RADFORD – A Radford High school art student has earned two regional gold awards for his artwork and will now be in consideration for national awards and the chance for scholarships. “Congratulations to sophomore Trent Hollandsworth for receiving two Scholastic Regional Gold Medal awards for his pieces, “POV: SOCIETY” and “Teething,” the school announced. “Trent was also nominated for the American Vision Award.”

“Trent’s pieces will now go on to be judged in consideration for the National Gold Medal award,” the announcement continued. “You can see Trent’s works on display at the Fine Arts Center of the NRV from Thursday, Feb. 16, through Sunday, Mar. 26.” The Scholastic Art and Writing Awards are presented by the Alliance for Young Artists and Writers. The Alliance is a nonprofit organization “whose mission is to identify students with exceptional artistic and literary talent and present their remarkable work to the world through the Scholastic Art & Writing Awards” according to the organization’s website. “The Awards give students opportunities for recognition, exhibition, publication, and scholarships. In 2022, students across the United States and Canada entered more than 260,000 original works in 28 different categories of art and writing.”

Due date to be revised for delayed utility bills

RADFORD – Utility customers in Radford will have a bit more time than usual to get their January utility bills paid. The city issued a statement about the bills on Friday, Jan. 13, citing a mailing delay. “Due to a mailing delay by the postal service, utility bills have not yet been received by customers,” the statement reads. “A revised due date for these bills will be announced once the city becomes aware of customer receipt of the utility bill.” Customers who do not want to wait to receive the bill in the mail have some options. “Customers can request a copy of their bill by calling Utility Billing at 540-731-3602, option 2, and payments are being accepted in the Treasurer’s office now, if you would like to go ahead and pay the bill.” The Treasurer’s office is also willing to give customers the amount of their bill, and if that is desired, they can be reached at 540-731-3661. City utility bills include electric, water, sewer, and trash pick-up.

RADFORD – A group of eighth graders at Dalton Intermediate School recently became the first graduates of the Radford City Police Department’s first Junior Police Academy. “This picture represents opportunity, growth, commitment to our youth, and community,” the department’s Facebook page said of the photo of the graduates and officers involved in the academy. “At the beginning of August, we had the privilege to collaborate with Radford City Public Schools to develop a Junior Police Academy for eighth graders. “Over the last couple of months, the Junior

Police Academy covered various topics related to law enforcement that included investigations, evidence collection, fingerprinting, community engagement, report writing, traffic enforcement, radar, defensive tactics, animal control, record management, telecommunications, and more. “They even embarked on several field trips and had guest speakers from state and federal agencies and community members,” the message continued. “We look forward to the next school year to share the same experience with a new group of students wishing to find out more about law enforcement.”

COVID-19 cases rise for second straight month in Virginia nursing homes, lawmakers consider facility staffing legislation

Vaccination booster rates remain stalled amid winter surge

RICHMOND - Rates of COVID-19 cases and deaths among nursing home residents and staff nationwide increased sharply in December, while most residents and staff nationwide are still not up to date on their COVID-19 vaccinations. Virginia cases increased while deaths remained about the same. According to AARP’s Nursing Home COVID-19 Dashboard, rates of COVID-19 cases among nursing home residents nationwide increased 57% in the four weeks ending December 18, compared to the previous four weeks. There was also a 53% increase in staff cases during the same period. Here in Virginia, resident cases are up by 32% in the four weeks ending December 18, compared to the previous four weeks, with staff cases up by 30% during the same period. This news comes as the Virginia House of Delegates’ Health, Welfare, and Institutions Committee is poised to take action on legislation that would set minimum staffing standards for the state’s nursing facilities. The committee was set to meet on Tuesday, Jan. 17. AARP Virginia supports House Bill 1564 sponsored by Del. Vivian Watts (D-Fairfax), who has been advocating for such standards for more than 20 years. Virginia is one of only 12 states with no laws setting the minimum number of hours of care a nursing home resident receives from nurses and aides. Nursing home resident deaths nationwide increased by 14% during the four-week period ending December 18 as compared to the four weeks ending November 20. Since the beginning of the pandemic, more than 4,000 of nursing home residents in Virginia have died from the virus. The new data show most nursing home residents and staff are still not up to date on their vaccinations. For the Dashboard period ending December 18, only 47% of nursing home residents nationwide and 22% of staff were up to date on COVID-19 vaccinations. Here in Virginia, 49% of residents and 23% of staff were up to date on their vaccinations. Bivalent boosters, designed to protect against the Omicron

New River Valley Community Foundation scholarship application closing soon

CHRISTIANSBURG – Students are encouraged to apply to scholarships through the Community Foundation of the New River Valley (CFNRV) before its scholarship application closes on Jan. 30. This year, the CFNRV will give out more than $100,000 to New River Valley students with each scholarship award ranging from $500 to $4,000.

Students on a variety of educational paths are eligible to apply, whether they are planning to pursue a degree or are currently in school at a 2- or 4-year college or university, trade, or technical school. Many funds are set up specifically with financial need in mind. In 2022, 40% of scholarship recipients were from lower-income backgrounds.

Since issuing its first scholarship in 2002, the foundation has awarded $1,190,000 to 939 students. While dozens of CFNRV funds are set up to fund scholarships each year, applicants need only to submit a single application to the foundation and indicate the scholarships for which they would like to be considered.

"I am so grateful to the Community Foundation for supporting me in my endeavors to further my education," said Tali O'Neil. "It is another step in me being able to fulfill my potential." O'Neil, who attends New River Community College, received a scholarship from the Wings Fund, created by donors David and Marilyn Hutchins.

The foundation's scholarships support a wide variety of students, whether a student is a high school senior, is currently attending college or school, or is someone returning to school later in life. Recipients may continue to apply for scholarships each year with many students getting funds annually throughout their schooling to help offset the costs of attending school.

Students may review scholarship requirements and access the application at cfnrv.org/scholarships. Any questions about the application may be directed to Laura Pynn at cfnrv@cfnrv.org or 540-381-8999. The application is due Monday, Jan. 30, 2023, at 5 p.m.

Pest control firm warns of rat invasion of Virginia households as cold drives them indoors

Rats are predicted to plague Virginia homes in the fourth week of January as they seek shelter from freezing temperatures.

Pest control experts at The Pest Dude have predicted that rodent activity in homes across Virginia is due to pick up following freezing temperatures over the past month, and as the second half of January is typically the coldest in the year. The increase in rat invasions is caused by the animals seeking warmer sheltered spaces such as attics and basements, to escape the harsh temperatures of winter.

"Rodents, above all other pests, are a public health concern as they can cause considerable damage to both residential and business premises," said Zachary Smith, owner of The Pest Dude says. "Not only can they damage the structures of both residential and business properties, but they can also significantly affect a business's reputation. As temperatures continue to drop, we're seeing an increase in service calls as rats continue looking for somewhere warm to spend the winter. While most of us may associate rats with sewers and holes in the ground, brown rats are very nimble climbers and can be found in attics and inside walls."

"Homeowners should look out for nests, droppings, and gnaw marks," Smith added. "The animals will also shred attic insulation, cardboard, and other soft materials to make their nests."

So how can Virginians avoid this impending invasion? Smith offers this advice: "Rather than appealing to their appetite, effective control methods involve understanding their natural tendencies and fears, such as their skepticism of new objects and environments (neophobia).

"This is why traps and bait stations may be ignored for long periods of time before a rat is brave enough to investigate them, and why placing droppings or leaving them empty for a week can increase their effectiveness. It is also why poison may take days or weeks to kill a rat, as they can learn from the deaths of their peers and avoid the same fate."

The Pest Dude has provided these seven tips on how to prevent or deal with a rat invasion.

1. Seal entry points to your home.
2. Trim all trees at least three feet away from the roof line.
3. Check your vents.
4. Clean up debris piles.
5. Clean up rats' favorite food such as fruits.
6. Introduce natural predators.

Virginia gas prices decline again

Average gasoline prices in Virginia fell 2.4 cents per gallon last week, averaging $3.15 per gallon as of Monday, Jan. 16, according to GasBuddy's survey of 4,081 stations in Virginia.

Prices in Virginia are 13.7 cents per gallon higher than they were a month ago and stand unchanged compared to a year ago.

The national average price of diesel fell 7.2 cents last week and stands at $4.56 per gallon as of Monday, Jan. 16.

According to GasBuddy price reports, the cheapest station in Virginia was priced at $2.55 per gallon Monday while the most expensive was $3.99 per gallon, a difference of $1.44 per gallon. The national average price of gasoline rose 2.5 cents per gallon last week, averaging $3.28 per gallon Monday. The national average is up 14.9 cents per gallon from a month ago and stands 2.2 cents per gallon lower than a year ago, according to GasBuddy data compiled from more than 11 million weekly price reports covering over 150,000 gas stations across the country.

"We've seen somewhat of a mixed week at the pump with some states seeing gasoline prices rise while others have stabilized for the time being," said Patrick De Haan, head of petroleum analysis for GasBuddy. "The good news as of late has been the continued decline in average diesel prices, which fell over a penny per day last week," said De Haan. "Oil prices have seen a bit of a rally, finishing last week at nearly $80 per barrel again as Chinese demand starts to jump as expected, but with COVID cases and deaths now also surging in China, the jump in demand could be short-lived. Gas prices may nudge up slightly in the week ahead in some areas, while others could hold flat," according to De Haan. "The window on price drops however, appears to be coming up on the horizon as we get closer to what's likely to be a significant refinery maintenance period ahead of summer."

GasBuddy is the authoritative voice for gas prices and the only source for station-level data. GasBuddy's survey updates 288 times every day from the most diverse list of sources covering nearly 150,000 stations nationwide, the most comprehensive and up-to-date in the country. GasBuddy data are accessible at <http://prices.GasBuddy.com>.

"I, along with our outreach and press team, manage all of their community hearings, their constituent affairs, outreach and events," he said. "I'm still pretty new at it, but it's a really rewarding job."

Crosby became more interested in politics at age 19 or 20 because he fell in love with "what politics can do for people," he explained. "There can be a nasty side to politics, but when done right and done well, you can really lift people up and give them a better chance at life. I come from a low-income background, and I know how difficult that can be."

Crosby's beliefs and experiences are what drive his passion for people and his new career path in Connecticut.

"I'm just passionate about helping kids whose families rely on food stamps, and it's very rewarding to be able to help our veterans and make sure they have access to the best resources to help them," Crosby said. "Constituents call their elected officials if they have a problem, and our job in the office is to put them in contact with the right people to get their problems fixed. That is what government is supposed to do."

A Geospatial Science major, Crosby found that same supportive atmosphere modeled at Radford University. "I love Radford," he said. "I transferred there from Virginia Tech and felt incredibly supported by my professors and the school. I had all the resources I needed to become successful, and it felt good being there because I felt like they really cared about me."

Friends from Radford and others who care about Crosby may have recognized him recently while sorting through catalogs and websites as they do their holiday shopping. He, his partner Chris Willing, and their black lab, Georgia, were asked to model Vineyard Vines clothing during a photo shoot for the company.

Vineyard Vines asked employees – Willing is a graphic designer for the company – and their families to participate in the shoot that included photos for "a new dog line," of clothing, Crosby said. A photo of the trio appeared in a Vineyard Vines print catalog and the company's Amazon site.

So, is modeling a new career pursuit for the Radford alumnus?

"Oh, that is so very far from the truth," he said laughing. "My mom thought the photos were just adorable, and so did all of our friends. And, everyone agreed that our dog was the star, and she was just beautiful."

variant as well as previous strains, have been available since September, but utilization rates remain low.

"Nursing homes must prioritize vaccination rates among residents and staff," said Jared Calfee, Advocacy Director of AARP Virginia, which serves more than one million members age 50 and older in Virginia. "Family members can play a role, too, in keeping their loved ones safe by engaging with facility management and staff and asking the right questions about vaccination rates."

AARP recommends family members of a nursing home resident ask these 10 questions about vaccination rates and other COVID-related issues to stay connected and keep your loved one safe.

AARP also sent a letter to the Centers for Medicare and Medicaid Services urging it to take additional steps to help increase up to date COVID-19 vaccination rates for nursing home residents and staff nationwide, saying more action is needed to protect them and would build upon other recent steps.

Nationwide, it's estimated that tragically more than 175,000 residents and staff of nursing homes have died due to COVID-19.

Nationwide, about 23% of nursing homes reported a staffing shortage in the four weeks ending December 18, a slight decrease from the previous Dashboard. Virginia facilities reporting a shortage of nurses or aides was 19% for the same period, the lowest since the summer of 2021.

"AARP is fighting for legislation that addresses staffing inadequacies in nursing homes," said Calfee. "We must do more to ensure that residents receive high-quality care and their families have peace of mind about their safety."

AARP supports House Bill 1564 which would ensure quality care and help address workforce shortages by providing a minimum staffing level of 4.1 hours of nurse and CNA care per resident per day.

Nationally, AARP also supports the establishment of mandatory federal minimum staffing levels or standards as a condition of participation for nursing homes in Medicare and Medicaid.

The AARP Nursing Home COVID-19 Dashboard analyzes federally reported data in four-week periods going back to June 1, 2020. Using this data, the AARP Public Policy Institute, in collaboration with the Scripps Gerontology Center at Miami University in Ohio, created the Dashboard to provide snapshots of the virus' infiltration into nursing homes and impact on nursing home residents and staff, with the goal of identifying specific areas of concern at the national and state levels in a timely manner. The full AARP Nursing Home COVID-19 Dashboard is available at www.aarp.org/nursinghomedashboard.

Financial Focus: Time for New Year's financial resolutions

It's that time of year when many of us promise ourselves we'll go to the gym more, or learn a new language, or take up a musical instrument, or any number of other worthy goals. But this year, when making New Year's resolutions, why not also consider some financial ones?

Here are a few to consider:

Don't let inflation derail your investment strategy. As you know, inflation was the big financial story of 2022, hitting a 40-year high. And while it may moderate somewhat this year, it will likely still be higher than what we experienced for the past decade or so. Even so, it's a good idea to try not to let today's inflation harm your investment strategy for the future. That happened last year: More than half of American workers either reduced their contributions to their 401(k) and other retirement plans or stopped contributing completely during the third quarter of 2022, according to a survey by Allianz Life Insurance of North America.

Of course, focusing on your cash flow needs today is certainly understandable, but are there other ways you can free up some money, such as possibly lowering your spending, so you can continue contributing to your retirement accounts? It's worth the effort because you could spend two or three decades as a retiree.

Control your debts. Inflation can also be a factor in debt management. For example, your credit card debt could rise due to rising prices and variable credit card interest rate increases. By paying your bill each month, you can avoid the effects of rising interest rates. If you do carry a balance, you might be able to transfer it to a lower-rate card, depending on your credit score. And if you're carrying multiple credit cards, you might benefit by getting a fixed-rate debt consolidation loan. In any case, the lower your debt payments, the more you can invest for your long-term goals.

Review your investment portfolio. At least once a year, you should review your investment portfolio to determine if it's still appropriate for your goals, risk tolerance, and time horizon. But be careful not to make changes just because you feel your recent performance is not what it should have been. When the financial markets are down, as was the case for most of 2022, even quality investments, such as stocks of companies with solid business fundamentals and strong prospects, can see declines in value. But if these investments are still suitable for your portfolio, you may want to keep them.

Prepare for the unexpected. If you encountered a large unexpected expense, such as the need for a major home repair, how would you pay for it? If you didn't have the money readily available, you might be forced to dip into your long-term investments or retirement accounts. To prevent this, you should build an emergency fund containing three to six months' worth of living expenses — or a year's worth, if you're retired — with the money kept in a low-risk, liquid account.

These resolutions can be useful, so try to put them to work in 2023.

General Information

Historical Society

Owes Cabin Man
To whom it may concern By Roger Davis. In 2018, I contracted restoring a cabin for the Craig County Historical Society. I was presented with an appraisal that stated the cabin was 80% complete. After starting the foundation, I was able to inspect the cabin materials. The logs were in very bad condition due to being stored for 20 some odd years with three other deteriorating cabins. The termites had destroyed a lot of the logs, this was going to require a lot of extra work and materials. After discussing this with several historical society members and notifying them that there would be an extra charge to this restoration, I was told to continue. This project went from a restoration to a total rebuild. I had to collect parts and pieces of other structures from all around the county, including a large log barn that I had to demo and dismantle. I have restored about 20 of these cabins this one being the most difficult I have ever done. Restoration time is usually about 6 months for one of these cabins, this one took almost a year. After completing this project, I submitted a bill for $5000 dollars for extra time and labor. The Craig County Historical Society voted and approved but two of the Historical Society members decided I did not deserve this and I was not paid. The two Historical Society members were disrespectful and hard to work with throughout the whole project. I restored the other cabin in town about 20 years ago with no problems. The Holstein cabin will stand for many years as a testament to my hard work and skills- I believe I should be paid for it. I want to give special thanks to the people that contributed to this project: Rob Bradley, Rob Givings, Mary & Pete Hutchinson, Joel Johnston, Randy Zimmerman, Ed Mattox, and Karen Barnheart.

Radford High School claimed a 60-35 win this past week over Glenvar. The win gave head coach Rick Cormany 759 wins, making him the second-most winning coach in Virginia history.

The 759 wins put Cormany among the likes of Bluestone's George Lancaster (724 wins), former Maury head man Jack Baker (746 wins) and retired coaches Bill Littlepage from Hopewell (755 wins) and Robert E. Lee-Staunton legendary sideline boss Paul Hatcher (897 victories).

Cormany is in his 27th season at Radford and his 37th overall. More than 560 of his wins have come for the Bobcats after he coached Rocky Gap to several successful campaigns.

Radford has won 21 of the last 22 regular season championships in the Three Rivers District, 16 of 17 tournament championships, the last four conference championships, four Region C championships (2001, 2002, 2004, 2013), three Region 1A West Championships (2014, 2016, 2017), two Region 2C Championships (2018, 2019), finished as the state runners-up three times, advanced to nine state Final-4's, and has won state champions in six of the last 12 seasons.

Virginia Tech lacrosse announces 2023 schedule

BLACKSBURG – Virginia Tech lacrosse head coach Kristen Skiera announced the team's 2023 spring schedule on Thursday. The Hokies have 17 regular season games lined up, including eight at home in Blacksburg.

Nine of Virginia Tech's opponents competed in the 2022 Division I Women's Lacrosse Championship last season, including both finalists, North Carolina and Boston College.

Tech's second season under Skiera begins on Saturday, Feb. 11, against Virginia Commonwealth University in Richmond. On Wednesday, Feb. 15, the Hokies will open their home slate against James Madison University at 5 p.m. Last season, Virginia Tech earned its first win in program history against the Dukes.

Following a home tilt against Mercer on Sunday, Feb. 19, Tech will open ACC play against defending national champions North Carolina on Friday, Feb. 24, at 7 p.m. in Blacksburg.

The Hokies will face four more non-conference opponents on the road: Elon (3/8), Akron (3/18), Mount St. Mary's (3/22), and Old Dominion University (4/11). Tech will host Furman at home on April 17.

In more ACC action, Virginia Tech will host Pitt (3/11), Boston College (3/25), Louisville (4/8) and Clemson (4/15). Tech will travel to face Syracuse (3/5), Notre Dame (3/16), Duke (4/1) and Virginia (4/20).

Tech went 9-9 in the 2022 season, which included noteworthy wins against No. 13 James Madison and No. 15 Notre Dame. The Hokies concluded the season with a 5-4 record at home and fell to No. 2 Boston College in the ACC Championship quarterfinal.

AARP to push General Assembly for prescription affordability board

Virginia's General Assembly convened in Richmond Wednesday, Jan. 13, and AARP Virginia will be pushing lawmakers to protect at-risk nursing home residents and their families by taking on long-overdue quality and staffing problems in facilities and by creating a prescription affordability board.

"Virginia's long-standing failure to address staffing shortages in nursing homes must come to an end," said Jared Calfee, the Associate State Director for Advocacy at AARP Virginia. "Too many of Virginia's 30,000 nursing home residents have suffered due to inaction, and it's time for that to stop."

Calfee said advocates have been bringing the problems in nursing facilities to lawmakers' attention for more than 20 years, but legislation has failed year after year. "Ignoring the problem won't make it go away," Calfee said. "It's up to the General Assembly to take the lead in ensuring that our nursing home residents are provided with safe, quality care."

AARP Virginia supports legislation that will require minimum staffing standards in nursing homes. Virginia currently is one of only 12 states that does not require minimum staffing levels for nursing homes, and inadequate staffing is one of the primary indicators of poor quality care. The bill's patron is Delegate Vivian Watts.

AARP Virginia is part of a coalition of organizations, Virginia Voices for Nursing Home Residents, who support nursing home reform and will encourage the public to call upon lawmakers to enact the legislation.

The group is also encouraging family members of nursing home residents as well as nursing home staff to tell the organization about problems in nursing homes so that they can bring them to the attention of lawmakers. Nursing home workers, residents, and family members can share their stories at <https://action.aarp.org/VirginiaNHstories>. Members of the public can contact their legislator on the issue at <https://action.aarp.org/vanursinghomes>.

During the session, AARP Virginia will support legislation addressing the ever-increasing costs of prescription drugs. AARP supports legislation creating a Prescription Drug Affordability Board with the authority to set upper payment limits on certain high-cost prescription medications.

Calfee said the most common challenge he hears from Virginians across the state is the skyrocketing cost of their prescription drugs, which has outpaced inflation.

"We are working hard to put fairness and accountability into the system," Calfee said. "Medicines work only if patients can afford them."

Virginians can urge their legislators to pass the legislation at <https://action.aarp.org/varx>.

With 1 million members in Virginia, AARP is the largest organization working on behalf of people age 50+ and their families in the commonwealth. In recent years, AARP Virginia has successfully fought for Medicaid expansion, protections for older people against financial exploitation, and empowering family caregivers.

Virginia farmers prepare for more agricultural advocacy

Some of Virginia's farmers will help inform state legislators about issues important to farming and agriculture on Jan. 23 during Virginia Farm Bureau Federation's annual Legislative Day.

Grassroots advocacy is at the heart of Farm Bureau, and that action is most visible at Legislative Day. Each year, many bills affecting agriculture are under consideration by Virginia's General Assembly, and the event gives farmers an opportunity to share their viewpoints.

Under the slogan "Farmers in Action," county Farm Bureau leaders from across Virginia will meet with their state senators and delegates to discuss how these bills will impact agriculture and farmers in their localities.

"Over the years, Legislative Day has proven to be a key opportunity for farmers to interact with legislators during a pivotal time of the General Assembly session,"

said Stefanie Taillon, senior assistant director of Virginia Farm Bureau Federation's governmental relations. "It truly makes a difference for agriculture when farmers across the commonwealth visit Richmond and speak directly to policymakers regarding issues that impact their operations."

Among the issues farmers will be discussing on Legislative Day is maintaining full funding for the Agricultural Best Management Practices Cost-Share Program. In 2022, a total of $295 million was allocated in the state budget to help farmers implement conservation practices. Farm Bureau and Virginia's farmers had been advocating for full funding of this program since 2009.

Other Farm Bureau priorities include updating the unlicensed farm use vehicle program and supporting the continuation of the Dairy Producer Margin Coverage Premium Assistance Program.

"These are not all of the issues that Farm Bureau is working on, but some of those that are most important to our members," Taillon said.

This year's Legislative Day also will include a Virginia-grown "Burgers on Bank Street" lunch for legislators, something put on hold the last couple years due to COVID-19. Farm Bureau members will serve cheeseburgers to legislators to highlight the vital role farmers play in feeding the commonwealth and the nation.
