

Dear Ms Husted,

In spring 2010 and 2011, the Bard Center for Environmental Policy sponsored dozens of April skype dialogues and conference calls between students audiences and their Senators and Congresspeople on energy, climate and jobs, as part of our C2C initiative. Faculty across the country expressed their interest, and we did the rest: invitation, scheduling, access to policy resources for students, suggested questions. We even staffed the DC end of the skype dialogs, bringing a laptop to the office Senators and Congresspeople at the appointed time. C2C engaged hundreds of students, faculty and staff in states and congressional districts across the country in the critical decisions concerning our future being made in Washington.

Below, I include a list of the video dialogs, in-person visits, and conference calls organized by Bard CEP's C2C project.

Sincerely,

Eban Goodstein, Director Bard Center for Environmental Policy
