Retiring K-9 dogs honored for service by city council

Master Police Officer J. Miller and K9 Max

Master Police Officer J. Fuhrman and K9 Duke

RADFORD - Two K-9 dogs who served both the U.S. military overseas and the City of Radford for seven years each were recently honored, along with their police officer handlers, by the Radford City Council.

According to the Radford City Police Department, K9 Officer Duke is an 11-year-old Belgian Malinois who has served the Radford City Police Department since 2014, and began his career in Radford after serving the U.S. military overseas in Afghanistan.

"K9 Duke is trained in narcotics detection, and his service has led to countless criminal arrests and seizures of drugs, guns, and currency," the department posted. "Duke was often used in many community demonstrations and at public events to help the community better understand the role of police K9s."

The second dog honored can boast a big social media following among his many accomplishments.

K9 Officer Max is a German shepherd who, just like Duke, has served the Radford Police Department since 2014 and began his working career as a contract working dog for the U.S. military overseas in Afghanistan, as both an apprehension and a detection dog.

"K9 Max's service has led to countless criminal arrests and seizures of drugs, guns, and currency," the department posted. "MPO Miller and K-9

Max have also aided multiple jurisdictions in various situations, including dispersing large crowds during potential volatile situations.

"Max is a viral sensation and has a large following of nearly 30,000 people on social media. His online presence has helped to build rapport within the community and nationwide between police K9s and their communities.

"K9 Duke and K9 Max are both valued members of the Radford City Police Department and community, and we wish them both a happy and peaceful retirement," the post reads.

Both dogs will live with their handlers in retirement.

Pride month events set for this weekend in Radford

Two events to celebrate Pride Month are planned for this weekend in Radford.

On Friday, June 25, the Women's Resource Center of the New River Valley will have a Pride Month Potluck Picnic in Bisset Park from noon until 7 p.m. The event is hosted by the WRCNRV Inclusion Council, a multidisciplinary team dedicated to improving access to agencies and crisis support for LGBTQ+ survivors of intimate partner and sexual violence.

Then, on Saturday, June 26, the RADical Change Commission (RCC) invites the public to take part in "a spirited walk as we gather with community pride to celebrate love and the incredible courage it takes," according to the RCC. "Pride Month gives recognition to our LGBTQ+ friends and neighbors, their advocates and allies, and our unified commitment to love at all costs."

Janiele Hamden, Chair of the RCC, said the march is another step to a unified community.

"This event was planned around the overwhelming call for it from the community," she said, "Our sweet city collectively is very loving, and we take pride in supporting one another. Honoring that sentiment with a Pride March rooted in love for our LGBTQ+ neighbors, friends, and allies is part of the framework for continually building a community that is authentic, accepting, and unified. Showing up for Love is our mission. We invite all to come and walk it out with us."

The march begins at 7 p.m. at the Radford Public Library.

Virginia Tech professor and Discovery Channel team up on great white shark research expedition

The research team in the Mediterranean Sea is attempting to do something that has never been done before: tag a great white shark, an animal that weighs on average between 1 and 2 tons, features approximately 300 serrated bladelike teeth, and swims at speeds up to 35 miles per hour. Adobe stock photo.

When asked a couple of weeks ago to reveal his summer plans, Francesco Ferretti divulged that he intended to spend nearly three weeks on the Mediterranean Sea.

But the assistant professor in Virginia Tech's College of Natural Resources and Environment wasn't going to be working on his tan or sampling the region's finest wines. On the contrary, he had something much more adventurous on his itinerary.

Ferretti, a faculty member in the Department of Fish and Wildlife Conservation, is the lead investigator and scientific director of an unprecedented expedition to study great white sharks in the Sicilian Channel, a relatively small waterway between Sicily and the coast of Tunisia.

The primary goal of the expedition? To place a tag on an animal that weighs on average between 1 and 2 tons, features approximately 300 serrated bladelike teeth, and swims at speeds up to 35 miles per hour.

Ferretti notes that no Mediterranean great white shark has ever been tagged, so if successful, he expects to celebrate in a big way.

"I may swim back across the Atlantic," he said, laughing.

This expedition came about largely because of a $52,000 grant from The Explorers Club Discovery Expedition grant program. The Explorers Club partners with Discovery Inc. to allot grant money to scientists and researchers who conduct projects that reveal new knowledge about the planet and its inhabitants, including regions undergoing environmental or cultural change.

Crew members from the Discovery Channel are joining Ferretti's team to film footage for a potential documentary, provided the expedition ends in success.

"This is an unprecedented expedition to detect, film, and, for the first time, tag Mediterranean white sharks," Ferretti said. "This is one of the most endangered and least known white shark populations globally that we would like to know better to promote effective conservation and recovery programs."

Ferretti left the U.S. on June 5 to spend 19 days in the Mediterranean with his team headquartered in Marsala, Sicily, a small coastal

VT class book project celebrates 'nasty women' in American history

In 1986, Janet Jackson's hit song "Nasty" topped music billboard charts with the catchy yet controversial lyrics,

"Oh, you nasty boys." Thirty years later, in 2016, this song made a comeback after former President Donald Trump's "nasty woman" reference to Hillary Clinton during a presidential debate. Headlines blew up worldwide and the phrase went viral, spiraling into the Nasty Woman feminist movement.

In 2021, Virginia Tech students from Marian Mollin's spring 2020 section of HIST 4914 (History Capstone Research Seminar) published the book "Nasty Women: Transgressive Womanhood in American History" as their primary assignment of the course. This rigorous and demanding class requires students to engage in original historical research and write on a topic of their choice. The students chose "Nasty Women in American History" as their topic, looking at the long view of American women and examining their behavior of protesting societal norms and breaking boundaries through the decades.

After almost 40 years, "Chez" hanging up his apron at Blacksburg Macado's

After almost 40 years as a fixture at the Blacksburg Macado's, general manager Jeff Niekirk, AKA Chez, will hang up his apron on July 10.

Enrolled at Virginia Tech, Niekirk started with Macado's in 1982 after one of his friends asked him if he wanted to be a deli cook. Now, a career that might have started out as a summer job is coming to a close.

He acquired his nickname when he returned to Loudon County, where he went to high school, accompanied by one of the company's original employees, Sam Burns. Burns heard Niekirk's mom call him "her little cheese apple," and the nickname Chez was born, a name that now virtually all of the employees know him as.

After graduating from Tech in 1984 and having trouble landing a job in his field, Niekirk decided on a full-time job with Macado's as an assistant manager. In 1995, he was promoted to general manager, a position he has maintained for 26 years now.

Niekirk has taken great pride in his former employees, some of who have become doctors and lawyers. One young waitress named Jen Price has gone on to be a general manager at the Macado's in Grand Pavilion. Asked to describe Niekirk, Price said, "I worked with Niekirk for 13 years, and consider him like a second dad and mentor. His patience and calm demeanor are why everyone loves him."

Some of his employees have had their sons and daughters follow in their footsteps and work at the restaurant. That includes Niekirk's own children.

John Doyle, the restaurant's general manager before Niekirk, credits Chez with helping him succeed. Doyle, who is now a vice president with the Fiesta Restaurant Group, said Chez embodies and imparted the greatest lesson of his career: sales and profits cannot be increased without effectively engaging your people. And you cannot engage your people without genuinely caring and consistently acting in their best interest.

Niekirk says he is retiring because it takes a lot of energy and time to be a good general manager, and now he wants to spend time with his family. Asked about his final thoughts, Chez said, "Man I had a good time and I am a lucky man."

To honor Jeff for all he has done for Macado's Blacksburg, the company will hold a retirement bash July 10 at the restaurant starting at 7 p.m. with music provided by The Kind.

Virginia Tech names John Dooley as special assistant to the athletic director

Virginia Tech Director of Athletics Whit Babcock announced Thursday that John Dooley is joining the staff as special assistant to the director of athletics.

Dooley, who served as CEO of the Virginia Tech Foundation from 2012-21 and possesses an extensive background in fundraising and development, will work with Babcock and the Hokie Club as well as Tech coaches and staff as a resource to support the $400 million Reach for Excellence campaign launched in April 2021.

Virginia Tech Director of Athletics Whit Babcock has announced that John Dooley is joining the staff as special assistant to the director of athletics.

"John will serve as a valuable asset for us as we seek to reach the lofty objectives set forth in the Reach for Excellence campaign," Babcock said. "John's long history of fostering relationships with alumni, donors, and other key constituents to broaden the impact of Virginia Tech makes him uniquely qualified to serve in this newly created role."

"For nearly 40 years, John has been very personally invested in Virginia Tech's spirit of Ut Prosim (That I May Serve)," Babcock said. "We look forward to his contributions in this latest role at Tech. John has positively impacted generations of Hokies, and this is one more opportunity for him to make a lasting impact on the greater Virginia Tech community."

As part of his work on the Reach for Excellence campaign, Dooley will be charged with assisting Babcock and Tech Athletics with the planned renovations to Cassell Coliseum and helping reach the associated fundraising target of $75 million for that project. In addition to serving as the arena for Virginia Tech men's and women's basketball, Cassell also hosts home matches for Tech's volleyball

Virginia Tech earns 13th Tree Campus USA recognition

VT students participated in a 2021 Arbor Day planting event in the Old-Growth Forest, commonly known as Stadium Woods. Meghan Marsh for Virginia Tech.

When it comes to maintaining and enhancing an inventory of over 9,849 living trees on the 900-acre Blacksburg campus, being able to "see the forest through the trees" takes on a whole new meaning.

It's Virginia Tech's holistic approach to university forestry — rooted in planning, collaboration, education, and community engagement — that has helped the university earn Tree Campus Higher Education USA recognition for the 13th consecutive year.

Launched in 2008 by the Arbor Day Foundation, Tree Campus Higher Education USA is a national program that honors colleges and universities for effective campus forest management and for engaging students, employees, and visitors in conservation goals.

Virginia Tech achieved Tree Campus Higher Education USA recognition by meeting five national standards: maintaining a tree advisory committee, operating a campus tree-care plan, dedicating annual expenditures toward trees, organizing an Arbor Day observance, and delivering ongoing student learning and engagement opportunities.

Heading up Virginia Tech's urban forestry efforts is University Arborist Jamie King, who joined the Division of Campus Planning, Infrastructure, and Facilities in 2019.

"Virginia Tech is proud to receive Tree Campus Higher Education USA recognition for the 13th year. Trees play an integral part in maintaining a sustainable campus landscape. They help support air purification, erosion control, and storm water management," King said. "Not to mention the countless recreational, educational, and community-building opportunities they provide. Just like our storied buildings, cutting-edge research labs, and more, trees are significant university assets."

Since 2008, more than a thousand trees have been planted on the Blacksburg campus.

Recent tree plantings in the Old-Growth Forest adjacent to Lane Stadium, commonly known as Stadium Woods, during Earth Week and along Alumni Mall are just two examples of the many reforestation efforts underway.

Governor's Cup Competition's gold medal wines are the toast of Virginia

The only challenge posed by Virginia's new wine trail is having the time to taste each award-winning glass.

As part of the 2021 Virginia Governor's Cup, the state's most rigorous wine competition, judges sampled 544 entries and then awarded 47 wineries, cideries, and meaderies with gold medals. Wine enthusiasts can taste the award-winning libations by following the Virginia Governor's Cup Gold Medal Wine Trail between Northern Virginia, the Shenandoah Valley and the state's coastal plain region.

"The wines in this year's Governor's Cup are a testament to the passion and pioneering spirit from which Virginia's wine industry thrives," noted Gov. Ralph Northam in a press release. "As we celebrate these high-quality and distinctive Virginia wines, we also honor the resilience of the farmers and winemakers who grow and craft them across our commonwealth."

Virginia is making its mark in the wine world and is now home to 312 wineries. The state's varied climates and planting zones allow growers to cultivate 28 varieties of grapes on more than 4,000 acres.

The gold medal-winning 2017 Petit Verdot from Lake Anna Winery in Spotsylvania County is one of them. Proprietor

Ann Heidig said the winery's first-ever petit verdot is rich, dark, and full-bodied and expresses blackberry and licorice flavors augmented by two years in French oak barrels.

A previous gold medal winner is Lake Anna Winery's 2018 Barrel Select Chardonnay. It's a classic European-style oak-aged white with hints of English toffee and caramel apples underscored with tropical fruit, containing 5% seyval blanc grapes.

"We've aspired to be recognized for our wines by winning gold in the Governor's Cup," said Heidig, who also serves on the Virginia Farm Bureau Federation Specialty Crops Advisory Committee. "It's really an honor any time you win, and that's a tribute to our winemaker Graham Bell, and our son Eric, our vineyard guy."

Heidig said people tend to think the best grapes and wines come from Europe, California and Australia.

"But we want them to think of Virginia," she said. "It's very important to have these competitions to showcase the fact that both our reds and whites are excellent and recognized nationally. Because we use only Virginia grapes, that exposure highlights the quality of our growers."

The Virginia Governor's Cup is hosted by the Virginia Wineries Association in partnership with the Virginia Wine Board and the Virginia Vineyards Association. Visitors to the Virginia is now home to 312 wineries that grow 28 varieties of grapes on more than 4,000 acres.

Gold Medal Wine Trail can utilize a mobile pass- port on a digital device to access discounts, free tastings, and other perks.

Creative team re-imagines Debussy's opera 'Pelléas et Mélisande' June 25, 26 at Moss Arts Center

Experience an innovative and unexpected take on a classic with "Pelléas et Mélisande," an adaptation of French composer Claude Debussy's poignant symbolist opera created by a team of Virginia Tech faculty and students from across disciplines, along with special guest artists.

The Moss Arts Center will present two performances of the work on Friday, June 25, and Saturday, June 26, at 7 p.m. The performances are available as streamed and as in-person events. In-person performances will be held in the center's Anne and Ellen Fife Theatre, located within the Street and Davis Performance Hall at 190 Alumni Mall.

"Pelléas et Mélisande" has captivated audiences since its Paris premiere in 1902. Based on a play by Maurice Maeterlink, the work is a symbolist psycho-drama that dissolves time and space. Using immersive recordings, projections, and unusual costumes and scenery, the Virginia Tech creative team re-imagines this masterwork, offering a 75-minute English-language version of the opera that pares the story down to its essentials.

The creative team originally intended for the production to be performed in the standard format, which includes singers performing the work live on a set. In order to create a performance that could be attended live, however, the team reimagined its concept to create a COVID-safe performance space. The singers were recorded in April, and actors will portray the characters on the immersive set while wearing larger-than-life costume masks. The end result will be reminiscent of Kabuki theatre and create a product that completely embraces the symbolist opera.

Prior to the performance on Friday, June 25, Richard Masters, associate professor of piano and collaborative piano in the School of Performing Arts, will deliver a pre-concert lecture in the Moss Arts Center's Anne and Ellen Fife Theatre at 6 p.m. Using examples from Debussy's piano and vocal repertoire, Masters will discuss the influences of orientalism and exoticism on the music of Debussy. This in-person event is free, but registration is required.

Tickets for in-person performances are $20 for general admission and $10 for Virginia Tech students. Tickets for the streamed performances are $10 and free for Virginia Tech students. Tickets can be purchased online; at the Moss Arts Center's box office, 10 a.m. to 5 p.m. Wednesday through Friday, and 10 a.m. to 4 p.m. Saturday; or by calling 540-231-5300 during box office hours.

Individuals who need an accommodation may contact Kacy McAllister at 540-231-5300 or email kmcallis@vt.edu during regular business hours.

Parking is available in the North End Parking Garage on Turner Street. Virginia Tech faculty and staff possessing a valid Virginia Tech parking permit can enter and exit the garage free of charge. When not staffed for a special event, visitors may park in the garage by taking a ticket at entry and paying with Visa or Mastercard upon exit. In addition, Virginia Tech has partnered with ParkMobile to provide a convenient, contactless electronic payment option for parking, which may be used at or any parking meter, campus parking space, or lot with standard F/S, C/G, or R parking.

Historic Montgomery

Kentland, located near Whitethorne and now owned by Virginia Tech, was built in 1833 for James R. Kent. The property included a federal-style brick house (shown here in 1982) and many outbuildings. The nearly 6,000 acres at Kentland were worked by 90 enslaved African Americans in 1840. A noted cattleman from the 1820s through the Civil War, Kent's wealth expanded and in 1860, he owned 122 slaves. After the Civil War, those once enslaved at Kentland founded the community of Wake Forest, located nearby. (This image and many more are available from the Montgomery Museum of Art & History.)

WalletHub ranks Virginia as nation's 10th-most patriotic state

With Fourth of July celebrations able to proceed this year due to the fact that 45% of the population is vaccinated and states have largely reopened, the personal-finance website WalletHub Monday released its report on 2021's Most Patriotic States in America and ranked the commonwealth number 10.

Virginia's ranking among some of the 13 metrics the company used to determine its rankings included average number of military enlistees per 1,000 civilian adults, eighth; active-duty military personnel per 100,000 civilian adults, first; Peace Corps volunteers per capita, fourth; percentage of adults who voted in the 2020 presidential election, ninth; volunteer rate, 21; veterans per 1,000 civilian adults, second; civics education requirement, 20; and volunteer hours per resident, ninth.

The company divided those metrics into two dimensions, "military engagement" and "civic engagement."

The metrics used in the military engagement dimension were 1) the average military enlistees per 1,000 civilian adults between 2013 and 2018 2) veterans per 1,000 civilian adults 3) active-duty military personnel per 100,000 civilian adults and

4) the share of the civilian adult population in the military reserves.

The metrics used by the company in the civic engagement dimension were 1) the share of adults who voted in the 2020 presidential election 2) the share of adults who voted in the 2020 primary elections 3) the state's volunteer rate 4) the volunteer hours per resident 5) AmeriCorps volunteers per capita 6) Peace Corps volunteers per capita 7) trial and grand jury participants per civilian adult population and 8) the share of the residents who participate in groups and organizations.

The states ranked ahead of Virginia in the survey were 1) Montana 2) Alaska 3) Maryland 4) Vermont 5) New Hampshire 6) North Dakota 7) Wyoming 8) Minnesota and 9) Oregon.

GasBuddy: Virginia gas prices remain unchanged

Gasoline prices across the commonwealth remained unchanged this past week, according to GasBuddy's daily survey of 4,081 stations in Virginia.

Gas prices averaged $2.93 Monday, 2.2 cents per gallon lower than a month ago but still 99.1 cents per gallon higher than a year ago.

According to GasBuddy price reports, the cheapest station in Virginia is priced at $2.60/g while the most expensive is $3.49/g, a difference of 89.0 cents per gallon.

The national average price of gasoline has fallen 2.1 cents per gallon in the last week to an average of $3.05/g. The national average is up two cents per gallon from a month ago and up 93.5 cents per gallon from a year ago.

"The ferocious rise in gas prices has finally started to cool as gas prices have eased across a majority of the country for the first time in months," said Patrick De Haan, head of petroleum analysis for GasBuddy. "There have been some challenges in pockets across the country as demand remains very healthy, and stations in some areas where demand is very high struggle to keep up with demand thanks to the truck driver shortage. As we head toward the July 4 holiday, I'm optimistic that we'll continue to see prices slowly drift lower before possibly rising in later July or August should we see any disruptions from hurricane season. But for now it seems most Americans are simply happy to be getting outside and back to some sense of normal."

GasBuddy is the authoritative voice for gas prices and the only source for station-level data spanning nearly two decades. Governor: 70 percent of adult Virginians have received at Least one COVID-19 vaccine dose

Virginia Governor Ralph Northam announced Monday that 70 percent of adults 18 years and older in the commonwealth have received at least one dose of COVID-19 vaccine, according to data from the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention (CDC).

In reaching this vaccination milestone two weeks ahead of the nationwide July 4 target, Virginia is the 16th state in the nation to meet this goal set by President Joe Biden in early May. To date, over 8.8 million doses of vaccine have been administered in Virginia, and more than 4.2 million individuals, or 60.3 percent of the population 18 and older, are fully vaccinated.

The governor and state public health officials celebrated Virginia's vaccination milestone during an event at Hope Pharmacy, a small, minority-, woman-owned pharmacy in Richmond.

"Virginia has reached a significant milestone in the fight against COV-ID-19," the governor said. "Thanks to the millions of Virginians who have rolled up their sleeves to get vaccinated, the virus is in retreat, our economy is growing, and we are closer to putting this pandemic behind us. A statewide effort has brought us to this point, with strong partnerships in our communities, health systems, the private sector, and across all levels of government. Even as we celebrate this tremendous achievement, we will continue working together to vaccinate everyone who is eligible so our commonwealth so can keep moving forward."

Virginia continues to see a significant decline in new COVID-19 cases, hospitalizations, and deaths. New daily cases exceeded a seven-day moving average of 5,900 in early January and dropped under 250 by June 1.

The number of patients hospitalized with COVID-19 peaked in early January with a seven-day moving average above 2,600 and had decreased to nearly 500 by June 1. Deaths from COVID-19 reached a seven-day moving average of 83 in mid-January and fell below 7 by June 1.

"We are deeply grateful to all those who have been vaccinated and to the vaccinators helping Virginia reach and surpass this milestone," said State Health Commissioner M. Norman Oliver. "There are still Virginians we need to reach, and our efforts to make vaccination as accessible and as convenient as possible will continue. Those who have yet to get the vaccine are encouraged to do so to protect themselves and to keep others safe, particularly children under 12, people with weakened immune systems, or individuals who cannot be vaccinated for other reasons."

Federal approval of the Pfizer-BioNTech COVID-19 vaccine for adolescents aged 12 to 15 has made more than 400,000 additional Virginians eligible to get vaccinated, and about 30 percent of individuals in that age group have received the vaccine so far. VDH will continue working with school districts to make the vaccine available to students as the vaccination efforts shift from large-scale vaccination sites to health care providers, pharmacies, and mobile vaccine clinics.

"Virginia's remarkable progress is a testament to the commitment, coordination, and leadership of our local health districts, community-based organizations, faith leaders, National Guard members, and so many others," said Virginia Vaccination Coordinator Dr. Danny TK Avula. "While there is still work to do in addressing vaccine hesitancy, I remain confident that we can keep this momentum going and defeat this virus."

With increased vaccination rates, public health metrics trending in the right direction, and revised federal guidelines, Virginia ended all COVID-19 mitigation measures on May 28. The state of emergency that Governor Northam declared on March 12, 2020, in response to COVID-19 is set to expire on June 30.

Unvaccinated individuals and those who are not fully vaccinated should continue wearing a mask, practicing physical distancing, and avoiding crowds and poorly ventilated spaces in accordance with federal CDC guidance.

town on the western end of the island. His colleagues are a team of eight scientists from Beneath the Waves, a nonprofit organization dedicated to promoting ocean health.

In addition, four graduate and research assistants are part of the expedition, which is using cutting-edge technology to compile data about the Mediterranean population of great white sharks currently considered by many researchers to be endangered.

Count Ferretti among that group. He has been studying sharks since his days as an undergraduate student at Polytechnic University of Marche in his native Italy. Specifically, in relation to the great white population, he and his team have looked at historical and statistical data for shark sightings and catches in the Mediterranean.

That analysis revealed a population in decline. Ferretti believes that these sharks are unfortunate victims that get caught in the nets of commercial and local fishermen in search of other species of fish.

"From that analysis, we could demonstrate that white sharks have been declining quite substantially in past decades mainly because of industrial fishing, but also because of a lot of coastal fishing," Ferretti said. "The Mediterranean is one of the most exploited regions on the planet. There are a lot of people, there is a lot of fishing, and because of humans' impacts on habitat and fish populations, many shark populations are in decline, particularly the white shark."

The extinction of this population of great white sharks could be devastating to the Mediterranean ecosystem. The removal of an apex predator like the great white shark could create a top-down effect throughout the food chain, resulting in the decline or even extinction of other species.

"It's very exciting, fun, and very important," Ferretti said. "Lots of people will be looking to see what we can do, also because they understand the challenge. This is a high-stakes and high-risk expedition."

Foster, Stella Fox Holbrook

Stella Fox Holbrook Foster, 89, passed away Thursday, June 17, 2021, at her home in Radford. An amazing, loving, sweet, wise and kind true southern lady, Stella was the wife, mother, sister and friend that one could only wish to have in their life.

A coal miner's daughter, she was born on Oct. 15, 1931, in a coal camp in Letcher County, Kent., to George and Delia Fox. She was one of seven children and she loved her parents and siblings dearly. A close family of modest means, but rich with love and togetherness, they moved to a small farm house when Stella was young where she began the daily tasks of gathering eggs, milking cows, feeding chickens, working in the garden, and helping to care for her younger siblings, which continued throughout her adolescence.

Upon graduation from Whitesburg High School, Stella wanted to be a nurse, but her parents didn't have the financial resources to send her to college. So she got a job as a clerk in a large local general store, where she worked 10 hours a day, six days a week for twenty dollars, an amount that she would always say was "good money back then."

After two years at the store and with a desire to do something else, she replied to an ad in a national magazine recruiting for stewardesses. A month later, a representative from Eastern Airlines walked into the store and said he was there to meet and interview her. Upon conclusion of the interview, he told her that she was perfect for the job and that he wanted to hire her. Flattered and tempted, nevertheless, she didn't take the job and chose love instead of flying the skies, a decision which she never regretted.

She married Burnette Holbrook and they moved to Radford where the Radford Army Ammunition plant had just opened and where Burnette had secured a job. Motherhood quickly followed in the years to come with four children over a five-year period. A natural mother, Stella stayed at home to care for her young children and became a favorite neighbor, churchgoer, and friend to the residents of Clement Street on the east end of Radford.

Tragically she lost her first-born child, Jeff, when he was four years old and then her husband less than two years later.

Now a widow with three young children, Stella went to work at Kenrose Manufacturing and then later on at the Radford Army Ammunition Plant, where she would regularly receive written commendations for her work over the next 25 years. There she met Lewis "Red" Foster, who she would marry, have a son by, and to whom she was married for 44 years before his passing on March 21, 2011. Throughout those years Stella worked a physically demanding swing shift job; raised her family; enjoyed her time with her friends, siblings and relatives; cared for her parents, and loved all. Her sweet personality, positive demeanor, pretty smile, infectious laugh, quick wit, and her famous one-liners/old sayings, made her adored by all who were fortunate enough to know her.

Upon retirement, she traveled, gardened, read, mastered crypto quotes, regularly attended Calvary Baptist Church, and babysat her grandchildren. One of a kind, Stella will be missed dearly by all, yet joyously welcomed by all in heaven. An angel on earth has now gone home.

Survivors include her sons and daughters-in-law, Greg and Amy Holbrook, Richard and Anne Holbrook, and David and Jill Foster; daughter Sheila Zellers (Scott Roberts); grandchildren Abby and Luke Turner, Bryan and Stacy Holbrook, Tanner Sutphin (Courtney Marine), Blair Holbrook (Adam Troutman), Bayley Holbrook, Morgan Stokes, and Taylor Foster; great-grandchild, Reid Turner; brothers and sisters-in-law, Steve and Karen Fox and Doug and Jeanette Fox; sister in-law and brother-in-law, Mary Anne and Jim Pickett; special friends Russell and Evelyn Quisenberry; and many nieces and nephews with whom she had special bonds.

She was preceded in death by her beloved son-in-law, Wayne Zellers; a sister, Mary Craft Everidge; a brother and sister-in-law, Leon and Bernice Fox; and sisters and brother-in-law Maxine and Hobert Deaton, and Pina and Hubert Freeman.

Special thanks to Jearlene Simpkins, Doris Armentrout, and Tammy Reed caregivers at Pulaski Health and Rehabilitation Center and Medi-Home Health and Hospice.

The family received friends on Monday, June 21, 2021, at the Mullins Funeral Home in Radford. Funeral services followed with the Rev. Brian Cockram officiating. Entombment followed in the Highland Memory Gardens Mausoleum in Dublin.

In lieu of flowers, the family appreciates contributions made to either Calvary Baptist Church, 624 Sixth Street, Radford, VA 24141 or to Trinity Community Church, 1505 North Franklin Street, Christiansburg, VA 24073.

The Foster family is in the care of Mullins Funeral Home & Crematory.

Richmond Vincent, Jr., President and CEO for Goodwill Industries of the Valleys, has announced new departments and changes designed to create an updated organizational structure. These changes provide leaders with clear authority, accountability, and responsibility. The new model has four business segment chiefs, each reporting directly to Vincent.

Nasty Women

Students in the class — Alicia Aucoin, Gillian Barth, Grace Barth, Helen Hickman, Savannah Lawhorne, Kat McGowan, Caroline McLean, Madison Sheehan, Elizabeth Sholtis, Trenton Spillman, Bethany Stewart, Alyssa Thompson, Liv Wisniewski, and Olivia Wood — all had a hand in writing the book.

In the book's 14 chapters, the student authors recount stories of strong historical women, some enslaved, a few engineers, and even early celebrities. Taken together, the chapters demonstrate how there is no such thing as an average woman, as even those ordinary women are found doing extraordinary things.

Led by Mollin, an associate professor of history, in collaboration with Robert Browder, publishing coordinator of Virginia Tech Publishing housed in University Libraries, each student produced a chapter or article length essay that resembled the kinds of scholarly papers historians regularly deliver at professional meetings or submit for publication. Then each of these works were combined and published into a book.

"Compiling the essays into a published volume adds a level of seriousness and excitement to the class," said Mollin. "Students universally love that their work will appear in an actual book rather than just submitted as a class assignment that no one except their professor sees. And knowing that their work will be published and available for public consumption pushes students to do their very best work."

"This project is unique because each student gets to write about whatever she wants to under the subject matter," said McLean, a student in the course and a double major in history and international studies with a minor in Spanish. "That means that each author wrote about what she was most interested in and passionate about."

The now successful project encountered some challenges along the way. During the first months of the pandemic in spring 2020, the class shifted to remote learning. This almost derailed the entire book project.

"The students had really just started their research," said Mollin. "Some of their research was with online databases, but more were print library resources that suddenly were inaccessible. The lack of face-to-face contact was difficult as well. The work in this capstone research seminar is intense, and peer support is essential to the students' successful completion of their projects."

The classmates were scattered geographically and met through Zoom, challenging their ability to maintain a sense of connection required to complete the high-level project.

"All of my sources for my chapter were back in my dorm room in Blacksburg," said Liv Wisniewski, one of the class project authors. "I hadn't brought them home with me over spring break, figuring I would only be gone for a week and not intending to work on the paper in that time anyway. I was away from them for a month and had to get special permission to return to campus early to get my things so I could finish my chapter."

The students did not give up, and as a result, they are now proud published authors. The book is available both as a freely downloadable eBook and as an affordable paperback edition.

Townsend, Thomas "Tom" Morris

Thomas "Tom" Morris Townsend, 92, passed away on Monday, June 14, 2021, at his home in Radford.

He was born in December 1928 in Memphis, Tenn. He was preceded in death by his parents, Jesse and Ellen Townsend; his beloved wife of 63 years, Eva Nell Swaim Townsend; and a daughter, Penny Ann Townsend Hutton.

Survivors include his daughters, Pamela T. Thomas of Georgia and Patsy T. Hosner of Blacksburg; a grandson, Steven Morris Thomas of Georgia; a step-grandson, Jason Hosner of Germany; and a brother, M. Smith Townsend of Texas.

Tom was a military veteran, having served in the U. S. Air Force. He retired from Hercules, Inc., with 37 years of service and was a member of Unity Christian Church in Radford.

A graveside service was held on Thursday, June 17, 2021, at Roselawn Memorial Gardens in Christiansburg with the Rev. Gina Rhea officiating.

In lieu of flowers, remembrances may be made to the Unity Christian Church or the charity of your choice. The family wishes to express its thanks and appreciation to Good Samaritan Hospice, especially staff members Sydney, Brittany, Mary Lee, Cherish, Angie, and Kayla, who lovingly shared their care and their concerns for Tom.

The Townsend family is in the care of Mullins Funeral Home & Crematory in Radford.

Trulove, Patrick L.

Patrick L. Trulove passed away Saturday, June 12, 2021, after a painful battle with lung cancer. He would have turned 67 on July 23.

Patrick grew up in Mill Valley, Calif., and loved his hometown. He kept up with the news there and with friends he had had since grade school. After graduation from Tamalpais in 1972, he moved to Oregon with his parents and attended trade school to become a printer-operator. He also studied art and was skilled with pen and ink and oil, although he was never satisfied with his own work.

As an adult, he tried to live in Mill Valley, but it was too expensive, so he moved to Reno, where he worked for Kinkos for years, then moved east to the Charlotte, N.C., area and worked for Regulus as a machine operator and Shutterfly as a press operator. He updated his skills by earning A+ computer certification.

He moved to Radford in 2016 to be closer to family and worked at Spectrum for three years and with Goodwill for the last year until he was too sick to work. He is grateful for the support and friendship of his colleagues at Goodwill, who were able to find a position for him where he would not have to stand and was still able to be productive, which was important to him.

Patrick enjoyed drinking beer and smoking while listening to blues, jazz, Motown, and early rock, and reading history, especially the period between the wars. He was also a huge fan of movies and collected W.C. Fields and classic war movies, among others.

He was a solitary individual, satisfied with his own company. But he kept up with old friends with colorful, detailed letters, hundreds of emails, and long telephone calls. And he enjoyed time with his favorite new friend, his sister's sister-in-law, Suzanne Bowen of Pulaski.

Patrick is survived by his sister, Susan Trulove of Fairlawn; his brother, Frank True, and sister-in-law LaDonna Sepers of Radford; and many cousins far and wide, including his beloved cousin Dianne Walker of Kannapolis, N.C.

Patrick's family will take his ashes to Mill Valley, the home his heart never left.

If you knew Patrick, give him a thought. And if you smoke, quit!

The Trulove family is in the care of Mullins Funeral Home & Crematory.

High school playoff update: Auburn boys win Class 1 track title

Auburn High School won the Class 1 boys track title this weekend, thanks to the final event of the day, the 1,600 meters relay. The team's third-place finish allowed the Eagles to edge George Wythe 61-55 for the championship.

Daniel Graham was the Eagles' lone state champ. He took the 110 hurdles with a time of 15.81. Eastern Montgomery's Cody Roupe won the high jump at 6-2.

The Auburn girls team finished in third place behind PH-Glade Spring and Riverheads.

Christiansburg's Tyrique Taylor finished third in the boys discus at the state Class 3 meet while Kaylee Sloss was third in the same event on the girls side of the track. Both teams finished out of the top five team standings.

Blacksburg's boys and girls teams finished fifth and ninth respectively in this past weekend's State Class 4 meet.

Auburn has been a familiar name in the state softball semis and returns this week winning the 1C title with a 10-0 win over Grayson County. Hannah Shepherd hit an inside-the-park home run, and Kirsten Fleet pitched a no-hitter with 12 strikeouts. Fleet also smashed a two-run homer.

The state's final four in boys soccer will be without Blacksburg for the first time in a long time. Jefferson Forest took down the Bruins 3-2 as Blacksburg finished 9-2-2 on the season.

Eastern Montgomery's girls soccer team picked up where they left off two years ago, winning the Region 1C championship with a 10-0 win over cross-county rival Auburn. Maddie Bruce had five goals in the Eagles' win.

Radford's Kora Epperly battles for possession of the ball. With the win, the Bobcat girls advanced to play Virginia High in the state semifinals.

Kathryn Vinson booms the ball downfield in Saturday's win. Her corner kick in the second sudden-death overtime propelled the Lady Cats to the win and the state tournament.

Blacksburg High seeking new track coach

Just as Blacksburg High School completes the spring track season, it has learned it will need a new coach for next year as Brandon Bear is leaving for a new job in New York.

Bear began his career at Blacksburg as a volunteer assistant coach for then-BHS coach James DeMarco in the 2010 cross-country season. He then became an assistant coach for the indoor track season. When DeMarco moved in the fall of 2015, Bear transitioned into the head coaching role for all six programs (boys and girls cross country, indoor track and field, and outdoor track and field).

During his tenure, he coached seven state championship teams and 43 individual and relay state champions. Two athletes have broken Virginia state records across all classifications in the 2000m Steeplechase (2017, Ben Fleming) and the 1-Mile Race Walk (2019, Oscar Coddington). For the school's current classification of 4A, two athletes hold state records: Kaitlynn Wolfe (3200m) and Cole Beck (indoor 55m).

The girls cross-country team qualified for the Nike Cross National Championships in Portland, Ore., every year Bear was head coach except for 2019, but Wolfe did qualify as an individual.

Three athletes earned All-American status at the national championships: Beck (outdoor 100m), Wolfe (indoor 5000m), and Oscar Coddington (indoor race walk).

Bear was named the Girls Cross-Country Coach of the Year for the State of Virginia in both 2016 and 2017 and named Girls Track & Field

Coach of the Year for the State of Virginia by the Virginia High School League and the National Federation of State High School Coaches Association Coaches Association in 2019.

Bear's wife took a job in Albany, N.Y., after earning her doctorate at Virginia Tech.

"She graciously agreed that I should finish out the year with my student-athletes, especially considering the already existent strain on the students from dealing with the abnormal situation of the COVID pandemic," Bear said. "But now the time has come for me to join her in our first house, and I'll be starting a job as an AP physics and math teacher at a charter high school in the Albany area this fall."

Bear is leaving without having a coaching job lined up. Instead he wants to see what his new life will look like and get the chance to settle down. "But it's a passion that I don't want to lose and am eagerly looking forward to the opportunity to potentially build a new running program in that area," he said.

While looking back at his time at Blacksburg, there are several big events he will remember because, as he said, is a unique experience to go to championship level meets at the state and national level.

"I enjoy thinking back about the little moments where I may have made a difference in a student's life, to encourage them a little to give running a try, and to see them really take it on and recognize that they can become holistically better versions of themselves. That's always fun to watch that development," Bear said.

He said he is encouraged not only by the enthusiasm of the current coaching staff and the new distance coach, but by the shared vision of the athletes still in the program at Blacksburg.

"Ultimately the success of the program begins and ends with them," Bear said. "If they keep the tradition in mind and the passion alive, then the program will continue to have success for years to come, and together the new coach and the athletes will do amazing things. I'm excited to watch their continued success from afar."

Bear is definitely interested in continuing his coaching career in some aspect. "I love the ability to influence young adults in the unique environment of high school athletics. There are tangible benefits that it provides for them, and to be able to make a difference in a new population is an exciting challenge," he said.

Former Hokie Jessica Spicer wins state golf association's championship

Jessica Spicer, who just finished her golf career at Virginia Tech, won the championship of the Virginia State Golf Association's women's stroke play Thursday.

Spicer posted a three-day total of 217 to win the title by two strokes in the 44th playing of the event, which wrapped up Thursday afternoon at Stoney Creek at Wintergreen Resort.

Spicer, a member of Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech, became the second straight Hokie to win the title and the third since 2017. Becca DiNunzio defeated Tech teammate Emily Mahar last year at Kingsmill, and Amanda Hollandsworth won in 2017 at Blacksburg Country Club.

"I think Tech coach Carol Robertson is going to be pretty happy," Spicer said. "She texted me last night and was very excited that (Tech teammate) Alyssa Montgomery and I were battling it out in the final round. I think she just loves to see Hokie headcovers out there in the final group."

Spicer finished two shots clear of the trio tied for second—Montgomery, High Point's Danielle Suh, and soon-to-be James Madison player Tatum Walsh.

Four-time champion Lauren Greenlief rounded out the top five at 221, having recovered from an opening-round 78 to shoot 72-71 over the final two days.

Spicer's short game played a huge role in her even-par 72 in the final round. She got up and down out of the bunker on No. 16 to save a key par down the stretch followed that up with a birdie on 17, a hole she birdied all three days. That gave her a three-shot lead heading to the final hole on Stoney Creek's Shamokin nine, though she didn't know it.

She chose not to check the leaderboard, and in retrospect, she said if she had known where she stood, it might have changed her strategy off the tee on 18. Spicer's drive went way right into some trees, but fortunately she had an opening to punch out of and reached the back of the green on the par-4 hole in three shots. She was left with an extremely tricky downhill putt to a front-hole location, and she nudged it close to set up a bogey putt. She missed it, but no one in the final group was able to make birdie to make her pay for the final-hole double bogey. Spicer hadn't held a late lead in a stroke-play event since winning the Carolinas Amateur in 2019, so she said there were some nerves down the stretch.

"I had a few shaky shots out there all three days, but to really grind it out with the short game and just manage the course really well and make really smart decisions, I was really happy with that," Spicer said. "Even if I'm not 100 percent on, I can still shoot good scores and win tournaments. It's definitely a confidence boost."

Spicer plans to play in several high-profile events over the next month or so, including the North and South Women's Amateur at Pinehurst. She's going to enjoy the next stretch of amateur golf before deciding whether to take a shot at playing professionally.

"It's definitely on the radar," Spicer said. "I've had a lot of people suggesting that if you're going to try it, now's the time, right after you graduate from college. It's not like you can go work for five or six years and then go back and try to play high-level golf. It's definitely an option. But for now, I'm going to stay amateur and just enjoy this summer, work on my game, and see what happens."

Three Blacksburg golfers, one Radford golfer post low scores at first 2021 Blue Ridge Junior Golf Tour tournament

Seventy-one junior golfers assembled at the Pete Dye River Course of Virginia Tech recently to kick off the 2021 Blue Ridge Junior Golf Tour with three Blacksburg golfers and one Radford golfer posting low scores in their respective age groups.

Dwayne Belcher, the tour's executive director, said it was a real treat for these young players to have the opportunity to play the River Course.

"Obviously, the Pete Dye name sets a high standard among golf courses, but the immaculate conditions, hospitable staff, and breathtaking scenery certainly take the experience to high level," said Dwayne Belcher, the tour's executive director. "We are very appreciative of the generosity and know that our members gain much from the day."

The results for the various age groups were as follows:

17-18 Age Group
6,495 yards Par 72

Jake Albert of Blacksburg earned medalist honors with a 3-over-par 75. Albert made the turn at even par and played steadily on the back nine to gain the four-shot victory over Alex Brannock of Galax, who shot a 79.

15-16 Age Group
5,903 yards Par 72

Pierce Campbell of Blacksburg posted the lowest score of the day with a 2-under par 70 to win the age group. After a slow start, Campbell found himself 3-over after three holes. But consecutive birdies on holes 4, 5, and 6 got him back to even par for the day. He added two more birdies on the inward nine holes that allowed him to secure medalist honors.

McKenzie Weddle from Floyd was busy having her own good day. The rising Floyd High School junior made three birdies on her way to a round of even par 72. Close behind Weddle was Major Ewing of Blacksburg. Ewing posted a score of 2-over-par 74 to finish third in the competitive age group.

13-14 Age Group
5,903 yards Par 72

Grayden Laird of Galax treated himself to a birthday present by firing a 2-over-par 74 to earn medalist honors. On his 14th birthday, Laird mixed two birdies with 11 pars to celebrate in style. Ryan Highfield of Blacksburg was one shot back at 75 to earn second place. Cameron Sharp of Blacksburg was third at 76 in another competitive age group.

10-12 Age Group
2,589 yards Par 36

Hudson Hurt of Radford won the age group with a nine-hole score of 38. Ryan McGinnins of Blacksburg was second with a score of 46. Jack Herbert, also of Blacksburg, finished third with a score of 47.

9 and Under Age Group Par 36

J.J. Robertson of Blacksburg won the age group with a score of 43. Marco Beato, also of Blacksburg, shot a 48 to finish second. Daniel DeJesus of Blacksburg, and Christopher Rizo of Tazewell tied for third place with score of 67.

The tour continues next week with a stop at the Greenbrier.
