Virginia farmers expect to harvest 9.45 million bushels of winter wheat in 2022, a projection that comes following the sixth annual Virginia Farm Bureau wheat tour on June 2.

$\mathbf{P}_{ ext{ETS OF THE WEEK}}$

Virginia wheat tour projects increase in 2022 wheat harvest

The sixth annual Virginia Farm Bureau Federation wheat tour on June 2 offered stakeholders a first-hand look at the quality and yield potential of the state's grain crop.

Participants toured 23 grain operations of various sizes.

"That's the most wheat we've ever looked at on the Virginia tour," said Robert Harper, Virginia Farm Bureau Federation grain manager.

Harper said this closeup assessment gives grain traders and mill representatives the information and insight needed to make their purchasing and milling plans for the year.

With guidance from Virginia Cooperative Extension agents, merchandisers scouted wheat stands to estimate yield, test weights and other quality factors, and looked for signs of disease.

Trent Jones, an Extension agent in Lancaster Northumberland and counties, helped design the tour route. "This is not about who's raising the best wheat," he said. "What we're looking for is a good representative sample of wheat. And our goal is to give folks with less on-farm experience an opportunity to talk to farmers. Growers discuss what they're seeing and expecting, plus their difficulties and successes throughout the year."

The soft red winter wheat is the main wheat class grown in Virginia, mostly processed into crackers and snack cakes, or animal feed.

"It doesn't have the gluten strength to produce bread," Jones said. However, a few farms grow hard red winter wheat, which is blended into traditional bread grains.

Virginia farmers expect to harvest 9.45 million bushels of winter wheat in 2022 according to the Virginia field office of the U.S. Department of Agriculture's National Agricultural Statistics Service. This year's expected crop would be up almost 18% from 2021's 8.04-milharvest. lion-bushel With "mostly good" crop conditions and assuming a normal growing season, farmers expect a yield of 63 bushels per acre on about 150,000 acres harvested for grain.

"I'm hopeful," Jones said. "We could certainly use a good year with input prices the way they are. A lot can happen to impact yield a couple weeks from now when it's leaving the field. But we're still hopeful."

WalletHub: Virginia unemployment claims are 39.56% lower than pre-COVID levels

Virginia is having a successful recovery from new unemployment claims with last week's claims lower than in the same week in 2019, according to WalletHub's updated rankings of the states whose unemployment claims are recovering the quickest.

According to the personal finance website, that ranked Virginia as the state recovering the fifth fastest in the country from unemployment claims.

WalletHub declares that in the latest week six million Americans are currently unemployed due to the COVID-19 pandemic in total and 229,000 new unemployment claims were filed nationwide last week. The good news is that, according to WalletHub, that is "a lot fewer" than the 6.1 million filed during the peak of the pandemic, which represents a 96% reduction in unemployment claims.

The good news, the personal finance website says, is that every state except South Carolina had unemployment claims last week that were better than the same week last year.

Every state had unemployment claims last week that were lower than before the pandemic except for Wisconsin, North Dakota, Illinois, Georgia, California, Michigan, Colorado, Utah, Indiana, and Ohio.

To identify which states' workforces are experiencing the quickest recovery from COVID-19, WalletHub compared the 50 states and the District of Columbia based on changes in unemployment claims for several key benchmark weeks.

The ten places recovering the fastest from unemployment claims are 1) Delaware Kentucky 3) Pennsylvania 4) Maryland 5) Virginia 6) District of Columbia 7) Maine 8) Arkansas 9) South Dakota 10) Kansas.

The ten states recovering the slowest from unemployment claims are 42) Florida 43) Illinois 44) Mississippi 45) Texas 46) Michigan 47) Utah 48) California 49) Colorado 50) Indian 51) Ohio.

Virginia's gas prices fell by nickel last week

Average gasoline prices in Virginia fell 5.1 cents per gallon last week, averaging $4.83/g as of Monday, June 20, according to GasBuddy's survey of 4,081 stations in Virginia.

Prices in Virginia are 35.6 cents per gallon higher than a month ago and stand $1.90/g higher than a year ago. The price of diesel has risen 2.6 cents nationally in the past week and stands at $5.80 per gallon.

According to GasBuddy price reports, the cheapest station in Virginia was priced at $4.29/g Monday while the most expensive was $5.99/g, a difference of $1.70/g.

The national average price of gasoline fell 4.2 cents per gallon last week, averaging $4.97/g Monday. The national average is up 37.3 cents per gallon from a month ago and stands $1.92/g higher than a year ago, according to GasBuddy data compiled from more than 11 million weekly price reports covering over 150,000 gas stations across the country.

"Finally some relief," said Patrick De Haan, head of petroleum analysis at GasBuddy. "For the first time in nine weeks, gasoline prices have fallen, following a broad sell-off in oil markets last week, pushing the national average back under the $5 level with most states seeing relief at the pump. I'm hopeful the trend may continue this week, especially as concerns appear to be mounting that we may be on the cusp of an economic slowdown, putting downward pressure on oil," according to De Haan. "But the coast isn't yet entirely clear. We could see the national average fall another 15 to 30 cents, if we're lucky, by the time fireworks are flying, barring any unexpected shutdowns at a time when the market is extremely sensitive to such."

GasBuddy is the authoritative voice for gas prices and the only source for station-level data spanning nearly two decades. GasBuddy's survey updates 288 times every day from the most diverse list of sources covering nearly 150,000 stations nationwide, the most comprehensive and up-to-date in the country. GasBuddy data are accessible at http://prices. GasBuddy.com.

WalletHub: Virginia is America's third most patriotic state

With the Fourth of July approaching but America troubled by issues like a 44% rise in hate crimes in major cities last year, the personal-finance website WalletHub Monday released its report on 2022's Most Patriotic States in America and determined that Virginia landed as the nation's third-most patriotic state.

To determine where Americans have the most red, white and blue pride, WalletHub compared the 50 states across 13 key indicators of patriotism. The website's data set ranges from the state's military enlistees and

The highlights from Virginia's rankings include

Laura Freeman named deputy director of the VT National Security Institute

Laura Freeman has been named the inaugural deputy director of the Virginia Tech National Security Institute. As deputy director, Freeman assists Eric Paterson, executive director of the institute, in continuing the institute's trajectory for growth and maximizing its impact on the university and the country.

"As a data scientist with deep experience in the defense and intelligence communities, Laura Freeman brings extensive technical expertise to the executive leadership team of the institute," Paterson said. "Dr. Freeman is an immediate asset as we continue growing the institute and work broadly across the university. With Arlington and Blacksburg facilities, I am excited that we have a leadership team that can effectively support the university and our employees, students, and sponsors in both locations."

Freeman has been the director of the Intelligent Systems Division of the National Security Institute since its inception, where she led research addressing critical challenges in national security by leveraging data science, artificial intelligence, and machine learning.

"Hearing about the concept of a new national security institute at Virginia Tech was what encouraged me to take the leap from my previous role at the Institute for Defense Analyses in the first place," Freeman said. "Now, I am extremely excited for the opportunity to serve as the deputy director."

Virginia Tech announced the formation of the Virginia Tech National Security Institute in 2021, aspiring to become the nation's preeminent academic organization at the nexus of interdisciplinary research, technology, policy, and talent development to advance national security. The institute houses the Ted and Karyn Hume Center for National Security and Technology, which serves as the hub for national security-focused experiential student learning and workforce development at the university.

"Today's national security challenges require a just, inclusive, and diverse workforce," Freeman said. "Encouraging diversity increases the perspectives that we can leverage to solve the problems faced by a modern national security apparatus. To do that, the institute actively engages and supports equality, inclusion, and diversity, while providing a work environment that accommodates all types of employee circumstances and recruits from a diverse range of backgrounds."

The National Security Institute is one of the many vessels of which Virginia Tech prepares students for future careers in the intelligence and defense communities, and Freeman has been a longtime leader in the space.

Auburn uses 'signing day' to jumpstart football program

David Seabaugh moved to the New River Valley last year to take over the Auburn High School football program. Six months later, the school didn't have enough bodies to field a junior varsity team, and the school put football on hiatus. People were wondering if Auburn would ever see the gridiron in the near future.

Now, Seabaugh and school officials are using a unique way to guarantee there will be football in Riner.

Seabaugh recently followed in the popularity of the NFL draft and college football by holding his own signing and uniform pictures for individuals who plan to play this fall.

The second-year coach said Auburn will be playing football this fall. "We are seeing a much

"We are seeing a much better interest-level this off season," Seabaugh said. "Right now, we have a little over 30 kids signed up to play this season. I'm expecting to add more. We are hosting a 7-on-7 league at Auburn this summer on Wednesdays, and I think that has sparked some interest."

During the recent special "signing," players walked out on the stage at the high school and joined Coach Seabaugh in holding up a jersey similar to the NFL draft. Each individual then sat at a table with the coach and Athletic Director Paul Dominy and officially signed with the school.

Seabaugh said the idea came from new assistant coach Travis Reed, who is joining the staff after serving as the head coach at Bland High School.

"The rest of the staff agreed that it was an awesome idea, so we ran with it. Adding Coach Reed to our staff has been a huge addition already. I'm very excited to have him with us this season," Seabaugh said.

According to Seabaugh, the goal is to build some excitement around the football program. "We thought the signing day was a way to do that. I think it was a really cool event that highlighted the kids who are planning on playing football. "I think the kids re-

"I think the kids really enjoyed doing it, and the community seemed to think it was a cool idea as well. This is definitely an event that we want to continue to have and hopefully make an even bigger event next year," the head coach said.

Seabaugh's vision for the football program isn't just to have a team but to be competitive.

"I believe Auburn has the best athletes in the area at the 1A level," the coach said. "The proof is in the 30+ state championships (in other sports than football) the past eight years. We have sure-fire college football players walking in the halls that haven't been playing football. We just need to get them playing. With the guys we had last year, plus the guys that should be playing, we believe that we would be very competitive. All we can do is keep rowing the boat and trust we are heading in the right direction."

Auburn opens the 2022 season Aug. 2 against Narrows.

KISS Army performed two sets of legendary KISS rock music in the full KISS makeup and regalia. Gene Simmons, Paul Stanley, Ace Frehley and Peter Criss were all represented. Fans got out of their seats and gathered all around and in front of the stage to give a memorable show. The Late Model Stock Car division, the speedway's top class, had a pair of Twin 50-lap races. Mike Looney dominated the first race by leading every lap. Kyle Dudley settled for second place Dudley looked as though he might pull off a win in the second race but was passed by Looney on the final lap to make the finish the same as the first. Cory Dunn finished third in both races.

The Sportsman Division featured a pair of Twin 30-lap events with Karl Budzevski picking up a win in the first race. Richard Caldwell and Dale Cline rounded out the top 3. Jamie Sweeney won the second race with Jacob Porter and Karl Budzevski finishing second and third.

Sparks flew and tempers flared in the second race when an altercation between Dale Cline and Daryn Cochram, who started in turn 4, ended with both drivers having substantial damage when they put on a demolition derby on the front stretch in front of all the fans and NASCAR officials.
