'TubaChristmas' comes to town this weekend By Adam Pack

Lewisburg looks to add a new Christmas tradition to its repertoire with its own rendition of "TubaChristmas." The first TubaChristmas, a gathering of artists playing a variety of instruments in the "big horn" family, was conducted at Rockefeller Plaza in New York in 1974. It was the brainchild of Harvey Phillips, who wanted to honor the memory of his childhood mentor William J. Bell. Bell was an influential music educator and stellar tuba player who was, importantly, born on Christmas Day 1902. Paul Lavalle conducted the first ever TubaChristmas in New York and it has been a staple there ever since, and has spread to communities all around the county.

Jim Alder, Greenbrier East High School Band Director, is organizing Lewisburg's first TubaChristmas. Alder has been attending Tuba Christmases in both Harper's Ferry and Alexandria since 2016, and says that those small town celebrations acted as the inspiration for wanting to organize a TubaChristmas here in Lewisburg.

"Harper's Ferry and Alexandria's Old Town are such historic places and to see this, which is a tribute originally, in and around so much history, it made me think that Lewisburg would be perfect for this sort of thing. We've got a really beautiful, historic region," said Nature's Way Alder, who believes that See "TubaChristmas" By Karen Cohen _ Page 2 actually started in Connecticut at my horse farm, where people were always bringing us cats and we'd find them homes, but that started to get expensive," she explained.

Whitcomb, together with Missy VanMeter and other volunteers, runs the Friends of Ferals no-kill rescue with a goal of reducing the feral cat population in and around the Greenbrier Valley. The group focuses on the "trap, neuter, and release" model for feral cats who are simply too wild to be adopted, and also works to socialize kittens so they can be placed into homes.

"My first 501(c)(3) was started in Connecticut, and as we got more into it we started to realize the feral colonies were where lots of the kittens are coming from," said Whitcomb. "We focus on TNR (trap/neuter/ release) as we try and find a more permanent solution to the problem and stop it at the source."

The TNR model is applied when a healthy adult cat that has a safe living situation is spayed or neutered to prevent them from producing more kittens and exacerbating the homeless cat population numbers. They are given a rabies shot, are ear-tipped to show that they are

Local beekeepers produce award-winning honey

Appalachian Beekeeping Collective's Black Locust Honey won the top prize in the "Made in the South" category

By Adam Pack

Last month, the popular lifestyle magazine Garden and Gun announced that the Appalachian Beekeeping Collective's Black Locust Honey won the top prize in the "Made in the South" category for their 2020 food awards. The ABC's Black Locust honey took the top spot over other raw and natural foods from around the south.

The Appalachian Beekeeping Collective is a subsidiary of Appalachian Headwaters, a non-profit organization whose goal is to restore areas that have been deforested due to mountaintop mining, and is headquartered here in Lewisburg.

The group uses methods to help foster reforestation and conservation, but their chief one is the Appalachian Beekeeping Collective, an organizing hub for local smallscale beekeeping operations in the area, across both Virginia and West Virginia.

The ABC collects and markets various keepers' honey and splits the profits between compensation for the keepers themselves and the charitable work of Appalachian Headwaters. The ABC also donates honey for every purchase made. See "Honey" ____ Page 4 this tradition could begin with between 25 and 40 players performing.

The event will take place in the Greenspace downtown on Saturday, Dec. 11. Registration will be held in Academy Park at New River's campus. Registration will begin at 11 a.m. and conclude at 11:45. Participants are encouraged to register early and warm up in the interval so the group can jump right into rehearsal.

In the case of inclement weather, the registration and concert will be held at Hill and Holler.

Participants are required to bring with them a $10 registration fee, their instrument (tuba, euphonium, baritone, sousaphone, tenor horn, flugelbone, ophicleide, etc.), a folding music stand, festive clothing, and a copy of "Carols for a merry TubaChristmas," by Alec Wilder, the official songbook of TubaChristmas. Alder states that according to TubaChristmas policy, photocopies of the songbook are not allowed, but stand partners may share one songbook. Books will be available for purchase at the registration table for $20 (small) or $25 (large). There will be both BC and TC versions available.

Rehearsals will cease at 1 p.m., and participants will be given a break for lunch and shopping in downtown Lewisburg until 2:45. Then, after reconvening and returning, the concert will begin at 3 and end at 4.

Taking the baton to conduct is Mercer County native and euphonium instructor for the U.S. Army School of Music, Brianna Williams.

Red Cross: Donors needed to address historically low blood supply

Limited-edition long-sleeved T-shirts for those who come to give around holidays

Nearly two years into the pandemic, everyone has earned a holiday break with their family and friends. But as the nation gathers again for celebrations this season, the American Red Cross, which provides 40% of the country's blood, is facing historically low blood supply levels.

Busy holiday schedules, breaks from school and winter weather all contribute to a drop in blood donations this time of year. Those factors, combined with the ongoing challenges of COVID-19, make it vital for donors to make an appointment to give as soon as possible. If more donors don't come forward to give blood, some patients requiring a transfusion may potentially face delays in care. Donors are urged to schedule an appointment now by using the Red Cross Blood Donor App, visiting Red-CrossBlood.org or calling 1-800-RED CROSS (1-800-733-2767). There is no blood donation waiting period for those who have received a flu shot or a Moderna, Pfizer or Johnson & Johnson COVID-19 vaccine or booster, so long as they are symptom-free.

Nature's Way By Karen Cohen Master Gardener/Photojournalist/Artist

Fun Fun-gi

I have three books on my desk that I am reading, all of which are about mushrooms, specifically the identification of mushrooms and the growing of mushrooms. I'm interested in both. How about you?

Identification is of utmost importance when it comes to eating mushrooms in the wild. According to science and research there are about 100 mushrooms that are toxic to humans. One is toxic just by coming in contact with our skin: Poison Fire Coral fungus. Recently found in Australia, it can cause skin rash and irritation. Ingesting it is worse. Reports of shrinking cerebellum (the brain!), decrease in white blood cells and more harmful and horrible effects have been reported.

My intent is not to unleash a fear of all things found in the forest. Remember that Nature is our friend and provides clean air, fresh water, and bountiful harvests (if we treat her right). Nature often gives us clear ALERT signals. Red=stop, yellow=slow down, not just in traffic lanes but often in our natural environment. Some, not all, bright red and yellow objects in nature should be approached with caution and identified before touching or consuming.

Avoid these: Red coachwhip snake, Poison Dart Frogs, holly berries, and yew seeds, are just a few examples.

Amanita muscaria or fly amanita is a bright red mushroom with white polka dots. Very easy to identify and definitely toxic. This is the mushroom we might recognize from Alice in Wonderland's story of the smoking caterpillar sitting on a red toadstool! People used to chop it up and mix it in a bowl of milk to attract and kill flies.

Sometimes mushrooms can pop up in our house plants or garden pots. That's an indication that the soil has spores in it and is contaminated. In nurseries and hot houses, spores get trapped inside and mushrooms may pop up in the cracks of soil or potted plants for sale. Don't eat these mushrooms, often yellow in color. Dump the soil out into a plastic bag, wrap it up and dispose of it. Remove the plant, wash it under cool water, and plant it in fresh potting soil bought from a reputable garden supply shop.

Mushrooms drop their spores all over the place; carried through the air, on your shoes by walking on spore laden soil, on insects and birds, spores float around and eventually come to rest. Maybe the spores "fruit" in a few months or maybe even decades later. They are live matter and you can purchase spores to grow your own mushrooms.

A mushroom is a fungus and not a plant. Growing your own can be a fun hobby or a very profitable business. We grow Shiitake mushrooms on cut oak logs with drilled holes to place mushroom plugs. We bought the spore enriched sawdust "plugs" from a local reliable mushroom grower and studied just when/where/how to grow shitakes. When you grow your own contamination is something you avoid like the plague! That means all your tools, gloves, planting material, etc. have to be sterilized before releasing your mushroom spores. This is the only way to grow exactly what you intend to grow by keeping out foreign or unknown substances such as mold or other spores, insects, etc.

Mushroom kits can be bought online and are great for kids to learn about growing their own food. Familiarize yourself with the varieties and names such as Pearl Oyster mushrooms, Portobellos, and Lion's Mane. These three are easy to grow and delicious to eat. Mushrooms are a great source for protein and contain iron, zinc, potassium and more beneficial minerals that our bodies need. Some mushrooms are purported to fight cancerous cells in our bodies, too.

Commentary Addressing the public health crisis in WV

By Mark Drennen, CEO of the WV Behavioral Healthcare Providers Association

Too many West Virginians are dying from drug overdoses. We have been in this crisis for years and unfortunately, according to new government data, the crisis is growing. In the past year, we lost 1,607 of our friends and neighbors to drug overdose deaths - a 62% increase over the year before.

These deaths are preventable, but only if people have access to quality addiction treatment. Nationally, it's estimated that only one in 10 Americans with an addiction receives treatment in any given year.

We were in this crisis before Covid hit. The pandemic only made matters worse. But it is my hope that we are on the verge of charting a better course forward, one that can make life better for thousands of West Virginians, their families and their communities.

In 2020, West Virginia joined a growing movement to expand access to quality mental health and substance use care. Certified Community Behavioral Health Centers (CCBHCs) receive federal funding to provide 24-hour crisis care and evidence-based services to anyone in need of mental health or substance use treatment services, regardless of ability to pay. West Virginia had three CCB-HCs operating in 2020. And this summer, three additional CCBHCs came online in our state.

We know from other states that have been part of the CCBHC program for several years that CCBHCs increase staff to expand access to comprehensive services, stabilize people in crisis and provide the necessary treatment for those with the most serious, complex mental illnesses and substance use disorders. Among the hallmarks of CCBHCs is their ability to improve access for rural populations and provide tailored care for activeduty military and veterans. Through collaborations with law enforcement, CCBHCs divert people in crisis from jails, reduce hospitalizations and emergency department visits and generate cost savings for taxpayers.

CCBHCs are positioned to change the way mental health and substance use care is delivered in West Virginia. But funding for the CCBHC program requires regular renewal from Congress, which can create uncertainty for providers and communities alike. Fortunately, Congress is considering legislation that would address that.

The bipartisan Excellence in Mental Health and Addiction Treatment Act (S. 2069/H.R. 4323) would allow any state the option to apply to participate in the CCBHC demonstration program and would establish a sustainable financing option to support their operations. Currently, this option is limited to 10 states and West Virginia is not one of them. The legislation also would authorize funding for individual provider organizations to receive CCBHC Expansion Grants via the Substance Abuse and Mental Health Services Administration (SAMHSA). This is the path that has funded West Virginia's clinics.

West Virginians have always prided ourselves on taking care of one another and the Excellence Act is an opportunity to do just that. As we are grateful for the sponsorship by Senator Shelley Moore Capito and Rep. David McKinley, we still are urging our congressional delega-fixed, given flea and parasite medications, given a checkup, and released back to their old stomping grounds if it's deemed a safe place for them to live. The abundance of farms in southern West Virginia easily leads to growing cat populations when the animals are not fixed, and such a situation can quickly grow out of hand. Their website explains, "Cats that are healthy and have a caretaker are returned to their colony. Those that are too old or sick remain with us. Any cats that are deemed adoptable are sent to other rescues in the New England area to be adopted." "In West Virginia the cat population problem is huge, and our main focus is the TNR," said Whitcomb. She and her husband originally selected Alderson as a place to retire, and found a house that offered enough land for her to build a structure to operate Friends of Ferals. The couple moved here in 2017, and they work with both local organizations as well as some from up north.

through the WVDNR's electronic licensing system at WVdnr.gov or at authorized license agents throughout the state.

This year alone, the Friends of Ferals organization has completed over 350 trap, neuter, and release cases, with each surgery costing from $60 to $75.

"We did one colony last year where the woman said she thought she had 20 or so cats, but we ended up catching 61," she said. "She told me it started three years earlier, and that doesn't include the number that have passed away. That's just one example of what we do. We usually do three to five huge colonies a year, and occasional strays when people call us and we have the funding."

While Friends of Ferals works to reduce growth of feral cat populations, they also strive to socialize cats and kittens young enough to adapt to living with humans. If the cats are socialized early enough, they are adopted out into carefully selected forever homes.

"If they don't get socialized, they aren't adoptable," said Whitcomb, so time is of the essence when it comes working with litters of kittens born into a feral environment.

Whitcomb explained that they try to not go above housing a maximum of 20 or so adoptable cats at any given time on the premises, which is a difficult feat during peak kitten season.

"We need fosters during kitten season, sometimes as early as March. Recently, kitten season has been out of control," she said.

However, some cases that Friends of Ferals comes across are more complicated than others, and the group finds themselves helping severely injured cats whenever they are able.

"We take in anywhere from four to eight severe cases a year, roughly. We have taken in four this year that have needed amputations due to injuries. Our latest case was Annual licenses can also be purchased as gifts by calling the WVDNR licensing team at 304-558-2758. If the recipient has previously held a license, only the recipient's name and date of birth will need to be provided.

"The Hunting & Fishing License Giveaway has been a success for years now and this year we are thrilled to expand the giveaway to include nonresident entries as well," said WVDNR Director Stephen McDaniel. "We appreciate the Governor's support of efforts like this one that promote outdoor recreation and encourage more and more people to take up hunting and fishing in West Virginia."

For more information about the Hunting & Fishing License Giveaway including official rules and prize descriptions, visit WVdnr.gov/licensegiveaway. The WVDNR also reminds hunters and anglers to follow all hunting, fishing, and trapping regulations and to always practice safety when engaging in outdoor activities.

Additionally, hunters are reminded of another opportunity to win prizes. The Big Buck Photo Contest is open to submissions until Dec. 27. Those interested in entering the contest should upload a photo with their buck harvest from the 2021 hunting season as well as a short written account of their hunt to the entry form at WVdnr.gov/photocontest. A valid 2021 WV hunting license and 13-digit DNR-issued game check number are also required to participate.

Honey

Appalachian Beekeeping sent their Black Locust honey to Garden and Gun this last June, and judges determined its "hints of vanilla and mint" to be on a level above every other entry. Their praise was effusive, saying "This is not the kind of honey you put in a tea or hide, you put that on a biscuit and enjoy it outright."

The ABC is immensely proud of the award, and is equally as proud of Mark Lilly, their head of beekeeping and education. Kelly Asquith, Lead of Wholesale at the Collective, says that Lilly is the star of the show (behind the bees of course).

"Mark has such a refined palette but also understands bee keeping and naturalism so well. He's why this particular variety is so distinctive and so good."

For anyone interested in purchasing honey from The Appalachian Beekeeping Collective, their website, www.abchoney.org, gives the options of purchase for 16 and 12 oz jars, with each 16 oz jar prompting a donation to a local food bank.

tion, including Senator Joe Manchin, to support this important legislation through passage.

The opportunity to make a difference - to break the cycle of addiction and save lives - is right now. We cannot and must not go backwards. If Congress passes the Excellence Act, I am confident that a better future is on the horizon for the people of West Virginia.

Dept. of Arts, Culture and History accepting 2022 Youth Congressional Art Competition submissions

The West Virginia Department of Arts, Culture and History (WVDACH) will accept submissions for the 2022 Youth Congressional Art competition through Friday, Feb. 4, 2022. The competition is open to high school students only. Exceptions will be made for schools that have 7th through 12th grades on one campus. Artwork submissions can be mailed or hand delivered to the Culture Center, State Capitol Complex, in Charleston.

The exhibit is scheduled to open at the Culture Center on Friday, Mar. 4, 2022. The WV-DACH will host an arts workshop and awards ceremony, which will include light refreshments.

Submitted artwork can be in any one of the following categories: paintings, drawings, collages, prints, mixed media, computer generated and photography. Each entry must be original in concept, design and execution and may not violate U.S. copyright laws. Each student can submit up to two entries.

Artwork must be two-dimensional. Each piece of artwork can be no larger than 26 inches high, 26 inches wide and 4 inches deep. Even when framed, it must still measure no larger than the above maximum dimensions. No framed piece should weigh more than 15 pounds.

The winner from each congressional district will have their artwork displayed at the United States Capitol for an entire year in the Congressional Art Competition, as well as receive a $100 Blick Art Materials gift card. The three first place winners will have their artwork framed by the WVDACH. A $50 Blick Art Materials gift card is also awarded to five second place winners.

Each entrant must submit a student information and release form with a teacher's signature. Students can get entry forms with a complete list of rules and guidelines from their school's art teacher(s), or by contacting Charles Morris, WVDACH director of museums, at 304-558-0220 or Charles.W.Morris@ wv.gov.

Feral Cats

this really friendly cat who is vision impaired, and he had a severely mangled leg that had healed but needed amputated. He is an absolute sweetheart, but he had been shot. We don't know if the vision issue and the leg trauma were related, but we found a good home for him up in Connecticut," said Whitcomb. "There's certain things you just can't heal."

Another case this year was a cat that had been attacked by a dog and had a shattered leg, and another with an injury that made him have to walk on his knuckle. These cases cost a considerable amount more at the vet than the standard spay or neuter, and the subsequent care and socialization process for cats too unwell to be re-released requires both dedication and funding.

"A lot of it depends on the vet stay," said Whitcomb, "but our vets work with us, and are very good to us."

However, despite generous veterinarians and volunteers, bills add up

"We just got our most recent vet bill and our costs have gone up. The average vet bill on a special needs cat runs anywhere from $400 to $1,200 depending on their condition and what needs to be done. We also are always searching for people to sponsor the permanent cases, most of which are unadoptable for medical reasons. A full sponsorship of a cat is $250 for the year. It covers food, litter, and medical expenses."

Whitcomb says that financial contributions from community members are a huge asset to the group, and the funds go directly towards helping the animals. Donations can be mailed to FOF (Friends of Ferals), 848 Mt. Zion Road, Alderson, West Virginia, 24910.

Everyday items such as food, bleach, and unscented laundry detergent are always appreciated, as well. They use Purina cat or kitten chow for dry food, and Friskies or Fancy Feast brand wet food.

"We go through a lot of powdered KMR," said Whitcomb, "especially during kitten season." KMR is a milk replacement for kittens too young to eat regular wet or dry food. Whitcomb says the kitten milk replacement sold at Tractor Supply is one they regularly use.

Donations can be dropped off on the deck of their facility, or message the group on Facebook at "Friends of Feral and Homeless Cats and Kittens Inc" to schedule a drop-off.

Above everything else, if you have a stray cat or two on your property, Whitcomb urges the importance of reaching out as soon as possible.

"Please, please spay and neuter. Contact us now, don't wait until you have 20 cats, call even if you have one or two. If you have a stray show up, call us right away and we can work on getting them altered."

She says that the group can also advise on how to trap feral cats, for those wanting to trap the animals themselves, and they can provide a spay or neuter voucher.

Those wishing to adopt can submit an application through their website at friendsofferalswv.org, or make a tax-deductible donation to the group online.

"We are always looking for good homes for our barn cats," said Whitcomb. The $50 adoption fee is waived for those looking for a barn cat, who are all altered and vaccinated.

Dear Recycle Lady,

Dear Recycle Lady, Why are sponges not good to use, even when they are kept clean? Like Sponges

Dear Likes Sponges,

There are several different kinds of sponges. I am assuming you are referring to the basic yellow sponges that are made from polyester, which is a form of plastic. Thus, when even a tiny piece of sponge breaks off in dishwater, microplastics go down your drain, and into our water systems. Microplastics are then in the water we drink and, when consumed by fish and other marine life, they are in the food we eat.

Dear Recycle Lady,

I have several extension cords, power strips. Can they be recycled?

Decorator Dear Decorator,

Yes, strings of broken, burned out, tangled or unwanted lights can be taken to the Recycle Center or to Lowes. This also includes unwanted power cords and powerstrips. When you take them to the Recycle Center, go to the door marked Aluminum Cans and push the button. Someone will come to help you. If you have working strings of Christmas lights that you no longer need, or want, consider donating them.

Dear Recycle Lady,

Can Christmas wrapping paper be recycled?

Getting Ready for Christmas

Dear Getting Ready for Christmas,

Some plain wrapping paper can be recycled, but not locally. Our Recycle Center doesn't have the equipment to identify and separate it from the nonrecyclable wrapping paper. Why not try a green, eco-friendly Christmas? The website: https://www. treehugger.com, has 12 interesting, creative and fun suggestions for wrapping gifts. A few of the suggestions are fabrics, comics, maps, and usable items like dish towels and brown paper bags.

Dear Readers,

We need your help again. The Recycling Center greatly appreciates all the many recyclers who bring items to the center clean and dry, then place them in the correct bins. You are the best! There are, however, a few people who are bringing bags full of assorted plastics expecting staff to sort them. We simply do not have enough employees or the equipment to sort these items. Thus, any bags of mixed recyclables brought to the Center do not get recycled and end up in the landfill. If you know anyone, or see someone, who doesn't understand why recyclables must be sorted, please help our staff out and explain why this must be done. Another problem is two forms of contaminates. Dirty items are being put in the bins and, recently, large dog food bags stuffed full of cardboard are being put in the cardboard bin still in the bag. Neither dirty items nor dog food bags are recyclable, thus they become contaminants and it only takes one dirty item to contaminate an entire bale. Please help be sure that all items brought to the center are clean, sorted, and placed in the correct bins.

Good News: The amount of recycling has increased, and the prices paid for recyclables have increased. Keep up the good work!

BUSINESS

New data shows global investment fueling WV's economy

West Virginia's Job Growth from Inbound FDI outpaced the U.S. Average by 5X in 2019 A new report released by the Global Business Alliance details how inbound foreign direct investment (FDI) from global companies has become a significant driver of hiring and economic activity within West Virginia's economy.

More than 29,000 workers in West Virginia - including 15,000 manufacturing workers are employed by the more than 335 global companies operating plants, offices, and other facilities in the state.

From 2009 to 2019, the number of West Virginians working for global companies' U.S. affiliates surged by 30%, even as total private sector employment across the state remained flat. In the most recent year alone, West Virginia's FDI jobs employment grew by 5.1% - roughly five times faster than the U.S. average.

Nancy McLernon, CEO of the Global Business Alliance, explained the significance of global investment to West Virginia's local economy:

"While West Virginia wasn't historically a hotbed for global investment, the data show clearly that this trend is turning. Over the past year, global companies' hiring grew five times faster in West Virginia compared to the national average.

These investments translate directly into good-paying jobs. Nationally, global companies pay their American workers an average of 18% more than the U.S. average. "As we talk about what it means to 'Buy American,' we need to remember that includes products manufactured right here in West Virginia by the American employees of global companies."

The report examining the impact of inbound FDI on West Virginia's economy is available at https://globalbusiness.org/ state/west-virginia.

WVDA taking applications for 2022 Specialty Crop Block Grants

The West Virginia Department of Agriculture (WVDA) is now seeking applications for FY 2022 Specialty Crop Block Grant Program. Funds will be awarded to enhance the production, processing, and consumption of specialty crops in West Virginia. Six West Virginia projects were awarded a total of $284,618.10 in 2021.

"Specialty crop are vital to expanding, diversifying, and enhancing the impact agriculture has on our state's economy. The Department is looking for projects that highlight how innovative programs and rural development groups can help West Virginia agriculture expand," said Commissioner of Agriculture Kent Leonhardt. "Our maple industry is a perfect example of a niche crop that has benefited from spe-

funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture and administered by the WVDA. Recipients have two years to plan, implement and gather data on their respective projects. Specialty crops are defined as fruits, vegetables, tree nuts, dried fruits, horticulture, and nursery crops, including floriculture.

The USDA awarded $72.4 million to 50 states, the District of Columbia, and the five U.S. territories in 2021. The WVDA anticipates receiving approximately $270,000, from which multiple grants will be awarded.

RFA, application, instructions, and other information can be found https:// agriculture.wv.gov/ag-business/specialty-crop-blockgrant/. Applications are due January 12, 2022.

Christmas at the Fair continues through December 19

The State Fair of West Virginia continues Christmas at the Fair, its Christmas Light Drive-Thru experience until Sunday, Dec. 19. The show runs from 6 to 9 p.m. and is open Thursdays through Sundays to the public.

"We continue to be blown away by the support from the community for this event," State Fair CEO Kelly Collins stated. "We've enjoyed seeing several families return each night and are already looking forward to expanding it next year."

Christmas at the Fair is available to the public for donations only and begins at the livestock gate on 219 North just past the horse barns. Patrons are asked to follow traffic patterns and turn off headlights when driving through the show. Mobile donations are accepted via Paypal at https://bit.ly/30j0sMi.

"We cannot thank our sponsors enough for their continued support," Collins stated.
