The Radford City Republican Committee hosted Delegate Jason Ballard and six candidates for local office during a meeting on July 20, 2022, and unanimously endorsed all six candidates.

Gloria Boyd, Chris Calfee, and Ed Dickenson were endorsed as candidates for the Radford City School Board.

Boyd and her husband,

Calfee has served more than 20 years in the financial and banking industries in the New River Valley. ## Blacksburg Art Association wins grant for downtown mural

A new mural will be showing up in downtown Blacksburg in August.

The Blacksburg Regional Art Association (BRAA) has been awarded a grant from the American Association of Retired Persons (AARP) Community Challenge program to create a public mural at the corner of Draper Road and College Avenue. The grant was pursued as a collaborative effort with the local AARP Blacksburg Chapter #2613.

Work will begin in August with panels prepared in a private studio. When finished, they will be attached to an outside brick wall of Gillie’s Restaurant on the Draper Road side.

BRAA’s public art chairperson Linda Correll collaborated with Leslie Pendleton, president of the local AARP Blacksburg chapter, to submit the grant. The stakeholders and those providing information and approval to bring this project to reality in the downtown location were The Lester Group (the building owner), The Public Arts Committee, and the Historic or Design Review

Sunday morning collision on 460 kills two

A head-on collision Sunday morning, July 24, on Rt. 460 East involving two vehicles killed the drivers of both vehicles.

The collision occurred shortly before 10:00 a.m. near the Roanoke Street exit. One driver, Haley Hawthorne of Christiansburg, was traveling west on 460, crossed the median, and collided head-on with a vehicle traveling east and driven by Adam Wilson of Blacksburg. Both drivers were pronounced deceased at the scene.

LifeGuard was contacted and landed on the highway, but both patients died before they could be airlifted.

Incoming Highlanders follow Quest for knowledge

What’s the most efficient way to introduce 1,800 soon-to-be freshmen and transfers to Radford University’s staff and campus and give those new students the information they need for their first semester of college?

Since 1979, the answer to both questions has been Quest, a two-day event that’s part orientation, part celebration, part cram session and part social.

From June through July, across five different gatherings, those hundreds of incoming Highlanders and their family members have taken part in Quest. Three Quests for transfer students were also held this summer.

All were greeted by staff and administrators, including the president and, among other activities, they registered for classes, got their IDs and got to know fellow members of the Class of 2026.

Each freshman session opened with a presentation in Preston Hall and, this month, a message from President Bret Danilowicz, who is beginning his first year as the university’s president.

“Radford University is a special place where your success is our mission. You’re an important part of why Radford is such a great place to be,” Danilowicz told freshmen and their families. “The campus community, including me, cannot wait until you return in August for the official start of our fall semester.”

Assistant Provost for Undergraduate Education Nicole Hendrix gave the audience a brief introduction to the concept that will shape their academic careers: the REAL Curriculum.

Through REAL, students select majors as well as minors that cover four key areas – reasoning, expression, analysis and learning – to develop their knowledge and skills in fields that complement their interests.

“Our approach to general education is like no other,” said Hendrix, whose daughter is a second-year student at Radford.

“You will get more for your 120 bachelor’s degree credits at Radford than anywhere else in the nation,” she said.

Quest’s introductory meetings concluded with a burst of music and a flash mob, made up of 22 student assistants and eight mentors, who took the Preston Hall stage, then grouped new students into their fields of study. The guides led them to their individual colleges, then divided them further into their specific majors to meet with faculty members for an hour-long chat.

“You’re getting a lot of info today; it’s information overload,” instructor Donnie Tickle acknowledged to a classroom of health students. “But continue to gather it and ask questions. Don’t be the student sitting back in the corner, never raising your hand or asking a question because you thought your question wasn’t good. Six or seven other people in the room probably have the same question,” Tickle said.

For the rest of their first day, the new students toured campus, learned about university fixtures and features like the One Card and health services, and had about three hours in which they received academic advising.

Later, they attended a play starring Quest assistants. The production, titled “Episodes from a Freshman Year,” was a comedy structured around

NRCC tuition will not rise

By a unanimous vote, the State Board for Community Colleges chose to maintain the current in-state tuition and mandatory fees for the 2022-2023 academic year.

The board's decision means tuition at New River Community College will remain at $154 per credit hour, keeping community college tuition and mandatory education and general fees at approximately one-third of the comparable costs of attending Virginia's public four-year universities.

This marks the fifth year in a row that the board has voted to hold tuition and mandatory education and general fees steady for in-state students, who account for more than nine out of every ten students served by community colleges.

"I appreciate our community college board and presidents putting students and families first by keeping tuition flat," said Virginia Governor Glenn Youngkin. "Ensuring affordable access to high-quality workforce training is critical connecting Virginians to unfilled jobs and the careers of the future."

"We're grateful to the governor and general assembly, who enacted a state budget that allowed us to hold the line on tuition and fees," said Interim VCCS Chancellor Sharon Morrissey. "We know educational quality and affordability are important to our students and their families, and we're particularly gratified we've been able to hold tuitions at their current levels for several years running."

The VCCS State Board also maintained the existing tuition rate for out-of-state students, which is $354.10 per credit hour.

In addition, the board decided there would be no increases in the upcoming academic year to the tuition differential rates charged at eight of Virginia's 23 community colleges (Germanna, Brightpoint, Northern Virginia, Piedmont Virginia, Reynolds, Tidewater, Virginia Peninsula, and Virginia Western). Tuition differential rates exist to allow colleges to address unique and specific institutional priorities.

Blacksburg student wins one of nation's highest technical education awards

Kylene Monaghan from Blacksburg and a student at Blacksburg High School was awarded a Skill Point Certificate in technical drafting at the 2022 SkillsUSA Championships in Atlanta.

More than 5,200 students competed at the national showcase of career and technical education. The SkillsUSA Championships is the largest skill competition in the world and covers 1.79 million square feet, equivalent to 31 football fields or 41 acres.

Students were invited to the event to demonstrate their technical skills, workplace skills, and personal skills in 108 hands-on occupational and leadership competitions including robotics, automotive technology, drafting, criminal justice, aviation maintenance, and public speaking. Industry leaders from 650 businesses, corporations, trade associations, and unions planned and evaluated the contestants against their standards for entry-level workers.

Industry support of the SkillsUSA Championships is valued at over $36 million in donated time, equipment, cash, and material. More than 1,100 industry judges and technical committee members participated this year.

The Skill Point Certificate represents demonstrated workplace readiness in the student's occupational specialty. Students can add the certificate to an employment portfolio.

Skill Point Certificates were awarded to all national contestants who met a threshold contest score for their event as an indicator of proficiency. All SkillsUSA Championships competitors were honored at the SkillsUSA Awards Ceremony at State Farm Arena, which was sponsored by partner Frontdoor Inc., with keynote speaker Darren Keefe of HGTV.

"This showcase of career and technical education demonstrates SkillsUSA at its finest," said SkillsUSA Executive Director Chelle Travis. "Our students, instructors, and industry partners work together to ensure that every student excels. This program expands learning and career opportunities for our members."

The SkillsUSA Championships event is held annually for students in middle school, high school, and college/postsecondary programs as part of the SkillsUSA National Leadership and Skills Conference. The national, nonprofit partnership of students, instructors, and industry is a verified talent pipeline for America's skilled workforce that is working to help solve the skills gap.

New director named for Southern Piedmont Agricultural Research and Extension Center

Entomologist Arash Rashed has been named the new director of Virginia Tech's Southern Piedmont Agricultural Research and Extension Center, effective July 1.

Rashed comes to the university from the University of Idaho, where he most recently served as an associate professor and the Idaho State integrated pest management coordinator in the Department of Entomology, Plant Pathology, and Nematology.

"We are very pleased to announce Dr. Arash Rashed as the new director of the Southern Piedmont Agricultural and Research Center," said Saied Mostaghimi, associate dean for research in the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences and the director of the Virginia Agricultural Experiment Station. "Dr. Rashed has more than two decades of teaching, Extension, and research experience, and we look forward to the leadership and wealth of knowledge he will bring to the center."

Rashed's research is focused on vector-borne plant diseases and insect-plant interactions. His findings have been published in 60 scientific journal articles and several book chapters and proceeding books. He is currently the subject editor for the Journal of Economic Entomology and an associate editor for Frontiers of Insect Science. Since 2013, he has been involved in grants and contracts totaling more than $7.3 million, with more than $2 million in spending authority.

Rashed said he is excited to join the faculty of Virginia Tech and at the Southern Piedmont Agricultural Center, which currently has five resident faculty, 14 full-time staff, and additional hourly

From west to east: Student travels 2,442 miles and finds home at Virginia Tech Carilion School of Medicine

As a Mexican American, Julia De Luca, a second-year student at the Virginia Tech Carilion School of Medicine, is well aware of the struggles disenfranchised populations often face when obtaining equitable, accessible health care, and she's passionate about making a difference.

"Growing up in Southern California, I was influenced by my mother's background," De Luca said. "She grew up in a gang-ridden neighborhood of East Los Angeles. Even though she eventually found her way out, her experiences were still a significant influence on our family culture. I could see firsthand the health disparities that minorities experience, and I felt like I could really make a difference."

De Luca also feels her journey to medical school was deep rooted in her own personal experiences as a patient cycling in and out of doctor's offices. After 10 years of debilitating pelvic pain, she was finally diagnosed with endometriosis.

"I have personal experience with being a patient, and I felt like I could apply that perspective as a doctor. I could provide my patients extra comfort and support," she said. "I could bring empathy to the bedside and help make some really negative situations slightly more comfortable."

De Luca attended Orange Coast College before transferring to the University of California, San Diego, where she majored in biochemistry and cell biology. She spent three years working in a clinic and doing medical research when her cousin, who lives in Blacksburg, told her about the Virginia Tech Carilion School of Medicine and urged her to apply.

Even though her big city, West Coast background gave her pause before applying to a small school in the mountains of Southwest Virginia, she took the leap of faith.

"I love it here," she said. "I've totally embraced this rural community. I'm really grateful to be able to leave my California bubble, move across the country, and try something completely new. Roanoke is a lovely town with so much to offer."

De Luca's start to medical school was not what she expected when she tested positive for COVID-19 on the first day of school and had to isolate for three weeks. The illness left her with some long-term health issues.

"It was a pretty rough start to my medical school journey," she said. "But aside from that, I have been so pleasantly surprised at what really has to offer and how much I've learned so far. I would love to just talk to myself prior to this journey and reassure myself of that."

One thing that is essential to De Luca's education has been Virginia Tech Carilion's problem-based learning (PBL) curriculum in which small groups of seven students each work in a learning format using actual patient cases. Groups are facilitated by faculty members, but in essence, students teach themselves.

"I can't imagine doing medical school without PBLs," she said. "Over time, as we rotate groups, you get to learn everyone's teaching and learning styles, and you're able to adjust accordingly. It's a fantastic way of learning the material."

Each Friday, class members come together for a conversation with the patient they have been studying that week. Known as the Friday Wrap-Up, it's an experience that few other medical schools offer their students.

"Friday Wrap-Ups remind us we're not just dealing with physiology and pathology, but also a real person with real emotions and perspectives," she said. "As we study our PBL case each week, we're encouraged to think as if we were the patient's doctor. Then to actually meet the patient each Friday and learn how it all played out in real life, it's really awesome."

Influenced by her own personal health journey, De Luca will be conducting her research into chronic pelvic pain with James Casey, assistant professor of obstetrics and gynecology, who is a minimally invasive gynecological surgeon with Carilion Clinic.

"Female reproductive health often gets forgotten," she said. "It means a lot to me that there are people here who care about these issues. I'm really hoping I can make an impact on this health issue. The ongoing research in female reproductive health at Virginia Tech Carilion made an impact on my choice to come here."

board of the Town of Blacksburg.

AARP's Community Challenge program is in its sixth year, and AARP is announcing the largest number of the grants to date, investing more than $3.4 million among 260 grantees across all 50 states, Washington, D.C., Puerto Rico and the U.S. Virgin Islands. According to an AARP release, the project will demonstrate changes and help build momentum to improve livability for residents of all ages, backgrounds, and abilities in Blacksburg and other awarded communities.

Correll said she believes Blacksburg's project will add to the already vibrant public spaces to be found in the downtown area adjacent to the Virginia Tech campus and Draper Road. She said the mural is in a prominent location and coincides with upcoming streetscape plans for Draper Road and College Avenue. She said she hopes it will inspire an art alley concept in conjunction with the streetscape plans.

The BRAA outdoor mural

entry was designed by BRAA member artist Nikki Pynn of Radford, well known for her public art contributions in the region. The as-yet unreleased design gives a nod to the location upon which it will be placed at the corner of Draper Road and College Avenue, the underground Strouble's Creek that runs in the area, and the greenery and wildlife of the greater location.

Correll became involved with the project on short notice. "We had to act fast once the grant project was presented to us," she said. "I conferred with several members of the executive board of the Blacksburg Regional Art Association, which liked the idea. Because of the fast-approaching deadline, we immediately reached out to our well-known local mural artist, Nikki Pynn, who said yes and came up with a design. Once The Lester Group provided us with a perfect location, we made the submission."

Notification of selection for the grant was made to BRAA and the Town of Blacksburg in mid-May.

AARP publicly announced the 260 winners to share in the $3.4 million grant on June 29.

BRAA President Charlotte Chan said she and the association members are excited about this project. "The grant money will provide all the supplies needed and pay for the artist's labor and design," she said. "We are happy to have the art in such a public location and to support a local artist whose art already adorns an electrical box near the Blacksburg Farmers Market about two blocks away from the location of this new mural."

"The corner of Draper and College is a very busy car and pedestrian location with high visibility," Chan said. "Our goal as a 70-year-old art association is to promote and encourage creativity in all levels of our town and beyond, and we believe this project will do just that. We thank the supportive folks in town and in the local AARP Blacksburg chapter for giving us the chance to take on this project."

OPINION

Buddy King: Meeting famous people

One of my daughters asked me the other day what “famous” people I have met. I searched my memory and decided that I really don’t have a lot to pick from. But my one memory of meeting famous people is a great one. It is vivid and poignant to this day.

It was the summer of 1962. I was 9 years old, and like many boys of that era, I was totally consumed by baseball. I loved all sports in season, but none more than major league baseball in the summer. Those summers were full of days of neighborhood baseball games in vacant lots from sunup to sundown and evenings of listening to games on the radio with my Dad in our living room and then going off to bed with the ubiquitous transistor radio under my pillow for more baseball. I thought I was fooling the rents, but they were letting me get away with it for a while each night until they decided I needed some sleep. Or maybe it was my folks who needed the sleep.

It was a pattern and a lifestyle followed in those days by many American boys (and some girls, like my neighbor Lynn Hickock, one of the best ball players on the street and the owner of a real first baseman’s mitt), before the world changed and things got complicated and parents couldn’t take the safety of their kids for granted.

So, I would end my full days of playing baseball in our neighborhood game and my fun nights of listening to games with my Dad on the radio (televised games were for weekends, if you weren’t in a major league team’s market; we were not, more on that later) with nightcaps of more baseball on the radio in bed.

Harry Caray doing the Cardinal games on KMOX from St. Louis and Bob Prince doing the Pirate games on KDKA from Pittsburgh and other iconic broadcasters on stations that could manipulate their radio waves through the mountains of Appalachia. It was all AM radio and the broadcasts were what I call Rice Krispy productions: snap, crackle, pop. If there were electrical storms between the radio towers and my transistor, forget about it! I would strain for words here and there, hoping to get scores at least. Eventually, my Dad would come into my room and tell me to turn the games off, which I reluctantly would do.

As I mentioned, we were not in any MLB television market. In fact, I am not sure to this day which team was closest to Christiansburg. Given the roads out of Southwest Virginia at the time, it might have been Washington or Baltimore or Pittsburgh or Cincinnati. Atlanta didn’t have a team until 1966. So, live baseball for me in my early years consisted of going to Salem and watching the Pirates Class D team (the lowest rung on the professional ladder) do battle with the likes of the Harlan Yankees and the Johnson City Cardinals and the Bluefield Orioles.

My Dad and our great neighbor J.C. Grimes and I (or sometimes my mother) would take the trip down the mountain a few times a summer to see these “future major leaguers” (in fact there were a few, but not a lot).

All of that changed in the summer of ‘62 when my folks decided to forego our annual Myrtle Beach trip to go to Washington D.C. As I recall we did most of the touristy things, like the monuments and the capitol, but most importantly, we took in a three-game series between the love of my life at the time, Mickey Mantle’s New York Yankees, and the woeful Washington Senators (the saying back then was, “Washington, first in war, first in peace, last in the American League”.)

I didn’t realize until a few years later that this trip was a big concession for my Dad. He was a lifelong Red Sox fan, a Yankee hater of the first degree. He eventually infected me with the Red Sox disease, but the Yankees and particularly their star center fielder Mickey were every boy’s favorite during those years. The previous season Mickey and his teammate Roger Maris had conducted a season long attack on Babe Ruth’s single season record of 60 homers with Maris breaking the record with 61.

We stayed at the Shoreham Hotel in D.C., the same place as the Yankees those fateful days in July of 1962. I am sure my Dad went to great lengths to find out where the Yanks were staying and to get us in the same hotel. Thus began my only time “meeting” with “famous people.”

The lobby of the Shoreham, one of D.C.’s premier hotels, was packed with kids my age or thereabouts, all armed with pens and paper or baseballs, all in search of the elusive autograph of a star. And they were ALL stars to us.

If there was a shyer, more reticent kid in the whole hotel than me I didn’t see him. My Dad grabbed a handful of Shoreham postcards, stuck them in my hand, gave me a hotel pen, and then literally pushed me toward gaggles of other kids who were more aggressive than I was.

In the middle of the gaggle there would usually be a Yankee or two. As I recall, and my recall of the experience is strong, the players were very accommodating. While they usually were gently pushing their way through the hordes of kids, they would sign whatever you handed them and pat you on the head. A few might even talk to you for a brief moment.

Looking back on the experience over the years, one thing that stands out to me was how young they all were then. The Yankees of that era were the New England Patriots and Golden State Warriors of the time: the best team in the most popular sport in the world. Dressed in business suits and ties at all times in public, image conscious and proud.

Despite being terrified in the moment, I came away with a nice haul. I got autographs, up close and personal, of the core of the Yankee teams that won the World Series in 1956, 1958, 1961 and 1962, and the A.L. pennant in 1955, 1957, 1960, 1963, and 1964: Yogi Berra and Whitey Ford and Bobby Richardson and Roger Maris and Elston Howard (the first African-American on the Yanks) and Hector Lopez and Cletis Boyer and Luis Arroyo (a diminutive left handed Cuban relief pitcher who was always puffing on a huge cigar no doubt made in his homeland). All stars, guys on the front of many a baseball card and national magazine of the time.

Alas, the “great white whale,” the holy grail of autographs, that of the Mick himself, eluded us.

He was injured, as he often was, didn’t play that week, and never showed in the lobby.

Thanks, Mom and Dad, for one of the most memorable experiences of my youth. My first major league games. I still have those postcards.

Home Country by Slim Randles: No sense arguing; ghosts are real

Two kids were arguing just outside my window the other day. Now that school’s out, they have more time for the important issues of life, of course. This time, the subject was ghosts and whether or not they are real.

People my age have to plead guilty to the capital crime of having gray hair, and therefore aren’t qualified to participate in such weighty matters. But if they had asked me, they might have been surprised. Of course there are ghosts. We’re surrounded by them.

Maybe they aren’t scary or grab you from behind, but they are ghosts just the same. See that rusting tank on the edge of town? That’s all that’s left from when George Dodson started that tannery back in the 1920s. He was doing all right then, until the Great Depression came along, and George and the steel tank became ghosts ... a part of our history, but still somehow here with us, still a part of what makes this community our home.

Just up Lewis Creek a mile are the sloping concrete walls of what used to be a dairy. As kids, we’d sneak over ... quietly, so we didn’t spook the cows ... and watch the men milking. The huge Holsteins walked in from force of habit like animated milk factories, which they were. Seems like there should be something someone could do with that old milking barn. Now it’s just hard to go by and see the weeds thickening around it as it lies there in the unrelenting sun and cracks to pieces.

Down on Main Street is the old ice cream store where we used to go the very first time we had nerve enough to ask a girl to go with us. We’d bite the ends off the drinking straw covers, dip the remaining ends in chocolate syrup, and shoot them with a puff of breath to stick on the ceiling, like stalactites of young love.

But today it holds the video rental store. Times change. Businesses change. People come and then leave us. But the ghosts remain. And the ghosts are the ones who make us what we are today.

I wish those kids would ask me about them.

Ranked by drowsy drivers, Virginia is among the most dangerous states in which to drive

Sleep deprivation can have a serious impact on daily behaviors, like driving a car. The National Highway Traffic Safety Administration estimates that in 2017, 91,000 police-reported car accidents involved drowsy drivers, which led to the injuries of around 50,000 people and nearly 800 deaths.

GuntherMitsubishi.com conducted an analysis of 2022 County Health Rankings data to compare and determine which states in America are the most dangerous to drive in, based on the percentage of people who suffer from insufficient sleep and the percentage of motor vehicle deaths per 100,000 people.

California emerged as the most dangerous state in which to drive. Virginia unfortunately ranked as #15 in the survey, making it among the most dangerous states in which to drive when it comes to drowsy drivers. The commonwealth has an insufficient sleep rate of 39%, combined with a 5.9% rate of motor vehicle deaths per 100,000 people. The traffic volume per meter of major roadways is 573, and 30% of driving deaths involve alcohol.

Finally, the number of driving deaths in the state was 4,100 in 2019.

The top 5 most dangerously drowsy states in which to drive are 1. California 2. Texas 3. Florida 4. Ohio 5. Georgia.

The top 5 least dangerously drowsy states in which to drive are 1. Vermont 2. South Dakota 3. Minnesota 4. Montana 5. Utah.

Drowsy Driving is among the most dangerous conditions for drivers to experience. Lack of sleep can affect their attentiveness on the road and negatively impact their coordination and judgment while driving. This is referred to as cognitive impairment.

Going too long without proper sleep can affect drivers' ability in much the same way as consuming alcohol. In fact, being awake for at least 18 hours without sleep has around the same cognitive impact as a blood alcohol content of 0.05%. Stretching these limits, being awake for at least 24 hours with no sleep is the same as having a blood alcohol content of 0.10%, which is higher than the legal BAC limit of 0.08% across all states.

Drowsy driving can be a result of a driver who hasn't had enough sleep or who has an untreated sleep disorder. It can also be a result of the side effects of medication, shift work, or alcohol consumption. Even if the driver doesn't fall asleep behind the wheel, drowsiness can impair the driver's ability to drive by affecting his level of alertness, slowing down his reaction time and impacting his decision-making abilities. Not only is this a hazard to the driver himself, but also to other road users and pedestrians.

detour around the closure using Route 607 (Bottom Creek Road) and Route 637 (Bottom Creek Lane). Electronic message boards will be in place to alert drivers to the upcoming bridge closure.

ROUTE 114 TURN LANE CONSTRUCTION - Road improvements on Route 114 (Peppers Ferry Road) for the construction of a new entrance to Belview Elementary School are underway. Motorists should expect daily lane closures controlled by flagging forces. Work is expected to last until August 2022.

PAVING OPERATIONS - Weather permitting, crews will pave, patch and repair pavement on various routes. Lane closures may be in place and flaggers may control traffic at times during daylight hours. Drivers should watch for signs and expect possible delays.

INTERSTATE 81 LANE WIDENING CONSTRUCTION PROJECT EXIT 137 TO EXIT 141 - A $179 million design-build project to widen both directions of I-81 between mile markers 136.6 and 141.8 from two to three lanes is set to begin. Continuing into the early summer, work will be performed on the inside and outside shoulders along a five mile section of both northbound and southbound Interstate 81 in Roanoke County and the city of Salem. The shoulders will be built up before a barrier wall can be installed for road crews to work behind. The barrier wall will be installed along the shoulders in the spring and summer. Two lanes of I-81 traffic in each direction will remain open during the project with periodic lane closures scheduled during nighttime hours or outside of peak travel times as needed. Drivers can expect the following lane closures and upcoming impacts on northbound and southbound I-81:

ROUTE 635 (GOODWIN AVENUE) CLOSURE - As part of the ongoing I-81 project from exit 137 to 141, Route 635 (Goodwin Avenue) is closed where it runs underneath I-81. It will be closed for approximately 30 days for reconstruction to accommodate the widening of the interstate. Drivers will need to seek alternate routes as traffic will not be able to pass underneath the interstate during this time.

BARRIER WALLS: Barrier wall installation is in process. Nighttime lane closures will be in place and lane widths will be reduced to 11 feet.

Nightly lane closures may be in place along the right lane with possible nightly ramp narrows as needed for guardrail and shoulder strengthening.

Northbound I-81 lane closures from mile marker 138 to 142

Northbound I-81 exit and entrance ramp narrows possible at Route 311.

The project also includes replacing six bridges, widening two bridges, installing approximately 2.6 miles of sound barrier walls along northbound I-81, improving the southbound exit 137 off-ramp intersection at Wildwood Road and adding interchange lighting at exits 137, 140 and 141 are also included in the project. Expected completion in early 2026.

I-81 TROUTVILLE REST AREA CLOSURE - The Troutville Rest Area located on southbound Interstate 81 near mile marker 158 in Botetourt County is currently closed until September 2, 2022. Signage indicating the closure has been posted in the rest area. During the closure, a temporary concrete barrier wall will be installed in front of the facility. The rest area facility, ramps and parking lot will be closed to the public. This project will extend the ramp into the rest area by 500 feet and the ramp out of the rest area by 2,100 feet. It will also include expanding the truck parking area at the facility by about 10-13 spaces. Work is expected to be completed in early fall 2022.

REST AREA OPTIONS: While the Troutville Rest Area is closed, southbound I-81 drivers can use the Fairfield Rest Area at mile marker 195 in Rockbridge County or the Radford Rest Area at mile marker 108 in Montgomery County. In addition, the Troutville Weigh Station, located on southbound I-81 at mile marker 149, will have portable toilets and parking will be temporarily available for commercial vehicles.

INTERSTATE 81 LANE WIDENING

CONSTRUCTION EXIT 141 TO EXIT 143 - A project to widen the lanes on I-81 in Roanoke in both northbound and southbound directions between Exit 141 to Exit 143 is underway. All lanes are now open and will remain open through winter with periodic lane closures at night as needed. The final surface paving and markings for northbound traffic will resume this summer. Drivers can expect rough pavement. Estimated completion date of the project is summer 2022.

I-81 PAVING OPERATIONS - Weather permitting, crews will pave, patch and repair pavement on various routes. Lane closures may be in place during nighttime hours, 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. the following morning. Drivers should watch for signs and expect possible delays.

I-81 BRIDGE DECK REPAIRS - Weather permitting, crews will repair bridge decks on Interstate 81. Between mile markers 138 to 152, right and left lane closures will be in place northbound and southbound during nighttime hours, 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. the following morning. Drivers should watch for signs and expect possible delays.

I-81 POT HOLE PATCHING OPERATIONS - Weather permitting, crews will patch potholes along southbound and northbound Interstate 81. Mobile right and left lane closures will be in place and moving along northbound and southbound lanes during nighttime hours, 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. the following morning. Drivers should watch for moving vehicles and equipment. Expect possible delays.

INTERSTATE 581 ROUTE 581 BRIDGE WORK OVER WILLIAMSON ROAD - On Route 11 (Williamson Road) drivers can expect intermittent and alternating lane closures between the intersections with Rutherford Avenue and Wells Avenue. Intermittent daytime and nighttime lane closures between the intersections above might be required, and will be in place utilizing flagging operations. Any impacts to I-581 will be minimal. The project is expected to be complete in the fall of 2022.

LANE CLOSURES:

- o A left lane closure will be in place on northbound and southbound I-581 from mile marker 0-1, Monday at 7 a.m. through Wednesday at 7 p.m.

- o A right lane closure will be in place on northbound and southbound I-581 from mile marker 0-1, Thursday at 7 a.m. through Saturday at 7 p.m.

- o A left and center lane closure will be in place on northbound and southbound I-581 from mile marker 0-1, Saturday at 5 p.m. through Sunday at 2 p.m.

Nighttime left lane closures for both the northbound and southbound directions of Route 11 are possible between the intersections referenced above.

I-581/220 EXPRESSWAY PAVING OPERATIONS - Weather permitting, crews will pave, patch and repair pavement on various routes. Lane closures may be in place during nighttime hours, 9 p.m. to 6 a.m. the following morning. Drivers should watch for signs and expect possible delays.

I-581/220 LANE & RAMP CLOSURES FOR PAVING AND MAINTENANCE OPERATIONS IN ROANOKE COUNTY - Weather permitting, crews will be milling and paving along Interstate 81. Right and left lane closures will be in place along northbound and southbound lanes during nighttime hours. Drivers should expect possible delays.

I-581 BRIDGE REPAIRS - Weather permitting, crews will repair bridge decks on Interstate 581. Right, center and left lane closures will be in place northbound and southbound during nighttime hours, 10 p.m. to 6 a.m. the following morning. Drivers should watch for signs and expect possible delays. Scheduled traffic impacts include:

Hodge, Dan

Dan was born and raised in North Manchester, Ind., and died on July 20, 2022 in Blacksburg at the age of 83

He is survived by his wife of 58 years, Lorraine Ann Sandbakken Hodge; son Mark (Washington, D.C.); son Tim (Blacksburg); Tim's wife, Julie Dryden Hodge; and two grandchildren, Laura and Robert.

Dan discovered the world of short wave radio in junior high school. This ultimately led to his career in electrical engineering. He earned amateur and commercial radio operators licenses during high school.

His first "real" job was as an announcer and transmitter engineer at WIBC in Danville, Ill. He also worked part time at radio and TV stations WFBM, WIBC, and WBAA during his undergraduate years at Purdue. While in graduate school, he worked at Collins Radio and MIT Lincoln Lab during summers.

He met and married Lorraine during graduate school. Upon completion of his PhD, He and Lorraine spent a year in Oslo, Norway, where he was a Royal Norwegian Postdoctoral Fellow at the Norwegian Defense Research Establishment. He subsequently was an electrical engineering faculty member at Purdue, Illinois, Ohio State, and Virginia Tech.

Some of his research activities related to the effect of rainfall on radio wave propagation. As a consequence, he also served as a visiting professor of meteorology at McGill University. He served as department head at the Virginia Tech Bradley Department of Electrical Engineering and department chair at the Ohio State Department of Electrical Engineering where he retired.

Dan flunked retirement twice, working 15 more years.

When Dan and Lorraine moved to McLean, Va., he served as a program officer at the National Science Foundation and as the associate executive director for accreditation at the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology. He was a Life Fellow of the Institute of Electrical and Electronics Engineering and a Fellow of the Accreditation Board for Engineering and Technology. He received the IEEE Meritorious Achievement Award in Accreditation Activities, the IEEE Meritorious Service Citation, and the National Science Foundation Director's Award for Management Excellence.

Dan was a consultant to more than 25 companies and government agencies. He also served as a consultant in forensic engineering. In addition, he served as Chair of the National Electrical Engineering Department Heads Association and as a member of the IEEE Educational Activities Board.

In 2011, Dan finally retired, and he and Lorraine moved to Woods Edge, Warm Hearth Village, Blacksburg where he served on the Board of Directors of the Woods Edge Condominium Association

As a boy, Dan enjoyed Boy Scout activities. He earned the Explorer Scout Silver Award while in high school. Later, both Dan and Lorraine served as volunteer leaders for Indian Guides, Cub Scouts, and Boy Scouts. He was an inveterate collector ranging from hats to antique tools.

He took piano lessons as a boy and studied piano at the Jordan Conservatory in Indianapolis. When he retired, he found that he could recover many of his piano playing skills after so many years of little practice.

He also enjoyed building models, particularly train and ship models. Finally, he enjoyed his friends and family and, particularly, helping them when he could.

Memorial contributions may be made to the Dan and Lorraine Hodge Department Head Discretionary Endowed Fund in the VT Foundation or to the Warm Hearth Foundation.

Arrangements handled by McCoy Funeral Home, 150 Country Club Drive S.W., Blacksburg.

Wingo, Mary Annette
"Marianne" Perry

Mary Annette "Marianne" Perry Wingo, 86, of Blacksburg, passed into the arms of Jesus on Sunday, July 17, 2022.

A devoted mother, wife, sister, daughter, and aunt, Marianne was a woman of strong faith and unconditional love with many treasured friendships. Her love of nature resulted in countless animal friends surrounding her property in the Blacksburg house she made a home.

She had over 60 years of marriage with the love of her life, John Casper Wingo, until his death in 2016. An avid tennis player and hard worker, Marianne instilled a strong work ethic in her children, Alison Wingo Hesmer and John Jefferson "Jeff" Wingo. John and Marianne were proprietors of six Western Sizzlin' restaurants.

She is survived by her daughter, Alison Hesmer of Wilson, N.C.; a son, Jeff Wingo, and daughter-in-law, Dawn Wingo, both of Purcellville, Va.; grandchildren Whitney Hesmer of Melbourne, Australia; Lauren Wingo of Herndon, Va.; and John Cameron Wingo of Raleigh, N.C.; sisters-in-law Ruth Ann Anthony of Buffalo, S.C. and Jeanelle Wingo of Union, S.C.; a precious cat, Sweet William (aka Sweetie Cat); and many nieces and nephews.

She was preceded in death by her siblings, Betty Richbourg (Jim), Langston Perry, Ruth Chrisman (Chuck), and Hazel Bradley (Jim); and brothers-in-law Bill Wingo and Ernest Anthony.

A memorial service will be conducted on Sunday, July 31, at 3 p.m. at Blacksburg Baptist Church with the Rev. Todd Millsap officiating. The family will receive friends after the service at the church. In lieu of flowers, memorials may be made to Blacksburg Baptist Church.

Pry brings excitement to media days

New Virginia Tech head coach Brent Pry said he is where he is supposed to be when he was asked during ACC Media Days in Charlotte, N.C., about taking the Blacksburg job.

"I'm in the right place," he said. "I believe this is my calling."

Pry showed off a Hokielined dress coat during early introductions. Ironically, the jacket was done by a tailor in Penn State where Pry served for many years as defensive coordinator for Penn State.

"It's a special place (Virginia Tech). It's not for everybody, but it was definitely for me," he said. Pry is a former graduate assistant who served in Blacksburg from 1995 to 1997.

He said coming back was coming home for him and his family.

One of the biggest factors for Pry while at Penn State was the heavy recruitment of players here in the commonwealth. In many ways, those players were leaving the state, ignoring state schools and taking their talent to Penn State.

Step number one as Pry puts it is to win that battle and change the recruitment game. "We've got to fix that," he said. "We're going to recruit the heck out of the state of Virginia. That's very important to me. I saw what it did for Coach Beamer and his staff and his program."

Pry's point was emphasized when he got a text on his phone and paused to see that the Hokies had landed one of the top defensive back recruits in Virginia for 2023.

"Right now recruiting for us, it starts in the state of Virginia," Pry said. "We just got a lot better. There is nobody else that should know more about kids in this state than Virginia Tech. No other program. Not North Carolina. Not Penn State."

Linebacker Dax Hollifield is one of the returning defensive starters for Virginia Tech, and he definitely is no stranger to Pry. "It was really exciting (when Pry was hired)," Hollifield said. "Coach Pry recruited me a little at Penn State, so I knew him before. It was exciting to get a guy that knew the standard that was in Blacksburg back."

Pry was asked about the changes thanks to the transfer portal and the possibility of possible conference realignment.

"I've always been taught that you worry about what you can control," the head coach said. "That's where your focus is. What we can do is what's best for Virginia Tech. I love our brand. I don't know where else in the country, what other conference offers everything that the ACC does: Great academics, great climate, great cities, great rivalries, great talent. To me it's a rare combination that I don't think you get in any other leagues."

"I've been in the SEC, and I've been in the Big Ten," Pry said. "I love what we have to offer. I've got tremendous faith in our commissioner and our AD's and our presidents. They're very engaged in this. I expect big things. I feel very confident."

The transfer portal is changing the way programs like Virginia Tech go about their day-to-day activities, Pry said.

He hopes there can be some calendar dates put into place that make sense when it comes to when and how players can leave their current programs.

"I'm all for these guys having opportunities to help themselves, to be in a better situation that fits them, but at the same time to protect our program and our players, we need that roster to be healthy, and to do that we need some end points," Pry said.

Pry has been impressed with the players who have hung tight in Blacksburg. Pry and the Hokies have benefited from the transfer of two Division I quarterbacks in Grant Wells (Marshall) and Jason Brown (South Carolina).

"I'm excited about the quarterback position. Jason and Grant are both experienced play callers, signal callers," Pry said. "These guys, different kinds of paths, but what Jason did at the FCS level and then what he did at South Carolina, winning big games in big venues, that's what we would ask him to do here."

"Grant Wells was arguably if not the best, one of the best quarterbacks in his conference two years in a row," the head coach said. "Both of these guys bring a ton of experience, a lot of maturity. They're leaders. They're workers. They have different skill sets. I'm really excited about both of them. Whichever guy ends up No. 1, we're going to have a hell of a good No. 2 to go along with it," Pry said.

Virginia Tech opens the 2022 season on Sept. 2 at Old Dominion.

Excitement building in Blacksburg

The one thing the Atlantic Coast Conference's 2022 football media days proved is there is a changing of the guard in Blacksburg. First-year coach Brent Pry was all smiles and full of energy as he met the members of the media.

Of course, those same journalists can be his worst enemy if things go south. For now, he has set the stage for a beautiful relationship.

There was an occasional question about the elephant in the room, the transfer portal and the future of conference alignment, but he has started out pretty good on his answers that typically started with "That's a good question."

Pry knows he is still working in the shadows of greatness as Frank Beamer left a legacy to follow. Justin Fuente was never able to get the used car truly out of the Lane Stadium Parking Lot. Only time will tell if Pry can find a good mechanic to revitalize the car Beamer drove into the national spotlight.

A good starting spot for Pry has been the revitalized relationships with high school coaches in the Commonwealth. Several of the top players in Virginia are bringing their game to Blacksburg. Something Pry said is a priority.

From the Sidelines

Marty Gordon

Over and over again, he talked about winning the state in recruitment. Many of those same Virginians found their way to Penn State, where Pry had spent the past few years as the Nittany Lions' defensive coordinator.

"I know it firsthand," he told reporters.

During Pry's visit with several reporters in Charlotte, he brought a new swagger and lots of energy the likes that has not been seen in a very long time in Blacksburg.

All of which has been needed. Now, the light switch must be turned on and this new coaching staff must learn on the fly. Many are in positions they have never been in before, thus giving the Hokies a clean slate so to speak.

In order to keep this momentum going, Pry must step out into the public arena, an area he has excelled in thus far. He has the personality to pull alumni and fans back into the fold. Again, something that had been lost in the past five years.

The optimism is there, but it could take a few years for the Hokies to reach the steps of an excellent program once again. The process shouldn't take long, but fans will have to remain patient.

Instead of blowout losses, there could be a lot of close games with the Hokies having the opportunity to pull some wins out of the air.

Good job Coach Pry on your first ACC Media Day. Let's see what you can do.

This reporter's predicted ACC football finish for 2022:

Atlantic: 1) N.C. State, 2) Clemson, 3) Florida State, 4) Louisville, 5) Wake Forest, 6) Boston College, 7) Syracuse.

Coastal: 1) Miami, 2) Pitt, 3) UNC, 4) UVA, 5) Virginia Tech, 6) Georgia Tech, 7) Duke.

ACC commissioner optimistic about ACC's future

The landscape of college football has taken a drastic change in the past month, but the commissioner of the Atlantic Coast Conference remains optimistic about the league remaining intact.

Commissioner Jim Phillips told reporters at ACC Media Days this past week, "We are in a time of great change. That's a fair description of the last 25, 15, 10 years and really the last 12 months," he said.

"Any new structure in the NCAA must serve many, not a select few. This includes governance, media rights, membership, NCAA and CFP access," Phillips said.

Phillips began his tenure as the conference commissioner in February of last year and is only the fifth commissioner in the history of the ACC.

He is known as one of the leading voices across the college sports landscape. He was elected as the inaugural chair of the NCAA Division I Council in February 2015 and served as the first-ever sitting athletic director on the NCAA Board of Directors and Board of Governors.

In March 2017, he was appointed to the NCAA Division I Men's Basketball Selection Committee. Phillips also served as a member of the NCAA Men's Basketball Oversight Committee, was appointed to the Fiesta Bowl Board of Directors in June 2018, and chaired the Big Ten TV/Media Committee. He twice served as a member of the Rose Bowl Management Committee and was honored as the 2018 Sports Business Journal Athletic Director of the Year for his leadership at Northwestern.

Of course, the recent announcement of two PAC-12 schools moving to the Big Ten has started a flurry of conversations both in and out of the ACC.

Phillips said while he would not go into details of those conversations, the conference as a whole is strong but is constantly evaluating all options that could give it further strength.

"There's been a lot of rumors and speculation the last few weeks, and I understand we all want answers and certainty," he told the media. "With that said, these decisions will impact our member institutions and student-athletes for years to come, and all options must be carefully evaluated."

The commissioner sang his conference's praises. "No other conference won more NCAA National Championships than the ACC," he said.

The league's seven titles match the conference's record in an academic year. Additionally, ACC student-athletes won 20 NCAA individual titles. Beyond the seven team championships, eight additional ACC teams competed in the national semifinals, two for a national championship, and three teams had to face another league team in either the semifinals or finals.

Phillips also addressed the recent NIL (Name, Image and Likeness), which gives student-athletes the opportunity to gain money off the above.

"It [NIL] has provided some outstanding opportunities that we all celebrate. However, the lack of a single enforceable standard for NIL across the schools and all states has created an environment where inducements inaccurately labeled as NIL are disrupting recruiting," Phillips said.

Fair regulation of recruiting is essential for fair competition, according to the commissioner. "We all know NIL has upended recruiting, a result no one desired when it came into effect last July. How did it happen? NIL rules differ from state to state. Regulation is nonexistent. Enforcement of the rules is incredibly challenging," Phillips said.

The evening ended with a social at the Hurlburt Student Center. Freshmen later got their first taste of residence hall life – they stayed in Stewart, Floyd, and Draper halls – and family members were put up in Jefferson and Madison halls.

On the second day, which concluded at noon, new students registered for classes for the upcoming semester.

Radford University Carilion also typically conducts orientation exercises, but this summer, for the first time, it held its own Quest sessions at the school's Roanoke campus. Those were attended by about 200 new students and roughly 100 of their family members. RUC offers different Quest tracks for freshman and transfer students.

“Our goal is that, through Quest, students will learn about the campus and the services available to them and create connections with their peers and faculty and staff,” said Student Affairs Manager Elizabeth Costa.

Additionally, Costa said, the RUC Quest also included guided tours of the community and a weekend hike to the Mill Mountain Star.
