Field widens for Commissioner's race

Three new candidates have entered the race for the Henry County Commissioner of Revenue post. The incumbent Linda Love is set to retire at the end of the year.

Adrienne Bowyer, Dallas Hairston, and Tiffany Hairston are joining Blake Minter, who previously announced his candidacy.

Bowyer, the current Deputy Commissioner of Revenue, said election to the top slot has always been a lifelong goal since she started working in the office at age 20.

Bowyer, 45, started in the office as a real estate tax clerk and has worked her way up to her current position in her 25 years in the office.

"I just thought that now was a wonderful time. My children have gotten a little older and they're a little more self-sufficient, and I just felt like now was a good time in my life to be able to step into that role," she said.

Bowyer said she wants to see the office continue to run in its current efficient direction.

"We've gone digital with a lot of our stuff. We're very efficient, and customers compliment us all the time," she said. "I would like to see it continue in that direction where we're very customer-focused and very friendly."

A self-described people-oriented person, Bowyer said she knows most of the customers by name.

"I work with most of the businesses, the restaurants, and businesses in Henry County, and so many of them do tend to ask for me. I just think I bring that customer-focused attentiveness," she said.

Dallas Hairston said he decided to seek the post because he believes he would be an asset.

The "issues that I have is the accountability of the office and the processing of things that the state requires the commissioner to process. I know there are some understaffing needs in the office, but it's kind of the thing with most government offices," he said.

Dallas Hairston, 44, currently works as the real estate assessor for Martinsville. He has served as the city's head assessor since 2020 and has worked in the city commissioner's office since 2002.

While there isn't a whole lot the commissioner can do because the processes are dictated by the Natalie Hodge, of Rudy's Girl Media, and Draper Flowers & Gifts were the 2023 recipients of the Clyde Hooker Awards. The winners were announced during the 21st Annual Clyde Hooker Awards Ceremony recently held at Piedmont Arts Association.

"Both believe the arts are crucial to building and sustaining a thriving community and have seen how the arts can be transformational to individuals and communities," said Heidi Pinkston, executive director of Piedmont Arts.

The award program was established in 2003 by the museum's board of directors to recognize exceptional businesses and individuals involved in and supporting the organization and other arts and cultural organizations in Martinsville-Henry County, Pinkston said.

"The award is named after J. Clyde Hooker, Jr., for his support of the arts. Forty individuals and businesses have received this prestigious award," Pinkston said.

Piedmont Arts Board member and granddaughter-in-law of Clyde Hooker, Olivia Garrett said Draper Flowers & Gifts is a model

One of the teams placed 10th in the competition. All of the team members earned a $500 scholarship to be used for Radford University's computer science and cyber security programs. Terri Flanagan told her colleagues on the Henry County School Board that she will not seek another term after her term ends at the end of the year. Flanagan, of the Horsepasture District, made the announcement at a recent school board meeting.

Schools Superintendent Dr. Sandy Strayer also noted the date of her retirement is drawing closer. An educator with the division for 31 years, Strayer will officially step down in July.

She began her career in 1992 as a government teacher at Bassett High School. In 2001, she served as assistant principal of Fieldale-Collinsville High School and Bassett High School. She was named principal of Collinsville Primary School in 2005. Strayer was appointed as superintendent of Henry County Public Schools in 2018.

"I've been here for 20 years. My husband is getting ready to retire soon, so four more years would be tough. I've enjoyed doing this position," she said.

Truancy was presented as an issue at the meeting. Student attendance is a part of accreditation and the necessary testing scores needed are hard to achieve with students not coming to school.

"Yes, our numbers are bad," Strayer said. Truancy has posed to be an issue throughout the state and

Edwards seeks school board seat

Taylor Boyd
Staff writer

Valeria Edwards is seeking the Horsepasture District seat on the Henry County School Board in the November election.

Edwards, 67, said she decided to run for the position as education is her greatest passion.

"I have a passion for working with young people, and I have the desire to see the best for our educators and what we can do to increase the interest in young men and young women aspiring to become educators because we need them," she said.

A former educator, Edwards retired from Winston-Salem/Forsyth County Schools after 28 years. During her tenure, she served as a bus driver, a primary reading teacher, kindergarten teacher, and she retired as an assistant principal.

If elected, Edwards looks forward to being a team player and working with the board.

"I'm sure just looking at our county. I know there are the needs of the bus drivers, always trying to keep our teachers being fairly subsidized in terms state, Dallas Hairston said the commissioner also answers to the taxpayers who elect them.

"But when you start to cost the taxpayers money, that's a problem. When you begin to not be able to complete those processes in a timely manner, it's a problem. I want to bring accuracy, processing, and accountability to the office," he said.

His primary goal is to be accessible and be an advocate for the taxpayers.

"You want to be accessible to them when they have questions and concerns and complaints. I want to, of course, get those processes to a place where they are being filed on time," he said.

Tiffany Hairston said she decided to enter the race because she believes her technology background and her work make her suited for the role.

"I currently work as a systems analyst for the Technology Department for the Henry County PSA (Public Safety Authority)," she said. Munis, a computer program, "is the primary system used in the commissioner's office, I am very familiar with it, and I'm very familiar with the staff."

Tiffany Hairston, 33, has worked in her current role for two years, and four years total for the county.

If elected, Tiffany Hairston

said she would bring the knowledge of how to streamline processes and make the office more efficient.

"I also have a great relationship with Munis, and I know where they're headed in the future and how it integrates with the other offices," she said.

Her biggest goal is to get the department's processes up to speed and to ensure everything is sent out on time.

"Also, to get things online and make things more efficient and more accessible," Tiffany Hairston said. "We need to bring more awareness to everything that we're doing in the office, you know, be more transparent."

for the community.

"Their leadership, dependability, efficiency, artistry, and countless hours devoted to Piedmont Arts are exemplary," she said.

While it has served the community for over 50 years, Garrett said the business' reach stretches across the country "from showrooms as far as Dallas, Chicago, and Boston."

Draper Flowers & Gifts was started by Doris Draper in 1966. Draper's son Brad was involved in the business from an early age and continued to help the family business throughout the years. In 1993, Draper had the privilege of working on the floral committee for President Bill Clinton's inaugural ball. Shortly after, he worked on 11 floats for the Rose Bowl.

When accepting the award on behalf of Draper Flowers & Gifts, Brad Draper thanked his family, friends, and those who support the business.

"When you have a small business, you know that without family and friends, you don't exist," he said.

Natalie Hodge is a writer, producer, owner, and founder of Rudy's Girl Media, a Martinsville-based multimedia content development company, First Vice President of the Piedmont Arts Board of Directors Shana LeGrant said.

"Although Natalie left Martinsville-Henry-County after high school when she returned to the community in 2016, she found a creative home at Piedmont Arts. In 2017, she joined the board of directors and in 2018 she danced Dancing for the Arts, not only raising funds but also community awareness of Piedmont Arts," LeGrant said.

Hodge also became board president in 2020, served as the MC for the 2022 poetry slam, and was the Small Business Chairperson from 2022-2023.

"Natalie is ideally suited for this award as she has actually spent decades pursuing her love for the arts. In her professional life, Natalie creates innovative multimedia content to shed light on relevant cultural and societal themes," LeGrant said.

Hodge received her bachelor's degree from Guilford College and a master's degree from Cornell University. She has over a decade of experience working in independent film and television.

"Piedmont Arts has a very special place in my heart," said Hodge. "As a child in this community, Piedmont Arts was a passport to places unknown. Places that we can't even go by plane, places in the recesses of our imagination," she said, and recalled having many date nights at Piedmont Arts with her now husband Hasan Davis.

Hodge and Davis were recently married in the art garden in front of the little post office. Hodge credited Piedmont Arts as being much more than an inspiration for a career.

"It's been my inspiration for life," she said.

Also honored at the ceremony were Nathan Hopkins, a senior at Magna Vista High School, and Claire-Warner Coleman, also a senior at Magna Vista. The two students were awarded the Nicodemus D. Hufford scholarship, a scholarship for youth wishing to pursue the arts.

Education Coordinator Sarah Short said Hopkins was accepted into Longwood University's music program.

"Nathan is a talented trumpet player who has participated in James Madison University's (JMU) summer band camps and has been an active member of Magna Vista's concert band, jazz band, and marching band programs," she said.

Short said Coleman was accepted into the Visual Arts program at the University of Virginia (UVA).

"Claire-Warner has been an active member of the Piedmont Arts Teen Arts Council throughout high school and has volunteered to paint faces, murals, and more during her time there. She has also received awards for her work as a student in the Piedmont Arts' Expressions Gallery Exhibit," she said.

The Harold Knowlton Work Memorial Scholarship was established in 2008 for college students pursuing a degree in the arts, Short said. The scholarship is funded annually through the Work Memorial Scholarship Fund, established by Julia Ascough Work, Harold Knowlton Work's wife.

"Julia and Harold shared a lifelong passion and respect for education and the arts. This memorial scholarship ensures that their legacy of learning and imagination lives on by supporting the artists of future generations," she said.

Ainsley Jones, a Bassett High School graduate and current Radford University Dance major, is one of the scholarship's recipients, Short said.

"Ainsley has dedicated her life to dance, and her instructor from Radford, Rachel Rugh, recommended Ainsley" for the scholarship. Rugh said Jones' "sense of human decency is as fully realized as her high level of dance technique."

Onyinye Ugbomah-Otunuya, a Martinsville High School student, also received the award. She is pursuing a B.A. in Graphic and Animation Design and Psychology at Longwood University.

Short said Ugbomah-Otunuya aspires to become an art therapist in the future.

It's past time for child control

In the wake of the recent mass shootings in Texas and the anticipated future shootings in Texas, I've been hearing a lot of these bleeding-heart liberal-types claiming that guns are the problem.

Let me tell you something: guns aren't the problem. A gun is just a tool, like a hammer or a shovel or a BGM-109 Tomahawk missile. Have you ever seen a gun pull its own trigger? I did once after eating this weird stamp at a party in high school, but outside of that, it never happens.

Guns aren't evil. Would I have built my entire identity and personality around something that's evil? Of course not. The guns aren't the problem here.

So what is the problem?

Well, consider the following hypothetical. Say a child knocks on a fellow's door because his kitten has climbed up a tree and he needs help getting it down. And say the homeowner, believing the intruder on his doorstep to be a migrant caravan, responds by kicking open the front door and unloading 10 rounds from a .50 Beowulf semi-automatic rifle capable of punching a hole in a vehicle's engine block.

Who's at fault here?

As mentioned, the gun sure isn't at fault; it's nothing more than an inanimate object, and also an occasional friend and confidante on a cold and lonely night.

The homeowner

By Ben R. Williams

isn't at fault either; he's simply exercising his Second Amendment rights and defending his property.

So who exactly is at fault here?

That's right; the child.

Folks, I'll just come out and say what everyone else is afraid to say: it's high time we pass child control laws in this country.

Every time I go to the grocery store, I see children everywhere. It's crazy how often people bring their children out in public where they could easily get in the way of my guns. And they're always unsecured, just running around like they own the place! Whether it's a restaurant, a public park, or an elementary school, you can't get away from all these children.

And isn't it crazy that there's NO regulatory body that decides whether or not you can have a child? What if someone is mentally ill and potentially dangerous? There's not a thing stopping them from legally possessing a child. Can you believe it? It doesn't make a lick of sense.

And these people who have children make them their identity and personality. Here I am, just trying to tell someone about the best concealed carry pistol for shooting a shoplifter at Wal-Mart, when suddenly they want to show me pictures of their children! Who cares, am I right?

And no matter what their children do, it's NEVER the child's fault! "Oh, my precious little angel would never do such a thing!" Well, I don't think there's anything that can be defended 100 percent of the time.

As I was saying, guns are never the problem, it's these children, and the situation is only getting worse. Just lately, I've been hearing that all these children keep having protests and walkouts at school against gun violence. They're tired of having to do active shooter drills and actively getting shot, so now they're trying to get MY guns taken away!

Folks, we need to do something about this before it's too late. These kids are getting downright militant, and if we're not careful, children will make it illegal to own guns.

Of course, I don't expect all of you to understand.

Until you've lost a gun to children, you'll just never get it.

Sarah Martin, a music teacher, and 2009 Bassett High School graduate, and Sarah Short, Education Coordinator at Piedmont Arts.

nization's scholarship committee, said the 2023 Arts in Education Awards were awarded to Brain Lane, an AP English dual enrollment instructor at Martinsville High School, and Sarah Martin, a music teacher and 2009 graduate from Bassett High School.

"Brian believes that engaging students in the arts helps them develop the skills they will need in any career they choose – communication, collaboration, critical and creative thinking, and time management. He is also a firm believer that experiencing and participating in the arts helps everyone develop empathy and understand the world around us," she said.

Lewis said Martin started her career as the music teacher for grades 4-7 in Patrick County Public Schools in 2014 before she transitioned to Henry County Public Schools in 2016.

"She has led the elementary music programs at Axton, Campbell Court, Sanville, and Stanleytown elementary schools. Sarah has shared her love of music with hundreds of students in before-and-after-school choir programs," she said.

Lewis said Martin also works closely with Piedmont Arts to create performance and workshop opportunities for her students.

Local Students Initiated into Omicron Delta Kappa

Emily Diaz Monay, a native of Spencer, was recently initiated into the Virginia Commonwealth University Circle of Omicron Delta Kappa, the National Leadership Honor Society.

Bethany Mills, of Bassett, and Lauren Luther, of Ridgeway, both attend Radford University, also were initiated.

James Arnold, of Collinsville, who attends Randolph College was inducted.

The Society welcomed 1,869 new initiates from 78 universities during April 2023.

Students initiated into the Society must be sophomores, juniors, seniors, or graduate/professional students in the top 35% of their class, demonstrate leadership experience in at least one of the five pillars, and embrace the ODK ideals. Fewer than five percent of students on a campus are invited to join each year.

Omicron Delta Kappa Society, the National Leadership Honor Society, was founded in Lexington, Virginia, on December 3, 1914.

Enjoy classical music and summer sunshine at The Alma Ensemble's free concert

Piedmont Arts is inviting the community to spend an afternoon in the Lester-Gravely Art Garden soaking in early summer sunshine and beautiful classical music. On Sunday, June 11, the Alma Ensemble will perform in the Lester-

Gravely Art Garden at 2 p.m. This free concert is open to the public and is sure to be a wonderful event. Bring a lawn chair or blanket and enjoy refreshments provided by the museum. This event will also feature the official ribbon cutting for the Piedmont Arts' Pollinator Path. In case of rain or inclement weather, the event will be held indoors at Piedmont Arts.

The Alma Ensemble was founded by flutist Sarah Wardle Jones, clarinetist Michelle Smith Johnson and pianist Erica Sipes. It was birthed from a desire to create music that is empowering and resonant. The group places a high priority on playing music by other women composers, and is named in recognition of Alma Mahler, a composer who never received the opportunities afforded to the male composers with whom she was romantically linked. Alma also means "nourishment" or "soul" which is something the ensemble endeavors to bring to every performance.

WPPD awarded more than $8 million for broadband upgrades

The West Piedmont Planning District, which serves Henry, Patrick, Franklin and Pittsylvania counties and the cities of Martinsville and Danville, was awarded a more than $8 million grant from the Virginia Telecommunication Initiative (VATI). The award was among the more than $59.5 million VATI grants for 14 projects serving 20 localities throughout Virginia. The VATI program provides targeted funding to extend service to areas that are presently underserved by any broadband provider. "In today's increasingly digital world, having access to high-speed broadband is no longer a luxury, it is necessary in order to fully participate in daily life," Gov. Glenn Youngkin said when announcing the awards. "These investments will allow us to reach underserved communities, grow Virginia's economy and close the digital divide across the Commonwealth." VATI's goal is to create strong, competitive communities throughout the Commonwealth by preparing those communities to build, utilize, and capitalize on telecommunications infrastructure. This year's funding leverages more than $118.6 million in local and private sector matching funds. "Closing the digital divide is paramount to growing Virginia's economy, supporting businesses and ensuring that all Virginians have the resources they need to thrive," said Secretary of Commerce and Trade Caren Merrick. "These investments will connect over 29,400 homes, businesses and community anchors, making critical strides toward achieving universal broadband in Virginia." The Department of Housing and Community Development administers the VATI program, which provides targeted financial assistance to extend broadband service to areas that are currently unserved by a provider. Projects were selected through a competitive process that evaluated each project for demonstrated need and benefit for the community, applicant readiness and capacity, and the cost and leverage of the proposed project. The level of funding awarded is based on the infrastructure needs in the project area. In this application year, VATI received 35 applications requesting more than $300 million in funding. Since 2017, Virginia has invested more than $798.7 million to connect over 358,000 homes, businesses and community anchors within 84 localities.

Sentara Healthcare Awards Grant to P&HCC Students

In partnership with Sentara Healthcare's Sentara Cares program, Virginia Foundation for Community College Education (VFCCE) has awarded Patrick & Henry Community College Foundation $8,850 to provide emergency assistance grants to healthcare students to overcome financial hardships and excel in college. Students must be enrolled in a healthcare or healthcare-related undergraduate or professional degree or certificate or credential program and have demonstrated financial need as determined by the Office of Financial Aid.

"In addition to the usual college tuition and fees, most healthcare programs require additional expenses for uniforms, physical examinations and required immunizations, drug screens, criminal background checks, and specific textbooks and resources. Fees for these items can be very costly," shared

P&HCC Foundation Executive Director Tiffani Underwood presents Amy Webster, P&HCC Director of Nursing and Allied Health, a check on behalf of Sentara Cares to support qualifying P&HCC healthcare students as they pursue degrees and certifications.

Sentara Cares funding will support program placed students in the associate's degree nursing program, practical nursing program, Paramedic and EMS related pathways, physical therapist assisting, and workforce medical certification training at P&HCC.

"We are pleased to be able to direct these funds to support the expensive textbook requirements for healthcare students. Healthcare has one of the most expensive textbook requirements of any program we have and these funds will help ensure that students are able to continue their work to fill critical positions in our community," said P&HCC Foundation Executive Director Tiffani Underwood.

Hazlewood to retire as petition moves forward

Taylor Boyd
Staff writer

Patrick County Circuit Court Clerk Sherri Hazlewood plans to retire as a petition seeking her removal from office moves forward with a judge and a special prosecutor appointed to the case.

According to Hazlewood's criminal defense attorney Ward Armstrong, of the Armstrong Law Firm in Martinsville, Hazlewood plans to retire effective July 1.

A petition to remove Hazlewood from her role was filed in Patrick County Circuit Court on April 14.

Phillip L. Hairston, a retired judge from the 13th Judicial Circuit, will preside over the case.

Pulaski County Commonwealth's Attorney Justin Griffith will serve as the special prosecutor.

The petition, which includes at least 545 signatures, alleges Hazlewood "has presented an unwell mental state during the 2022 year, directly affecting the office and county," and "has neglected numerous duties pertaining to the job of Clerk over the 2022 years resulting in copious orders not being filed and/or filed correctly."

The petition alleges Hazlewood has "had high absenteeism and has been out of the office for extended periods during the 2022 year. She has been negligent in her duties as Clerk and did not arrange any replacement for those duties during her incarcerations."

Virginia law states in part an elected official can be removed "for neglect of duty, misuse of office, or incompetence in the performance of duties when that neglect of duty, misuse of office, or incompetence has a material adverse effect upon the conduct of the office."

The petition also cited Hazlewood's four arrests in 2022 as a reason for her removal.

Hazlewood, 54, of Claudville, was arrested on Dec. 14 with intoxication in public in Rocky Mount.

She was also charged on Nov. 5 with one count each of breaking and entering, and destruction of property to a residence in Patrick County.

On Nov. 1, Hazlewood was charged with one count each of possessing a controlled substance, and intoxication in public in Bland County.

On June 19, she was arrested in Patrick County on a charge of driving while intoxicated - first offense.

Hazlewood has not been convicted of any of the charges.

Patrick County Circuit Court Judge Marcus Brinks appointed Morgan Boothe to serve in the position in Hazlewood's absence.

Hazlewood currently remains in her elected position as clerk. She is being paid $116,831, or a monthly salary of about $9,700, according to records in the Patrick County administration office.

Albert Harris Elementary Principal Earns Doctorate

Renee Brown, principal of Albert Harris Elementary School, has achieved a significant milestone in her career. Brown has earned her Doctor of Education and Leadership policy studies from Virginia Tech, joining the ranks of MCPS employees who have a terminal degree in their field.

A graduate of Martinsville High School, Brown has spent much of her professional life with Martinsville City Public Schools.

"My passion for educating and supporting all students' success has been shaped over many years of serving the Martinsville school system," Brown said. She has been with MCPS for thirty-two years, including five as principal of AHES. Previously, she served as an elementary teacher, business and computer technology teacher, and assistant principal.

"Serving in each capacity has strengthened my resolve to ensure every student's success by providing the best instructional practices and support for learning," Brown said.

Originally from Brooklyn, New York, Brown was raised in Martinsville by her grandparents because her mother felt that Martinsville would be a better place to learn the values needed for a successful life.

After graduating from MHS, Brown went on to earn degrees in business administration from WinstonSalem University, psychology from Radford University, and administration and supervision from the University of Virginia.

Apart from her outstanding professional achievements, Dr. Brown is an active member of the Martinsville-Henry County community. She is a member of First Baptist Church

More than 200 students participate in P&HCC's graduation ceremony

Pictured are several of the 206 students to participate in the May 13 graduation ceremony at Patrick & Henry Community College. All total, the college awarded 586 academic credentials for this academic year. Graduates represent the local community, as well as several surrounding states, and four countries across the world.

John Buck (retired P&HCC professor) was named professor emeritus as part of the ceremony. Unfortunately, his health did not allow him to attend, so his son, Johnny, donned one of his father's suits, and accepted in his stead.

This ceremony also marked the first graduation following Dr. Greg Hodges' official inauguration as president, but he has served in the role for other graduations.

IT'S HARD TO TELL WHO'S THE REAL RINO IN THE ROOM.

RINO doesn't refer to a great horned beast (Rhino) but something possibly even more dangerous... a Republican In Name Only!

RINO's intentionally mislead voters claiming to hold conservative Republican values while simultaneously embracing conflicting selfish, unrealistic, liberal, or even frivolous ideas. Thankfully their actions are reliable indicators. For example, constantly blaming everyone else for their failures, ineffectiveness, and the inability to work with others, suggests they want their actions to be somehow considered normal.

Their VOTING RECORD is also a good indicator of where they stand:

- Del. Marie March voted against the Republican party's majority 32% of the time in the 2022 regular session.*
- Mrs. March voted against the Republican party's majority 21% of the time in the 2023 regular session. **
- Mrs. March voted in the minority in each of the following 2022-2023 (100 member) house votes: ***
 - HB 1446 - 95 to 2 - Minimum nursing home staffing requirements.
 - HB 1617 - 85 to 7 - State Gaming regulations.
 - HB 1779 - 93 to 6 - Nuclear Grant funding.
 - HB 2098 - 91 to 7 - Common interest communities right to refuse.
 - HB 2224 - 95 to 3 - Newborn Screening.
 - SB 1183 - 96 to 2 - Fingerprint database.
 - SB 1343 - 95 to 4 - DMV Online access.
 - SB 1350 - 90 to 6 - Liquid Nicotine licensing.

HINT: If you often find yourself REPEATEDLY voting against your own REPUBLICAN party, YOU'RE THE RINO!
