RADFORD – Deborah Effler Taylor, the dedicated Bobcat football supporter who provided videos and insight to the team's rise to the state championship, was honored by Radford City Council Monday, Jan. 8 with the Robert Allen "Big Al" Hall Humanitarian Service Above Self Citizenship Award.

Hall was known as the most ardent fan of all things Bobcats and volunteered his time to many efforts in the City of Radford. When he passed away, the city wanted to honor that service and thus the award was born.

At Monday's city council meeting, Vice Mayor Seth Gillespie reads the resolution honoring Effler.

"This award recognizes unsung heroes who contribute to make the City of Radford a better place. A humanitarian is someone who extends benevolence and kindness by putting others before oneself," said Gillespie. "The City of Radford wishes to honor Deborah Effler Taylor for her dedication and service to support and share the games and activities of the Bobcats football team. Deborah faithfully utilized social media to share videos of games, home and away, for the Bobcats in heat, cold, rain and more."

"Deborah exhibits the Bobcats spirit that Big Al held dear, and for which he was the biggest advocate," he continued. "Deborah's efforts helped connect the entire Radford community, both within the city and beyond our borders, to the thrilling undefeated state championship 2023 football season."

Christiansburg police receive reports of scam

CHRISTIANSBURG – Recently, The Christiansburg Police Department has received several reports of people being victimized by on-line scams resulting from pop-up windows that appear on personal computers.

The victim will get a pop-up window that appears to be from Microsoft and warns that their computer has been hacked and that they need to call the number in the window. When they call that number, the scammer pretends to be a Microsoft agent and tells the victim that their computer has been hacked and that their bank account information has been compromised.

The scammer then asks what banking institution the caller banks with. When they have this information, they tell the caller that they (the scammer) will contact their bank and advise them of the "hack" and that the bank will contact the victim directly with instructions on how to secure their account. A short time later the victim receives a call from "the bank", but it is actually a second scammer. This person tells the victim that their account has been compromised and that they need to immediately withdraw all the money they have in the bank and deposit it into a Bitcoin account at the nearest Bitcoin machine so their funds will be "secure" while the bank tracks the security breach.

Unfortunately, this Bitcoin account belongs to the scammer and once the money is deposited, it is transferred out to the scammer. At that point, the money is gone and is neither traceable nor recoverable.

Some variations of this scam include having the victim buy gift cards and providing the numbers to the "bank representative", or to transfer the money to a secure account using Venmo, Cash App, etc. Any time someone who claims to be working for a business, bank, or the government asks you to buy Bitcoin, purchase gift cards and provide the card numbers, or otherwise transfer money digitally, you should immediately suspect it is a scam. The scammer will often grow terse or angry if you question them. They may even Bohn made a motion to amend a rule in the Roles of Order and Parliamentary Procedures.

The amendment would have increased the public address time from its current four minutes to five minutes.

According to Biggs, in the past, the public address had previously been five minutes and was reduced to four minutes in recent years. The motion did not receive a second; therefore, the public address time will remain at four minutes.

Deadly home fires underscore increased risks during winter months

In response to the deadly home fires that have occurred in the past week, the National Fire Protection Association (NFPA) is reminding the public about the increased risk of home fires during the winter months, along with simple but critical ways to prevent them and stay safe.

According to NFPA, heating equipment is the leading cause of U.S. home fires between December and January, while cooking equipment is the leading cause of home fires year-round. The third-leading cause of home fires is electrical equipment, with three in 10 electrical fires occurring between November and February. Also, more than a third (34 percent) of Christmas tree home fires occur in January.

“As the new year has unfolded, several home fires, including ones that have been reported in California, Connecticut, and Minnesota, have underscored the deadly impact that these fires can have,” said Lorraine Carli, vice president of NFPA Outreach and Advocacy. She noted that with colder temperatures across much of the country and fewer hours of sunlight, people are spending more time indoors. That means home heating systems are in greater use, electricity is used more hours of the day, and, in many cases, households are doing more cooking.

NFPA offers the following guidelines and recommendations to reduce the risk of home fires during the winter months:

Heating safety:

Make sure all heating equipment is in good working order. Heating systems and chimneys should be cleaned and inspected annually by a qualified professional.

Keep anything that can burn at least three feet away from all heating equipment, including furnaces, fireplaces, wood stoves, and space heaters.

Always use the right kind of fuel, as specified by the manufacturer, for fuel-burning space heaters.

Make sure space heaters are in good working order and used in accordance with the manufacturer’s instructions.

Turn portable heaters off when leaving the room or going to sleep.

Keep a lid nearby when cooking. If a small grease fire starts, slide the lid over the pan and turn off the burner.

Electrical safety:

Only use one heat-producing appliance (such as a coffeemaker, toaster, space heater, etc.) plugged into a receptacle outlet at a time.

Check electrical cords to make sure they are not running across doorways or under carpets.

Extension cords are intended for temporary use. Have a qualified electrician add more receptacle outlets so you don’t have to use extension cords.

Call a qualified electrician or your landlord if you have frequent problems with blowing fuses or tripping circuit breakers; a tingling feeling when you touch an electrical appliance; a discolored or warm wall outlet; a burning or rubbery smell coming from an appliance; flickering or dimming lights; or sparks from an outlet.

Cooking safety:

Keep a close eye on what you’re cooking; never leave cooking food unattended. For foods with longer cook times, such as those that are simmering or baking, set a timer to help monitor them carefully.

Clear the cooking area of combustible items, keeping anything that can burn - such as dish towels, oven mitts, food packaging, and paper towels - at least three feet away from cooking equipment.

Turn pot handles toward the back of the stove. Keep a lid nearby when cooking. If a small grease fire starts, slide the lid over the pan and turn off the burner.

Create a “kid and pet free zone” of at least three feet around the cooking area and anywhere else hot food or drink is prepared or carried.

Smoke alarms, which reduce the risk of dying in a fire by more than half (54 percent), must be installed in all required locations and working properly. Home escape planning is another critical element of home fire safety, as people may have as little as two minutes to escape a home fire from the time the smoke alarm sounds. Knowing what to do when the smoke alarm sounds and using that time wisely is critical to safety.

NFPA offers home heating safety tips, information, and resources to help better educate the public about ways to safely heat their homes. In addition, NFPA’s “Put a Freeze on Winter Fires” campaign with the U.S. Fire Administration works to promote a host of winter safety issues, including home heating.

Pint-sized puppy does full-court press on heart research

BLACKSBURG - He may not shoot hoops like the players his Virginia Tech women's basketball coach namesake guides, but this Kenny Brooks, a five-month-old cavalier King Charles spaniel whose name the family shortens to Brooks, is dribbling his way into the hearts of researchers.

Kenny Brooks, a cavalier King Charles spaniel, shows off his game face on the court at Cassell Coliseum. As a key player in a cardiology study at the Virginia-Maryland College of Veterinary Medicine, this charming puppy is helping to unravel the mysteries of heart disease in his breed.

Owned by Dave '83 and Betsy Kohnke and their two daughters, Katie '23 and current Virginia Tech student Elise, Brooks plays a crucial role in advancing veterinary science. Betsy Kohnke said, "It's important that we contribute to research. We may not find out anything from this study, but we also might find out a lot."

This dedication is seen in their regular six-hour round trips from Richmond for echocardiograms, examining his heart for any indicators of abnormalities.

The Kohnke's previous cavalier, Frank Beamer, inspired their love for the breed and was the catalyst for their involvement in this study.

The names of both spaniels also reflect the family's enthusiasm for all things Hokie.

"The only way I could

bring a cavalier into a Hokie house was to name him after a VT coach," Betsy Kohnke said.

"Katie is a fanatic basketball fan and she got us into watching the women's basketball team," she said. "And we were like, Brooks, that's a great name."

The choice of name reflects not just their love for the sport but also their admiration for the character and sportsmanship of coach Brooks, who led the Hokies to their first Final Four appearance last season.

"I wouldn't have named my dog after him if I didn't believe he was a nice man."

Cavalier King Charles spaniels, like Brooks, are predisposed to heart conditions, particularly myxomatous mitral valve disease (MMVD). This disease, characterized by the improper closure of the heart's left valve, typically affects older dogs, many of whom never develop symptoms.

However, in breeds like the cavalier King Charles spaniel, MMVD can manifest earlier and more aggressively, potentially leading to congestive heart failure and premature death.

Mindy Quigley, clinical research coordinator, likens the heart's blood-pumping action to a room of people: "The room fills up, then the door opens, and every single person should leave. The door should close completely before a new group of people comes in. If anybody can sneak back in the door, that's when problems happen."

Researchers have observed that adult cavaliers, even those yet to develop the disease, exhibit distinct differences in the shape of their mitral valves when compared to adult dogs of other breeds.

"Naturally, our question then was: Are cavaliers born with a valve that is differently shaped?" Meciotti said. "Or do they develop these different shapes as they grow? And how does that predispose them to develop the disease compared to other breeds?"

Wharton letter speaks to harsh conditions of Civil War camps

RADFORD – Each week, Glencoe Mansion, Gallery and Museum educates the public about the history of the Wharton family.

General Gabriel Wharton and his wife Nannie Radford Wharton built and lived in Glencoe.

“Join us each week as we highlight the Wharton letters by learning what Gabe and Nannie were doing and thinking on this day in the 1860s,” Glencoe posted on its social media pages.

The latest post details Nannie’s concerns for her husband while he was on the battlefield during the Civil War.

“On Jan. 9, 1864, Nannie wrote to Gen. Wharton about her worries about him in winter camp (he was near Bull’s Gap, Tenn. at the time). “You must suffer with the cold, and the poor soldiers without shoes. I hate the idea of your being away and accomplishing nothing by exposure and absence except to break your men down and yourself too.”

This passage speaks not only to the concerns families at home had about their boys off at war, but also to the harsh conditions in camps during the Civil War. Camps were more sedentary during the winter months. Soldiers would build huts out of available materials, like wood and mud. The cold would be inescapable, especially as the War drug on and southern soldiers especially had issues obtaining supplies.

To learn more about Wharton’s life in camp, get a copy of “The Whartons’ War” in the Glencoe Mansion Gift Shop. Glencoe Mansion is open Wednesday to Saturday 10 a.m. – 4 p.m. and Sunday 1-4 p.m.

curse or threaten you with arrest. Do not be intimidated by this. Simply hang up and contact your bank, or the institution they claim to represent, at a number you research and locate yourself. Do not use the number they provide as they usually work in teams and someone else who is also involved in the scam will answer and continue the charade.

The source of an initial breach into the victim’s personal computer is generally unknown. It could be malware associated with a website the person has visited. It could also result from a phishing attack where the person receives an email from an unverified source and clicks a link or attachment in the message. Remember, it is always better to use your browser to go directly to a store or business website than it is to click a link in an unsolicited email.

To reiterate, many of the scams involve overseas actors and once the money is sent, be it by Bitcoin deposit, digital transfer or gift card number, law enforcement cannot recover that money. We urge you, please do not send money in these circumstances. Your bank will not tell you to purchase Bitcoin, and local law enforcement agencies are not going to ask you pay fines with gift cards to avoid arrest.

If you find yourself in these circumstances, please contact the police department before sending any money.

WORSHIP DIRECTORY

Generations to Come

Read Exodus 10:1 through 12:51

Floyd looked forward to the times his grandchildren visited. They reminded him of his youth with their energy and vitality. Floyd loved telling them the stories of his childhood, especially when he told them of how he came to Christ.

God also gave Israel an important story to pass on.

"This is a day you are to commemorate; for the generations to come you shall celebrate it as a festival to the Lord—a lasting ordinance" (Exodus 12:14).

Several times in today's reading God told the nation of Israel to share the events of the Passover with the generations that followed. Even today, people celebrate the Passover every year, and this reminds Israel's descendants that God delivered His people from bondage.

We too should learn from their example and pass on our experience of God's goodness to our children, grandchildren, nieces, nephews, and any others in our spheres of influence. God wants everyone we know to come to the saving knowledge of Christ and will gladly use our testimony to point them to that relationship with Him.

Thought for Today: God wants us to testify of our experiences as Christians to those who come after us.

Quicklook: Exodus 12:11-16

Lucas, Joe Morris

Joe Morris Lucas, 82, of Blacksburg, went to be with his wife and Heavenly Father Jan. 8, 2024, surrounded by his family.

Joe was born Dec. 24, 1941 to the late Harry Chapman and Ashley Armstrong Lucas, in Giles Co Virginia.

He graduated from Blacksburg High School in 1960 where he was an all-around athlete. After high school, Joe attended VPI & SU where he focused his studies on agriculture. Joe worked at Electro Tech for a few years until he was hired at the Virginia Tech Police Department. He worked through the ranks and retired as sergeant with 25 years of service. The police department was not just a profession but where he built his second family. His coworkers meant the world to him, and he looked forward to their annual reunion. Joe was a member of Price's Fork Community Church and Hunters Masonic Lodge #156.

Joe married the love of his life Wanda Wingate Lucas and they spent 58 wonderful years together. They raised three loving children, David Lucas (Pam); Timmy Lucas (Katie Reuss) and Amy Williams (Keith), all of Blacksburg. If you knew Joe, you knew that his greatest blessings were his grandchildren though, Joe Morris Lucas II, Matthew Lucas, Madelyn Williams and Tanner Williams are left to honor the man they knew as Paw Paw. Also left to cherish is memory are his siblings, Eugene Lucas, Galveston, Texas; Norma Hill, Blacksburg; Peggy Nickels (Henry) Tazewell; and Harriet Albert (Jerry) Blacksburg; as well as numerous nieces and nephews.

Joe's biggest accomplishments in life revolved around farming. Starting from the bottom, with just a few head of cattle, to growing Lucas Farm, known throughout the state of VA for his purebred Angus cattle. Joe was a member of the American Angus Association and the VA BCIA. He received numerous awards throughout the years for outstanding performance of his Angus bulls. The farm is where Joe mentored many boys on how to love the land and how to become men. The lessons were not always easy, nor politically correct, but the outcomes were always the same. Even up to his passing, Joe considered each of these boys as his own.

Joe always ensured that his children and grandchildren knew the importance of helping others, a sense of duty and a hard work ethic. This is evidenced by the numerous friends and accomplishments that he made throughout his life.

The family would like to extend their deepest thank you to many people. Dr. Billy Cox, Dr. Jason Fowlkes, Dr. Feras Ghosheh, and Dr. John Patterson, for always seeing the fight and never giving up on the man with nine lives. You are more than just MDs, you have become family. The ICU and ED nurses at LewisGale Montgomery especially Ashley French, Brenda Puckett, Aaron Wiley, and Bridget Wade for their love and compassionate care that he received in his final days. Amy Woods and Lauren Dudley for ensuring that every single need was met. Cinda McCoy for being the best care giver, neighbor and adopted daughter he could ask for. Doug and Gail Williams for the countless "chores" that he asked of them.

Funeral services will be conducted Saturday Jan. 13, 2024 at 11 a.m. at McCoy Funeral Home with Michael Hill and Robert Hill Jr officiating. Interment will follow in the Roselawn Memorial Garden. The family will receive friends Friday, Jan. 12, 2024 from 4-7 p.m., also at McCoy Funeral Home. Ferrum College's athletic colors are black and gold, the same as Radford High School. So, when Radford alum Cleive Adams was promoted from football coach to athletic director, it seemed only natural the school's new coach would also be familiar to the black and gold.

This week, Adams introduced Kevin Sherman to replace him. Sherman comes to Ferrum from the University at Buffalo, where he spent the last two years as wide receivers coach. He helped the Bulls to a 7-6 record, including an appearance and win in the 2022 Camellia Bowl. Sherman is the ninth head football coach in Ferrum history since the program began in 1955. He succeeds Adams, who served the past four years as head coach before assuming his role as Director of Athletics in December 2023. Sherman played football four seasons under legendary Coach

Hank Norton from 1987-90 and has over 30 years of coaching experience, coaching in four BCS bowl games and 11 bowl games total.

He most recently was the assistant head coach and coached the wide receivers at Murray State University. Sherman was wide receivers coach at Pittsburgh from 2015-18, and wide receivers coach at Purdue from 2013-14.

The Radford graduated from Ferrum in 1992, after serving as the team captain of the football team and being elected as the team MVP as a senior in 1990. He was inducted into Ferrum's Hall of Fame in 2012.

Sherman also spent seven years at Virginia Tech as wide receivers coach from 2006-12. During his time there, the Hokies went a combined 60-22 with seven bowl appearances, including four BCS bowl bids (2007 Orange, 2008 Orange, 2010 Orange, 2011 Sugar). Prior to Virginia Tech, Sherman spent five seasons at Wake Forest University (wide receivers), four at Ohio (wide receivers), four at Virginia Military Institute (recruiting coordinator), one season at Methodist University (wide receivers) and one at his alma mater Ferrum College (student assistant). Adams had taken over the coaching reins in 2020 and previously served as an assistant at the school in two different stints. He also played football at Ferrum.

Sherman will assume his new role officially on Feb. 1.

Virginia sports tourism generates billions of dollars in spending

Virginia Tourism Corporation recently announced sports tourism in Virginia generated $2.7 billion in direct spending in 2022, marking a 12% increase from 2021.

This growth was driven by 12.1 million sports travelers who participated in tournaments or attended other sports related events in Virginia as spectators.

Sports tourism in 2022 accounted for nearly 8% of Virginia's overall visitor economy, directly contributing $2.4 billion in visitor spending. Sports-related travelers in 2022 spent $7.3 million every day in Virginia, reflecting a substantial $1 million increase compared to 2019. Sports tourism also employed 28,138 Virginians in 2022 and drove $344 million in state & local tax revenues.

Among the industries impacted by travel, the largest contribution from sports tourism was towards Virginia's food and beverage sector, totaling $713.8 million, which equates to 27% of the overall spending share.

"We are thrilled to see how sports tourism helped power Virginia's tourism recovery," said Dan Roberts, Vice President of Research & Strategy for Virginia Tourism Corporation. "These numbers show the significant impact sports tourism has on the economic growth of communities across the Commonwealth by creating job opportunities, driving development in new infrastructure and venues, increasing tax revenue, and boosting local businesses in the area."

On a regional basis, the highest concentration of total

Sports tourism also employed 28,138 Virginians in 2022 and drove $344 million in state & local tax revenues.

sports spending is the Central and Southern Virginia region, which incorporates Richmond and Lynchburg. This region represents 32% of total sports spending—higher than other regions in the state. In 2022, the Central and Southern Virginia regions generated $849 million in sports spending, an increase of 10% from 2021.

The Northern Virginia region, which includes the Fairfax, Loudoun, and Prince William areas, ranks as the second-highest region for sports spending, generating $758 million in sports spending in 2022, an increase of 13.7% from 2021. The Coastal Virginia Region, including Virginia Beach and Williamsburg, generated $718 million in sports spending in 2022, an increase of 8% from 2021. The Western Virginia region's sports tourism economy, which includes the Shenandoah Valley and Roanoke, generated $355 million in sports spending in 2022, while posting the highest level of year-over-year growth from 2021, an increase of more than 25%.

"We are proud of our partners throughout the Commonwealth for their ongoing efforts to make Virginia a premier sports destination," said Danish Saadat, National Sales & Marketing Manager for Virginia Tourism Corporation and representative of Sports Virginia, the statewide collaboration of professionals from local convention and visitor bureaus, sports commissions, parks and recreation departments and facilities.

In 2020, the sports tourism sector in Virginia experienced a significant decline due to the COVID-19 pandemic, with a 38% reduction in visitation and a 47% decrease in spending. However, sports tourism played a pivotal role in Virginia's recovery from the pandemic with visitor spending fully recovering in 2021 and by 2022, exceeding pre-pandemic levels. In 2022, Virginia's sports spending exceeded 2019 levels by 17%, and sports visitation saw an 11% increase compared to 2019 levels.

To further speed recovery, Virginia Tourism Corporation utilized $1 million of the American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funds to support a Sports Marketing Incentive Program. The funds were used for event incentives and marketing promotions targeted specifically at attracting new sports tournaments and competitions to spur economic activity and travel across the Commonwealth.

Virginia Tourism Corporation collaborated with Tourism Economics to conduct this comprehensive impact study. For the purposes of this study, sports tourism includes only adult and youth amateur tournaments and collegiate tournaments featuring participants or spectators traveling more than 50 miles or staying overnight away from home. The study excludes all collegiate regular season games or other professional sports including minor league or mid-level professional games, as well as general recreation.

The economic impact of sports tourism was estimated using the regional Input-Output (I-O) model based on a customized IMPLAN model for Virginia, which also subdivided the Commonwealth into four regional areas for further measurement. Attendance data for sports events was gathered directly from Virginia's local sports tourism partners by Tourism Economics and applied into the analysis. Additionally, visitor profile data from Longwoods International visitor volumes and expenditures for travelers to Virginia participating in sports tourism were key inputs into the study.

Career night for Pedulla, Nickel in win over Tigers

Career-high scoring efforts from Sean Pedulla and Tyler Nickel propelled Virginia Tech to an 87-72 triumph over No. 21 Clemson on Wednesday night. Virginia Tech's 39 bench points to Clemson's 13 were key in the victory. Tech (10-5, 2-2) also held the lead for 37 of the game's 40 total minutes. Sean Pedulla led all scorers with a career-high 32 points on 6-for-10 shooting from long range and an 8-for-8 effort from the foul line.

Tyler Nickel joined Pedulla in double figures with a career-high 24 points on 5-for-7 shooting from 3-point range and an 8-of-11 effort from the field. Mekhi Long also put in a season-high scoring outing with eight points. Pedulla and MJ Collins had seven assists apiece. Ian Schefflin led four Tigers (11-4, 1-3) in double figures with 15 points.

The win marked Tech's first ranked win of the season and the Hokies' sixth ranked win inside Cassell Coliseum in their last seven tries. Sean Pedulla opened the scoring for the Hokies with a 3-pointer just over a minute in. Lynn Kidd followed with two baskets of his own. After missing their first shot, Tech hit four straight to go up 9-6.

Back-to-back baskets from Robbie Beran and another Pedulla 3-pointer put the Hokies up 17-9. Brandon Rechsteiner's first basket, a layup, gave Tech a 23-17 lead with around 10 minutes remaining in the half.

Pedulla's fourth 3-pointer gave him 19 first-half points. The Hokies took a 53-44 lead into the half. Both teams were scorching hot from the field in the first half, Clemson shooting 55% and Tech shooting 65%.

Two baskets each from Pedulla and Kidd opened the second-half scoring for Tech. Beran's second 3-pointer of the game earned the Hokies a 65-53 lead with 16 minutes to go.

Another Pedulla 3-pointer gave him his sixth on the game to put the Hokies up 63-54 with a little under 12 minutes to go. Pedulla's layup and free throw put him at a career high 28 points.

Long's layup put the Hokies back up six. Back-to-back jump shots from Nickel stretched the lead to nine at 75-66. Five minutes remained in the contest.

Three free throws from Nickel added to his career high with 24 points and boosted the Tech lead to 10. Beran followed with another 3-pointer to make the lead 11.

Mylyjael Poteat put an exclamation point on the game with a dunk. Tech defeated Clemson 87-72.

Notes

The Hokies are now 8-0 at Cassell Coliseum this season. The 8-0 start at home marked the second straight year the Hokies have opened the season at this mark.

The win tonight was a bounce back for the Hokies, losing both games to Clemson last season.

Tech is now 9-4 in the last 13 games against Clemson.

After being injured on a loose ball, Hunter Cattoor sat from the 11:50 mark in the first half on. He was scoreless for the first time this season.

After tying a career high of 26 at Florida State Saturday, Sean Pedulla improved that number tonight. On 9-16 shooting from the field, Pedulla poured in 32 points. He also grabbed a career-high four steals.

Tyler Nickel, stepping up in the absence of Cattoor, also set career highs tonight. Nickel poured in 24 points on five 3-point field goals.

Tech shot 13-24 (54%) from 3-point range.
