Confirmed case of rabies found in raccoon in Radford

Heather Bell

RADFORD – The City of Radford is notifying residents that a raccoon in Radford has tested positive for the rabies virus.

“The raccoon no longer poses a threat to the public, but at this time we would like to remind the community of a few prevention steps to keep your pets and families safe,” Radford Director of Communications Jenni Goodman announced. “Rabies is a fatal, but preventable, disease carried by mammals that is endemic to the area.” Radford would like to remind all citizens to follow these important rabies prevention guidelines:

Vaccinate your pets. Please make sure your pets are up to date on their vaccines, specifically their rabies vaccination. If you are unsure of the vaccination status of your pets, contact your veterinarian.

Do not leave your animals outside unattended, ensure they are safe and secure on your property.

Report all exposures to animals (usually bites and scratches) to your doctor and the local health department.

Enjoy wildlife from a distance – do not feed or encourage wild animals such as raccoons, skunks, or foxes to visit your premises.

According to the Humane Society of the U.S., raccoons—along with foxes (red and gray), skunks, and bats—are considered a primary carrier of the rabies virus in the United States. While any warm-blooded animal can carry

NRV Food Assistance Directory connects community members to resources

BLACKSBURG - In collaboration with members of NRV Thrive, a network of agencies working to address food insecurity in the region, The Community Foundation of the New River Valley (CFNRV) recently released its 2023-2024 NRV Food Assistance Directory.

The directory aims to connect community members in need of food assistance to the programs providing this support and contains the details of 53 food assistance programs in the counties of Floyd, Giles, Montgomery, and Pulaski as well as the city of Radford.

In the New River Valley, it is estimated that at least 20,000 people, or 11.3% of the population, experiences issues with sufficient access to affordable food. This is higher than the national average (10.2%) that the U.S. Department of Agriculture shared in a 2021 report. Across the region, dozens of programs are working to address this issue, ranging from community gardens and school

Free Sustainable Garden Tours hosted May through August

The first tour date is Sunday, May 21

BLACKSBURG - The Sustainable Blacksburg nonprofit community organization is sponsoring free tours of local gardens showcasing sustainable gardening and landscaping practices, including reduced lawn area, native plants, wildlife-friendly plantings, food production and upcycled garden décor.

The gardeners hosting are making their yards about more than growing grass.

The tours are held on third Sundays from 2- 5 p.m., May through August. Light refreshments will be served at these drop-in tours. Visitors are welcome any time during the tour timeframe. Tours are rain or shine but will be halted by thunderstorms.

The two gardens featured on Sunday, May 21, are bike-accessible for those participating in the Bikesburg 2023 bike festival and bike parking will be available.

Corl/Burger garden at 911 Draper Road, Blacksburg: The homeowners have progressively reduced the proportion of the lot area dedicated to lawn in order to reduce maintenance in some areas while increasing food production in others. Their ornamental beds are a mix of both native and non-native plants. To support the vegetable garden, they compost and utilize soil testing to manage soil nutrients as well as mulch to conserve water.

Marsille garden at 509 Monte Vista Drive, Blacksburg: Margaret Marsille describes her yard as a low-budget work in progress, as she transitions to native plants, food crops, and a “just have fun” garden. She has incorporated sustainable features, including two rainwater collection systems, native plant gardens, composting area, food gardens, upcycled garden art and two greenhouses created from reclaimed windows.

Future tours include:

June 18: Cedar Chest Farm, 4980 Longshop Rd, Blacksburg: The owners of this new small farm grow 1/4 acre of diversified vegetables and cut flowers for sale through a local community supported agriculture (CSA) program and Blacksburg Farmers Market. They grow without any synthetic inputs, utilizing no-till practices and implementing conservation strategies such as a high tunnel, drip irrigation, cover cropping, and crop rotation.

Todd garden, 312 Sunset Blvd, Blacksburg: The Todds’ variety includes native and pollinator-friendly flowers, pumpkins, gourds, and other vegetables with minimal grass in the back yard. Rain barrels conserve water and refill a koi pond that attracts wildlife. Owl boxes welcome an owl family annually. A garden railroad (G-Scale) using a number of repurposed items adds whimsy.

July 16: Monti/McLellan garden, 1090 S. Jefferson

Forest Ln, Blacksburg: In just five years, the homeowners have created an incredible certified habitat for birds, bees and butterflies. A one-fourth acre meadow sports a succession of blooming species to feed native pollinators throughout the season and the property owners have also planted over 25 native trees as well as shrubs and perennials.

Kecorius garden, 1306 Greendale Dr, Blacksburg: In this fairly new garden, the homeowners grow

Bike parade, festival set for today for ‘Bikesburg’

Bikesburg brings a host of biking events to downtown Blacksburg now through May 26

Lori Graham
Contributing writer

BLACKSBURG - Community partnerships of downtown Blacksburg are bringing a weeklong celebration of biking, with events through May 26, 2023 that the whole family can enjoy.

Blacksburg’s Sustainability Manager, Carol Davis, spoke on the upcoming biking celebration week and their goal in putting on this annual event.

“Biking is a sustainable means of transportation for a lot of people” Davis said. “The feel of the town becomes a slower pace when the students leave for the summer, and we are inviting the residents to come out and have fun. If you are typically nervous riding your bike in town during the spring and fall semesters when the town sees more traffic, now is the time to get out, and the weather is beautiful. Getting to know people and getting around town is what we are about and that is what we are hoping to accomplish with this.”

The bike parade, happening Saturday May 20, is led by Mayor Leslie Hager-Smith. All ages and abilities are encouraged to join the parade, which concludes with a ride down Blacksburg’s Main Street. The bike bus starts at 9 a.m. and includes one of five routes taking riders to the bike parade departure location at VT Electric parking lot, 601 Energy Drive. The bike parade will depart from Energy Drive at 10 a.m. and head north on the Huckleberry Trail, taking participants around campus, and concluding on Main Street. Interested riders should check out the map routes on the website at <https://downtownblacksburg.com/events/bikesburg>.

Everyone is also invited to come to the Bikesburg Festival, also on May 20, with events going on from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. on College Avenue. Additional day’s activities are available on the events page as well, which is hosted by Downtown Blacksburg Inc.

Along with the festival and bike parade, the week’s events include many other opportunities for family-oriented activities and topics that bike enthusiasts will love. Just some of the activities found on the event’s webpage include a garden tour, book discussions, social rides, a bike yoga event, a trail-building service opportunity, and a bike commuting class at the library on Wednesday 23. Davis says Jen Millions, the President of the New River Valley Bicycle Association who will be leading the class, is a certified trainer that teaches safe cycling. Building confidence and making everyone safer on the roads and trails are important, so taking a safety course in bicycling can help all riders in achieving and maintaining these skills.

According to the event’s news release, some events do require registration, so participants should check the website for details and additional event descriptions. During the week of Bikesburg 2023, participating businesses will be offering a passport and stamps for cyclists who visit their stores by bike (no purchase required). Completed passports can be entered for several prize drawings.

The Bikesburg 2023 partnership includes Downtown Blacksburg, Inc. (DBI), New River Valley Bicycle Association (NRVBA), Town of Blacksburg, VT Sustainable Transportation, Sustainable Blacksburg, Lyric Theatre, Blacksburg Farmers Market, Regional Commission/ Ride Solutions, Poverty Creek Trails Coalition, and Friends of the Huckleberry.

Looming debt ceiling deadline

Local expert says economic impact could be significant if deal is not reached by June 1

While President Joe Biden says that he is confident he can reach a deal with Republicans over the debt ceiling, Treasury Secretary Janet Yellen is warning of “economic chaos” should that not come to fruition.

Virginia Tech economist Jadrian Wooten says if a deal is not reached by June 1, the impact on the U.S. and globally would be significant.

“We’re potentially facing significant declines in Gross Domestic Product and the potential for millions to be out of work,” says

Wooten. “The long-term issue is a reduction in investor confidence in government securities.”

Wooten explains that a reduction in investor confidence would raise the cost of borrowing for the U.S., which trickles down through the banking system. “Higher borrowing costs resulting from a default or increased risk perception could further increase interest rates, making it more expensive for businesses and individuals to borrow and invest.

New River Community College (NRCC) students Grace Anderson, Daniel Cravey, Gabrielle Schack, and Adam Toler were recently recognized for their nominations to Phi Theta Kappa's (PTK) All-Virginia Academic Team.

Students from across the state were recognized by Virginia's Community Colleges at an awards luncheon in Richmond.

Toler was named to the PTK Top Ten 2023 All-Virginia Academic Team. The Top Ten All-Virginia Academic Team consists of those members of the All-Virginia Academic Team achieving the highest rating in the international program sponsored by PTK, USA Today, and the American Association of Community Colleges.

Toler, an Eagle Scout, is from Richmond and currently lives in Radford while attending NRCC. He is currently studying instrumentation and control automation technology. He plans to complete his studies at NRCC in 2024 and go on to work in the instrumentation field. Toler is also the president of NRCC's chapter of the Phi Theta Kappa Honor Society. Toler was also named New Century Workforce Scholar at this event.

Anderson, Cravey and Schack were nominated for PTK 2023 All-Virginia Academic Team.

Anderson, from Blacksburg, is a second-year science student and PTK Vice President of Service. She currently holds a 4.0 GPA and will complete her studies at NRCC this May with the intention of transferring to Virginia Tech in the fall. Grace will major in biology with a minor in human nutrition. After completing her bachelor's degree in biological sciences at Virginia Tech, Grace plans to continue her education and pursue a career as a physical therapist or physician's assistant.

Cravey, from Chesterfield, is an instrumentation and control automation technology student at NRCC. He serves as PTK Vice President of Leadership. After graduation, he plans to work as an E&I intern for the WestRock paper mill in Hopewell, Va. He will be returning to NRCC in the fall to complete two additional degrees in electrical engineering technology and electronics technology.

Schack is from Christiansburg and is PTK Vice President of Scholarship. She is the second person in her family to pursue a college degree. She plans to eventually earn a master's degree in counseling and work in a career where she can help others.

PTK is an international honor society of two-year colleges and academic programs, particularly state colleges and community colleges, and the organization's mission is to recognize academic achievement of college students and to provide opportunities for them to grow as scholars and leaders. To become a member of the Omega Eta chapter of PTK at NRCC, students must currently be enrolled at NRCC, have a minimum 3.5 cumulative grade point average, completed at least 12 non-developmental credits at NRCC. For more information on PTK at NRCC, contact faculty sponsor Brian Clark at bclark@nr.edu.

residents of Radford, as he has been reading the electric meters of city residences and businesses for decades. He has held other positions in the city as well, and Mayor David Horton, a lifelong resident of Radford, recalled the first time he remembers seeing Young.

"I remember playing Little League, I was probably six or seven years old, and there you were working on the fields," he said.

According to the proclamation passed by Radford City Council, Young "began his career in 1972 with the City of Radford and in December of 1978, he became a laborer in the Street Department, advancing to the position of Acting Foreman on September 8, 1980 and Permanent Foreman on June 1, 1981. David also held the position of Athletic Fields Specialist for the Recreation Department from July 1, 2005 to October 1, 2007."

Young is best remembered for his position as meter reader.

"As a result of continued diligent work and demonstrated ability, he advanced to the position of Meter Reader with the Billing and Service Office on April 26, 1982 and has served 39 of his 50 years in this position until his retirement, where he is recognized for his excellent skills, professionalism and knowledge of the City of Radford," the proclamation reads.

"David Young has served Radford with dedication, integrity, and love of the City throughout his tenure and his expertise is invaluable," it continues. "City of Radford does hereby extend our sincere and grateful appreciation for his 50 years of dedicated service to the City of Radford and to our community. Our congratulations on his well-earned retirement, and our best wishes for continued success, happiness, and good health in the years to come."

backpack programs to hot meals programs and food pantries. These programs are seeing an increased demand for their services.

"Between February and March 2023, when food stamps were cut, we have seen a 44% increase in the number of meals we serve," said Gretchen Dee, director of Radford-Fairlawn Daily Bread. "The need for food aid had already massively increased during the pandemic, but the rising cost of food and the cutting of benefits have severely exacerbated this crisis. Poverty is a vicious cycle and people struggling with food insecurity are often trapped in circumstances well beyond their control."

Those in need of assistance also face other barriers, including stigma around accessing services. "Our region has such disparity that is overshadowed by those who are more fortunate," said Ryan Martin,

Chief Executive Officer and Executive Director of The YMCA at Virginia Tech. "There is a great amount of shame accompanied by food insecurity, making people embarrassed and try to hide their need."

Many experiencing issues related to food security are often dealing with other challenges related to housing, employment, healthcare, and more. Getting connected to resources while dealing with these circumstances can be difficult, particularly navigating the specifics of each program offering services.

"We hope this directory makes it easier for those seeking assistance," said Jessica Wirgau, Chief Executive Officer of the CFNRV. "Our goal for is for this directory to be as comprehensive as possible, so we have included information on each program's schedule, how often someone can use the program's services, what types of products are offered, and any eligibility requirements or documents."

The directory is just one project that the CFNRV is working on related to food insecurity issues. The foundation's NRV Thrive food access initiative brings together organizations to better address regional needs by sharing resources and coordinating projects, including recovering and distributing food throughout the NRV more efficiently.

The directory can be accessed online at cfnrv.org/thrive. Those interested in getting involved with the CFNRV's Thrive initiative may contact the foundation at 540-381-8999 or cfnrv@cfnrv.org.

Rabies

rabies, these are the ones considered "rabies vector species."

The Humane Society says "if you see a raccoon in your yard during the day, don't panic— it is not necessarily sick or dangerous. It's perfectly normal for raccoons to be active throughout the day. It may merely be foraging longer hours to support young, visiting a garden while the dogs are indoors, or moving to a new location."

The Humane Society says to "key in on the behavior of the raccoon before calling for assistance."

"Look for staggering gait, an animal seemingly oblivious to noise or nearby movement, erratic wandering, discharge from eyes or mouth, wet and matted hair on face, repeated high-pitch vocalization or self-mutilation," says the Humane Society.

If you see a raccoon showing these signs, or if you have any questions, please contact Animal Care and Control at 540-731-3688.

WORSHIP DIRECTORY

WATCH OUT FOR PRIDE

Read 2 Chronicles 24:1 through 26:23

After Uzziah became powerful, his pride led to his downfall. He was unfaithful to the Lord his God, and entered the temple of the Lord to burn incense on the altar of incense (2 Chronicles 26:16).

Uzziah became king in Judah at sixteen years of age. During his reign, he fortified towers, dug wells, increased agriculture, invented weapons, and raised an impressive army. However, after forty blessed and prosperous years as king, he made a monumental mistake in judgment. He let pride settle in.

He entered into the sanctuary to offer incense on the golden altar, a ministry rite belonging to the consecrated temple priests, not him. When the high priest, along with a band of eighty priests, withstood him, Uzziah became furious. While screaming back at the priests, leprosy broke out on Uzziah’s forehead. Sadly, he remained a leper, living in an isolated home until the day he died.

Pride can slip into a believer’s life almost unnoticed. The consequences are never good. If pride ever raises its ugly head, deal with it immediately. Ask the Holy Spirit to help you.

Thought for Today: Humility is our best defense against pride.

Housel, Chuck

Chuck Housel, of Grayson town, and favorite dog Bruno ate during the passed into eternal glory and rest at his Little River home on May 11, 2023.

He was a proponent of higher education and always had time for his students. He continued to live and honor his Appalachian Heritage. Hard honest work was never a stranger to him. He felt that one of his greatest feats was picking 80 gallons of wild blackberries in one summer season. That number does not include the amount of berries that Elijah, Joseph berry expeditions. He loved his family, friends and church with true devotion.

He was preceded in death by his parents, John and Mary Emma Housel; brother, John Housel; sister, Susan Dillon; and daughter-in-law, Beth Housel.

Mitchell, Brenda Gayle

Brenda Gayle Mitchell, 63, beloved daughter, caring sister, devoted aunt, and loyal friend entered her eternal home on May 3, 2023.

Gayle is survived by her best friend and faithful mother Beatrice Mitchell, sister Jo Ann Akers, brother Terry Mitchell (Terri), nieces and nephews, and many cherished extended family members. She was preceded in death by her father, Stephen Edward Mitchell, and her brother-in-law, Gary Akers.

Gayle was born on July 21, 1959 in Pulaski. She was known for her love of photography and scrapbooking and was often lovingly teased by her family for always wanting to capture every moment in a photo. She took great joy in creating countless volumes of family memories that will be treasured forever.

Gayle was a generous and loving aunt to her nieces and nephews (Stephen Akers, Matt Akers, Gary Lee Akers, Kellen Mitchell, Darby Mitchell) and her great nieces and nephews (Noah Akers, Teagan Akers, Ayanna Akers, Matthew Akers). She especially enjoyed spoiling them all at Christmas. Gayle leaves her loved ones with an abundance of precious holiday memories, including her good-natured reactions to all the ribbing she endured about her excessive use of tape when wrapping gifts.

Gayle enjoyed exercising, and many will remember her from all the hours she spent at the local YMCA. Watching her favorite athlete, Michael Jordan, was another of her favorite pastimes, and being a child at heart, she enjoyed all things Disney. She inherited her father's love of music and enjoyed attending concerts, with her taste in music ranging from Elvis to Alabama.

Gayle's early working years were spent with textile manufacturers Pulaski Apparel and Lee Jeans and concluded with 13 years of service as an administrative assistant at the Town of Pulaski Police Department. She was highly respected by the investigators for her meticulous attention to detail in the documents she prepared. She was fittingly recognized for her exceptional work in a local news article titled "The Perfectionist."

Simpkins, Harold Ray

Harold Ray Simpkins, 75, of 52 years, Verily Flinchum Simpkins; Snowville, passed away peacefully at his home on Friday, May 12, 2023.

Harold loved his family fiercely and worked tirelessly throughout his entire life to provide for them. He served as a heavy-equipment operator for most of his life. Harold worked at Sisson and Ryan Quarry in Shawsville for over 35 years where he made many lifelong friends. While working that full time, labor intensive job, he also continued to run the Simpkins family farm at home. The hard work on the farm was a "labor of love". He often said that he was born in the corner bedroom of the small family farm house and thought that it was appropriate to spend his life tending that farm as a legacy for his children and grandchildren. The most memorable times of Harold's life were spent on the farm surrounded by his loving family, watching his treasured grandchildren enjoy the land where he had grown up. Harold's wish was to be quietly laid to rest on the hill overlooking the farm and his family.

He was preceded in death by his son, Ray Benjamin Simpkins.

He is survived by his loving wife of

NRCC engineering professor chosen for NASA workshop

DUBLIN - Professor of Engineering Lisa Murphy was selected to attend the Virginia Space Grant Consortium (VSGC) "STEM Takes Flight" in Virginia's Community Colleges Faculty Professional Development Workshop, May 16 - 18 at the NASA Wallops Flight Facility on Virginia's Eastern Shore.

Only 17 applicants were selected for this opportunity, representing 10 of Virginia's community colleges.

The three-day workshop focuses on the integration of STEM in the NASA workplace with the purpose of assisting faculty in educating students on the importance of teamwork, technical skills and problem solving while introducing them to the missions performed and managed by NASA Wallops Flight Facility. Hosts from NASA Wallops Flight Facility will lead the workshop.

Murphy teaches math and engineering courses (Math 161 and EGR 140, 122, and 121) at NRCC's Christiansburg site. She holds a bachelor's degree in engineering, master's degrees in electrical engineering and mathematics and holds a doctorate

This can dampen investment, hamper economic growth, and potentially lead to job losses."

There are a number of obligations that the U.S. government wouldn't be able to fully pay, like Social Security, Medicare, SNAP recipients, and interest on federal debt. "By refusing to raise the debt ceiling, we're essentially refusing to pay what we owe people," says Wooten.

In addition, Wooten explains the U.S. dollar is the world's primary reserve currency and any disruption in its stability and credibility could have far-reaching consequences. "Investors worldwide hold U.S. Treasury bonds as safe assets, and a default or downgrade of U.S. debt could lead to a loss of confidence in global financial markets."

Wooten says the U.S. is able to borrow cheaply because the U.S. dollar is in such high demand around the world but breaking that confidence could trigger international investors to seek other currencies. This in turn would raise the cost of borrowing for the U.S., making a recovery more difficult.

"It's essential to balance the need for responsible budgeting with the requirement to meet the government's financial obligations and ensure stability in the economy," says Wooten. "If politicians are seriously concerned about our debt limits, those need to be addressed before the US commits to paying these obligations and not after the bill has come."

Jadrian Wooten is collegiate associate professor at Virginia Tech within the Department of Economics and is the author of Parks and Recreation and Economics. Read more about Wooten's economic perspective on the debt ceiling debate for subscribers in his Monday Morning Economist newsletter.

RU coach headed back to court

Marty Gordon

NRVsports@mainstreetnewspapers.com

RADFORD - The legal woes for Radford University basketball coach Darris Nichols continues.

Last month, Nichols was pleaded guilty to Driving Under Influence (DUI), which resulted in his license being suspended for 12 months. He also had to pay a $2,500 fine and have an ignition interlock system installed in his car. He was also sentenced to 180 days in jail, with all but two being suspended.

Nichols was arrested after he refused to do a field sobriety test, according to police. Court documents say he blew a .25 blood alcohol level after being arrested. The legal limit in Virginia is .08.

This week, news broke Nichols failed an Interlock test and will return to court in June.

Radford University officials say they continue to monitor the situation.

Following the earlier arrest and conviction, Nichols was suspended by the university for three weeks and missed several games at the end of the season. His brother and assistant coach, Shane Nichols, served as the acting coach, including play in the Big South basketball tournament.

Darris issued an apology following the earlier legal decision. Nichols has not commented publicly about the recent interlock situation.

Ignition interlock devices are wired into your vehicles' ignitions. When you try to start one of your cars, you will have to blow into the tube of the ignition interlock device. The device will then detect whether there is alcohol on your breath. If alcohol is present, you won't be able to start your vehicle.

The Radford native was hired two years ago after serving as an assistant at the University of Florida. During a press conference at his hiring, RU Athletic Director Robert Lineburg praised him back home. Lineburg is also a Radford High School graduate.

Nichols played basketball at West Virginia University and climbed the ranks as an assistant coach all the way to the University of Florida in the SEC.

Nichols helped lead Radford High School to four appearances in the state Group A playoffs, averaging in double-figures every season. He coached seven seasons at Florida, helping lead the Gators to a 108-65 record, including four straight 20-win seasons and three consecutive NCAA Tournament bids.

Nichols garnered a spot in ESPN.com's 40 Under 40 in the summer of 2020, rated #17 on the national list that included both head coaches and assistant coaches. He was also rated the #2 assistant coach in the SEC in a Stadium poll of coaches around the league.

A four-year letter winner at West Virginia under Bob Huggins and John Beilein, Nichols helped the Mountaineers to a 26-11 record and a trip to the 2008 NCAA Sweet 16 his senior season.

At WVU, Nichols shined as a player in the Big East. He scored 993 career points and dished 399 assists while shooting at a .375 clip from 3-point range. He averaged 10.7 points per game as well as 3.2 assists per game as a senior on the way to WVU's Sweet 16 run. He was also a member of the 2007 NIT Championship, 2006 Sweet 16 and 2005 Elite Eight teams and finished his collegiate career as a top five most winningest player in Mountaineer history. After graduation, he played professional overseas in the Hungarian League.

Hokie wheelchair tennis team moves to next level

One of the only adaptive athletics teams at Virginia Tech, the wheelchair tennis team is just beginning what hopefully will be a lasting impact on the university.

In 2020, Virginia Tech Recreational Sports partnered with the Virginia Tech varsity men's tennis team to offer the university's first ever wheelchair clinic. Since then, the men's team has hosted weekly wheelchair tennis clinics, with the student-athletes volunteering to lead instruction for adaptive athletes.

The effort led to the formation of a club sports team, and the clinics serve as a practice for club team and anyone else who wants to join.

Frank Thompson, a rising senior on the men's tennis team, started the clinics and has been a part of them ever since.

Gaila Fosbinder, a rising sophomore majoring in engineering, is one of two students on the wheelchair tennis team. Fosbinder developed a passion for tennis as a young child.

When Fosbinder began playing tennis at the age of 8, she played standing. But arthrogryposis multiplex congenita, a condition that affects the joints, transitioned Fosbinder into playing wheelchair tennis three years ago.

Jason Harnett, the United States Tennis Association wheelchair tennis head coach, later recruited Fosbinder to come to Virginia Tech after the university received a grant from the association to grow the program.

"This opportunity we've been given isn't one that has existed for many athletes in the past," Thompson said. "I have a huge appreciation for the sport I play and the fact that it can be played in a wheelchair as well."

Thompson said the team values representation for disabled athletes. Physical disabilities do not deter from the ability to play a sport, he said, and the wheelchair clinics gradually are proving that.

The Virginia Tech team attended the Collegiate Wheelchair Tennis Championships — its first national championship — held April in Orlando, Florida.

The clinics have led to an Adaptive Recreation course at Virginia Tech, an introductory class designed to raise awareness and recognition regarding opportunities for people with and without disabilities to play and compete.

Fosbinder said her goal during her next three years at Virginia Tech is to expand adaptive athletics beyond tennis.

ACC divided over money, future

Marty Gordon

The future of the Atlantic Coast Conference (ACC) has been played out in the media in many different ways this week. Let's consider what is going on. At the heart of this discussion is money. Yes, we said money.

At least seven different schools, including Virginia Tech, have expressed concern over the amount of money, or should we say the lack of, from a national television contract signed seven years ago. At the time, the deal made sense. But now, two other major athletic conferences have publicly said the ACC deal is chump change compared to theirs.

This week, ACC leaders discussed the matter during its spring meetings at Amelia Island, Florida. The table talk has centered around a revenue sharing system that would benefit the more successful programs who would earn more money.

Seven schools —

Miami, North Carolina, North Carolina State, Virginia and Virginia Tech — have explored the possibility of leaving the ACC. Blame it on the Grant of Rights Contract, which was signed in 2016 and runs through 2036. The ACC sold the right to air football games on the ESPN family of networks at a dollar amount of around $36 million.

The SEC and Big 10 schools are scheduled to rake in more than $100 million from their deals.

If the ACC-7 move to break the agreement before 2036, each school could owe the league over $100 million and forfeit any TV revenue.

No vote was held on this proposed new revenue distribution model, which includes possible additional monies from the College Football Playoff and other postseason games.

So, ESPN must now step up and rework the ACC deal.

This week, the "threat" of an ACC breakup and/or divorce has fueled the need to renegotiate the deal. Meanwhile, the breakup and demise of the conference needs to come to a squelching halt for at least the moment.

The idea of North Carolina joining the Big 12 and Tech going to the SEC is in the clouds. Both would be deals that would add to the Power Conference 3. A move by Florida State could do that as well.

The national media would like you to believe the ACC is on the verge of splintering all over the country.

The ACC Commissioner said the issues aren't going away anytime soon. Jim Phillips said there is no magic bullet that closes the gap so the conference will have to be creative.

This idea of divorce will also loom out there as the Big 12, Big 10 and SEC want a bigger piece of the pie and a larger group of schools would aid that.

Let's just hope the ACC can hold out as long as possible until the pot of money gets a little bigger.

RU gains two more transfers from portal

Marty Gordon

NRVsports@mainstreetnewspapers.com

The Radford University men's basketball team has picked up two more players thanks to the transfer portal. Forward TJ Nesmith and grad transfer Chandler Turner recently announced plans to attend the Big South school, adding to four student-athletes courtesy of the portal.

Turner will join the Highlanders for the 2023-24 season following four years at Bowling Green.

Radford head coach Darris Nichols said Turner is an excellent person on and off the court, making him a great fit for the program. "He plays extremely hard on both ends of the floor and brings a different offensive game to our team. We're excited to welcome him to the Highlander family and are looking forward to getting him here with the rest of our players this summer."

A 6-7, 210 wing who can defend multiple positions, Turner adds invaluable experience and versatility to the squad.

In his first four collegiate seasons, the Detroit, Mich. native averaged 5.6 points on 46.0% (203-441) shooting while adding 3.4 rebounds per game and career totals of 65 assists, 47 steals and 22 blocks.

His improvement on the floor was apparent as he matured, culminating in a career year during the 2022-23 season in which he averaged a career-high 8.8 points and 5.3 rebounds per contest while starting 25 of 29 games for the Falcons.

Turner scored in double-figures 13 times last season, highlighted by 21 points against Northern Illinois — just two points off his career-high of 23 points, which he recorded against Oakland in 2021. He also posted a team-high three double-doubles with 10 boards each time.

Along with his on-the-court accomplishments, Turner was a fantastic student in the classroom. He was honored for his academic success in 2020-21 by being named to the MAC All-Academic Team.

Prior to BGSU, Turner played at Renaissance High School where he earned four varsity letters for coaches Vito Jordan and John White. He averaged 24.3 points, 9.0 rebounds, and 7.0 assists as a senior, making him a finalist for the state of Michigan's 2018-19 Mr. Basketball Award.

Nesmith joins the Highlanders from Lenoir-Rhyne.

"We are thrilled to add TJ (Nesmith) to the Highlander family," said Nichols. "He is an individual who has only improved over the course of his college basketball career, and we know he will continue to grow on and off the court at Radford. TJ is a player that brings a bunch of versatility to the court, and we are looking forward to having him a part of our program!"

Standing at 6'9", 220-lbs, Nesmith provides an excellent combination of skill and size that will immediately jump out to fans on both ends of the floor. As a native of Burlington, N.C., he continues a pipeline of talent from his hometown that also produced fellow Highlanders Justin Cousin (2013-18) and Josiah Jeffers (2018-23).

In two years at Lenoir-Rhyne, he averaged 15.4 points on 60.7% (303-for-499) shooting from the floor and 77.7% (160-for-206) at the free throw line. Nesmith added 4.6 rebounds and 1.4 blocks per game as well.

His strong play earned Third Team All-South Atlantic Conference honors for the 2021-22 season, and he followed it up with a Second-Team All-South Atlantic Conference selection after the 2022-23 season.

Prior to Lenoir-Rhyne, Nesmith played at Cape Fear Community College where he averaged 10.8 points and 6.2 rebounds per game while shooting 55.6% from the field. He played his prep basketball at Graham High School.

When they arrive on campus, the duo will be joined by fellow transfers Truth Harris and Josiah Harris, as well as incoming freshmen Trevor Roe and Trenton Walters.

Highlander awarded Big South fellowship

The Big South conference announced Tuesday afternoon that Radford University Women's Soccer standout Saleena Lynch has been awarded the annual Bob McCloskey Insurance Big South Conference Fellowship. Bob McCloskey Insurance, a Big South Corporate Partner, will be awarding $2,000 towards Lynch's graduate studies.

Lynch played a key role in helping the Highlanders win the Big South Tournament in 2022 and clinch a bid into the NCAA Tournament. Lynch appeared in 18 games with 17 starts as a part of the Highlanders' defensive back line totaling 1,357 minutes played. In games that Lynch appeared in, the Highlanders totaled eight shutouts.

Off the field, Lynch participated in eight academic conferences and presentations, including the Southeastern Psychological Association, Psychology & Gender Research Symposium, Student Engagement Forum, and the University of Missouri Alcohol Research Presentation. She is a member of the National Society of Collegiate Scholars and has been awarded Academic Excellence Dean's List honors all four years and was the recipient of the Wyatt Family Athletic Endowment.

Lynch also served Radford as a Resident Assistant, Academic Tutor and a College of Humanities and Behavioral Sciences Elevated Research Mentor. She was Vice President of the Criminal Justice Club, participated in mental health and crisis training, and volunteered with the Special Olympics.

In her four-year career at Radford, the Suffolk, Va. native totaled 68 games played, 52 starts, three assists and 4,539 minutes played. She also played a role in the Highlanders' 2019 Big South Tournament championship in her collegiate debut season. This past season she earned her first Defensive Player of the Week award and was also named to the conference's second team and all-academic lists.

Lynch is currently pursuing her Ph.D. in Cognitive Psychology and Neuroscience from the University of North Carolina. She graduated last December with a 3.96 GPA as a Criminal Justice and Psychology major at Radford.

The Big South Conference Graduate Fellowship Program was established by the league in the Fall of 2005 as a means of recognizing the academic excellence of Big South Conference student-athletes who intend to pursue postgraduate studies upon graduation from a Big South Conference institution. Lynch will be recognized on Thursday, June 1st as a part of the conference's annual Spring Awards Dinner Banquet at The Westin Resort in Hilton Head, S.C.
