

Food Recovery Network Partnership

This fall 2014 marked a great achievement for not only Florida State University but the Food recovery network. Sustainable Campus, Aramark and FRN worked to gather data for the process of food donation and ensure proper procedures were in place before taking that next step. In August all parties involved launched a food donation program that helped out local communities around Florida State University.

I believe that this partnership has:

- Strengthened our commitment to the Tallahassee community
- Provided a safe and easy way to donate any unused food
- Reduced waste in our facilities
- Built teamwork and partnerships

We have now completed a semester of our partnership and have no issues moving forward. We look forward to another year of helping the community and the environment!

Thanks for the continued support,
