

Executive cover letter

Sustainability for the university is not intended to be a speech, but an approach that drives our development model where we commit ourselves to people, the planet and prosperity, in such a way that we guarantee the balance between economic growth, the regeneration of the environment and social welfare.

We believe that the university is a vehicle for social transformation, from teaching, research, extension and innovation. In this way, we project ourselves socially with full certainty that a change is needed from being, knowing and doing.

For this reason, we are convinced that sustainability is part of the strategy and as such, we work from our Strategic Development Plan with interest groups to move towards a society that responsibly manages its resources, promotes healthy lifestyles and is committed to protection and recovery of the environment hand in hand with the social fabric and economic development.

We transcend with long-term thinking, with humanity, we are committed to promoting economic resources that enhance sustainability from innovative strategies that manage to reverse environmental impacts, managing local and international projects focused on the development of capacities, the socialization of knowledge, the strengthening of research and innovation for sustainable development.

Today, we are in volatile, uncertain, complex and ambiguous environments, where we must manage risks and maximize opportunities. For this reason, we work with and for stakeholders, rethinking ourselves and maintaining sustainability as a structural pillar of society.

In this report, we expose with transparency, our path as a university, aligned with the founding values and horizon that presupposes our mission and institutional vision. It is our way to share progress and identify opportunities in environmental, social and economic issues. In addition, it is our explicit commitment to excellence that has led us to continue working with each of the faculties, support areas and service centers in search of the well-being of all.
