Site Address is the location at which you'd like your T-Biz[®] Voice Service on the nbn network service to be installed.

Site Name is a unique identifier that allows you to distinguish each of your sites on the Telstra bill and for customer service.

Your T-Biz Voice service can support up to 10 voice services/phone lines on single install and router.

A separate T-Biz Voice service or plan must be ordered for each phone line you require.

Billing/invoicing format

T-Biz Voice provides online and email billing (unless you select to receive a paper bill instead).

You will receive your bill in an email, plus a notification that your bill is ready for viewing online.

If you select a paper bill, this will be mailed to your billing address and you will not receive a bill via email. You will still receive a notification that your bill is ready for viewing online.

New Call Forward not reachable

Call Forward not reachable number

T-Biz Voice and Power Outages

Your T-Biz Voice service needs mains power to supply a voice service, so if you lose mains power at your premises, your T-Biz Voice service won't work. This means you won't be able to use any voice service you may have on the nbn network to make or receive telephone calls, including calls to emergency 000 services. T-Biz Voice is therefore not suitable if you have a serious illness or condition, require disability services, require an emergency phone service or require uninterrupted service. We recommend you order a T-Biz Voice Standard service instead if you need a service that will operate during a power outage for a limited time.

What is your main business number?

Incoming calls to the main business number will be automatically diverted to this number during service installation and if your service is ever interrupted.

Virtual Receptionist lets you to divert each incoming call to a specific number. Any calls diverted will be charged at standard T-Biz Voice on the nbn network rates.

Hunt Groups allows you to manage your calls in different ways, such as sending an incoming call to the first available user in a group or to all users in the group.
