Commission receives bids for Courthouse upgrades

By Sarah Richardson

The Greenbrier County Commission met Tuesday, June 8, to open bids for the addition and renovation of the Greenbrier County Courthouse and sign an elder abuse awareness proclamation and WV Interactive Service Agreement.

The Commission received two bids for the courthouse project, one from Paramount Builders of Saint Albans with a base bid of $15,114,000, and another from SQP Construction Group of Saint Albans with a bid of $12,649,950. The extensive project includes the renovation of the existing courthouse building, as well as the construction of an addition. The recent demolition of the old jailhouse and the move of the historic Sears house were both completed in recent months to accommodate the new expansion.

"These bids will be brought to our engineer and architect," said Commissioner Tammy Shifflett-Tincher. "All information will be reviewed by them. We intend to award bids at our next county commission meeting on June 22 to determine the award and make sure that everything is compliant."

• The Commission signed a proclamation stating in part, "We are all responsible for building safer cities for Greenbrier County, West Virginia, whereas the well-being of Greenbrier County Seniors is in the interest of all, whereas the Greenbrier County Elder Abuse Awareness Committee will recognize June 15, 2021 as Elder Abuse Awareness Day."

The Commission made a motion to approve the proclamation, and "encourage all residents to recognize and

Elder Abuse Awareness Day June 15

Tuesday, June 15, is World Elder Abuse Awareness Day. The Greenbrier County Elder Abuse Awareness Committee is inviting the community to participate by becoming aware of the issue. Look for posters and ribbons throughout the community, as well as special wreaths and proclamations.

The purpose of this special day is to promote a better understanding of abuse and neglect of older persons. Every year approximately 5 million older Americans are victims of abuse, neglect or financial exploitation. Experts believe that for every reported case, as many as 17 cases go unreported. Greenbrier County has a population approaching 20 percent of adults over 55 years of age, so many are at risk for abuse, neglect or exploitation in our area. During the Covid-19 pandemic older adults are at a special risk as they may be isolated and dependent on others for care. Oftentimes caregivers members may be the abusers.

The Greenbrier County Elder Abuse Awareness Committee meets monthly and works to assist elder victims by promoting awareness, access to services, and prosecution of offenders. Special wreaths will be hung for the month of June at the County Courthouse in Lewisburg and City Halls throughout the county along with Proclamations declaring June 15 as World Elder Abuse Awareness Day. If you or an elder you know may be a victim of elder abuse reports can be made to APS at 304-647-7476, the Family Refuge Center at 304-645-6334, the Greenbrier Co. Prosecuting Attorney's office at 304-647-6616 or any local law enforcement agency. For further information about the Greenbrier Co. Elder Abuse Awareness Committee call 304-

WV soldier accounted for from World War II

The Defense POW/ MIA Accounting Agency (DPAA) announced recently that Army Pfc. John J. Sitarz, 19, of Weirton, killed during World War II, was accounted for May 27, 2020.

In November 1944, Sitarz was assigned to Company L, 3rd Battalion, 110th Infantry Regiment, 28th Infantry Division. His unit was engaged in battle with German forces near Germeter, Germany, in the Hürtgen Forest, when he was declared missing in action on Nov. 2. Sitarz could not be recovered because of the ongoing fighting, and his status was changed to killed in action on Nov. 3, 1945.

Following the end of the war, the American Graves Registration Command was tasked with investigating and recovering missing American personnel in Europe. They conducted several investigations in the Hürtgen area between 1946 and 1950, but were unable to recover or identify Sitarz's remains. He was declared non-recoverable in 1951.

While studying unresolved American losses in the Hürtgen area, a DPAA historian determined that one set of unidentified remains, designated X-2785 Neuville, recovered from a minefield west of Germeter in 1946 possibly belonged to Sitarz. The remains, which had been buried in Ardennes American Cemetery in 1949, were disinterred in 2018 and sent to the DPAA laboratory at Offutt Air Force Base, Nebraska, for identification.

To identify Sitarz's remains, scientists from DPAA used dental and anthropological analysis, as well as circumstantial evidence. Additionally, scientists from the Armed Forces Medical Examiner System used mitochondrial DNA (mtDNA), Y chromosome DNA (Y-STR), and autosomal DNA (auSTR) analysis.

Sitarz's name is recorded on the Tablets of the Missing at Henri-Chapelle American Cemetery, an American Battle Monuments Commission (ABMC) site in Hombourg, Belgium, along with the others still missing from World War II. A rosette will be placed next to his name to indicate he has been accounted for.

Sitarz will be buried at Arlington National Cemetery in Arlington, VA, at a date yet to be determined.

For family and funeral information, contact the Army Casualty Office at 1-800-892-2490.

DPAA is grateful to the ABMC and to the U.S. Army Regional Mortuary-Europe/Africa for their partnership

Typical Tentrr campsite

Gov. Jim Justice announced recently a new way to camp in style this spring and summer through a public-private partnership with Tentrr at four West Virginia State Parks. Online reservations are available for 37 new Tentrr campsites at Hawks Nest, Lost River, Blackwater Falls, and Cacapon Resort State Parks. The new Tentrr campsites at Hawks Nest and Cacapon Resort State Parks are available now for occupancy and the Tentrr campsites at Lost River State Park and Blackwater Falls State Park will be available for occupancy starting June 14.

Tentrr campsites offer cozy and comfortable stays for adventure enthusiasts and the outdoor-curious seeking an experience that is unique from traditional camping. These new campsites come fully equipped with a spacious canvas tent on a wooden deck and are furnished with a comfortable memory foam queen-size mattress, side tables, and a heater. The new sites also include a picnic table, fire pit with a grill, a solar shower, and portable camp toilet. Guests in these sites may also use the park's restroom facilities. An additional pop-up tent will be provided for extra guests, but campers will need to bring their own air mattresses or sleeping pads. Sites start at $85 for a single site and $139 for a double site. A two-night minimum is required when booking Tentrr campsites on weekends.

"West Virginia has natural beauty and outdoor recreation unlike any other place in the world. This new camping experience is one of many ways West Virginians and visitors to our state can enjoy the incredible state parks and forests we have right in our backyard," Gov. Justice said. "Investing in our West Virginia State Parks is a high priority for my administration because they deserve to be the very best places they can be. I thank our Tourism and DNR teams for their hard work on this partnership." The locations of each site will put campers in close proximity to some of West Virginia's most scenic areas. Hawks Nest is best known for its bird's eye view of the New River Gorge National Park and Preserve and its proximity to Fayetteville's many attractions. For a more secluded getaway, Lost River is home to 3,934 acres of woods and Cacapon Resort Teatures an array of outdoor activities, including miles of hiking and a lakefront beach. Its close proximity to several of West Virginia's most historic destinations, such as Berkeley Springs, Shepherdstown, and Harpers Ferry National Historical Park, makes the resort park especially unique.

Blackwater Falls State Park Tentrr camping sites will be available to book soon. Blackwater Falls State Park is known for the majestic falls as well as incredible hiking and scenery.

"We are thrilled to have this partnership with Tentrr," said West Virginia Division of Natural Resources Director, Stephen McDaniel. "Tentrr sites are renowned camping spots for outdoor experiences throughout the country and we're bringing them to West Virginia. There's no doubt it will generate more interest in our great state parks and forests."

"This partnership gives us another opportunity to proudly showcase the natural beauty of the State Parks in an inclusive way," said Todd King, VP of Marketing at Tentrr. "West Virginia is known for its outdoor adventure and we are making the experience of sleeping under the stars and enjoying nature better and more accessible for all. Through Tentrr, we hope West Virginia residents and out-of-state visitors alike will explore the incredible natural resources and parks the state has to offer. Tentrr makes it easy to find an amazing site to enjoy the state's vast landscapes and inspiring scenery." Guests can immediately begin booking and occupancy began June 2 at tentrr.

MRVA creates Critical Development Partnership The Meadow River Valley Association took a big step forward in the groundbreaking of the Rupert School Project at the former Elementary/High School property. In May, MRVA partnered with Woodlands Development Group to rehabilitate the former school site into lowincome senior housing units with a public health clinic on the first floor. The Woodlands Group is headed up by Dave Clark of Elkins, West Virginia, with Dustin Smith acting as the project manager. The Woodlands Group has more than 25 years of experience revitalizing and building community projects, including low-income housing, senior housing and community centers. Typically, Woodlands focuses its efforts in the Elkins/Randolph County area but could not resist the opportunity to provide community development for the Meadow River Valley. Dustin Smith notes, "We really want to expand our impact to other areas of the state. MRVA is a perfect partner for reaching areas that need support." Woodlands and MRVA established the Rupert School

LP and are in the process of applying for state and federal funding. Once complete the former school will house 10 one-bedroom units, four two-bedroom units, a health clinic, elevator and landscaped grounds. The project is part of the Meadow River Valley Community Center, which houses the Rupert Volunteer Fire Department, The West End Youth Sports League, and The Meadow River Valley Early Learning Center which includes a garden and cafeteria. The target ground-breaking for the Rupert School project is early 2022.

Nature's Way

By Karen Cohen Master Gardener/Photojournalist/Artist

Being Direct

Have you ever sown seeds directly into the soil or do you prefer to buy seedlings already started? It all depends on how much produce you desire, how much money you want to spend, and how quickly things can

Terms for growers:

Direct seeding vs. direct plants

Succession planting vs one-time planting

"Direct seed" fast growing lettuces, peas, radishes, mustard greens, corn, basil, cucumbers - all of which sprout out of the ground fairly quickly with help from rain and sunshine. Following the instructions on the seed packets, pay attention to spacing each seed to use the minimum amount of space for maximum results. Sow as directed with a few extra seeds here and there in case they don't all germinate. Once they do show some green above ground, you can gently pull out some if there are too many and be sure to leave the recommended growing space between each plant. This is called "thinning." It hurts to toss some out but the rest will grow big and healthy.

Corn seeds, for example, are sown about 4-6 inches apart in rows about 24-36" apart. Corn will emerge from the ground in warm temps in about 5-8 days and grows quickly. It pollinates when the wind carries its pollen from corn tassel to tassel, (the silky top part). Depending on all the conditions, corn can be ready for your family corn boil in 2 months during the summer. This year I am trying blue dwarf corn, said to be sweet with an average of two ears per stalk.

Lettuce is another fast grower. You can start to clip off the outer leaves for salads in a month-two months. This is why succession planting will give you another crop to look forward to after the first one stops growing or dies down. If you grow too many radishes right at the start of the growing season, they will all come to maturity at once. You might only need a handful of radishes for your salad, so plant just a row of seeds each week starting in spring and these little red veggies will grow right

I am partial to French breakfast radishes after eating them (in France) with butter and salt. Maisoui! Who ever thought you would find a dish of radishes at a bar but that's where they are served in France as a snack before cocktails. Try it, please. Radishes are a cinch to grow. The small little balls need some elbow room to grow. Space the seeds 4-6 inches apart and thin out sprouted seeds to keep 1-2 per every 4 inches for maximum size. Plant too close together will result in plenty of radish green tops with nothing under the soil but a skinny root. Yuk.

Veggies to put into the ground as "starts" or transplants are tomatoes, eggplants, peppers, broccoli, and onions. These all take a longer time to grow from seeds. Planting a two inch or more, healthy plant gives you a head start. Some folks begin in early spring and start these veggies indoors by seed and keep them under growing lights. This is fine if you plan to babysit your seedlings and keep them alive day to day. I leave that chore to the nurseries.

New (for me), this year is cheddar cauliflower plants I picked up locally as a six pack. Planted mid-spring, I already cut off the first orange head of cauliflower. Broken into pieces, we ate it raw in a salad. It has no cheesy taste but contains beta carotene due to the color orange. The heads grow large and mature in 60 days or so, another quick to harvest crop.

Please let me know how you prefer to grow your garden; all tips are welcomed. If you have any new veggies you are trying out, drop me an email: NaturesWayKaren@gmail.com.

What if college was free for all West Virginians?

By Don Smith, Executive Director West Virginia Press Association

What is "the future of West Virginia"?

Each year government leadership offers a new economic plan in hopes of improving the future of West Virginia.

New ideas are good. West Virginians should hope everyone running for elected office thinks they have the answer, or at least a new idea. After all, when your state has been at the bottom of most national economic and social rankings for generations, the status quo isn't the answer. We've spent decades proving bad can get worse.

In recent years, "the future of West Virginia" has been natural gas, tourism, free community college and elimination of state income tax.

Natural gas and tourism are definitely growing industries in West Virginia, though perhaps not as fast as expected in the case of natural gas or as revenue intensive as hoped in the case of tourism, which has been slowed by COVID. As for eliminating the state income tax to attract new residents, well, that one is still up for debate.

The best answer? The smart money is on education. When it comes to the future of West Virginia, education offers a life-long payoff. Education is never about the immediate benefit, but it may solve the most problems.

In fact, West Virginia's leadership might want to increase its support of education.

What if we make all college education free for West Virginia residents?

Education turns our current negatives into positives. The benefits would be immediate and measurable if the state provided the "last-dollar-in funding" for all gradeeligible students:

- Each child in the state would immediately be able to afford a college education - a positive change.
- In a few years, West Virginia would have the most educated workforce in the nation - a positive change.
- Our universities and colleges would see increased
- and stable enrollment a positive change. State funds spent on higher education would directly
- benefit residents of all 55 counties as well as the institutions - a positive change. • Every college saving plan would become disposable
- income a positive change. • West Virginia college graduates would not have
- massive student loan debt a positive change.
- Our young people would have another good reason to consider staying and raising their families in West Virginia - a positive change.
- Families who value education would have a new rea-
- son to move to West Virginia a positive change. · Businesses and industries needing an educated workforce would have a new reason to consider West Virginia - a positive change.

• West Virginia becomes the education state - a positive change.

If West Virginia's goals are to improve the quality of life for our current residents, attract new people, improve our workforce and change our image, education is a win-win.

With free college, we attract new families who value education while offering the same benefit to our current residents. West Virginia parents who are struggling economically would know if their children get the grades, they can go to college and have more opportunities.

West Virginia would be more attractive to families across this nation. If we reduce in-state college costs for new residents by 25 percent each year, parents know that college is free for their children after four years of living in West Virginia. Families - with their related household spending, home and auto needs, and community involvement - are economic drivers.

Potential new businesses and industries would find a better workforce, and their current employees would also have a reason to move here.

Can we eliminate the state income tax and provide free college education?

Probably not, but would residents - current and potential - be willing to pay income taxes to give their children and grandchildren a free college education? For decades, we have accepted and supported public funding of 12 years of education for our children. What if a better future for our citizens and state now requires four years of public-funded college?

People work to afford a better life, a better house, a better community and a better state. They know being cheaper isn't the same as being better. If the question is how to make West Virginia better, education is the answer.

Local agriculture vital to WV's economic future

By Kent A. Leonhardt

West Virginia Commissioner of Agriculture

As the national food system came to a screeching halt in the early days of the pandemic, the demand for food increased, providing a unique opportunity for local agriculture. This opportunity was only possible due to the hoarding of supplies, the closure of restaurants and outbreaks in large scale processing causing an inability to garner normal goods from large chain grocers. To find the necessary nutrition, consumers were forced to turn towards local producers or processors to fill gaps. Luckily, our local farmers took this challenge head on forging a better relationship with consumers and showing the importance of home-grown agriculture to our wellbeing. With the pandemic in our rear-view mirror, this next growing season will determine if we learned our lessons of the past or will consumers revert to large scale agriculture.

There are plenty of signs that local agriculture is thriving in the Mountain State. Since the West Virginia Department of Agriculture took over the regulation of farmers' markets, we have seen those markets double in number. This has been accomplished by reducing burdensome regulations to open new avenues for producers to sell their products. The other half of the equation is more and more consumers want to know their farmer. These customers value knowing how someone raises or grows their product and where exactly it comes from. It's this commitment that can really help our communities experience economic growth, as well as create resiliency in case of future pandemics.

Another indicator of growth is the boom within local meat production. Over the last year, meat processing is up 200% and livestock slaughter up 41%. Most processors are telling their customers they are booked solid for the next year. This increased demand is a direct result of the lack of product we saw within our chain grocery stores. For this trend to continue, habits must change, but we also must scale up production by either expanding existing facilities or allowing new facilities to enter market gaps. What it will take is lifting some federal regulations, as well as local investments. The new Buzz Foods facility, located in Kanawha County, is a perfect example of an opportunity to grow our livestock industry and create greater access to local meats. We need to replicate their model throughout the state.

Unfortunately, not all agriculture industries saw a bump during the pandemic, and with June being National Dairy Month, it's a perfect time to highlight and support West Virginia's operations. A lack of increased demand is nothing new to U.S dairy, as consumption has plateaued in recent decades. At the same time, technology has brought efficiencies to the industry requiring less cows to maintain production levels. The solution is innovation by either creating micro-distilleries or adding value to the fluid milk with products such as cheese. Either avenue takes a commitment from us, the consumers, to support these innovations, as well as state's lifting regulations to foster innovation. By allowing these businesses to adapt, they can move into new demand gaps allowing these home-grown businesses to survive.

If you haven't caught on to the message I am trying to get across, it's simply that local agricultural systems are not only vital to our economy but to the health of our citizens and the state's ability to navigate a pandemic. How we support those farmers is by reducing regulations, opening new market opportunities, helping them embrace innovation and, most importantly, supporting them with consumer demand. Therefore, this summer I am calling on all West Virginians to show gratitude to those who kept us fed when national food systems crumbled last year. During Dairy Month, get to know your local dairy farmer and visit your communities' farmers' market. Understand why these hard-working folks chose this career path, how they make their product and why it matters to our communities. Get out and support a local producer because home-grown agriculture is vital to West Virginia's future.

Richlands Ruritans learn about Meadow River Valley

The Richlands Ruritans club met on May 12 at the Calvary Methodist Church in the Richlands community. The featured speaker for the dinner meeting was David M. Lumsden of the Meadow River Community Association.

The Meadow River Community Association was formed after the floods of 2016 that devastated the local communities along the Meadow River. The association covers the areas of Eastern Fayette County and Western Greenbrier County. Working with the Long-Term Disaster Recovery Committee, which is funded by the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), the association seeks to rebuild the local community services and expand these services to encompass a greater part of the Meadow River Valley citizens.

The association has re-purposed the old Rupert Elementary School to provide services such as senior living facilities, early childhood development and medical services. Other projects underway are expanded recreation trails, and assistance in rebuilding local businesses.

Other Ruritan business conducted at the meeting was to promote the Pesticide Recycling project on May 15; and approve the proposal to fund a scholarship at the Greenbrier 4-H Camp.

The Richlands Ruritans club meets on the second Wednesday of each month for a dinner meeting at the Calvary Methodist Church on Route 60W. Wildlife crossings reduce collisions, impact of roads in natural areas

By Nadia Ramlagan for WVNS

Wildlife crossings such as green bridges or other structures that allow animals to cross roadways safely have been shown to reduce wildlife-vehicle collisions. Lawmakers, including Sen. Shelley

Moore Capito (R-WV), have allocated $350 million toward a pilot wildlife-crossings program as part of the recently unveiled Surface Transportation Reauthorization Act. Mike Leahy, director of wildlife hunting and fishing policy with the National Wildlife Federation, said West Virginia consistently ranks as one of the top states for collisions between wildlife and vehi-He said most of the funding will be used to support projects in rural areas.

"Wildlife crossings and other strategies like underpasses and fencing," said Leahy, "proven really good for keeping wildlife populations moving."

According to the Federal Highway Ad ministration, the total cost of damages from wildlife-vehicle collisions is estimated to be more than $8 billion dollars each year. The bill, which also authorizes more than $300 billion for upgrades to highways, roads and bridges nationwide, currently sits with the Senate Environment and Public Works Subcommittee on Transportation Infrastructure.

Leahy said West Virginia's rich outdoor heritage and hunting and fishing economy depend on habitat connections that wildlife crossings ensure aren't lost to road development.

"The infrastructure bill includes funding for research, on how to reduce those collisions and what the best methods and tools are," said Leahy. "It includes training for workers on how to build the projects that reduce those collisions."

West Virginia's outdoor recreation industry generates more than $3 billion annually and contributes to more than 91,000 jobs.

Barbershop harmony is a style of unaccompanied vocal music that was rooted in the African-American traditions of the late 1800s in the south. It became wide-

The A.A. McLaughlin Scholarship was started in 2001 and the fund is invested and managed by the Greenbrier Valley Community Foundation. Since the start, the program has awarded 37 scholarships to Greenbrier East students based on accomplishment need. $33,000 has been awarded over that time period. In the beginning, a single $500 scholarship was awarded each year. The fund has grown to the point that in most years three $1,000 scholarships are awarded annually.

Dear Recycle Lady,

Hi Recycle Lady,

My biggest conundrum with recycling is the apparent absence of options for utilizing green &/or brown glass bottles. Although they cannot be "recycled" into new containers is there not some way they can be utilized? I'm not talking about putting them in walls or gardens, but on a large scale. Can they not be crushed and returned to a "sand" state and used as fill? I am probably not giving up wine or beer in the near future and being able to "do something" with the empties would make it so much tastier. I buy cans when available, but...

What Do To

Dear What To Do,

Have you considered calling Greenworks Recycling at 304-661-7793? They are proud to be one of the last glass recyclers in West Virginia. Greenworks is unable to provide glass collection for free as processing glass is very expensive. Two plans are available for collection. One of the plans is a monthly fee of $14 for the biweekly collection of recyclables in the Lewisburg area. The other plan is payment of a flat fee of $25 to come pick up glass at your location, as well as all other recyclables. Greenworks must charge for this service as they must pay their buyer to come pick up the glass and take it to the processor. The processed glass is then sold to several buyers, the largest of which is Pink Panther insulation.

According to science.howstuffworks.com, glass recycling in the U.S. is broken. There seems to be several reasons for this. One of the biggest reasons is that 80% of U.S. communities use single-stream recycling where all recyclables are put in the same bin. This method doesn't work very well when glass is included as glass containers often break, causing shards of glass to be mixed with other recyclables. Hopefully, manufacturers are looking for ways to improve recycling of glass as glass is 100% recyclable and can be recycled endlessly with no loss in quality. Deposit laws have improved glass recycling and states with deposit laws collect glass three times what states without deposit laws do. However, this rate doesn't begin to match the 90% rate of glass recycling by European Countries. Perhaps our legislature should consider a deposit law for glass bottles and containers.

Dear Recycle Lady,

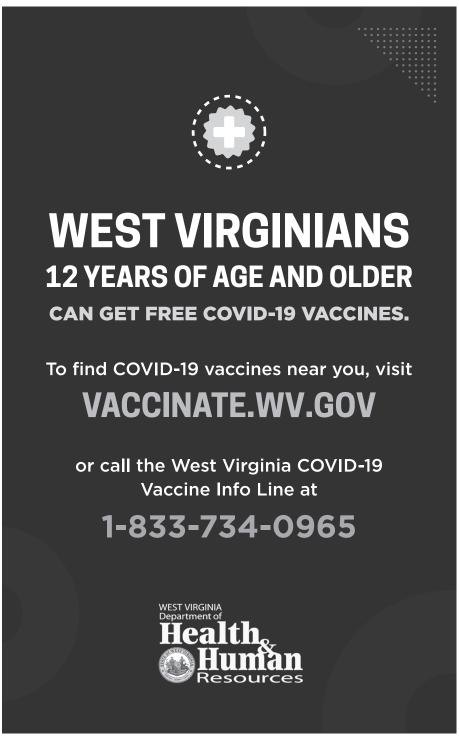

I use a sponge to wash dishes every day, but now they say that this is not a good thing to do. What are sponges made of that make them a poor choice?

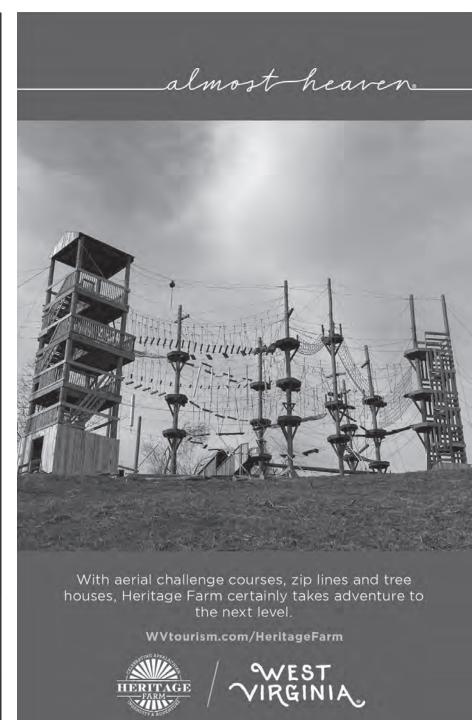

Dishwasher

Dear Dishwasher,

Sponges were first used some 2.5 billion years ago, according to www.shapeoflife.org and were made from sea sponges. They came in many shapes and sizes and were the very first animal. Ancient Greece competitors in the Olympic Games bathed themselves with sea sponges soaked in olive oil. Today, most all kitchen sponges are made with plastic. They hold water, which breeds bacteria and can spread germs. There are plastic-free, planet-friendly, sponge alternatives - made of coconut. They're perfect for pet dish scrubbers too. Over 400 million sponges that are made of plastic are thrown away every year and take centuries to break down.

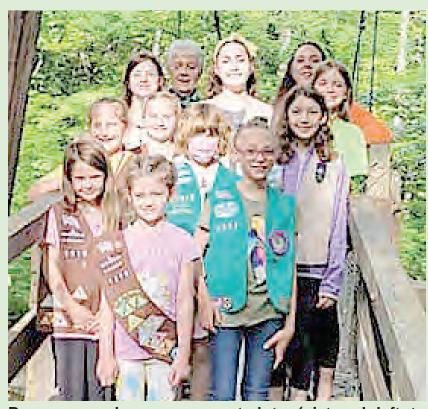

Have questions about recycling, or interesting information about recycling? Send questions or requests to recyclelady@greenbrier-swa.com. Dear Recycle Lady is sponsored jointly by the Greenbrier Recycling Center and Greenworks Recycling.

WV health experts worry new law will ignite 'powder kegs' amid HIV outbreak

By Lauren Peace for Mountain State Spotlight

This story was originally published by Mountain State Spotlight. For more stories from Mountain State Spotlight, visit www.mountainstatespotlight.org.

West Virginia is facing its second large HIV outbreak in two years, and the federal government is in Charleston to help. But there's a key difference between the tools that are available now, and the ones the Centers for Disease Control and Prevention could use during Cabell County's 2019 outbreak: new restrictions from both the capital city and the state on programs that distribute sterile syringes.

including Experts, those at the CDC, agree that these sort of harm reduction programs are one of the most effective ways to prevent the rapid transmission of disease among people who inject drugs.

But the recent changes are making it difficult to most effectively respond to the outbreak in Charleston.

"We've kind of got our hands tied behind our back because of the new laws," said Christine Teague, program director for the Ryan White HIV prevention program at Charleston Area Medical While Charleston grapples with the current outbreak, health leaders around the state fear that the syringe access services (sometimes called needle exchanges) in their own communities will be forced to shut down because of the new laws. If that happens, they say, they're worried that what's playing out in Charleston will happen in their communities, too.

More than half of the state's 55 counties are among the 220 most vulnerable counties in the United States for the spread of infectious disease, according to the

"There are powder kegs out there waiting for the fuse to be lit," Teague said, when asked if she was concerned about the possible emergence of HIV clusters around West Virginia. "It just takes one case."

'I can't risk the fines'

Although the new state law doesn't explicitly outlaw syringe distribution, it imposes strict limits on how many needles can be distributed, who has the authority to distribute them, and who is eligible to receive them.

It also forces programs to enforce policies that contradict CDC best practices, such as labeling syringes, requiring a valid state ID and requiring participants to return a needle to get a clean one. The changes were opposed by public health experts and leave the health officials currently responding to the outbreak with fewer resources to prevent further spread.

Mountain State Spotlight reached out to the 16 harm reduction programs the West Virginia Department of Health and Human Resources lists as providing syringe access services in the state. We heard back from nine of

Of those, only one —

West Virginia Health Right in Charleston said that it was confident it would be able to continue operating next year given the new legislation.

In contrast, Lloyd White, who heads the Marion County Health Department, said his program would be permanently closing because of the new laws.

"We're still in the middle of a pandemic. I can't risk the fines. I just can't take a chance on a hit from our general health revenue," White said. "I think we're going to see an explosion of downstream effects. HIV, Hep C... all the things that these programs prevent."

WVSOM dean Craig Boisvert, D.O., recognized in Health Care Hall of Fame

Just months before he will retire this summer, Craig Boisvert, D.O., FACOFP, was named a West Virginia hall of fame inductee.

The West Virginia School Osteopathic Medicine (WVSOM) vice president for academic affairs and dean, along with 10 other health care professionals, were inducted into West Virginia Executive magazine's annual Health Care Hall of Fame.

Publication staff honor professionals who have an impact on health care in West Virginia. That may mean starting a unique business to meet a high-demand need, developing medical devices to improve treatment, acting as a trailblazer in the industry, leading efforts to treat underserved populations or finding unique ways to address the state's health issues.

"I graduated from medical school 39 years ago. I was in practice for 29 years, 25 in Lewisburg, and have been associated with WVSOM for 33 years. It certainly is nice to have received this honor as I step down from my position as dean," said Boisvert, who is set to retire in June.

Boisvert began his career at WVSOM as a faculty member and was a family physician for 25 years at the Robert C. Byrd Clinic. After five years as faculty, he was selected to serve as chair of the school's family practice section, where he served for a decade. He then became chair of the Department of Clinical Sciences for seven years, a position he thought would be the culmination of his career. He was selected to become WVSOM's dean about seven years ago.

The Vermont native, who now considers West Virginia his home, said there are many rewarding aspects to being a health care professional in West Virginia.

"Being able to participate in people's lives and help them with their health care needs is extremely rewarding. Watching students move through their years of medical school and graduate as physicians is extremely rewarding. Having the opportunity to participate on state and national committees and in state and national organizations to improve health care at the state and national level is also extremely rewarding. I can honestly say it does not seem like I have been doing this for almost 40 years, and that it has been a rewarding experience," he said.

Boisvert said being a medical school dean is similar to a school principal. His job includes supervising faculty, maintaining responsibility for the curriculum, counseling and, when necessary, disciplining students and managing the bud-

Throughout his more than three decades in the medical field, he has received many awards, including the West Virginia Immunization Network Immunization Advocate Award, WVSOM's President's Award for Excellence for Outstanding Clinical Sciences faculty and WVSOM's yearly Outstanding Employee Award. He has also been inducted into the American Osteopathic Association's Mentor Hall of Fame.

The osteopathic physician said that he is grateful to have been recognized with awards for his work during the course of his career, but is more grateful each year to see students who will join him as colleagues in the field.

"Obviously, we all appreciate recognition that our work is important and our efforts have been noticed," he said. "Those of us at WVSOM are reminded yearly of our efforts when, at graduation, 200 new physicians cross the stage, receive their diplomas and join the health care ranks"

Boisvert said he is pleased West Virginia Executive is recognizing the work of health care professionals in West Virginia.

"Health care is so important to a state. Often start-up choices made by businesses or choices by individuals of where to retire are dependent upon health care availability. Health care makes a huge economic impact and is a leading employer in this state. I think it is perfectly appropriate for the magazine to acknowledge the contribution of the industry through its yearly Health Care Hall of Fame edition," he

Each award recipient's story can be found in the Winter 2021 edition of West Virginia Executive. An in-person awards banquet will take place June 24 at the Embassy Suites by Hilton in Charleston, WV.

WVSOM President James W. Nemitz, Ph.D., said it was fitting for Boisvert to be recognized in the Hall of Fame.

"I could not be happier for my longtime colleague for being inducted into the Health Care Hall of Fame after a long, distinguished career as a physician and medical school educator and administrator. Dr. Boisvert is an outstanding example of a person who has truly made a difference in the lives of others. I wish the best for him and his family as he begins the next phase of his life."
