Former Radford High staff member arrested for sex crimes

Ishmale Davis was leading a specialized jobs preparation program at Radford High School until his arrest on July 27 on several charges related to child pornography and taking indecent liberties with a child.

RADFORD - Ishmale Davis, a 23-year-old Radford man who was leading a specialized post-secondary preparation program for Radford High School students, has been arrested on charges involving child pornography and taking indecent liberties with a child.

Davis was leading the Jobs for Virginia's Graduates (JVG), an extension of the national Jobs for American Graduates program, at Radford High School prior to his arrest on July 27 on several charges related to a juvenile over the age of 15. According to Radford City Schools Superintendent Robert Graham, Davis is no longer employed by RCPS. Graham said Monday, he cannot not make any comment on a personnel matter.

A graduate of Radford University, Davis was the JVG Specialist at RHS.

JVG is a grant-funded program with four main goals: to help students graduate, seek post-secondary education, obtain a job, and get started on a solid career path.

Davis is being held without bond at the New River Valley Regional Jail. The charges against him include consensual intercourse with a minor, four counts of taking indecent liberties with a minor, six counts of enticing a minor to participate in pornography, six counts of producing or making child pornography, six counts of taking part in or filming child pornography, and seven counts of possession of obscene materials.

A hearing in Davis's case has been set for Sept. 10 in Radford Circuit Court.

Virginia Tech teams with ClubCorp to open venue for college fans

Virginia Tech and ClubCorp, a company considered to be one of the world leaders in private clubs, are partnering to build a new, premier venue within Lane Stadium that is designed to revolutionize the game-day experience and bring an already engaged fan base even closer to the university.

The two partners have agreed on plans to develop the University Club of Virginia Tech, a year-round private club inside the President's Suite at the Hokies' football home. Scheduled to be open this fall, the University Club of Virginia Tech will offer dining, event, and meeting spaces, as well as a robust lineup of engaging programming and game-day events.

ClubCorp's dynamic, rapidly growing stadium division — CampusLife 360 — will manage this state-of-the art club, which represents the seventh stadium property in the division. CampusLife 360 helps universities harness the demand for connection and community, creating venues for members and guests to come together to celebrate the excitement of not only "game day," but also every day.

"We are thrilled to be partnering with Virginia Tech to bring this one-of-a-kind facility to their campus," said David Pillsbury, CEO of ClubCorp. "Lane Stadium is one of college football's most electrifying arenas, and we look forward to leveraging that excitement year-round at the new University Club of Virginia Tech."

"We're excited to open the doors to a completely reimagined fan experience for Hokies with the University Club of Virginia Tech," said Dwayne Pinkney, senior vice president and chief business officer at Virginia Tech. "ClubCorp is a proven leader in not just building and managing private clubs, but in building community among its members and creating incredible experiences for them."

The University Club of Virginia Tech will reflect the excitement and rich traditions of Virginia Tech's game-day experience. ClubCorp named Ali Halatayi as the general manager of the club, which will serve as a place for members and guests to host, connect, work, play, and celebrate.

Features of the University Club include a welcoming lounge and meeting space, premier dining at the club's restaurant, modern private event spaces and meeting rooms, best-in-class productivity spaces for working and collaborating, game-day events that bring the excitement on the field to the club and its members, and enriching year-round educational, cultural, and social programs.

News Brief: Probation extended for Christiansburg woman

Stephanie D. Bermudez of Christiansburg was convicted in 2009 of robbing a Fairlawn bank and given three years in prison and 10 years of probation when released. This past week, a Pulaski County Circuit Court extended that probation for another year because Bermudez has not paid restitution and court costs that were part of her conviction.

According to court records, she was initially ordered to pay $4,353 in restitution. As of this past week, she still owed as much as $3,141 with court costs still being owed in the amount of $1,599.

Judge Bradley Finch granted a probation officer's request to add more time to the probation until Bermudez pays the amount due.

Overdue fine forgiveness ends at library on Sept. 1

The Radford Public Library's waiving of all overdue fines will end Sept. 1.

RADFORD - Forced by the pandemic to close its doors, the Radford Public Library waived all fines through the course of the pandemic, which left many books and other checked-out materials in the hands of patrons for more than a year.

Further, the library did not accept returns for the first several months of the lockdown period. Now, however, with the library re-opened for business, the staff is encouraging patrons to return all overdue materials to the library before Sept. 1 when fines will finally resume after being waived since March 2020.

"As regular library hours and services return to the Radford Public Library following the COVID-19 pandemic, the library is extending an overdue fee forgiveness window," the library has announced. "Items have been renewed automatically during the pandemic to prevent fees from accumulating. While library hours resumed as normal on June 1, fines have continued to be suspended in an effort to entice patrons in during the Summer Reading Program and also to gently ease them back into the generating of fines."

"The Radford Public Library wants our patrons to return without feeling burdened by overdue fines, so fines have been suspended through the end of August, 2021," the announcement says.

"Now RPL will begin a campaign in which we ask patrons to return all overdue items so that folks who have been waiting for holds can finally read that book or watch that movie they've been waiting to experience," the announcement says. "Please bring back all overdue items before Sept. 1, and your overdue fines will be waived, no matter how overdue those items may have been. Lost or damaged items are not included, but RPL will work with you. If you need any additional lenience, please don't hesitate to ask."

Overdue fees will resume on Sept. 1 with the same 10-cents-per-day rate as before. A good chance to bring back materials could be this Saturday, Aug. 7 at 11 a.m., when the library is hosting a special bird-watching and storytime outdoor event with a representative from the New River Land Trust "to learn about bird watching, local birds, and our new outdoor exploration backpacks, and to even enjoy a story or two."

NC man pleads guilty to illegal prescription distribution in Christiansburg area

A Dobson, N.C., man pled guilty Thursday to conspiring to distribute medically illegitimate prescriptions for Schedule II opioids and Suboxone, as well as conspiring to use, in the course of the distribution of controlled substances, the DEA registration number of another person.

According to court documents, Charles Wilson Adams Jr., 50, worked for "Company L," as it was referred to in court, that operated medical clinics in the Western District of Virginia, including the Galax, Lynchburg, and Christiansburg areas. The clinic focused on pain management and opioid addiction treatment. So far, the name of the clinic has not been made public.

Adams worked as a counselor for the company though he had not applied to the Virginia Board of Counseling to become a Certified Substance Abuse Counselor. He was referred to inside Company L as "Dr.," but has never been a medical practitioner or possessed authority to prescribe controlled substances.

Adams admitted that he and other non-medical professionals exerted influence or control over medical decisions and the treatment of patients, including the prescribing of Schedule II pain medications and Suboxone, a Schedule III drug used to treat opioid addiction.

As part of his plea, Adams also acknowledged that Company L employees pre-signed blank prescriptions for distribution to patients without office visits. Further, at the direction of Company L's owner and others, employees used the DEA registration numbers of medical providers to prescribe Suboxone to patients even when those providers were in other cities or states and did not see the patients. Adams was aware of Company L's practices and their illegitimacy yet took part in them anyway.

"Adams chose to use his position to assist in the illegal distribution of powerful opioids rather than their use for legitimate medical purposes, thus causing additional

At VT, governor announces $111 million to make college more affordable

BLACKSBURG—Virginia Governor Ralph Northam Thursday visited Virginia Tech where he announced that Virginia plans to use $111 million in American Rescue Plan funding to increase access to financial aid for low- and moderate-income undergraduate students.

The proposal designates $100 million for public higher education institutions through the State Council for Higher Education in Virginia and $11 million for private institutions eligible for the Virginia Tuition Assistance Grant program.

"The economic uncertainty of this pandemic has led many to question whether a college degree was still an affordable reality," said the governor. "Our administration has worked hard to make higher education accessible to every Virginian, and this targeted investment represents a significant stride towards that goal. Increasing access to financial aid will help create more equitable pathways to opportunity and put a world-class education within reach of even more students."

This proposed investment supplements more than $833 million that will be made available to Virginia colleges and universities through the American Rescue Plan Act's Higher Education Emergency Relief Fund III. These funds will be received directly by institutions of higher education and must be used for financial assistance for students as well as for qualifying institutional purposes.

The governor's proposal also commits $10 million to enhance the Online Virginia Network, which facilitates online coursework and degrees from George Mason University, Old Dominion University, James Madison University, and community colleges.

"Higher education faced numerous challenges over the past 16 months and it was an especially difficult time for our students," said Virginia Tech President Tim Sands. "For many who were already facing financial strain, the impact of COVID-19 threatened to push their higher education dream out of reach. We are grateful to the governor and the general assembly for these additional funds to support financial aid at this critical time, and for their continued investment in the future of our students and the commonwealth."

In advance of the August special session of the general assembly, the governor and legislative leaders highlighted proposals for allocating these funds and announced $250 million for school modernization and air quality improvements in school buildings, $411.5 million to reduce water pollution and increase access to clean water, $935.6 million to replenish the Unemployment Insurance Trust Fund and accelerate critical upgrades to the Virginia Employment Commission, and $485 million to strengthen Virginia's behavioral health system.

harm to the community," Acting United States Attorney Daniel P. Bubar said. "We are grateful for the extensive investigation conducted by federal, state, and local law enforcement located in three states, whose hard work is holding the defendant accountable for his crimes."

"This individual put the health of patients and his community in jeopardy by participating in the prescribing of dangerous drugs and other medical treatments indiscriminately when he was not qualified to do so," said Virginia Attorney General Mark Herring. "The opioid crisis continues to devastate communities and families across Virginia, and we will not tolerate healthcare providers who do not handle or prescribe highly addictive drugs appropriately and safely. I want to thank our local, state, and federal partners for their help on this important case as well as my award-winning Medicaid Control Fraud Unit for their continued hard work and dedication."

"Prescription drugs are to be prescribed for legitimate medical reasons by appropriately licensed medical professionals," said Special Agent in Charge Maureen Dixon of the Office of the Inspector General for the Department of Health and Human Services. "HHS-OIG will continue to work with our federal, state, and local law enforcement partners to keep our communities safe from illegal prescription drugs."

"Our investigation into Adams's illegal distribution of highly addictive pain medication at the height of an overdose epidemic emphasizes his criminal indifference for human life," said Jared Forget, Special Agent in Charge of the DEA's Washington Field Office. "The guilty plea emphasizes our commitment to the tireless work of investigating and prosecuting those responsible for fueling opioid addiction and deadly overdoses in our area."

Adams pled guilty to one count of conspiring to use, in the course of the distribution of controlled substances, the DEA registration number of another, one count of conspiring to distribute Suboxone, and one count of conspiring to distribute oxycodone, hydrocodone, morphine, methadone, and fentanyl. He is scheduled to be sentenced on October 29, 2021. A federal district court judge will determine any sentence after considering the U.S. Sentencing Guidelines and other statutory factors.

The Drug Enforcement Administration, including offices in Southwest Virginia, North Carolina, and South Carolina: the Virginia Medicaid Fraud Control Unit; and the Department of Health and Human Services are investigating the case with the assistance of the Carroll County (Va.) Sheriff's Office, the Mt. Pleasant (S.C.) Police Department, the Christiansburg Police Department, the Mt. Airy (N.C.) Police Department, the Amherst County (Va.) Sheriff's Office, and the U.S. Attorney Offices of the Middle District of North Carolina and the District of South Carolina.

During the event, those who have lost their battle to cancer will be honored, and cancer survivors and caregivers will be celebrated. Dr. Gordon Klatt, who created Relay for Life in the mid-1980s will be celebrated. Dr. Klatt expressed an interest in raising funds for his local American Cancer society and circled the track for more than 83 miles in a 24-hour period. Friends and family donated $25 to run or walk certain distances with him.

While he ran and walked the track, Klatt began making plans on how the event could be even bigger in future years. Dr. Klatt's goal was accomplished, and although he passed away from stomach cancer in 2014, his legacy lives on.

Over the decades, Dr. Klatt's Relay for Life idea has turned into more than 5,200 events across the United States that have raised nearly 5 billion dollars for the American Cancer Society. Funds raised through Relay For Life directly support breakthrough research, 24/7 support for cancer patients, access to lifesaving screenings, and much more.

"We are so excited to be able to host an in-person event this year," said Donna Christian, event leader for the Montgomery County Relay. "We have partnered with some great bands and food vendors to help us raise additional funds for The American Cancer Society."

"The year of '2020' affected our fundraising efforts tremendously," Christian said. "Unfortunately, less funding results in less research for cancer treatment and care. I want to be a part of the cure." Christian's mom died of cancer in 1995.

"We have so many great things planned for the event such as children activities, food trucks, vendors, ceremonies and so many talented singers and bands," said Linda Howell, Relay for Life team leader. "The entire community is invited to join us for a night of music, joy, celebration, and remembrance. The personal stories we hear throughout our community from cancer survivors remind us that every dollar we raise counts and that we are making a positive impact in our fight against cancer."

The event site will be filled with luminaria bags personalized with the names of cancer survivors and the names of those who lost their battle. Personalized bags to honor loved ones can be purchased for $5 through a local relay team, or they can be purchased the night of the event.

Governor to direct $114 million to promote public safety and to prevent and reduce crime

Virginia Governor Ralph Northam last week announced that Virginia plans to direct more than $114 million in federal and state funding to support public safety initiatives across the Commonwealth.

The governor's proposal includes $62 million in hazard pay and compensation for public safety officials, $35 million to address COVID-19 in correctional facilities, and $17 million for crime reduction and prevention programs and services for victims of crime.

"We are grateful for Virginia's public safety officials who have worked overtime throughout the COVID-19 pandemic," said the governor. "This critical investment will give us more resources to recruit and retain law enforcement and correctional officers, bolster our efforts to reduce gun violence, and help ensure the safety of families and communities across the commonwealth."

The proposed investment includes state funding as well as federal dollars from the American Rescue Plan (ARP).

The governor's plan includes $20 million for Virginia State Police, $10 million for the Department of Corrections, and $11 million to address critical staffing shortages at local and regional jails and sheriff's departments.

This also includes compensation for medical contractors, cafeteria and janitorial workers, and other support staff. The two-year budget that the governor will submit in December will include an additional $20 million to address pay scale compression for the Virginia State Police.

"The last year and a half have been tough on everyone, and this investment in public safety will provide much needed relief to local and state law enforcement agencies and help localities to continue supporting victims of domestic and gun violence," said Secretary of Public Safety and Homeland Security Brian Moran. "This funding is in recognition of the critical jobs they perform."

"Recruitment and pay compression issues have led to an increasing number of vacancies at state police over the past several years," said Wayne Huggins, Executive Director of the Virginia State Police Association (VSPA). "These issues were only magnified by the COVID-19 pandemic. VSPA is encouraged that this issue is being addressed in an ongoing and comprehensive manner. We appreciate the governor's support and commitment."

This investment also includes $35 million to address COVID-19 within facilities operated by the Department of Corrections and Department of Juvenile Justice. Funding will allow for rate increases for medical contractors and staff positions to support COVID-19 management. It will also provide testing supplies, personal protective equipment, ventilation modifications in correctional facilities, quarantine spaces, and tents to enable outdoor visitation.

"Today's announcement shows that we are dedicated to protecting Virginian's families and keeping our communities safe," said House Speaker Eileen Filler-Corn. "I am proud of our strong investment in crime prevention measures and the commitment to supporting survivors of domestic violence."

"This has been a difficult year and it is crucial we use the available ARPA funds to support Virginia's COVID-19 recovery," said Senate Majority Leader Richard Saslaw. "Law enforcement compensation has been a longstanding issue, and I am pleased we are able to address it now."

The COVID-19 pandemic has exacerbated the demand for domestic violence and sexual assault programming and support services for crime victims in the commonwealth. Since 2019, the number of individuals seeking shelter and contacts to the Virginia Statewide Hotline has risen significantly. The funding proposal includes $12.2 million in new resources for victims of crime and survivors of sexual assault, domestic violence, elder abuse, and child abuse. An additional $1 million will be dedicated to the Virginia Sexual and Domestic Violence Victim Fund, which will provide funding for prosecution and victim support.

The funding proposal designates $2.5 million for gun violence reduction initiatives within the Office of the Attorney General and more than $500,000 for the Department of Forensic Science to increase capacity to analyze firearms evidence. An additional $800,000 for the Department of Criminal Justice Services, which will administer a one-time grant to the City of Hampton to support an employment program for court-involved youth and adults facing barriers to employment, expands services for those participating in or at risk of participating in gun violence, and provides counseling or mental health services for those exposed to violence. These programs will work in conjunction with the governor's proposal to invest ARP funds in community-based services and substance abuse treatment.

WalletHub: Virginia 16th best state for health care

The personal finance website WalletHub reports that the average American spends more than $11,000 per year on personal health care, according to the most recent estimates from the Centers for Medicare & Medicaid Services. That's a daunting statistic considering that many Americans are still out of work or making less money than usual this year.

Additionally, conditions aren't uniform across the U.S. To determine where Americans receive the best and worst health care, WalletHub compared the 50 states and the District of Columbia across 44 measures of cost, accessibility and outcome. The website's survey ranked Virginia the 16th best state in the country for health care.

WalletHub noted that higher medical costs don't necessarily translate to better results. According to a study by the Kaiser Family Foundation, the U.S. lags behind several other wealthy nations on several measures, such as health coverage, life expectancy and disease burden, which measures longevity and quality of life. However, the U.S. has improved in giving more healthcare access for people in worse health, and healthcare cost growth has slowed.

To determine the best and worst states for health care, WalletHub compared the 50 states and the District of Columbia across three key dimensions: 1) cost, 2) access and 3) outcomes.

The company then evaluated those dimensions using a number of relevant metrics.

The metrics used in the cost dimension were the cost of a medical visit, the average hospital expenses per inpatient day at community hospitals, the cost of a dental visit, the average monthly insurance premium, the share of high out-of-pocket medical spending, and the share of adults with no doctor's visits due to cost.

Among the metrics used in the access dimension were the percentage of residents age 12+ initiating vaccination, the COVID-19 death rate in the past week per capita, the COVID-19 positive tests in the past week per capita, the quality of the public hospital system, the hospital beds per capita, the average response time from EMS notification to EMS arrival, the average emergency-room wait time, the time before admission, the physicians per capita, the geriatricians per population aged 65 and older, the nurse practitioners per capita, and the physician assistants per capita.

Among the metrics used by WalletHub in the outcomes dimension were the infant mortality rate, the child mortality rate, the maternal mortality rate, the share of patients readmitted to the hospital, the share of hospitalized patients discharged without instructions for home recovery, the share of hospital patients who did not receive patient-centered care, life expectancy, the cancer incidence rate, the smoke and heart disease rate, the share of adults with Type 2 diabetes, and the share of at-risk adults with no routine doctor's visit in the past two years.

Determined by WalletHub worthy of ranking ahead of Virginia as having better health care were (1) Massachusetts (2) Rhode Island (3) Minnesota (4) Hawaii (5) Maryland (6) Vermont (7) Colorado (8) Iowa (9) Connecticut (10) South Dakota (11) New Hampshire (12) Pennsylvania (13) the District of Columbia (14) New Jersey and (15) Maine.

Determined by WalletHub worthy of rankings as having the worst health care in the country (42 through 51) were (42) Missouri (43) Nevada (44) West Virginia (45) Wyoming (46) Oklahoma (47) North Carolina (48) Mississippi (49) Arkansas (50) Louisiana and (51) Alabama.

WalletHub: Virginia's unemployment claims recovery rate is still slow

As the personal finance website WalletHub has reported, the U.S. is making significant progress in the fight against COVID-19 with the distribution of the vaccine, and this has been reflected in the job market as new unemployment claims decreased week-over-week recently.

To identify which states' workforces are experiencing the quickest recovery from COVID-19, WalletHub compared the 50 states and the District of Columbia based on changes in unemployment claims for several key benchmark weeks. The rankings showed Virginia is still among the slowest states in terms of the pace of its recovery, ranking 42nd.

Only six states had unemployment claims last week that were lower than before the pandemic: Iowa, Arizona, South Carolina, West Virginia, Arkansas, and Vermont.

The good news is that every state had unemployment claims last week that were better than the same week last year.

According to WalletHub, 9.5 million Americans are currently unemployed due to the COVID-19 pandemic. There were 400,000 new unemployment claims nationwide last week, which is a lot fewer than the 6.1 million during the peak of the pandemic

(a 93% reduction).

The key metrics the website used to determine its rankings, which ultimately were based on data obtained from the U.S. Department of Labor were the change in the number of initial unemployment insurance claims in the latest week compared to the same week in 2019, the change in the number of initial unemployment insurance claims in the latest week compared to the start of 2020, the change in the number of initial unemployment insurance claims in the latest week compared to the same week in 2020, and the change in the number of initial unemployment insurance claims since the start of the COVID-19 crisis compared to the same period in 2021.

The ten states WalletHub determined to be recovering the quickest from their unemployment claims were (1) South Carolina (2) Arkansas (3) Iowa (4) Arizona (5) Vermont (6) South Dakota (7) West Virginia (8) Washington (9) Kansas (10) New Hampshire.

Determined by WalletHub to be recovering the slowest from its unemployment claims (42 through 51) were (42) Virginia (43) Colorado (44) Texas (45) Indiana (46) Nevada (47) Tennessee (48) Rhode Island (49) Michigan (50) New Mexico (51) the District of Columbia.

Guns and Hoses competes for Special Olympics

SUBMITTED PHOTO

First responders from throughout the New River Valley joined together at the Harkrader Sports Complex in Christiansburg for a softball game Saturday to help raise funds for Special Olympics. Firefighters and EMS made up the Hoses while police officers were on the Guns team. When the dust cleared, the Hoses, pictured above, pulled out the win in extra innings.

Volleyball Commonwealth Games champions

Mattox Adams of Radford (left) and Abby Neel of Christiansburg took gold this past week in the 14-and-under beach volleyball competition in Lynchburg at the 2021 Commonwealth Games. The two were in a pool of nine teams and dropped only one set all day on their way to the championship.

Stephen Howard named new cross-country coach at BHS

Marty Gordon
NRVsports@ourvalley.org

Blacksburg High School has appointed former Bruin runner Stephen Howard as its new cross-country head coach. Howard replaces Brandon Bear, who stepped down at the end of the spring track season.

Howard is a Blacksburg native and a former manager of the local RunAbout Sports store, which is owned by his former BHS coach James DeMarco.

While pursuing a degree at Virginia Tech, Howard gained coaching experience as one of DeMarco's BHS assistants. For the past few years, he has coached at Christiansburg Middle School where he also teaches science.

Howard calls the new opportunity a dream come true. In 2006, he graduated from Virginia Tech with a Bachelor of Science degree in biology and then added a Master's in science curriculum and instruction.

After graduating from Tech, Howard moved to Korea where he taught English to students K-6. When he returned to the states, he served as a zookeeper at the Virginia Aquarium in Virginia Beach.

He spent four years at Christiansburg Middle School and was named the school's teacher of the year this past year.

Howard does not expect any major changes in the routine at BHS and says his coaching style mirrors that of his former coach, who had a lot of success at the school.

The new coach will have some big shoes to fill.

Bear coached seven state championship teams and 43 individual and relay state champions. Two athletes broke Virginia state records across all classifications in the 2000m steeplechase (2017, Ben Fleming) and the one-mile race walk (2019, Oscar Coddington).

Two BHS athletes currently hold 4A state Records in the indoor 3200m (Kaitlynn Wolfe) and the indoor 55m (Cole Beck). The girls' cross-country team qualified for the Nike Cross National Championships in Portland, Ore., every year Bear was head coach except for the most recent one in 2019.

Howard and his team will host the Blacksburg Relays on Aug. 28 and the Metro Championships on Oct. 20.

Virginia Tech redshirt junior offensive lineman Luke Tenuta is the latest college athlete to take advantage of the chance to make money off his name, image, and likeness.

Tenuta, however, is donating all the proceeds from his NIL deal to Micah's Backpack, a program at St. Michael Lutheran Church in Blacksburg that addresses children's hunger issues by partnering with local schools to provide assistance to students and families who qualify for the free lunch program. Each week during the school year, students receive a backpack with enough food for the weekend.

The backpacks include two dinners, two lunches, and two breakfasts.

Each week nearly 70 volunteers from various academic, civic, and religious groups work together packing the meals. Partner schools then distribute the meals to the students.

The latest numbers show that more than 300 students at 10 Blacksburg schools receive the backpacks.

The 6-9, 325-pound Tenuta said no child should go hungry. He started nine games last season at right tackle and was named to the third-team All-ACC offense. He was part of an offensive unit that helped produce a conference-best 240 yards-per-game rushing average.

Tenuta was a 2017 Class 3A all-state pick at Western Albermarle High School and was recognized as all-conference, all-district, and all-region. His father, Jon, recently joined the Virginia Tech coaching staff as a senior defensive analyst with over 40 years of coaching experience.

Hokies picked third in ACC's Coastal Division

Marty Gordon
NRVsports@ourvalley.org

A preseason poll of 147 media voters picked the Hokies to finish third in the ACC's Coastal Division. Clemson is the media's overwhelming preseason favorite to claim its seventh consecutive Atlantic Coast Conference football title. The Tigers, who posted a 10-2 record last season while earning a postseason playoff berth for the sixth consecutive year, were also chosen as likely Atlantic Division winners. North Carolina was picked to finish atop the Coastal Division following an eight-win 2020 season that culminated with the program's first-ever berth in the Orange Bowl.

In the Coastal Division forecast, North Carolina received 109 first-place votes and amassed 979 total points. Miami (28 first-place votes) was next with 881 points, followed by Virginia Tech (three-first place votes, 582 points) and Pitt (one first-place vote, 576 points). Virginia (two first-place votes, 540 points), Georgia Tech (four first-place votes, 340 points) and Duke (218 points) closed out the voting. Clemson was selected as the likely ACC champion in the media preseason poll for the fourth consecutive season and the seventh time in the last nine years. North Carolina was projected as the preseason Coastal Division champion for the second time and the first time since 2016. The Tar Heels' lone Coastal Division championship came in 2015. Each of the Coastal's seven teams won the division from 2013 through 2019. Due to the 2020 pandemic, the ACC played a non-divisional format last season. The key for Virginia Tech will be the home opener against North Carolina, which returns almost everyone on both sides of the ball. The winner of that game, I believe, will be the real Coastal Division champ. The Atlantic and Coastal Division winners will meet in the 2021 ACC Football Championship Game on Saturday, Dec. 4, at Charlotte's Bank of America Stadium. North Carolina junior quarterback Sam Howell was chosen the

ACC Preseason Player of the Year. Howell has thrown 68 career touchdown passes, the most through a sophomore season in ACC history and tied for the UNC school record. The Indian Trail, N.C., native led the ACC and ranked sixth nationally with 30 touchdown passes in 2020 while also topping the league with 3,586 passing yards, the fourth most in the nation. Howell received 118 votes at the quarterback position to lead all offensive players in the Preseason All-ACC Team balloting. He is joined in the preseason All-ACC backfield by running backs Zonovan Knight of NC State and Mataeo Durant of Duke. Clemson's Justyn Ross, Boston College's Zay Flowers, and Wake Forest's Jaquarii Roberson form a potent wideout trio, and Virginia Tech tight end James Mitchell completes the receiving corps. Georgia Tech's Jahmyr Gibbs was chosen as the all-purpose back. On the defensive side of the ball, Virginia Tech's DE Amaré Barno earned first-team preseason honors. Barno (6-6, 235) enjoyed a breakout campaign in 2020 after making the move from linebacker to defensive end. He recorded 43 total tackles on the season, including 28 solo stops. The Blythewood, S.C., native led the ACC and all Power Five players with 16 tackles for loss and tied with Tech defensive end Justus Reed for sixth in the league with 6.5 sacks. He earned All-ACC honorable mention honors last season.

Pulaski's Calfee Park honored as best of best

Pulaski's Motor Mile Field at Calfee Park has won the 2021 MLB Summer Collegiate Best of the Best award for the second year in a row. The bracketed 16-ballpark competition, held through July, saw the Appalachian League park receive 55 percent of the final-round vote over Pioneer Park, home of the Greenville Flyboys, in the finals. Overall, more than 500,000 fans voted in the annual fan competition. Before the 2021 MiLB reorganization when it was still the home of the Appalachian League's Pulaski Yankees, Motor Mile Field at Calfee Park was a winner in the MLB Rookie-level facilities category. "Repeating as a Best of the Ballpark winner is extremely difficult," said Ballpark Digest publisher

Kevin Reichard. "The fact that Pulaski managed to do so even after an offseason of major change is a major accomplishment and shows the community's commitment to the team." "We are ecstatic to once again receive this honor," said River Turtles General Manager J.W. Martin. "It's a testament to our local baseball community. Our fans make Calfee Park what it is, one of the best ballparks in the country." Other fan favorites in the 2021 Best of the Ballparks fan vote were Publix Field at Joker Marchant Stadium, Detroit Tigers (Grapefruit League); Salt River Fields at Talking Stick, Arizona Diamondbacks/Colorado Rockies (Cactus League); O'Brate Stadium, Oklahoma State University (college baseball); PNC

Park, Pittsburgh Pirates (Major League Baseball); Las Vegas Ballpark, Las Vegas Aviators (Triple-A); Dunkin' Donuts Park, Hartford Yard Goats (Double-A); Clipper Magazine Stadium, Lancaster Barnstormers (MLB Partner Leagues); Maimonides Park, Brooklyn Cyclones (High-A); and Atrium Health Ballpark, Kannapolis Cannon Ballers (Low-A).

Blacksburg golfer wins age group of Blue Ridge Junior Tour Championship

The Blue Ridge Junior Golf Tour completed its 2021 season at Fincastle in Bluefield Tuesday with the tour championship, and Blacksburg golfer J.J. Robertson shot a 40, giving him a two-day total of 85 and the 9-and-under age-group victory. The winner's circle is familiar territory for young Robertson as he won the age group for the fourth time this season. Marco Beato of Blacksburg and Anderson Lilly of Oak Hill, W.Va., tied for second in the age group with scores of 97. Here is a summary of the results from the tour championship: 17-18 Age Group Par 70 6579 Yards Tanner Walls of Mathena, W.Va., started the day with a six-shot lead, fired a closing round 75 and won the age group by nine strokes with a two-day total of 148. Walls made 12 pars for the second day in a row, which didn't allow any competitor to encroach on his position at the top. The victory also propelled Walls to the Player of the Year honor in the age group. Logan Douthat of Pearisburg shot 77 on the second day to capture second place in the tournament with a two-day total of 157. Seth Walker of Christiansburg posted a score of 80 to finish third with a 36-hole total of 163. Joining Walls on the season's All-Star Team were Douthat, Dalton Minnick of Abingdon, Jack Davis of Radford, and Ezra Drumheller of Prosperity, W.Va. 15-16 Age Group Par 70 6168 Yards Chase Coley of Chilhowie shot 73 and finished with a 36-hole score of 145 to win the age group. Coley entered the day with a four-shot lead, and like Walls in the older age group made plenty of pars to fend off challengers. Coley tallied 13 pars during the trek around the 18 holes and added a lone birdie to secure the victory. Major Ewing of Blacksburg played a solid round and shot 74 to finish with a two-day total of 150, good for second place. Ryne Bond of Floyd secured third place with a 36-hole score of

158. Ewing was awarded the Player of the Year honor based on his play throughout the season. Joining him on the All-Star Team were Bond, Coley, Walker Gillespie of Pearisburg, and Corey Powers of Check. 13-14 Age Group Par 70 5365 Yards Grayden Laird of Galax posted a score of 75 on the second day to finish with a 36-hole total of 145 and win the age group. After posting the low round of the day on Monday, Laird was able to hold off challengers with consistent play. The victory helped him earn the Player of the Year honors in the age group. Ryan Highfield of Blacksburg shot 76 for the second consecutive day, yield-

At the beginning of the day, Sayers had a three-shot lead over Stover. However, the young player from Beckley, W.Va., made two birdies, including one on the finishing hole, and shot 39 on the day and 81 for the 18-hole total to pull even with Sayers, who had two birdies on his card as well and had posted a score of 42 on the second day of competition to earn the right to get into the playoff. Rylan McGinnis of Blacksburg had a two-day total of 87 and finished third. McGinnis was named Player of the Year in the age group as a result of his stellar play throughout the season. Stover was named to the All-Star Team along with Liam Smith of Elliston, Porter Laird of Galax, and Peyton Laird also of Galax. 9 and Under Age Group Par 35 1997 Yards Christopher Rizo of Tazewell was named Player of the Year in the age group for the consistent level of his play all season.
