To whom it may concern,

York University has been greening food operations for several years, and the introduction of the "Urban Cultivator" in our cafeteria is a good example of this.

This new kitchen greenhouse is an all-in-one indoor garden that can be used 365 days a year to provide perfect growing conditions for a variety of fresh greens and herbs. It will help to not only reduce the York University's carbon footprint, but also to provide a readily available supply of local, fresh ingredients for campus food preparation.

Sincerely,
