PUBLISHER’S NOTE

Last month’s cover story was about a wonderful family that has been continuously selling flowers at the Old Town Farmers Market since the 1800’s and matrunch Doris Dove Cassedy was thrilled when Todd Healy of Gallery Lafayette, 130 South Royal Street, generously framed our cover and presented it to her on a beautiful Saturday morning in July. It’s just the sort of reason we are in this business—to meet great people, tell their stories and share them with you.

This issue is overflowing with good news from all over town, and we hope you enjoy reading the feature about our gem of the waterfront, the Potomac Riverboat Company as well as all the latest highlights inside the community, school and foodie news. This month is also Alexandria’s Restaurant Week and you can get all the scoop on the special deals in our special advertising section on pages 20-21.

As always, please keep sending your suggestions and criticisms and I hope your last days of summer are days overflowing with family, fun and laughter.

Company’s Always Coming to the Alexandria Waterfront

BY KRIS GILBERTSON

Driving to her office on the morning of a chartered wedding cruise, Charlotte Hall, Vice President of the Potomac Riverboat Company, came upon a group of tuxedoed young men at the corner of Franklin and S. Union Streets. They’d been part of a rehearsal dinner the night before on Cherry Blossom. She asked what they were doing so far south. Their answer: “We can’t find the boat!”

Hall packed them into her car along with her Rottweiler and delivered the groomsmen to the City Marina, and the wedding, on time. “Even today,” she says, “there are people who still don’t know there’s anything behind the Torpedo Factory.”

East of Union Street

Hidden from the traffic on lower King and Union Streets is a dynamic business and tourist enclave on the Alexandria waterfront. It is home to the Potomac Riverboat Company’s fleet.

Willem Polak is owner and CEO of PRC and a native Washingtonian. He commissioned the building of Cherry Blossom, an ornate 110 ft. historically accurate sternwheeler, in the early 1980s. In 1984, he founded the Potomac Riverboat Company. A native Virginian, Charlotte Hall joined PRC in 1992, coming from a river tour company in Richmond. She says of working with Alexandria and the tourist crowds, “It’s fun. You have to be willing to work hard, and it’s very important to work with the community. But it’s fun.”

Building a fleet

Cherry Blossom is a Coast Guard-certified authentic sternwheeler—authentic because the paddlewheels work. Powered by two diesel engines, the wheels move the boat. She is classified as a Western riverboat, although in the past her category of side and sternwheel vessels carried passengers, freight, and itinerant troubadours throughout the mid-Atlantic. A portrait depicting this history hangs in the Alexandria City Council chamber.

Cherry Blossom was built in Florida and cruised to Alexandria on the Intracoastal Waterway. “Thirty-one years ago, it was a big deal bringing a big boat like that up the waterway,” says Charlotte Hall. “They’d stop in these little towns and they drew crowds. It was like they were the ice cream man. They’d open the boat up—this brand new boat—and let people go through it. Willem said, they want to learn, and these are our fans.”

This was only the start for PRC. In the 1980s and early 1990s, the Alexandria waterfront was developing as a tourist destination. Demand for more than charter services grew and continues to grow today. But in building the PRC fleet, now eight boats of different sizes, and the company, with as many as 25 captains and 130 deckhands, there have been obstacles to overcome.

It’s always about parking

When the Washington Nationals moved to 2009 from RFK Stadium to Nationals Park on the Anacostia River, PRC proposed a water taxi to games – the Baseball Boat. “This was Willem’s idea,” Charlotte says, “but I had to get it through City Hall.” It seemed simple because the company would use an existing boat, Abu Chivas, with already established dock space. But to City Manager Mark Jinks, it wasn’t so easy.

“When, he asked me, will more people in Old Town park? I said why is this a problem? People shop and dine in Alexandria all the time and businesses don’t have to provide parking,” Hall says. “He said it’s a problem because it’s a new concept and residents will complain about more cars. We want you to devise a parking plan. “So I did.”

Within a day PRC agreed with two lot operators to include parking in the Baseball Boat ticket price. Customers were assured an off-street space, lot owners would see more business, and residents would have no cause for complaint. “But I told Mark,” she adds, “don’t ask me to do it again.”

National Harbor across the river was under construction at the time. PRC proposed another water taxi, between Alexandria and the Gaylord Hotel. To assure an Alexandria business community leery of how National Harbor would affect Old Town, PRC began quarterly boat trips taking merchants to meet with Kent Dogby, NH Vice President of Operations, to market the plan for everyone’s benefit. The slogan became “Company’s Coming.” When taxi service commenced, a City press release stated:

On April 1, the Alexandria–National Harbor Water Taxi, operated by Potomac Riverboat Company, will begin providing transportation between the waterfront in Old Town Alexandria and National Harbor… It is expected to bring hundreds of new tourists to Alexandria every day throughout the year, and encourage National Harbor visitors to travel to Alexandria by boat, not by car or bus—an earth-friendly strategy that benefits both the City’s residents and the environment.

“Finally, Willem said to me, you know what we need?” says Charlotte. “Company will stay by the river unless they have a way to get up King Street and out to other areas. And I said, we need a trolley. The rest is history.” DASH operates the free King Street Trolley, which starting August 9 will run every 10 minutes from King Street Memorial to the waterfront. In the early years, the trolley was funded with tax dollars from the hotel association because residents would have “fussed about the city putting money into a trolley for visitors,” she adds. King Street Trolley riders today are half tourists and half residents.

More taxi service
Using the Potomac more for daily transportation is in the news again. PRC’s contract with the City prohibits true commuter service until the parking issue is resolved. However, Joint Base Anacostia-Bolling (JBAB) wants PRC to operate a water taxi from City Marina to their dock, a ten-minute trip. JBAB has about 1200 people living in and around Alexandria. When they drive to work, 1-295 often becomes a parking lot.

Meetings about this project include PRC, the City, the Navy, and residents with strong opinions. As always, the City is asking where to put more cars. One solution may be to start the King Street Trolley earlier from Metro stations. Current start time is 10:00 a.m.

The French Ship
In August 2014, Willem Polak learned that organizers of the tall ship L’Hermione’s U.S. tour wanted to sail to Washington, DC. This was not possible. The bridges are too low and the river too shallow for a vessel of such size to reach the District—but it could dock at Alexandria. He and Hall went to work, starting with a lunchroom where City officials, Visit Alexandria, and business leaders met Miles Young, CEO of Ogilvie & Mather and President of The Friends of Hermione-La Fayette in America. “Mark Jinks has always been a fan of the waterfront,” says Charlotte, “and to me the right man for the job of city manager. He’s always willing to listen.”

The first plan was to moor the ship at Robinson Terminal, but the property was in transition with the Waterfront Plan. No one was certain who would own that pier when the ship arrived. The second plan—a berth at City Marina. Current start time is 10:00 a.m.

“Even today there are people who still don’t know there’s anything behind the Torpedo Factory.” —Charlotte Hall

THE FACTS
Potomac Riverboat Company serves about 450 thousand passengers year round, although water taxi service to National Harbor is suspended in January and February due to icing at the docks.

Cherry Blossom anchors PRC’s fleet of eight vessels, including: Admiral Tilp (capacity 49). Built in California, then trucked across county, the Admiral was named for Fred Tilp, a famous local historian, who died the year before his namesake was christened.

Matthew Hayes (60) and Miss Malvoi (40) carry the Washington by Water Monuments Cruise. Matthew Hayes is believed to be named for an elusive Potomac River pirate.

Miss Malvoi is Matthew Hayes’ sister ship to help with passage between Alexandria and Georgetown in D.C. From Cherry Blossom and Admiral Tilp, all PRC’s boats are named for Kelvin’s family.

PRC boat not custom built. PRC won a contract for the Alexandria to Mt. Vernon run in January 1997, with only three months to tool up. Building a tour boat takes two years. Miss Christie was moved from Thursday to Mt. Vernon, Robinson Terminal is but one property tied into the Waterfront Plan to make the entire area more attractive, walkable and inviting. “I think Alexandria is a precious gem,” says Charlotte, “and we’re just trying to make it shine even more by getting rid of some of the old.”

The Waterfront Plan will make dependable water taxi service even more meaningful and, she says, “we only cancel when the Coast Guard closes the river.”

We only cancel when...

Late in the day September 18, 2003, Hurricane Isabel moved up the East Coast aimed at Alexandria. Willem and enough captains and deckhands to crew all PRC boats planned to spend the night at City Marina. If the storm endangered the fleet at the dock, they would man the boats and head out on the river.

Charlotte Hall, at home near Mt. Vernon, had lost power. It was stifling, her dogs were panting, she was lying in bed. About 7:00 p.m., the landline rang. “Miss Hall, this is the Alexandria Police Department calling to let you know the Cherry Blossom is about to sink.”

Charlotte rang Willem on her cell phone: “Charlotte-we’re-okay-I’ve-got-the-fire-department-here-with-me-I’ll-call-you-back.” Click. “I told the police there were people on board and they would be okay,” she says. “They said, Cherry Blossom is really leaning bad to one side.”

The boat was moored to a piling, tourists in the rising wind and waves, the river coming up fast. She went down in a trough, got caught coming up on the rub ring around that piling, and couldn’t free herself. As the river rose, Cherry Blossom keeled over more
2,000 SWEATERS DONATED TO WORLD VISION

BY KRIS GILBERSTON

In a sunny, inviting atrium, Goodwin House Bailey’s Crossroads (GHBC) marked a milestone July 14 at a punch and cookies reception for some 40 people. Since 2006, resident members of the Knit for Kids Committee have knit or crocheted 2,032 (and counting) children’s sweaters for donation to the international relief organization World Vision.

The knitting group gathers for an hour weekly in a GHBC conference room, but members also work on sweaters on their own time. GHBC Executive Director Linda Lateana noted that at every meeting held, their hands are always busy.

“Resident Peg Lorenz coordinates the 20 to 25 member knitting group, which is supported in part by a grant from the Goodwin House Foundation Quality of Life initiative. Through World Vision, sweaters have gone to children in Central and South America, Africa, Eastern Europe, and the U.S. For many children, a hand-made item isn’t just a sweater; it’s a symbol of support for a better future.”

4MRMarket Increases Incentives for SNAP Customers

The Four Mile Run Farmers & Artisans Market (4MRMarket) increased access to fruits and vegetables for the food insecure of Arlandria and the surrounding neighborhoods while also benefitting small and mid-sized farmers in the region. The new incentive program was made possible by the USDA with $31.5 million granted through the Food Insecurity Nutrition Program (FINP). National nonprofit Wholesome Wave received a $3.77 million FINP grant, of which 4MRMarket, as a subgrantee, received $410,000.

Since June 2010, the Four Mile Run Farmers & Artisans Market has been committed to bringing fresh, nutritious food to people of all income levels, providing an opportunity for local artisans and producers of goods to bring their wares to market, strive to reflect the diversity of the community, and improve the quality of life for Arlandria residents and visitors. With the grant, 4MRMarket increases affordable access to fresh fruits and vegetables for SNAP consumers in Arlandria, while also supporting local agriculture.

“The Four Mile Run Farmers & Artisans Market was the first farmers market in Northern Virginia to enable SNAP beneficiaries to Buy Fresh, Buy Local and we are proud to have been able to assist others with technical assistance and to see the program grow throughout the region. We are more than excited to grow this program and provide these additional incentives,” says Kevin Beekman, Co-Market Manager at 4MRMarket.

With the award from Wholesome Wave, 4MRMarket continues its groundbreaking incentive programs at its Sunday market in Arlandria. 4MRMarket will match the first $10 of SNAP customers purchases with an additional $10 tokens to be used exclusively for the purchases of fruits and vegetables. Additionally, 4MRMarket will continue to provide “Double Dollars”, an additional $10 of tokens to match SNAP customers purchases with an additional $10 of tokens for use with any SNAP-eligible product. In total, up to $20 in additional funds are available each Sunday to enable more folks to stretch the benefits and still “Buy Fresh, Buy Local.”

LOCAL GRADS SERVE THE NATION

Serving in Navy Reserve During Centennial Year

An Alexandria, Virginia native and 2008 Lee High School graduate is serving in the U.S. Navy Reserve as it celebrates its 100th year protecting America.

Petty Officer 3rd Class Phubest Thunanyano is part of a unique group of Americans who serve their country in uniform part-time while also working full-time jobs outside of the military. Created in 1915, the Navy Reserve has played an important role in nearly every conflict the U.S. has been involved with during the past decade.

“Joining the Navy Reserve gave me the opportunity to see the world and experience new things,” said Thunanyano.

Thunanyano’s current assignment is with Naval Mobile Construction Battalion 27, based in Gulfport, Mississippi. Sailors attached to NMCB 27 and other similar units, nicknamed “Seabees,” specialize in building roads, bridges, airports and other structures for the U.S. military in areas of conflict around the world.

“I honestly enjoy doing my military job,” said Thunanyano.

Thunanyano and the rest of NMCB 27 are part of the Navy’s construction force that has been around for more than 70 years. Seabees have built entire bases and bridges and bulldozed and paved thousands of miles of roadway and airstrips for the U.S. military all over the world, playing a vital role in every major conflict the U.S. has been involved with since World War II.

With nearly 600 personnel assigned to the battalion, jobs are highly varied, and every job plays a significant role in keeping the battalion ready to deploy around the world.

Thunanyano plays an essential role in the battalion as an equipment operator, responsible for maintaining and operating construction equipment. “I perform the required maintenance and operate different construction equipment on the job site,” said Thunanyano.

As a reservist, Thunanyano is continually balancing both the expectations of working as a Sailor and as a civilian. Thunanyano said that he gained unique skills and experience on both sides and that he’s become a better-rounded person because of it.

“The attention to detail and organization the Navy has taught me helps on a day-to-day basis at my civilian job,” said Thunanyano.

Thunanyano’s commanding officer, a reservist himself, said he is impressed every time he sees a Sailor and as a civilian.

Thanunyano said that he’s become a better-rounded person because of it.

Petty Officer 1st Class Joshua Buzzell is an electrician’s mate on USS Maine (SSBN 741), which is based in Silverdale, about 70 miles west of Seattle across Puget Sound. Electrician’s mates handle generating all electrical power for the boat.

“What I enjoy most is unleashing the binding energy of a nucleus to defend freedom and democracy around the world,” said Buzzell.

The vegetation and soil of a “green roof” reduce rainwater to sewer run-off and naturally filter water that is discharged. It Takes a Village – or Several Villages

BY ROSEMARY MURRAY

Non-profit organizations throughout the metropolitan area serve all kinds of needs, but they cannot do it alone. To the rescue – Alexandria’s Good Shepherd Church is holding its 40th annual International Festival Labor Day weekend and all the proceeds will be given in the form of grants to various charities. To date over $800,000 has been awarded to charities such as Hopkins’ House, Alice’s Kids, United Community Ministries and The Centerville Immigration Center.

On Saturday, September 5th, the festival will start with a 5K race and a White Elephant sale covering about 5,000 square feet in a lovely air conditioned hall. Donations of slightly used items including linens, china, kitchenware, holiday decorations, jewelry, watches, decorative pillows, tools and much, much more, are accepted at the church (8710 Mt. Vernon Highway) from August 15 until September 4th. Of course, a receipt for tax purposes is available. While entrance to the sale is free from 9:30 am until 4 pm, early birds are welcome at 8:30 am for a $10 fee. This is a greatly popular event to shop, socialize and help support some excellent charities.

On Monday, Labor Day; the festival is all about fun with great ethnic foods, entertainment, games for the kids and bingo in an air conditioned environment. So, mark your calendars to enjoy a fun-filled weekend while helping others and start sorting through all those items you’ve meant to clean out. Questions? Call 703 660-1010.

Pitch Your Idea to the City for Better Broadband

The City of Alexandria is asking the private and nonprofit broadband industry and other interested parties to help evaluate the possibility of upgrading broadband Internet infrastructure in Alexandria. The City has issued a formal Request for Information (RFI), marking an exploratory step in reviewing options to ensure that Alexandria has the digital infrastructure it needs for both the City government and residential and commercial use.

“Alexandria has long been a leader in local government technology, and home to thousands of residents and businesses that rely on access to broadband Internet,” said Mayor William D. Euille.

“This RFI is an opportunity for the market – and anyone else – to help give us ideas about how to begin an exciting new chapter in municipal and community broadband in Alexandria.”

The RFI addresses two separate but complementary City initiatives. First, the City plans to upgrade its fiber backbone infrastructure to support data transport among the City’s public institutions, including schools, libraries, public safety buildings, and other City facilities. The current institutional network, or “I-Net,” was the first network

Baby Announcement

Alexandria City Council candidate, Fernando Torrez and his wife Kamila added a new member to their young family on July 19, 2015.

At 9:09 AM, the Torrez family welcomed Alexandra Janina to this world. Alexandria is named after the city in which the Torrez family lives and works. Alexandra weighs 7 pounds, 9 ounces and measures 18 inches.

“I am overwhelmed with the joy from our new addition,” said Torrez. “I am extremely pleased with the attention that the doctors and nurses at Inova Alexandria Hospital gave my wife during this miraculous event. We are very tired but we look forward to introducing her to the community where she will be growing up. Alexandria is one of my motivations in running for City Council, as I want her to grow up in a city that is safe, has a thriving economy and a strong education system.”
Look for a Papa John's Pizza to open in Potomac Yards. The pizza store applied to operate a delivery business from a new store in the Camden apartments at 3535 S. Ball St that formerly housed a Jerry's Subs and Pizza. Although I don’t know when the shop will open, the hours will be 10 am to midnight on weekdays and 10:00 am to 1:00 am on weekends according to the permit application. The store also asked to be able to deliver within a 1.5-mile radius. Speaking of chains opening new locations, Starbucks plans to open its doors at 2413 Columbia Pike at 5:00 am on Aug. 14. Located in the former Bar TNT and Society Fair space at Pennrose Square, the store will be the first Starbucks along the Pike in Arlington. In addition to the typical menu of coffee, espresso drinks, tea, pastries and sandwiches, the new Pike Starbucks will offer Starbucks Reserve, “a special collection of unique, small-lot coffees. Customers will be able to order their Starbucks Reserve coffee brewed on The Clover Brewing System, which lets you discover new layers and dimensions within a coffee’s familiar aroma, flavor, body and acidity, brewed fresh by the cup,” said a spokeswoman. And the opening we’ve all been waiting for is finally here. The new Giant at E. Glebe and Rt. 1 is opening Sept. 4. The old Giant on Monroe St. closes on Sept. 3. Carla Hall of Top Chef and The Chew fame has landed at Reagan Airport. Her new restaurant, Page, is a modernistic, Jetson-like 110-seat restaurant where travelers can order their food using iPads at their table. The menu includes locally inspired dishes including a pimento cheese dip, cured ham and biscuits, Virginia she crab soup, Chesapeake oysters, vegetarian quinoa burger, lobster roll and a BBQ Cobb salad. Head to Terminal A near Gates 1-9 and grab a seat. Also opening is Cava Grill. According to the Washington City Paper, Cava Grill is introducing a Greek yogurt bar and build-your-own breakfast bowls with eggs and potatoes or grains at the Reagan National Airport location, opening in Terminal B near the end of August. Cava Grill CEO Brett Schulman says there are “absolutely no current plans” to introduce breakfast elsewhere. “I don’t know that there’s quite enough breakfast crowd for some of Rick and Elizabeth Myllenbeck won't admit to love at first sight when they met at a California winery. Sparks flew, but Rick's job had him leaving three days later for Northern Virginia. However, love prevailed, they married, and moved to Old Town Alexandria. Now their second love, wine, is taking up most of their time. Newly opened Sonoma Cellar, LLC (soft opening mid-August) is an on/off premises California-inspired wine tasting room and bistro located at 207 King Street. They have transformed the more than 200-year-old building into a two-story restaurant and wine tasting room. "It has a great structural shell," said Elizabeth. They created a California feel to both the building and cuisine while maintaining the antique feel while adding modern warmth. You'll gasp at the beautiful curly maple bar built by local KC Cromwell using wood from the Mount Vernon Estate, and marvel over the original fireplace and tiles in the main room.

Sonoma Cellar is "all about the wine, all about the experience" and offers an authentic California wine tasting featuring hand-selected wines from 200+ Sonoma County boutique wineries and 20+ Virginia-based wineries. Guests have the opportunity to taste varieties from robust growing regions. Sharing their passion for wine, and doing more than just pouring and selling wine, Rick and Elizabeth provide an eclectic mix of distinctive, California-inspired, seasonal craft-foods including panini, quinoa salad, shrimp with zucchini pasta, soups, kabobs, and lamb burgers prepared by Executive Chef Bernard Henry paired with enhancing wines. Enjoy your wine and meal on the patio or the dining areas upstairs.

Some of the best burgers in the area according to Thrillist include Del Ray’s Holy Cow, 2312 Mt. Vernon Ave. They recommend the Popper featuring an Angus beef patty with a smear of cream cheese, bacon, fried jalapeños, chipotle ketchup, and garlic aioli. At $24, it’s more than what you are used to paying, but it’s worth it and you deserve it.

Enjoy the new patio seating at Bon Vivant Café and Farm Market, 2016 Mt. Vernon Ave. The patio was successfully crowdsourced through Kickstarter and officially opened on Saturday, Aug. 1, their one year anniversary. The patio party featured food, drink, live music, and lots of fun. And, look for patio dining at the Waffle (Wafe) Shop, 3864 Mt. Vernon Ave. This local diner is a favorite morning stop for breakfast. You can’t beat their breakfast special of two eggs with bacon, ham, sausage, or scrapple plus home fries, toast, and coffee for only $5.95.

submarine-launched ballistic missiles. Together with land-based missiles and strategic bombers, the Navy's Ohio-class submarines are part of the nation's strategic nuclear deterrence triad. Because of their stealth, they are considered the most survivable component of the triad.

Ohio-class submarines like USS Maine have a very high operational availability due to an innovative crewing concept. Each submarine has two crews, Blue and Gold, which alternate manning the submarines and taking them on patrol. This maximizes the sub's strategic availability, reduces the number of submarines required to meet strategic requirements, and allows for proper crew training, readiness, and morale. Buzzell serves on the USS Maine Blue Crew.

As a sailor with numerous responsibilities, Buzzell said he is proud of what they do every day. “A submarine is like a small town, so I've learned to work with people from all walks of life,” said Buzzell. With approximately 15 officers and 140 enlisted comprising the submarine's company, jobs are highly varied. Each member of the crew plays a role in keeping the submarine's mission ready — this includes everything from washing dishes and preparing meals to handling weaponry and maintaining the propulsion system.

“We protect and defend America from below the world's oceans and no other nation can match our capabilities,” said Rear Adm. Dave Kriete, commander, Submarine Group Nine in Bangor, Washington. “Our submarine force could not thrive without the professionalism and skill of our sailors. These men and women, whose mission is often unseen because of its discreet nature, represent the finest characteristics of our nation's military. Their families, friends, and the entire nation should be extremely proud of what they do every day.”

Buzzell said he is proud of the work he is doing as a member of the crew, protecting America on the world's oceans. “I like the fact that the command is like a family. The Maine family takes care of everyone,” said Buzzell.

In addition to USS Maine, seven other Ohio-class ballistic missile submarines are home ported in Kitsap County, Washington, along with three Seawolf-class submarines and two Ohio-class guided missile submarines that are all assigned to the U.S. Pacific Fleet. Fast, maneuverable and technically advanced, submarines are some of the most versatile ships in the Navy. They are capable of conducting a variety of missions that can include engaging enemy vessels in the sea, launching missiles at targets on land, providing a platform for SEALs to operate from, and conducting intelligence and surveillance around the world.

Because of the demanding nature of service aboard submarines, sailors like Buzzell are accepted only after rigorous testing and observation that can last several months. The crews have to be highly motivated and adapt quickly to changing conditions. “When I'm out to sea, I know my family is safe and that I'm protecting the freedoms they enjoy,” said Buzzell.

“FIELDS” AT THE ATHENAEUM

BY ROBERT F. MURRAY, THE VON BRAHLER LTD.

Your imagination will be challenged and reawakened by the contemporary abstract works within the neo-classic walls of The Athenaeum, located at the epicenter of Old Town Alexandria at the corner of Prince and Lee Streets. This appealing and extensive show is called, “Fields,” featuring artists, Pat Goslee and David Carlson. Each one claims the use of “fields” as the core idea for their experiences in the creation of their work.

Coming through the front doors, two works caught my eye and interest. Both by Pat Goslee and titled, #14 “Refuge” and #22 “Weathering.” You may be struck by several other pieces, but my experience says that immediate attraction is the best promotion. By design, the titles do not appear on the wall next to the work, so that leaves a challenge to the experienced as well as the casual gallery-goer.

When this happens, the viewer has to reach into his own consciousness for meaning. By their very nature, abstracts demand creative artists and imaginative viewers. No imagination, no fun. The subject matter may or may not be related to some real object but an idea, a stream of consciousness, etc. You have to open up your own eyes to what is going on there – through your eyes to your own meaning. It is the game gallery-goers play all the time with any work of art that has any substance at all or reason to be set aside to be ‘looked at.’

By way of the history of art movements towards abstractionism (as always growing process with new artists and new mediums), Cubism, Russian Constructivism, German and American Expressionism and others fostered art using line, color and form to express the real but unrecognizable or differently realized world around us. It is a similar phenomenon in the developing circle of contemporary, jazz and classical musicians.

Freig Murray (no relation), the Athenaeum Gallery Director, elucidates in the show’s handout that David’s paintings are motivated by his recent travels and dedication to the tenets of Eastern Religion. She proffers, and I agree, that these joyfully executed works leap from the wall to the viewer. One small item of note is the way in which this show is hung – a bit too high for me, but, I keep in mind that this vast airy, open space is a challenge for any exhibition showcasing any artist’s works. This ‘not-to-be-missed’ architectural landmark, The Athenaeum itself, is the home of the Virginia Fine Arts Association and is a very active venue for many diversified, popular cultural events. From its beautifully-columned front porch, you take in the fabled cobblestoned Captains’ Row (Prince St) as well as its neighbor Fairfax House (1749-1771), now getting its own cosmetic facelift. Together, Carlson, Goslee, Fairfax House, The Athenaeum and the neighboring historic streets of Old Town all make a pleasant and worthwhile afternoon for adults and children alike. This show is open Thursday, Fridays and Sundays from Noon to 5, on Saturdays from 1 to 4. Go out and enjoy “Fields.” It a great plus to the summer season of the Alexandria Art Galleries World.
The paddleboat had flipped over above the dock,” says Willem, “the rest of the night was harrowing.”

Hurricane Isabel pushed a 9-1/2 ft. storm surge into Cherry Blossom and we can pry ourselves off.”

“Crash and waterFront roads were piled with massive debris and filth, but by mid-morning the Potomac had returned to its banks. Except in the PRC office. Through large front windows, Charlotte watched her precious family photographs bobbing in 4-1/2 ft. of river water.

“By the time I realized what was happening, my only PRC victim. A wedding and reception were relocated. The office was not Isabel’s only PRC victim. A wedding was planned that day, with a reception cruising aboard "He said, what are you going to do for my daughter?" she recalls. Through extraordinary efforts and cooperation from several businesses suffering the same disaster, the wedding and reception were relocated. Although not on the Potomac, it was still a great success. “I’m sure to this day he thinks I waved a magic wand,” she says, “but we wouldn’t be here if it weren’t for our customers. Customers are the bottom line.”

Try New Places During Restaurant Week
To assist low-income families who are struggling, United Community Ministries’ annual summer Back to School campaign collects new backpacks and monetary donations for the school supplies to fill them. This year, more than 800 students in Kindergarten through 12th grade will get to choose a new backpack at United Community Ministries (UCM), filled with school supplies for their grade level.

“We are thrilled by the outpouring of generous support to invest in our Mount Vernon kids for their academic success,” says Susan Johnson, UCM Back to School coordinator. “Support for our campaign means so much more than backpacks and school supplies: you’re giving creativity, literacy, and empowerment to vulnerable kids and youth in our community. These supplies mean that our kids have more motivation to study, that they can fit it with their more fortunate peers, that they gain confidence — and that they can start to see other possibilities in their future.”

Organizations hosting Back to School collection drives for UCM included: Aldersgate United Methodist Church (Vacation Bible School); Antioch Baptist Church (Vacation Bible School); Calvary Presbyterian Church, Good Shepherd Catholic Church (including Vacation Bible School); Heritage Presbyterian Church, Inova Mount Vernon Hospital, Kol Ami Jewish Congregation, Mount Vernon High School Dance Team, Mount Vernon United Methodist Church, Nativiy Lutheran Church, Party World (Woodbridge), Plymouth Haven Baptist Church, St. James Episcopal Church, Virginia’s Finest Auto Club, and Vorndano/ Charles E. Smith.

The deadline for donating backpacks has passed, but financial donations designated to “School” are still being accepted online via credit card or bank withdrawal at www.ucmagency.org or via check mailed to UCM, 7511 Fordson Rd., Alexandria VA 22306.

Eligible applicants for the Thriving in Today’s World.”

of its kind in Virginia, now connects nearly 95 municipal and educational facilities. Second, the City wishes to enhance broadband connectivity for Alexandria’s residents, businesses, and anchor institutions, by expanding the range and quality of available bandwidth and data transport services. This may include both additional broadband providers, and additional broadband infrastructure such as fiber to the premises (FTTP).

Currently, the majority of Alexandria is served by a single broadband provider, which uses its own cable infrastructure. Responses to the RFI will allow the City to learn about the capabilities of different types of participants in the broadband market, and will help inform decisions about what types of public or private initiatives may be a good fit for Alexandria’s needs. Both City Council and the Council-appointed Commission on Information Technology have been active in working to ensure expanded consumer broadband options.

The deadline to respond to the Request for Information is September 3, 2015. To read the full RFI, visit www.alexandriava.gov/Purchasing.

Sheriff's Office Reaccredited

Alexandra Sheriff Dana Lawhorne is proud to announce that the Alexandria Sheriff’s Office has been reaccredited by the Commission on Accreditation for Law Enforcement Agencies, Inc. (CALEA).

The Office received its formal reaccreditation at a ceremony Saturday, July 25, during CALEA’s summer conference in Colorado Springs, Colorado. As part of the reaccreditation process, CALEA assessors visited the Sheriff’s Office in April for a three-day on-site assessment to examine the Office’s policies and procedures, management, operations, and support services related to law enforcement. While the Alexandria Police Department is the primary law enforcement agency for the City of Alexandria, the Sheriff’s Office does have law enforcement responsibilities, serving as a secondary responder with its primary mission of operating the William G. Truesdale Adult Detention Center, managing courthouse security, transporting prisoners, and serving legal process and warrants.

The CALEA assessors evaluated the Sheriff’s Office on its compliance with more than 300 standards related to law enforcement. In its very favorable assessment report, the CALEA assessment team noted that the Office is a “proactive agency geared towards working with the community, surrounding law enforcement agencies, municipal government, and city leaders. In the face of budgetary and personnel constraint the agency has been successful in adopting innovative approaches to effectively serve the community.”

CALEA first accredited the Alexandria Sheriff’s Office in July 1990, and the Office has been reaccredited every term since then. The Office is also reaccredited every three years on-site to examine the Office’s operations. Since the first on-site inspection in 1990, the CALEA Reaccreditation Board has been sampled every third year. In 2009, the Office received continuing accreditation from CALEA.

FUTURE LEGENDS

Families of students in the ACPS 3-5 Grade Summer Enrichment Program joined their children recently at an end-of-class celebration. Among the activities was sharing the stories they wrote as part of the Family Legends book-making activity. For the event children donned special t-shirts with the message “Future Legends.” The teachers’ shirts said, “I’m Teaching a Future Legend.”

Family Legends is a program of Living Legends of Alexandria led by local artist-educator Sushmita Mazumdar.

Elephant Appreciation Day 2015

Ten Thousand Villages celebrates their fifth annual Elephant Appreciation Day. On Saturday, August 22.

“Many of our products carry an elephant motif, and Elephant Day started as something fun to do to break up a hot summer,” explained store manager Kate McMahon. “But, somewhat to our surprise, our customers loved it, and now look forward to the annual celebration.” For the fifth annual celebration they wanted it to be really special – even elephantine. In addition to raising money for elephant conservation, we’ll have an IQ (Elephant Quotient) test for adults, a famous elephant quiz for kids, an elephant tattoo “parlor,” elephant themed refreshments, information on elephant terms, product giveaways, March, and more!”

The program officially begins at 12:00 noon, with a demonstration of elephant paper making in Sri Lanka, followed by a presentation by Samantha Rose of the African Wildlife Foundation. Ms. Rose will discuss the work of the foundation, as well as ways citizens can become more involved in protecting the world’s dwindling elephant populations.

The featured images originally appeared on stereoview cards—an early form of 3-D technology in which two photographs were printed side by side on a single card. When examined through a viewer called a stereoscope, the two flat pictures blend into a single image, giving the illusion of depth. This photographic technique originated in the 1840s and was popular until the 1930s when movies and other modern media took center stage. A few of the Mount Vernon photographs come from noted photographers Alexander Gardner and Frederick and William Langenheim. During this installation, Mount Vernon will offer complimentary 3-D glasses and a map calling out the locations on the estate where the images can be viewed. The map also includes interpretive notes indicating the changes that have taken place on the estate since the early photograph was taken. For example, in an 1880 view of the Mansion’s west front, the sundial is missing. A circa 1900 view of the gardens reveals the absence of the greenhouse, which had been destroyed in a fire in 1855.

Long a part of Mount Vernon’s collection, these stereoviews served an important role in the preservation work of the Mount Vernon Ladies’ Association. In its early years, the Association raised funds to support its extensive and costly preservation work by selling images of Mount Vernon. Stereoviews, which “transported” people to faraway locations and landmarks, proved an important source of revenue. The exhibition, included in admission, will remain on view through November 20. For more information and to view the historic stereoview images as well as the modern 3-D anaglyphs, visit www.mountvernon.org/3D.

ORNAMENTAL GRASSES: 101

A workhorse in just about any landscape, ornamental grasses are as varied as the gardens they inhabit. They come in many sizes and shapes, from small clumps of carex at home in the shade to the towering, showy pampas that thrives in our summer heat and humidity.

Ornamental grasses came into gardening vogue about 30 years ago with the help of internationally acclaimed landscape designer Wolfgang Oehme. His signature “naturalized landscapes” often included mass plantings of grasses along with native flowers like Black Eye Susans, coneflowers, and Joe Pye Weed. One of Oehme’s most prominent landscape projects was the renovated Ronald Reagan National Airport, where ornamental grasses and their companion plantings thrive today.

Grasses are incredibly versatile – beautiful mixed in a perennial border, excellent when used in pots, and can make great specimen plants. The larger varieties are useful for screening busy roads or, ahem, neighbors. Most are drought resistant and very low maintenance. Moreover, as an added bonus, grasses are not a favorite food of our resident deer population. Many of you are probably familiar with the more commonly used grasses like fountain grass, maiden grass, and pampas grass. Here are a couple of lesser-known varieties that are worth checking out.

_实训草_ (commonly referred to as switch grass) is a hardy native perennial grass that grows from three to six feet tall with stiff upright clumps and showy, airy flowers of pink, red or silver in mid to late summer. Switchgrass attracts birds and is useful for screening, water gardens or prairie gardens. The variety ‘Northwind’ has broad bluish foliage and an upright habit that is a focal point in a garden or landscape.  ‘Cloud Nine’ grows 6 to 8 feet tall while bushier sky-blue ‘Prairie Sky’ gets half as big.  ‘Heavy Metal’ has beautiful frosted lavender blue foliage that can grow to 5 feet tall. Switch grasses have lovely fall-through-winter inflorescences – the plumes or seed heads – which range from spear-like to feathery.

_Sporobolus heterolepis_ or prairie dropseed is a North American native. This smallish grass – in average growth is three feet by three feet – is a good choice for ground cover and foundation plantings. Its graceful foliage is lovely in the fall, turning gold to light bronze. Tiny rounded mature seed heads drop to the ground from their hulls in autumn giving this grass its common name. ‘Little Bluestem,’ another native grass, typically grows two to four feet tall. It’s an upright grass with a tinge of blue at the base. Purplish-brown flowers rise above the foliage in August. An outstanding feature of this grass is the bronze-orange fall foliage color.

_Muhlenbergia capillaris_ or ‘Pink muhly’ is one of our favorites. In cotton candy pink plumes are show-stoppers, especially when planted in masses of three or more plants. This little grass (24” – 36” high and wide) is perfect for smaller gardens. Pink muhly prefers to be on the dry side during the winter months, so make sure to plant it in a well-drained site.

_Japanese forest grass_ is another native grass, typically grows taller than a foot. Like carex, it is a welcome addition to the shade garden, its foliage providing a contrasting bright spot in a shady nook.

Most ornamental grasses prefer full sun, though some, like sedge and Japanese Forest grass, tolerate or prefer shade. Grasses generally need to be dug up and divide. Easy to care for, established ornamental grasses rarely need fertilization and don’t require irrigation except in very sandy or drought conditions.

Steve Mason to Head Human Resources in Alexandria

Alexandria City Manager Mark B. Jinks has announced the appointment of Steven J. Mason, Sr., as Acting Director of Human Resources for the City of Alexandria, effective July 20, 2015. Mason succeeds William L. Mitchell, who has resigned to pursue other professional opportunities.

“Steve has been a key senior leader in the City’s Human Resources organization and I look forward to his helping to continue to improve the services and support that the Department of Human Resources provides to the entire City government and its employees,” said Jinks.

Mason joined the Human Resources Department in 2009 after serving four years as a Special Assistant to the City Manager. In his role as Assistant Director of Employer Relations and Talent Management, Mason has been responsible for guiding initiatives related to employer relations, recruitment and employee development. Mason has also served in the Office of Human Rights and as the City’s Affirmative Action Officer. His first 22 years in City government were in the Police Department, where he rose to the rank of Lieutenant.

Mason holds a degree in criminal justice and certifications in human resource management and human capital strategy.

Queen Street Library Closed for Renovations

Alexandria Library's Kate Waller Barrett Branch Library and Special Collections Branch Library – both located on 717 Queen Street – will be closed for renovations from Monday, August 17 to Sunday, August 23. The Barrett Branch and Special Collections will reopen to the public on Monday, August 24, at 1:00 p.m.

If you have items on hold, you may have the hold suspended during the closure. Please contact any Alexandria Library for assistance with your hold requests. Materials may still be returned through the outdoor book drop at the Barrett Branch, or to any of our other locations. Items borrowed from the Barrett Branch should not be due during this time period. Customers are encouraged to visit other libraries in the area during the temporary closure. For more information on the renovations, please contact Renee DiPlato by email at rdiplato@alexandria.lib.va.us or by phone at 703-746-1701.

Living Legends Elects New Board Members

The Living Legends of Alexandria Board of Directors elected several new members to help fulfill its mission—to identify, honor and chronicle Alexandria’s recent history makers. The new members add experience in nonprofit management, event management, nonprofit legal consulting, grant writing, fundraising and marketing.

Jennifer Ayers is an independent consultant to nonprofit organizations. She is the Secretary of the Board of Directors of PRLS, Inc., an organization serving Northern Virginia and D.C., providing a myriad of services to those with mental illness or facing a crisis. She’s an active member of her community and has resided in Alexandria since 2000 with her husband, two children and dog.

LOCAL DENTISTS DONATE SERVICES

The dentists and staff at Mt. Vernon Center for Dentistry devoted a full day of work on Saturday, June 13 to provide emergency dental services at their office for 25 clients of United Community Ministries (UCM). “At least now I can sleep at night,” said one patient who works in construction and does not have medical or dental insurance. “For months I have woken at night with the pain. I have taken my job early so you can imagine how tired I always was.” In total, services valued at $12,555 were donated that day to alleviate the pain of neighbors in need.

UCM provides a vital connection between people in need and the people committed to helping them thrive. Services include immediate help for families and individuals in crisis, food, financial aid, and counseling, education and employment services such as job training and coaching, full-day early care and learning, ESL and citizenship classes, parental education, after-school programs and leadership training, engaging youth and families in broader social networks for success and overall help people achieve stability.

In Fiscal Year 2014, thanks to generous community support, UCM provided life-changing assistance in the Alexandria portion of Fairfax County to more than 11,000 individuals in 4,152 families.

Jennifer Ayers is an independent consultant to nonprofit organizations specializing in nonprofit organizations. She is on the Board of the Junior Friends of The Campagna Center, co-chairing the Scottish Christmas Walk Weekend to serve Alexandria's children and families. Ms. Gniady is a graduate of Syracuse University and earned her J.D. at Fordham. She and her husband, Russell Stoll, have three children.

Sally E. Richards, J.D., came to the Alexandria area from northeastern Ohio where she managed her own law firm. While she has been exploring a new career in the nonprofit sector, she has volunteered for many Alexandria area organizations including Volunteer Alexandria where she assisted with grant-writing and fundraising and Del Ray Business Association in helping with cultural and civic events. Brian Story, an Alexandria native, serves as the vice president for the Del Ray Business Association. He graduated from Virginia Tech in 2009 and worked as a chemistry teacher in Fauquier County. His family continues to work after 60 years of service in Alexandria as police officers and in city administration. He advises families and businesses, helping develop and manage their financial goals.

Paul Williams spends most of his time working at Idea Sandbox, the brand and marketing agency that helps companies stand out from their competition. For fun, he and his wife Shannon write, publish, and market a series of children’s picture books called KeeKee’s Big Adventures.

Kathleen Baker will chair LLA’s new Family Legends/Education committee. Baker, an artist, educator and advocate, was herself recognized in 2015 as a Living Legend of Alexandria for her founding leadership of Alexandria-Caen Sister Cities, Opera Americana, Alexandria Arts Forum, and her innovative approaches to child music education. Her Board service includes KSMET (now the Old Town Business and Professional Association), the Alexandria Symphony, and the International Visitors Information Service of Washington, D.C.

HELPING HIGH SCHOOLERS PREP FOR COLLEGE ENTRANCE EXAMS

(StatePoint) Whether taking the SAT, the ACT or both, excelling on college entrance exams can significantly strengthen one’s school applications.

While students need to take personal initiative when prepping for these crucial tests, families can lend a helping hand in many ways.

Prioritizing Study Time

Good study habits are important for academic achievement and will come in handy in college. They are also especially important during college exam preparation.

Ensure your student has a quiet area to study for the big day, free of distractions like televisions, squabbling siblings and social media.

A study schedule should be practical. If possible, consider giving your student a free pass from chores on days he or she takes a full practice test -- this will require several hours and be mentally taxing.

The Right Tools

Mathematical coursework, test-taking and preparation require the right gear. Set up your student for achievement with scientific and graphing calculators that feature a range of high-level functions.

A study schedule should be practical. If possible, consider giving your student a free pass from chores on days he or she takes a full practice test -- this will require several hours and be mentally taxing.

The Right Tools

Mathematical coursework, test-taking and preparation require the right gear. Set up your student for achievement with scientific and graphing calculators that feature a range of high-level functions. Remember, some questions in the math sections of the SAT can’t be solved without a scientific or graphing calculator.

Choose one that is right for the task. For example, Casio’s CLASSWIZ fx-991EX is the first scientific calculator to feature spreadsheet functionality. It enables users to create spreadsheets with up to five columns and 45 rows. It can also convert graphs into QR codes which can be displayed on a projector screen, allowing students to work seamlessly with their teacher or test prep tutor.

Designed for elementary, middle and high school students, Casio’s range of calculators focus on such subjects as general math, trigonometry, statistics, algebra, geometry and physics, and are available in a wide variety of colors (a potential motivational tool for students who want to do math in style!).

Whatever model you opt for, be sure it is authorized for use during the test and has an intuitive interface that will speed up calculations when time matters.

Deeper Understanding

It’s not always enough to memorize materials. A competitive edge is gained with true comprehension. Fill your home with books and magazines on a wide range of subjects. Picking up new words in a practical context will happen naturally without feeling like work.

On the math front, check out practical tools that encourage deeper understanding of difficult concepts, such as research-based books and education workbooks on topics like critical thinking, algebra, geometry and statistics.

Test Day

The night before the test is not the time to cram. Students should arrive at the test site refreshed, well-rested and well-fed. Fatigue or an empty stomach will prove distracting. Fill up on brain food containing Omega-3s, antioxidants and vitamin E. For those needing a morning boost, consider jogging the brain into action over breakfast with a challenging article or math problem.

College entrance exams can significantly impact an academic career. Take every step you can to ensure a maximum score.

Kabbalistic Healing is an alternative to psychotherapy that uses a model of the human psyche that is derived from Kabbalah, Jewish Mysticism that has been used for centuries for achieving wholeness.

It is a transformational process that teaches us that we are whole in our brokenness and allows us to love and respect our true self.

It is appropriate to issues that would bring one to counseling, including relationship difficulties and self-esteem issues. It also addresses the mind-body connection.

Sessions can be in person or over the phone.

In past columns I profiled many of our former presidents who were veterans and how they fared as Chief Executive. It was a bit of a toss-up in terms of tying military service to success as a president. In the main however, someone who had walked point, stood the Midwatch, or mustered in a National Guard Armory seemed to have fared much better as president than those who had not served. Interestingly, the same cannot be said for the titans of industry, finance, or business. In tough financial times, there is an uncontrollable urge to look to the business community for a candidate to resuscitate an ailing economy. America loves an exciting, flamboyant, business “winner.” We admire our Horatio Algers, the risks they took and their rise to fortune and fame. Some failed businessmen have done fair to outstanding jobs as president. Successful businessmen who occupy the Oval Office, however, have rarely knocked it out of the ballpark in the job. Early in his career a 23-year-old Abraham Lincoln (16) became a partner in a general store. Business in New Salem, Illinois was rockin’ at the time, but his store nose-dived and in a year Lincoln sold his share at a loss and took up the law. The rest, as they say, is history.

 Warren G. Harding (29) was a 19-year-old whiz-kid when he bought the Marion Star newspaper in Marion, Ohio and turned it into a hugely successful paper. He believed, “Less government in business and more business in government” was the way to run a country. His administration had more than a few bad apples, notably his Secretary of the Interior and Director of the Veterans Bureau. The former leased oil-rich land owned by the Navy in Wyoming called the Teapot Dome to his buddies for a cut of the profits, and the latter made deals with construction companies building government funded veterans’ hospitals for which he received a substantial kickback. Harding was “stunned” that his “friends” were involved in such illicit activities. Harding died after only two years in office, and they ultimately went to jail.

Herbert Hoover (31). Hoover was one of those self-made millionaires that everyone just gushes over. He was a young engineer who started his own engineering company, ultimately having 175,000 employees. He made tons of money; so much so, that when he wasn’t digging ore out of the ground in Australia, China, and Malaysia, he was invited to key positions in Washington. In 1928 with America sliding into economic oblivion, the GOP tapped Hoover as their candidate. After all, they thought, he made a killing digging minerals out of the ground, maybe he could dig us out of the Wall Street mess at the end of the Roaring 20s. Unfortunately for Hoover, there was this pesky thing called the Smoot-Hawley Tariff Act that was taxing Americans out the wazoo. Add that to Prohibition and you can see how really unpopular Hoover was with the voters in 1932 so, like on the Apprentice, they fired him.

Harry S. Truman (33) grew up poor on a farm. He served as a Captain in WWI and loved it. In the Army he and another Officer, Eddie Jacobson operated the Base Canteen and it made money! After the war they figured they were so successful at running the Canteen that they opened a Haberdashery together in Kansas City, MO. Two years later that tanked and in hock up to his you-know-what Truman entered politics to pay the bills. He did pretty well after that.

Jimmy Carter (39) started out as a successful Naval Officer. When his father up and died Jimny took over his dad's peanut farm. The first year's crops failed because of drought, so he took out huge lines of credit to keep everything afloat. He, the wife, and kids even lived in public housing during those bleak days. After years of struggle, Carter turned the corporation into a whopping success out of peanuts. Despite being a hit as a State Senator and Governor back in Georgia, as a President, Carter has a few setbacks; Americans lined up for hours in gas lines, the Iranian Hostage crisis, and Governor back in Georgia, as a President, Carter had a few setbacks; Americans lined up for hours in gas lines, the Iranian Hostage crisis, and Buchanan, Bush 43 despite his low voltage performance, still had a likeability the others sorely lacked.

New Zealand

If you've always longed to visit New Zealand, now is the time. Plan to see Marlborough region for an outdoor adventure and refreshingly, fruity, acidic Sauvignon Blanc, the region's specialty. In the 1970s, Marlborough began the modern wine movement; over the years Sauvignon Blanc has become its front running grape varietal. Satiate your appetite with a glass of the Seeker's Sauvignon Blanc (priced typically at about $14 a bottle) and other local cuisine such as the local fresh, green-lipped mussels, a delicacy well-known for its health benefits. Marlborough has much to offer travelers who love the outdoors. There are gorgeous nature trails through varied landscapes for hiking and photographing. Another option would be to mountain bike down the 70 kilometer scenic Queen Charlotte Track. Plan your next international wine journey with one great formula: seek out top reliable, quality wines, delightful regional meals and breathtaking outdoor adventures.

Argentina

Mendoza, a province renowned for its Malbec, is an up-and-coming destination for wine loving travelers, and has also long-attracted a mixed crowd of outdoor enthusiasts. Whether mountainiking, horseback riding or rafting is your pleasure, the Mendoza province of Argentina makes a beautiful backdrop.

After a day of discovering majestic scenery, travelers can fill evenings with good company, an authentic meal and a smooth, spicy Malbec. Over the years Mendoza has been influenced by Spanish and Italian cultures, creating an infusion of colorful and flavorful local fare. Many meals begin with fresh warm bread and a sample of olive oil, another specialty of the region. Many courses are consistent with the region's Creole culture, featuring various cured and grilled meat dishes, such as the “patatas aliñadas,” baked veal served with chimichurri sauce that pairs well with a glass of The Seeker Malbec, a bottle of which will typically cost about $14 in the U.S.

France

If you're looking for a trip that is a bit more technical, the volcanoes at the Auvergne Regional Park, located in Auvergne Rhône Valley of France, will be sure to please. Take a guided hiking tour to the peak of a volcano to learn about the region. You may find yourself becoming a wine connoisseur while learning about the rich volcanic soils and its power to grow prosperous grapes. The region produces five quality grape varietals in the terroir.

The Pinot Noir varietal, in production since the 11th century, is the oldest. Today, wineries such as The Seeker make the most of the region’s warm days and cool nights, along with its mineral-rich soil to grow delicate, finessed grapes for its Pinot Noir wines. Travelers can enjoy breathtaking natural landscapes by day and bask in their experiences by night with wine and local cheese, or a traditional potée auvergnate, a rich specialty combining tangy cabbage with the finesse of French pork meat.

STATEPOINT

If you're searching for inspiration for a trip that encompasses sightseeing, local cuisine and outdoor experiences, start with one of your passions: wine.

Consider these travel ideas from the expert winemakers of The Seeker, a global brand with wines from the most popular grape-producing regions worldwide.

This is a NEW monthly feature. Alexandria’s history is rich and long, and every day we walk and drive through incredible landmarks all around us. Over the coming years, we will attempt to introduce you to some of the important places that mark our heritage. Should you have suggestions, please contact us via email at editor@thezebrapress.com.

This marker is located at the intersection of South Washington and Wolfe Streets. It says: “On 17 Dec. 1785, George Washington endowed a school here in the recently established Alexandria Academy “for the purpose of educating orphan children.” In 1812, an association of free African Americans founded its own school here in space vacated by white students. Young Robert E. Lee attended another school in the Academy from 1818 to 1823, when it closed and the building was sold. During the Civil War the Academy served as a freedman’s hospital. Returned to the Alexandria School Board in 1884, the Alexandria Academy was used as a school and administrative facility until 1922. The Historic Alexandria Foundation restored it in 1999.”

In addition to sharing another local landmark, next month I’ll relay all the scoop about how historical markers come to exist in the first place. How you get one, who makes them, who maintains them and all the facts about which only historical nerds like me wonder.
The long hot dog days of August are here and many of us who follow baseball look at a landscape that once held great promise for the Washington Nationals now see it all seemingly go adrift. ‘Adrift!’ I say? Yes, adrift, as many local and national publications touted the Washington Nationals as ‘the team to beat’ this year, almost a ‘mortar-lock’ (Think of the bar scene in the movie ‘Let It Ride’) to win the World Series, but alas, as things often come about in sports prognostication, predictions of a post-season parade down Pennsylvania Avenue look somewhat bleak, at least for this season.

The Nationals, to their defense, have had many players battle very substantial injuries, which has caused their manager, Matt Williams, to use a ‘Band Aid’ approach to try to shore up needs of the team to attempt to both competitive on the field and in the race to win the National League East division.

The considerable list of the Nationals’ ‘walking wounded’ has been extensive, starting with Denard Span, Anthony Rendon, Jason Werth, Casey Jansen, Erik Davis, Nate McLouth, Craig Stammen, Yuneski Escobar, Felipe Rivero, Max Scherzer, Reed Johnson, Stephen Strasburg, Doug Fister, Sammy Solis, Ryan Zimmerman, Aaron Barrett, Bryce Harper, and David Carpenter. Many of those players have been on the disabled list so many times, as a matter of fact, that one might think that the chances for the Nationals to win their division is totally hopeless, which is not the case.

Fortunately, the Nationals have had a strong cast of players who have been called up, such as Michael Taylor, Clint Richardmon, Trea Turner, Joe Ross, and Wilmer Difo, to name a few, all who have made their mark with strong contributions to fill in voids, while some have become true ‘fan favourites’. Some players, while their time up to ‘The Bigs’ may have been short, it also gave fans an excellent opportunity to see some of the potential that the Nationals has for its future.

Fans sometimes grouse and complain about the Nationals, especially when they drop a game or two, thinking that they are ‘losers’, who are not giving their all to win games, but it would be wrong to make that assumption. Everyone, players, coaching staff, and the entire front office of the Nationals organization is now on the same page to try to have the team win a World Series trophy, very soon, as team owner, Ted Lerner, will be 90, this October, and they want to bring home a championship under his watch.

Hope springs eternal, though, as there is still some time left for the Nats to get their ship righted and to have the team back on track to get ready for the 2015 National League Playoffs. Many players who have been on the disabled list for much of the season are now coming back from their injuries eager to jump back in the breach to win games and make Nats fans proud.

The Nationals, with a growing fan base, are a great distraction from reality from the rough and tumble world that many of us try to escape from on a daily basis. Each and every player wearing a ‘Curly W’ for the Nationals want to hit a game winning home run, make a diving catch to win a game or just have the lights out (figuratively) to have their fans stand up, shout, and cheer with the joy, thrill and passion that comes with the spirit of the game.

Washington Nationals baseball. Be a fan. Embrace it. Treasure it. Make it yours. See you at the ball park!

Plantar fasciitis is perhaps the peskiest problem that plagues runners. An important contributing factor leading to plantar fasciitis is decreased ankle/foot mobility. With repetitive motion, like running, the decreased mobility leads to tearing of the muscles of the foot. As these heal, the tightness becomes more severe, and this cycle repeats until pain emerges.

The general characteristic of this condition is a sharp, tight, painful sensation at the base of the heel. Many people can acquire a high arch type foot. A normal arch can accept roughly 28 joints. Running with restricted motion in your feet can quickly lead to joint and soft tissue injury.

A large number of cases of heel and foot pain are due to nerve entrapment at the heel. The medial calcaneal nerve travels between two muscles (abductor hallucis and flexor digitorum brevis) located along the side of the arch and bottom of the foot. Tightness and scar tissue in these muscles can entrap the nerve, resulting in sharp pain, numbness, and tingling.

Know your Foot Type:
Proper Footwear is the Key

Foot Types
- Flat Arch: A very flexible foot. With this foot type, you will need a neutral running shoe.
- High Arch: A rigid foot sounds like a Clydesdale if you run next someone with this condition. Only about 10-20% of the population have this foot type. These runners often have chronic plantar fasciitis and low back pain. You need a neutral running shoe.
- Intermediate Arch: This foot is a very inflexible foot. You will need a neutral running shoe.
- High Arch - Flexible Foot: Runners with a high arch when standing, a very flexible foot, often crash into pronation when running or jumping. Even if you cross train/cross fit, you can strain the foot. You will need a stability or motion control sneaker.
- Flat Arch - Flexible Foot: Many people can acquire a flat foot over time. If you have a flat arch when standing and your foot is very flexible, you will need to over-pronate (arch collapse) when you run. Alternatively, you may promote too late during push off. A major factor in causing a flat arch may be increased tension...
2015 LIVING LEGEND OF ALEXANDRIA JOYCE RAWLINGS

BY DONNA WALKER JAMES

If it has to do with families in Alexandria, Joyce Rawlings was (and is) there! Her volunteer and professional work have led to myriad parent, school and community initiatives and to her selection as a 2015 Living Legend of Alexandria. Joyce Rawlings collaborated with former School Board member Susan Johnson and Mount Vernon Community School Parent Liaison Rosa Landeros to advocate and create Alexandria’s Family Resource Learning Centers, the precursor of Family and Community Engagement (FACE) centers. The goal of the FACE is to provide opportunities and resources for students, families and community members to participate in activities relevant to the academic achievement of Alexandria City Public School (ACPS) students.

Rawlings believes strongly that parents and community members need connections to the schools out in the community. Services needed include advocacy, homework help, tutoring, attending Individual Education Plan (IEP) meetings with parents, translation, General Equivalency Diploma (GED) prep for parents, workshops and field trips. Dr. Jay Grymes of ACPS appointed these and field trips. Dr. Jay Grymes of ACPS appointed these services needed to parents and community members to find out-of-school opportunities and resources for students, families and community members.

In Alexandria in 1978 and was embraced by and became deeply involved in the Lynhaven neighborhood. Several programs she helped implement are still in existence: the Parent Leadership Training Institute (PLTI) with Joyce Woodson, Faye Sletnick and Karen Parker-Thompson; Project Discovery (as a parent); and Jireh’s Place at Cora Kelly Recreation Center with her daughter-in-law Jireh’s Place is a girls’ empowerment program that meets twice a month. Among programs she was involved in that have not continued, are

Perhaps Joyce Rawlings’ favorite award was the Phenomenal Mother Award (2012) which included the quote, “Life is not about waiting for the storm to pass; it’s about learning how to dance in the rain.” Photo by Steven M. Payne

JUST BEING SILLY ...

What happens to a frog’s car when it breaks down?
It gets toad away.

Q: Why was six scared of seven?
A: Because seven “ate” nine.

Q: What do you call a bear with no teeth?
A: A gummy bear.

A teacher asked her students to use the word “beans” in a sentence. “My father grows beans,” said one girl. “My mother cooks beans,” said a boy. A third student spoke up, “We are all human beans.”

Q: How do you count cows?
A: With a cowculator.

Instead of “the John,” I call my toilet “the Jim.” That way it sounds better when I say I go to the Jim first thing every morning.

Q: How do astronomers organize a party?
A: They planet.

Q: What did the blanket say when it fell off the bed?
A: “Oh sheet!”

Q: Can a kangaroo jump higher than the Empire State Building?
A: Of course. The Empire State Building can’t jump.

Q: Did you hear about the kidnapping at school?
A: It’s okay. He woke up.

SUDOKU

Fun By The Numbers
Like puzzles? Then you’ll love sudoku. This mind-bending puzzle will have you hooked from the moment you square off, sharpen your pencil and put your sudoku savvy to the test!

Here’s How It Works:
Sudoku puzzles are formatted as a 9x9 grid, broken down into nine 3x3 boxes. To solve a sudoku, the numbers 1 through 9 must fill each row, column and box. Each number can appear only once in each row, column and box. You can figure out the order in which the numbers will appear by using the numeric clues already provided in the boxes. The more numbers you name, the easier it gets to solve the puzzle!
Perhaps her favorite award was the Phenomenal Mother Award (2012) which included the quote, “Life is not about waiting for the storm to pass, it is about learning how to dance in the rain.” This award was presented to her by appreciative members of the community, many of whom lived in public housing or had low-income housing vouchers, and who wrote: “You have demonstrated a phenomenal faith throughout your journey. Continue to dance in your storm while showing others how to dance in their storm.”

After several years working for the City’s jail (1979-1985), Rawlings became discouraged by high recidivism rates and determined that she wanted to focus on positive intervention at younger ages. She spent the rest of her career helping children and families as a Family Service Supervisor for Alexandria Head Start; a counselor and program aide to young mothers at Youth Services; as a program coordinator at Residential Youth Services; as a parent educator workshop facilitator in a transitional housing program; and as a parent support group facilitator for SCAN of Northern Virginia.

Rawlings also served as aide to Vice Mayor Bill Cleveland when his aide Rosalind Bowey ran for Council.

Rawlings fondly remembers her work with Mrs. Eula Anderson at Northern Virginia Community College on a higher education grant to help get young mothers into college in the late 1980s. She described her role as “door knocking with follow-up support.” She would go to a young woman’s house, tell her it was “time to go to school and to get the baby ready,” then wait until finally the young woman complied. Rawlings has kept in touch with many of the young women and knows about their career successes.

Rawlings sees her role in the community as being approachable for people of all races, cultures and faiths. She described her work as tying knots in the rope to help people climb up and not fall too far back down when they slip. Now she has gone from a “door knocker” to a teacher of others, trying to bring a new generation into community leadership. She continues to plant seeds. She has more ideas for improving education and community relations in the City, but does not want to reveal her next project yet. Her advice to others is, “You should never completely stop trying to contribute to your community.”

Rawlings sees her role as tying knots in the rope to help people climb up and not fall too far back down when they slip.

The Lyceum building as well as over 5,000 objects related to the history of Alexandria, Virginia.

In 1992, The Lyceum achieved accreditation by the American Association of Museums, a distinction awarded to the nation’s leading museums. Although Alexandria is fortunate to have several specialized institutions, The Lyceum is the only one that collects and interprets artifacts and history from all periods of the City’s past, from the years before its founding in 1749 through the present day. In a letter to then-chair of the Alexandria Commission of the Arts, Sydney-Chanelle Dawkins, Lance Mallano, director of the Office of Historic Alexandria, wrote “Living Legends is doing the research and recording the history of today’s Alexandria. However, it is important as that is. Living Legends is also an art project. The individual photographs are of extremely high quality. Different from standard head-and-shoulder portraits, these images are akin to master portrait paintings that tell a story. The settings artfully incorporate something about the subject’s passion concerning Alexandria.”

Q: What is Mozart doing right now? A: Decomposing.

Q: Why shouldn’t you make fun of a paleontologist? A: Because you will get Jurasskicked.

Q: Did you hear about the man with a broken left arm and broken left leg? A: Don’t worry he’s “ALRIGHT” now!

Q: Why is it that your nose runs, but your feet smell? A: Because you will get Jurasskicked.

WOOF GANG BAKERY & GROOMING OPENS IN ALEXANDRIA

Woof Gang Bakery, a leader in the pet products and services industry, opens in first Alexandria location. People and their pets are invited to a grand opening event on August 15 from 10 a.m. to 6 p.m. at the new store located in the Landshower Centre. Woof Gang Bakery & Grooming Alexandria is a locally-owned business, offering full-service grooming and a wide selection of pet foods and supplies including the signature line of Woof Gang Bakery Treats. Local resident Mina Kim is the franchise owner of Woof Gang Bakery & Grooming Alexandria. After working in her brother’s Woof Gang store in Chapel Hill she fell in love with the products and the people. “I am excited for the opportunity to serve people and their pets” states Mina. “I believe pets are an integral part of our families and I am dedicated to providing outstanding service and quality products for all my customers and their four-legged friends.”

To kick-off her commitment to support the well-being of pets in Alexandria and to show her support of the local community, the new store’s grand opening event will feature adorable and adoptable dogs from Bull Terrier Rescue of Virginia from 11 a.m. to 1 p.m. Plus, the first 20 customers at the store on August 15th will receive free dogs treats for a year!

In addition, the grand opening event will have fresh, free samples of signature Woof Gang Bakery treats, a variety of free product samples and festivities for both people and pets.

About Woof Gang Bakery

A remarkably high demand exists for the pet products and services offered by Woof Gang Bakery. According to the American Pet Products Association, approximately 82 million homes in the U.S. own a pet. Americans will spend more than $58 billion this year on pet supplies and care. Woof Gang Bakery is at the forefront of the pet industry, providing the very best in pet care with unparalleled service and products. Since the first Woof Gang Bakery opened in 2007, the company has expanded across the United States with more than 60 franchises and five corporate locations. The company was named best overall multi-unit retailer by Pet Business Media, ranked among the nation’s Top 15 pet food retailers by Pet Business Magazine and recognized by Pet Insight magazine as one of the nation’s fastest growing pet chains. The store is located at 6462 Landshower Centre Drive, Alexandria, VA 22315. The phone number is 703-417-9311.

in the gastrocnemius/ soleus muscle groups. You need a stability or motion control running shoe. Preventing Plantar Fasciitis

Go to PrehabPerfomance.com channel to watch videos on how to roll out and stretch your arch and calves. Mobility exercises are available on Youtube.

Research shows that most people suffer from a lack of stability or mobility, motor control, and joint dysfunction. You must address these issues to fix and prevent these regularly occurring foot injuries. Here are some frequently asked questions:

Can I Fix Joint Motion?

Decreased joint motion in the foot and ankle can be addressed by manual manipulation. Band assisted ankle mobility exercises, and deep posterior calf stretches can also help.

Should I get an Evaluation?

The sooner you get it evaluated and treated the better and faster the outcome. See a sports medicine physician for an assessment. A sports chiropractor certified in Active Release Techniques (ART) is specially trained to deal with soft tissue repetitive motion injuries, in addition to rendering manipulative therapy.

Do I need an X-Ray?

In most cases, an X-Ray is unnecessary until you have tried conservative treatment for 4-6 weeks. Some recalcitrant cases or acute trauma may warrant an X-Ray, MRI, or bone scan.

What about a Stress Fracture?

A true risk for stress fractures occurs in runners who increase their mileage too quickly and by too much. If your pain is unresponsive after a few weeks of conservative treatment, your doctor may order a bone scan or MRI.

How do I Rehab the Injury?

The priority to resolving your heel pain is to address the joint restriction and release the scar tissue in the soft tissue. Manipulation and ART should be your first line of attack. Then proper rehabilitation exercises can be prescribed to stabilize the changes made with manual treatment.

PET TRAVEL TIPS

BY ADRIENNE HERGEN, DVM

With the summer months upon us, more and more people will be going on vacation. In recent years, pet owners have been taking their pets along in greater numbers when they travel. According to a poll conducted by Travel Industry Association of America, over the past three years 29.1 million Americans have shared their travel experiences with their pets.

Always consider your pet’s personality when thinking about taking him or her out of their normal surroundings. This can be shocking for pets and be very stressful for them depending on how adaptable they are. Think carefully about traveling with very young, very old, sick, injured, pets, or animals that are prone to high levels of anxiety. If you are in doubt, please discuss this with your veterinarian.

Also always consider the mode of travel carefully. While driving is the most common form of transportation, many others will fly. Trains and buses don’t allow pets, but service animals are allowed. If you are planning to drive to your vacation destination and your dog or cat is unaccustomed to the car we recommend doing shorter practice runs ahead of time.

When driving, dogs should always be restrained using either a carrier or harness and cats should always be in carriers. Puppy pads can be helpful to line the carrier because they can be easily disposed of and replaced if they become soiled. If your pet is unfamiliar with the carrier, it is a good idea to leave it out for a few days beforehand with the door open so that they can become comfortable with it. Placing a favorite toy or treat inside can entice them to explore it further.

Dogs should never sit in the front seat as they can be hurt by a deployed airbag. Also, dogs should not put their heads out the window. They can be injured by roadside debris and other flying objects. Opening the window just a few inches to allow them to feel the breeze is ok.

DUMBLEDORE
Dumbledore has put a spell on all of the AWLA staff and volunteers—he’s just about the most affectionate kitty you’ll ever meet! Dumbledore is a neutered male Domestic Shorthair, estimated to be about twelve years old. He loves to give hugs and-meets your hand more than halfway to rub his cheeks up against it. As the famous wizard once said, “Happiness can be found, even in the darkest of times, if one only remembers to turn on the light.” We guarantee that you’ll find you! Thanks to a generous sponsor, Dumbledore’s adoption fees have been paid!

SISI
Say hello to Sisi! She is a spayed female Domestic Shorthair, estimated to be about eight years old. Sisi has been through a lot since she arrived at the AWLA in January and she has made a dramatic transformation! She can be timid when you first meet her, but once she opens up to you it’s impossible not to fall in love with her sassy personality. Sisi is living in an office area here at the shelter where she supervises productivity and keeps our laps warm. Ask us about Sisi and let her steal your heart today! Thanks to a generous sponsor, Sisi’s adoption fees have been paid!

CHARLIE
Charlie is a sweet senior dog looking to spend his golden years with a loving home that can support his needs. He is a neutered male Beagle, estimated to be about ten years old. Charlie is the elder statesman here at the AWLA and has a wealth of knowledge about squeaky toys, ear scratches, and peanut butter treats that he would love to share! In his old age Charlie can be a bit cantankerous with people around his food, so an experienced family with no pre-teen children would be best to manage his quirks. If you are looking for a great older beagle with plenty of love left to give Charlie is the man for the job! Thanks to a generous sponsor, Charlie’s adoption fees have been paid!

RILEY
Hi there, I’m the friendly gal they call Riley! I’m a spayed female Shih Tzu and Bichon Frise mix, estimated to be about five years old. I love people, so I’ll love you for you come visit with me today. A couple years ago, I was diagnosed with Intervertebral Disc Disease so I’ll need a home that can provide me with acupuncture and other forms of physical therapy to treat my condition. When we spend some time together, you’ll soon find out that I don’t let this get in the way of a good cuddle session! I love other dogs, but big dogs scare me a little, and my doctor says I have to be careful when I play with other dogs that so I don’t hurt my back. If you think I’m the right dog for you, come take me home today!

SNOOPY
Snoopy is a big kitty with a big personality to match! He’s a neutered male Domestic Shorthair, estimated to be about three years old. Much like Snoopy the beloved cartoon character, this Snoopy is playful and marches to the beat of his own drum. He LOVES to pretend he’s a hunter, always ready to pounce on his toys! If you’re looking for an adventurous kitty who will keep you on your toes, come adopt Snoopy today!

WALLACE
What’s up, Wallace? This handsome dude is on the lookout for a new best friend who’s just as far-out as he is! Wallace is a lovable, high-energy doggo who loves to play and cuddle. This smily one-year-old Pit Bull mix doesn’t care how much he weighs, he’ll climb right up in your lap if you give him the chance! We also just learned that Wallace gets along well with cats! Think Wallace could be your match made in heaven? Come to the AWLA and adopt him today!

SABRINA
Introducing the beautiful Sabrina! Sabrina is a spayed female Domestic Longhair, estimated to be about twelve years old. Even though she’s a senior kitty, she’s still as spry and enchanting as Sabrina the teenage witch! One of her favorite activities is getting her long, gorgeous fur brushed. Just take one look into her spell-binding green eyes, and you’ll be falling for Sabrina!

Kirby is a handsome and seasoned seven-year-old Pit Bull mix who’s looking for a home with all of the squeaky toys! This fun-loving guy hasn’t been here long but has made friends with all of the staff and loves to play with everyone he meets. While Kirby has been labeled a “bully breed” there is nothing intimidating about this doggo, and spending just a couple minutes with him will tell you all you need to know about his loving demeanor. If you’re looking for a loyal dog to make an instant connection with, Kirby is the dog for you! Thanks to a generous sponsor, Kirby’s adoption fees have been paid!

Gandalf
crossed the Rainbow Bridge on Monday, July 20. He was Debby Critchley’s loyal and loving companion. She adopted him from the Alexandria Animal Shelter almost 16 years ago. The Shelter thought he was about a one-year-old Spitz (now called American Eskimo). Originally named Hercules, he was renamed Gandalf after Gandalf the White, the all-powerful wizard in the Lord of the Rings trilogy since he cast his spell on Debby the moment she saw him. Debby was his true one and only love, and she loved him back. He was an elegant, handsome, and noble dog, allowing people to pet him when Debby asked him to. He was amazingly gentle and tolerant with children. He was best known for his ability to seek out and get treats from people. He would look so terribly cute and offer his paw. If you did not succumb to his charm, he might actually bark at you to remind you so loved at the both Utah and Simpsons parks.

You can't keep a good cat down. When Gandalf crossed the Rainbow Bridge on Monday, July 20, he was leaving behind a legacy of love and devotion that will be remembered for years to come.

Meet Luna, a one-year-old, female shepherd/lab mix with adorable ears! She is a happy and playful girl, despite being found in a high-kill shelter. Luckily, she was rescued and will soon be on her way to DC to find the forever family she so richly deserves! Luna is a young and energetic girl, so she will need a family that will give her a lot of attention and exercise. Shepherds are smart pups so Luna would love to go to obedience school to learn some new tricks! She loves other dogs and can’t wait to meet some new friends at the dog park! She would also love to accompany her new family on long walks or hikes!

Luna is good with kids – cats, not so much. Ideally, Luna would prefer a home without a feline sibling.

Georgie is a 2-year-old male Pug Pekingese mix who weighs in around 15 pounds. He’s out of the shelter and looking for a home of his very own. He is the quintessential lap dog and loves to snuggle and go for short walks. George would be perfect for a low-energy household, he doesn’t need much exercise but lights up and dances when his people come home. He has even been known to give a couple of kisses now and then. He is the perfect traveling companion and does extremely well in the car. This little gentleman will make his new person the centerpiece of his world. If you are looking for a friend to binge-watch TV, Georgie is the dog for you.

Georgie is good with cats and would be good with older children. He lives at a slower pace, so would appreciate dogs who are calm and respectful.

This sweet Tank of a dog lives big and loves life and giving big, sloppy Mastiff kisses to his people. The two-year-old male is looking for a special family who can welcome a big boy into their home.

He found himself in a hard place when he landed at a one-way pound where they were only one way in and no way out. But his luck turned when DC PAWS upgraded him to a freedom ride to DC, where he can find a forever home!

At 85 pounds, Tank is all love and kisses. He’s very sweet and walks nicely on a leash (he loves a good harness!), though it is important to note he is very strong.

Diamond is an adorable 6-month-old Great Pyrenees puppy with a charming personality and a gold-and-white, freckled coat that’s even cuter in person.

She is a social butterfly and who loves to make new friends – be they dogs, cats, kids or adults – and then go for a celebratory romp with them. When it’s hot out, she likes to play inside or play in the water. But after Diamond gets that puppy energy out, she’s content to cuddle in your lap or curl up at your feet.

Her foster mom, who’s very experienced with puppies, calls her an “all-around awesome dog.” This girl just wants to find an equally awesome forever home.
