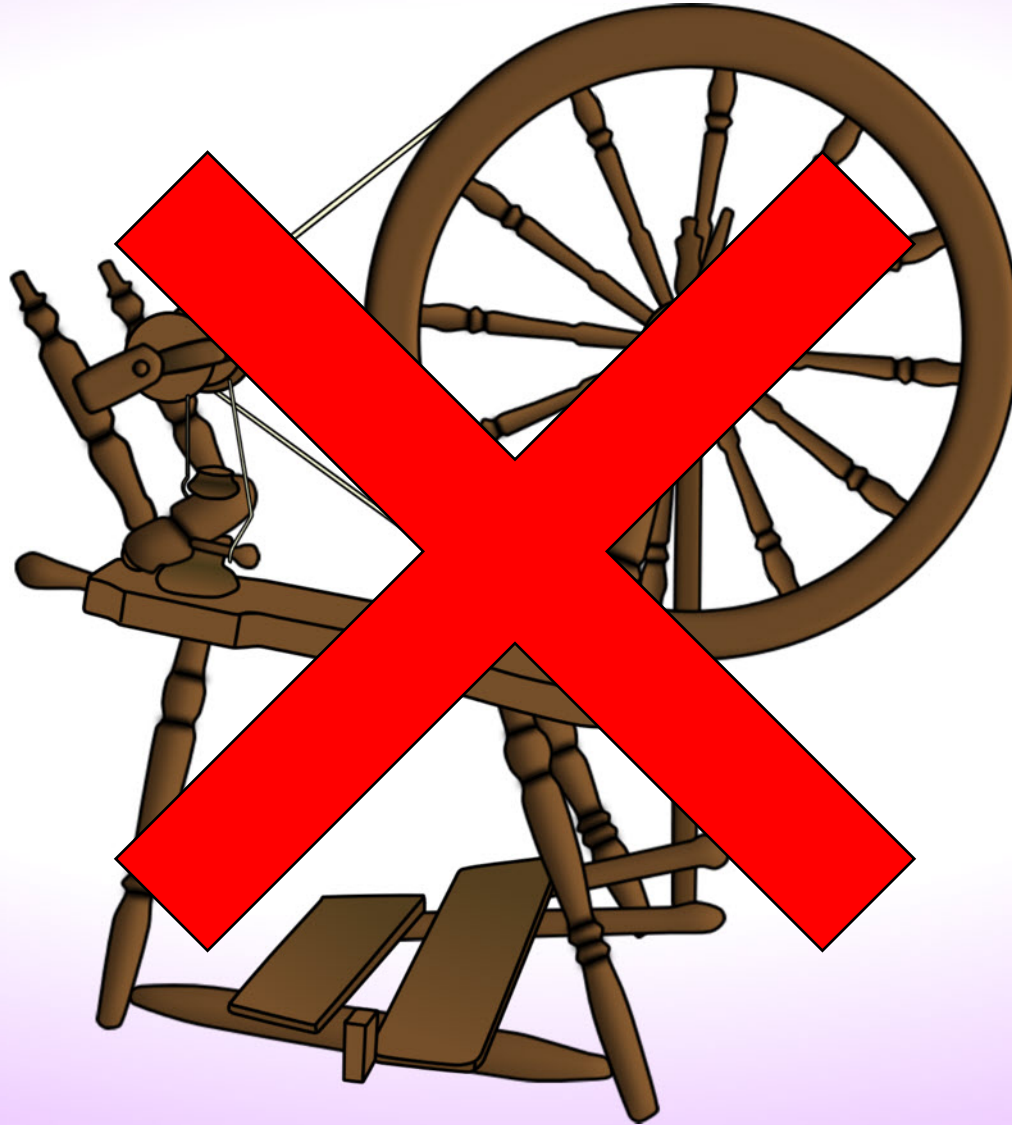

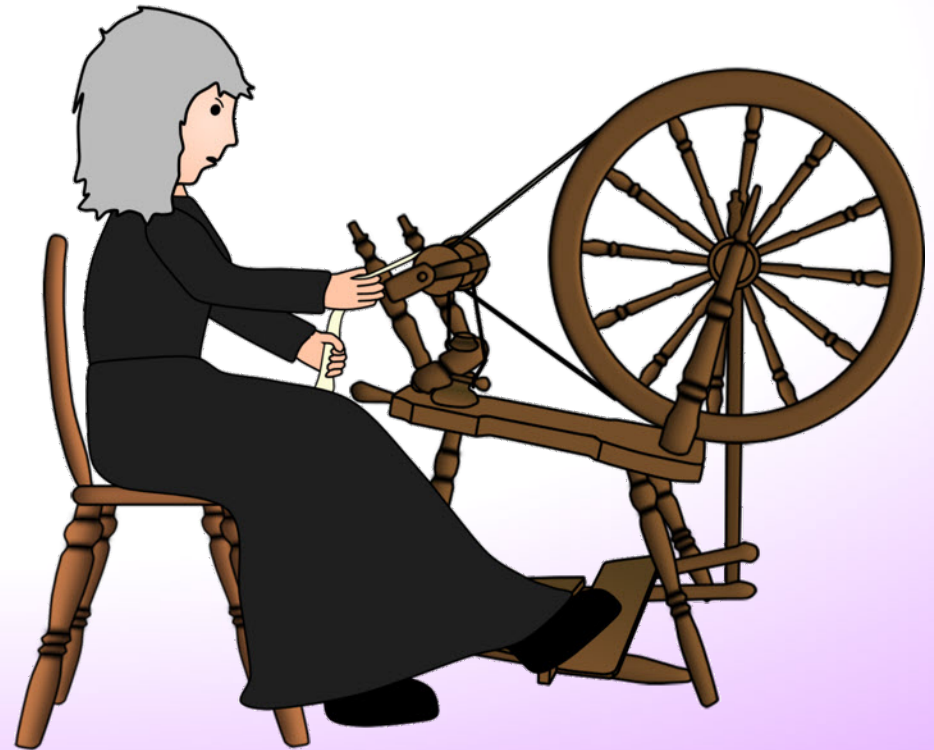

One of the kind fairies used magic to soften the curse.

The King banned all spinning wheels.

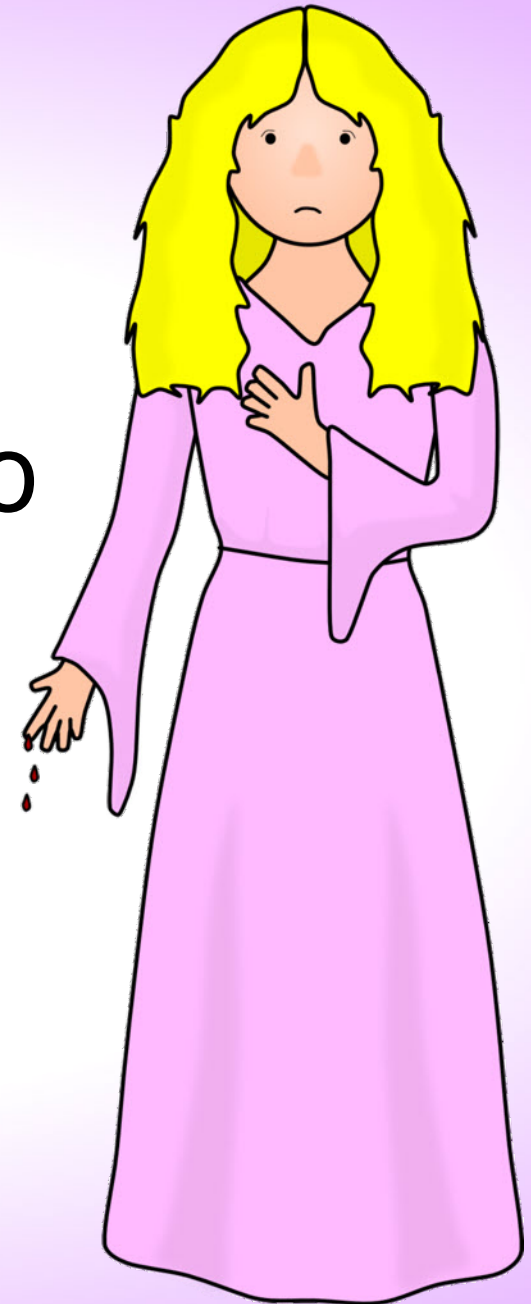

When the princess was sixteen, she found an old woman spinning. She hadn't seen a spinning wheel before and wanted a go.

The princess pricked her finger and quickly fell into a deep, deep sleep.

The King and Queen found her and put her to bed.

But soon everyone in the palace
was asleep too.

Many years passed
and a forest grew around the palace.

After one hundred years, a handsome prince came and a magical path opened to let him through.

The prince found the princess asleep in her bed. She was beautiful.

He kissed her.

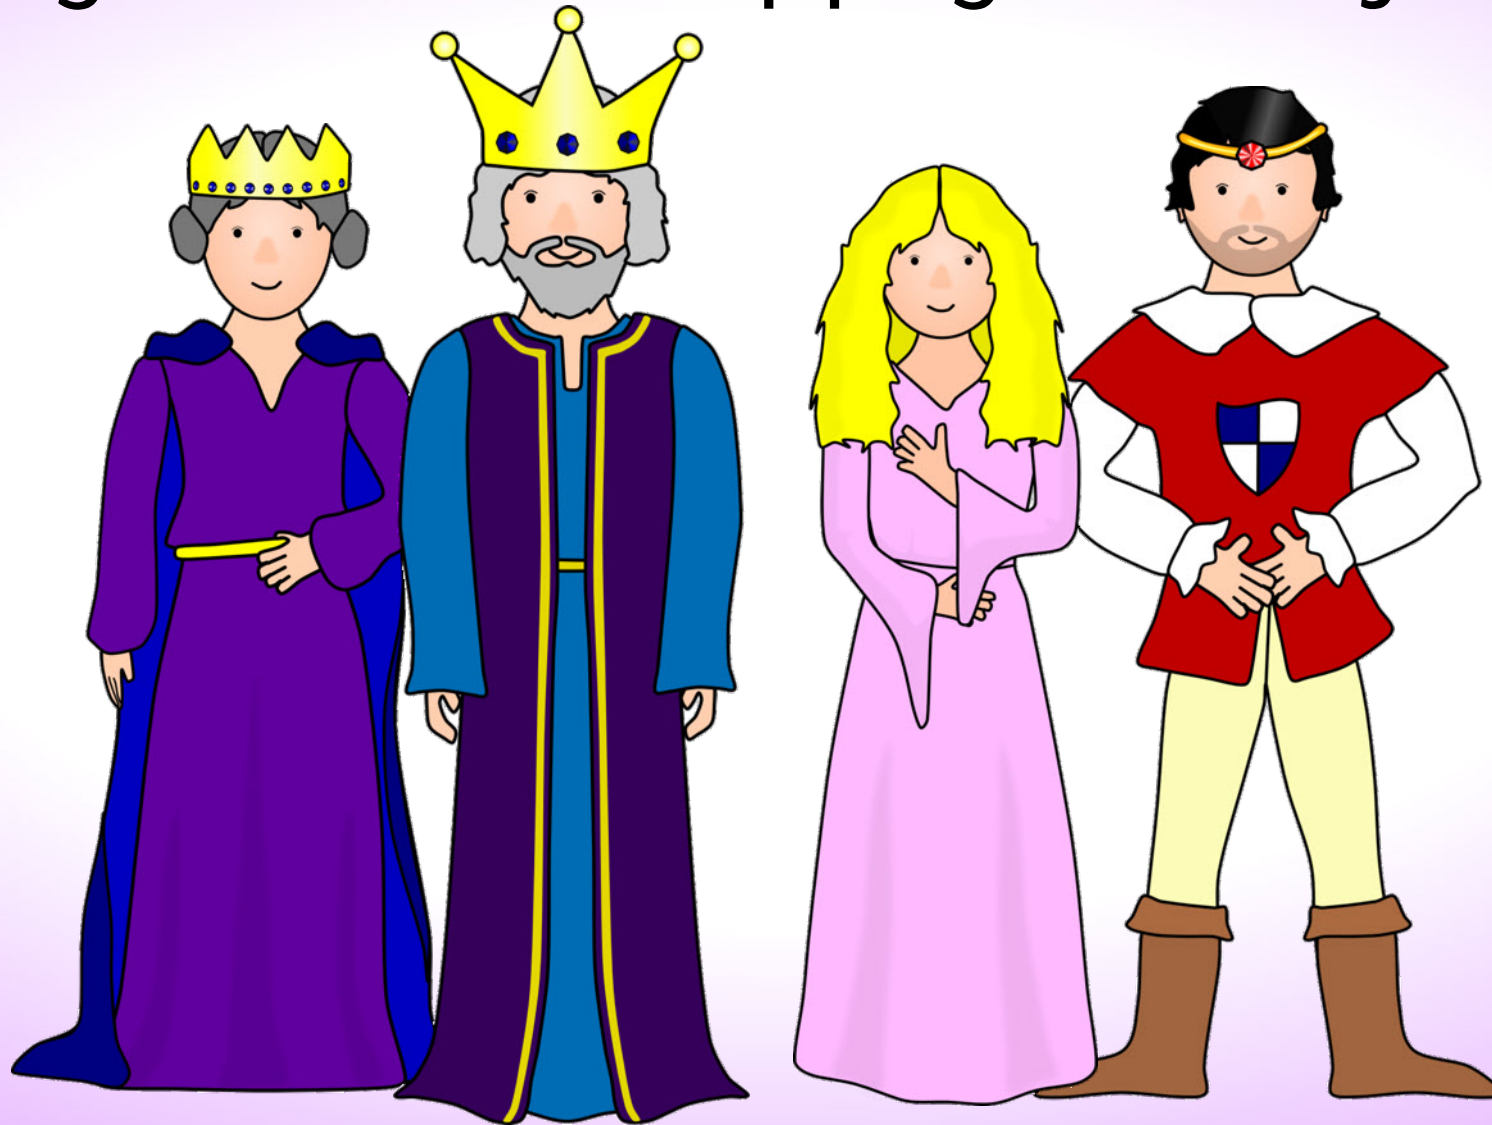

The princess woke up!

And so did the whole palace!

Everyone lived happily ever after.
