The Purpose of OLLI at ISU

The Osher Lifelong Learning Institute at Indiana State University (OLLI at ISU) is a membership program open to all adults but geared towards individuals age 50 and older, regardless of academic background, and is a program of Indiana State University. At its center are learning programs designed by its members and tailored to suit their interests. Indeed, the only requirement for membership in the Institute is a desire to learn.

The Institute emphasizes collaborative leadership and active member participation. The primary responsibilities for programs are assumed by Institute members, all of whom volunteer their time. However, it is only because of the substantial support of the Bernard Osher Foundation and Indiana State University that the Institute can offer these unique learning opportunities to residents of the Wabash Valley.

Members' Views of OLLI

I enjoy the intellectual stimulation of the programs I attend. I have had some experiences of refreshing my knowledge of some subjects, and I have encountered entirely new areas. The opportunity to enjoy cultural events and interesting cuisine has been most enjoyable as well. A recent highlight for me was the presentation on Shakespeare's first folio by Prof. Tom Sauer, and I look forward to his presentation in April on Shakespeare Now and Then. Another important and most entertaining series was that by Prof. Patrick Harkins on poets of the WWI era. On the magic carpet of OLLI I have visited Ancient Egypt, Germany in the Middle Ages, unique homes and architecture of Terre Haute. Finally, leaving the driving to someone else for a trip to Bloomington for a great performance at the IU Opera and a tasty meal is a special bonus for me in OLLI membership.

- Gene England

It is very easy for me to name a valuable OLLI program.... An International Perspective with Zachariah Mathew is unique and inspiring every time it meets. Learning about other countries and cultures from the students who come here to study is positive in so many ways... we each learn from one another, and how we receive and treat our 'guests' leaves a lasting impression when these students go back to their home countries.

- Ruth A. Erickson

It has been inspiring to teach OLLI classes. Interested students, great questions, and a real sense of satisfaction in facilitating better use of technology. I have learned so much myself while preparing these sessions for the past two years. OLLI is fun and invigorating. Learning with OLLI is a bargain whatever the cost.

- Bruce McLaren

I've thoroughly enjoyed all of the programs I've participated in...what a wonderful variety of topics have been explored. Most recently I've looked forward each week to "International Perspectives," where we gained insights into the homes, families, daily lives, and religions of students from India, Finland, Saudi Arabia, and Malaysia. We were also able to gain an understanding of how cultural differences here in the United States have impacted the students' experiences here. These sessions were very enlightening! I hope that this class with students from other countries will be offered again soon!

- Jan Jerry

We enjoy participating in OLLI because it is an opportunity to take part in different activities. Through Olli we have been able to meet new people. We have learned that you are never too old to learn. We have especially enjoyed being able to audit classes. Doing this has enabled us to share our life experiences with the younger generation and in turn have been able to learn from them. We also enjoyed the International Perspective classes. We had the privilege of meeting four very bright and informative students. We learned about their countries and their lives, both in their country and here in the United States. They were all willing to stay after class and talk with us.

Exploring The Human Condition Through Fiction: Ishmael by Daniel Quinn

With Nick McCreary, Coordinator for ISU Office of Sustainability

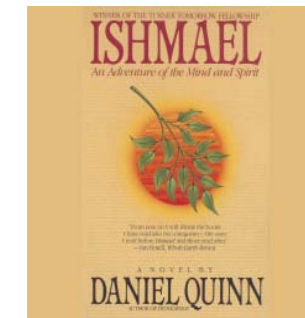

Date: Tuesdays, May 15, 22 & 29, 2018

Time: 2 - 4 PM

Place: ISU University Hall, Room 201

Cost: $15

In three guided sessions, we will work through the many topics raised by Daniel Quinn's award winning novel, Ishmael. The overarching question of this piece of fiction is, why are things the way they are? With this question in mind, we will have the opportunity to explore topics including: environmental inquiry, ethics, realism, economics, anthropocentrism, religion, sociology, ecology, and more! It would take a semester to unpack this book completely, so the objective of this course is to use Ishmael as a guide to thinking differently – once we are thinking differently the class can explore any number of topics that are of interest.

Introduction to U.S. Immigration

With Zachariah Mathew, ISU Associate Director of International Affairs & International Students; Angela Adams, Owner/Managing Attorney Adams Immigration Law, LLC; Donald Maxwell, ISU Senior Instructor of History; Christopher Elmore, Attorney at Law

Date: Thursdays, May 17, 24, 31 & June 7, 2018

Time: May 17, 24, 31 from 12 - 2 PM; June 7 from 3 - 5 PM

Place: ISU College of Nursing, Room 109

Cost: $20

The United States experienced major waves of immigration during the colonial era, the first part of the 19th century and from the 1880's to 1920. Many immigrants came to America seeking greater economic opportunity, while some, such as the Pilgrims in the early 1600's, arrived in search of religious freedom. Immigration has clearly played an important role in American history, so why is it so misunderstood and controversial? Join us as we get a better understanding of some of the issues surrounding immigration as well as a better understand of the history of immigration in the United States.

Zachariah Mathew will share his personal experience of his immigration process to the United States from student visa to greencard.

Angela Adams will discuss the questions and issues surrounding undocumented immigrants from DACA to deportation.

Donald Maxwell will give us a brief overview of the history of immigration in the United States from first immigration laws enacted to the shift from states' passed immigration laws to the Supreme Court declaring regulation of immigration a federal responsibility.

Christopher Elmore will explain immigration topics from visas, green cards, cost of immigration, the process of how to get into the country and what it takes to stay. We will also clarify many terms used that are not understood like the green-card lottery.

Water Stress

With Nick McCreary, Coordinator for ISU Office of Sustainability; Mike Chamber, ISU Professor of Political Science; and Jeffery Stone, ISU Associate Professor of Environmental Geosciences

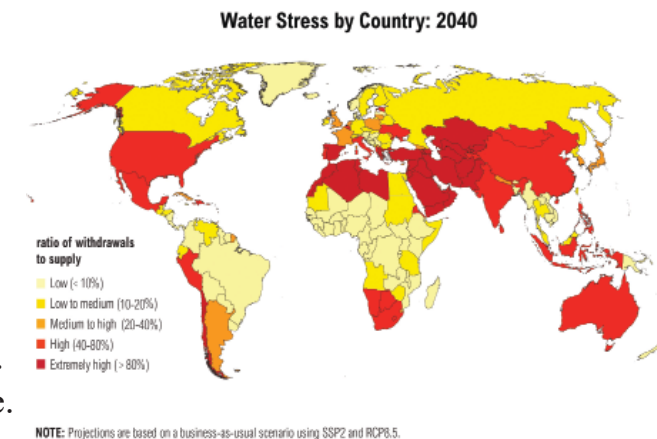

Date: Mondays, June 11, 18 & 25, 2018

Time: 2 - 4 PM

Place: ISU College of Nursing, Room 109

Cost: $15

Join us as we look at the issue of water stress from a conservation, political, and environmental view. Learn what is being done and can be done to conserve water, as well as the political issues being faced around the world because of water stress. Lastly we will look at how this has become a problem from a scientific prospective.

Water Conservation with Nick McCreary

Water conservation includes all the policies, strategies and activities to sustainably manage the natural resource of fresh water, to protect the hydrosphere, and to meet the current and future human demand. Population, household size, growth and affluence all affect how much water is used. Factors such as climate change have increased pressures on natural water resources especially in manufacturing and agricultural irrigation. Many US cities have already implemented policies aimed at water conservation, with much success. Learn what is being done and what you can do to help conserve water for the next generation.

The (International) Politics of Water with Mike Chambers

While many Americans are familiar with the political squabbles over water in the western U.S., there are similar dynamics at work in other countries where water is a scarce resource. This session will examine conflicts over water in other countries as well as between other countries, and will draw particularly on examples from Asia.

Water Crisis in U.S. West with Jeffery Stone

Much of the U.S. West's water supply is under threat as rapidly-warming temperatures melt more snow-pack annually than is created by precipitation. Each spring, melted snow and ice from the Rocky Mountains recharges up to 80 percent of the Columbia, Missouri, and Colorado River Basins. Together, these basins form the primary water source for nearly 70 million people in an area plagued by droughts—including Denver, Las Vegas, Los Angeles, and Salt Lake City. The new study, by the U.S. Geological Survey, appears to confirm a key source of the droughts: Snow-pack has been disappearing over the past several decades. This session will explore why snow-pack plays such a key role and why it has been changing over the last decade.

Courses

Beyond Recycling - Sustainability

With Nick McCreary, Coordinator for ISU Office of Sustainability & Jennifer Latimer, ISU Associate Professor of Earth and Environmental Systems

Date: Thursdays, June 14, 21 & 28, 2018

Time: 12 - 2 PM

Place: ISU University Hall, Room 209A

Cost: $15

Sustainability is one of the hottest words being used nowadays, but what does it really mean? This course will unpack sustainability as an interdisciplinary field that goes beyond recycling. Sustainability is a field of study that considers social-equity, economic growth, and environmental protection equally. If you are missing one of these three pillars, then you need to find a new buzzword. We will focus mainly on the social-equity portion of sustainability in this course because it is the least recognized and understood part of sustainability. Some topics that will be covered are: human rights as they relate to climate change, environmental justice/racism, higher education's role in sustainability, and what you can actually do to make a difference.

The Comedy of Nostalgia: The Andy Griffith Show

Place: ISU University Hall, Room 209A

Cost: $10

Join local columnist and author Mike Lunsford for a relaxed discussion about the 1960's classic television program, The Andy Griffith Show. Richard Kelly, author of The Andy Griffith Show (John F. Blair, Pub., 1981) refers to the classic show's warm writing as "The Comedy of Nostalgia."

Author of six books, a regular column, and monthly features for the Terre Haute Tribune-Star, Lunsford, a now-retired educator, will discuss the show's major themes, present several episodes, provide a reading list, and lead discussions about what makes TAGS so special, even now in such turbulent and noisy times.

Who doesn't love Ron "Opie" Howard and the American Dream? You'd be surprised! Even though Howard's movies have grossed almost $3.9 billion at the box office, he is often criticized for his happy endings and nice guy persona. The concept of the American Dream is taking its lumps, too. An ideal that inspired millions since the Great Depression is now eyed suspiciously as something reserved for the already privileged. Join us for a weird but wonderful examination of Ron Howard's life, career and the portrayal of the American Dream in three of his best movies.

July 10 – Defining the American Dream and a retrospective of Ron Howard's life

July 17 – Cinderella Man and the American Dream

July 24 - Apollo 13 and the American Dream

Time: 2 - 4 PM

Each class session will focus on a different topic regarding how the Holocaust influenced the art world. Join Amy Guess, Program Coordinator at CANDLES Holocaust Museum and Education Center and Art History Professor, to examine this lesser-known area of the Holocaust. Date: Tuesdays, August 14, 21 & 28, 2018

Her use of biting irony, along with her realism and social commentary, have earned her acclaim among critics and scholars.

Join us as we discuss one of her best known works, Pride and Prejudice. We will look at the historical context of the period to understand the world that Jane lived in as well as wrote about. The second session, we will take a more critical look at the book Pride and Prejudice and discuss whether she was ahead of her time in her opinions about marriage, women's rights, and society. The last session, we will watch a movie titled Bride and Prejudice which is a modern take on the book.

OLLI Policies

Adverse Weather Policy

If the ISU Campus is closed due to adverse weather conditions, OLLI programs are also canceled. If you are registered for a program, you will be notified by phone or e-mail about the rescheduled program. If OLLI presentations are canceled, an e-mail will be sent and a notice will be on the Program Administrator's voice-mail at 812-237-2336. The easiest way to determine if your class or trip has been canceled is to call the OLLI offices at 812-237-2345. Campus closures are also announced by local media.

Program Cancellation

Although highly unlikely, a program may be canceled due to under-enrollment or some other circumstance beyond the Institute's control. Members will be notified of a cancellation and have the option of a credit to their account or a refund.

A cancellation must be made seven days prior to the date of the program to receive a refund or credit. Trip cancellations must be made two weeks prior to a trip to possibly receive a refund or credit. If we can fill your seat for a day-trip, you may receive a full credit. If you do not show for a program that you are registered for and have not cancelled by the stated time, you will be charged for that program.
