Smith-Allen sentenced to 20 years for fatal shooting

By Sarah Richardson

After several extensions and delays due to COVID-19 concerns, Edward Alexander Smith-Allen was sentenced in Greenbrier County Circuit Court on Jan. 31 for the June 2019 shooting of Alaisia M. Smith in Dorie Miller Park in Lewisburg.

According to the plea agreement, Smith-Allen pled no contest to one count of voluntary manslaughter and guilty to one count of wanton endangerment. He was originally indicted in Oct. 2019 with one charge of murder.

Circuit Court Judge Jennifer Dent said the event was "a tragedy, not just for the family, but for this community as a whole," before adjudging Smith-Allen as guilty for both charges.

Smith-Allen was sentenced to 15 years for voluntary manslaughter and five years for wanton endangerment, the maximum for each charge. The two charges will be served consecutively for a total of 20 years in prison. He has already served 959 days at Southern Regional Jail in Raleigh County.

The criminal complaint from the shooting states Smith-Allen was "playing with [a] gun and pointing it at people." One witness "said that the manner in which [Smith-Allen] was playing with the gun made her so uncomfortable that she left" and "before she left, the magazine had been ejected and two bullets fell out." The bullets were "put back in the magazine and the magazine inserted into the pistol." The complaint then states the witness told Smith-Allen "to put the gun down" but he "pulled the trigger and shot the victim" while "pointing the gun at the victim."

"All of the witnesses said the shooting was accidental," reads the complaint.

Almost Heaven Saunas opens new factory in former ABB building

Almost Heaven Saunas has ridden a wave of success over recent years straight into a massive new facility. Almost Heaven, which has operated exclusively out of their Renick shop until now, produces standalone saunas for direct sale, but also ships a majority of its inventory to Costco to be sold in pre-made fashion in stores nationwide. Aside from big box retailers and direct customer orders, there is a healthy taste for saunas made in Lewisburg all over the world.

Production Manager and Foreman Jonathon Alderman said, "We have saunas from this factory all over the world, they especially love them in Japan, we ship them there a lot."

The company, now a subsidiary of Harvia USA (a heating component manufacturer), has moved into the new facility as of this year after spending considerable time renovating the inside and opening up the shop floor.

"It was a full scale job, bringing forklifts in here to take down and pull down walls in order to create space for manufacturing machinery," said Alderman.

As of now, the factory employs upwards of 50 people, and has recently added another shift and nearly 20 new employees to accommodate the seemingly voracious demand coming from the global sauna market. According to Alderman, "We can just barely fill the order for

Greenbrier East and West High Schools join GameChanger Opioid and Substance Misuse Prevention Program

Gov. Jim Justice joined local and state education leaders, along with several other officials, for an event on Wednesday announcing Greenbrier East High School and Greenbrier West High School as the latest additions to the new, student-powered WV GameChanger Opioid and Substance Misuse Prevention Program.

"I am so happy to announce that GameChanger is coming to these two excellent schools," Gov. Justice said. "I've said many times that our children are the greatest treasure we have in West Virginia. They are our future. Through this program, we are going to make sure that all of our students in these schools are on the right pathway toward maximizing their potential."

GameChanger's Opioid and Substance Misuse Prevention Program is the first program of its kind and results from a service agreement between WV GameChanger and the world-renowned Hazelden Betty Ford Foundation.

The program will be added to the schools' curriculums in the fall of 2022.

This is the second set of schools added to the roster of program participants since its inception. In December, Gov. Justice announced the launch of the program, and that Lincoln High School, Lincoln Middle Senator Stephen Baldwin presented a check for $75,000 to Mayor Deena Pack and City Administrator Pam Mentz last week in support of exciting renovations on the Ronceverte Island Park. The city is planning to add a large splash pad for children as well as a dog park for families. State, local, and donated funds are all combining to pay for the project.

"We need activities for kids here in Greenbrier County," said Baldwin. "Kids grew up swimming in the pool for decades. Now, we're going to have a brand-new, safe, and fun water feature in town for kids and families to use for free. Combined with the dog park, it's going to bring new life to the River City."

"I am very grateful for Senator Baldwin for requesting and securing funding for Ronceverte" said Mentz. "The splash pad feature will bring people to Ronceverte and will serve as enjoyment for all our citizens, both young and old. Senator Baldwin deserves our applause for all the work he continues to do for our area."

"Senator Baldwin has been a tremendous asset to the people of Ronceverte and all the communities he serves. We could not be more thankful and excited to receive these funds as we continue our efforts to enhance the Ronceverte Island Park and all of the amenities it has to offer," added Mayor Pack.

The money comes from Local Economic Development Assistance (LEDA) funds. Sen. Baldwin recommended the project for funding, Sen. Eric Tarr (Putnam-R) approved, and Governor Jim Justice approved. LEDA funds are for one-time capital expenses meant to enhance local economic development.

Increased calls to Suicide Hotline cause concern for West Virginia's Call Center

Calls to the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline from West Virginia have increased significantly in recent years. Between 2018 and 2021, call volume in the state rose from 6,543 to 10,691 - an increase of 63%. Fortunately, the suicide rate in West Virginia has not had a corresponding increase.

Lata Menon, CEO of First Choice Services, the Charleston-based company that provides Lifeline services for West Virginia, says this may be because people at risk of self-harm can quickly reach a crisis counselor, but she expressed concern that this may soon change.

To address this crisis, Congress unanimously enacted the National Suicide Hotline Designation Act of 2020 which created the three-digit phone number, 988 as the universal number for the National Suicide Prevention and Mental Health Crisis Hotline System. Congress mandated a deadline of July 16, 2022 for 988 to be available nationwide

In July 2022, 988 will be implemented nationwide to facilitate quick access to the National Suicide Prevention Lifeline. The scope of the line will additionally be marketed not only as a number for those in suicidal crisis, but also for anyone experiencing mental health distress or crisis. The easily recalled number, the broader scope of the line, the accessibility via chat and text, and a national marketing campaign are factors that will increase the volume of Lifeline contacts throughout the

Too often, when individuals experiencing a mental health crisis need help, they are met by law enforcement, resulting in unnecessary incarceration, trauma, or worse. Between one-quarter and half of all fatal law enforcement encounters involve individuals with a serious mental illness.

Vibrant Emotional Health, administrator for the national hotline, estimates the number of West Virginians seeking Lifeline help may exceed 30,000 annually. Menon said, "We are heartened to know the changes will make access easier and offer help to many more people who are suffering, but we are concerned our current program will simply not be able to meet such high volume. Without additional staff, help seekers will experience longer waits and eventually reach support out of our state. In suicide prevention, we know that every second counts. And we know that it works best when West Virginians respond to West Virginians."

988 will be critical to managing an anticipated significant increase in call volume due to the pandemic, preventing deaths, and stopping the criminalization of mental illness. To fund this overhaul, Congress authorized states to pass user fees on telephone lines - the same source used to fund 911.

Several states have already passed legislation to ensure they are ready to handle needs within their state, but West Virginia has yet to do so. Menon reports a solution may be at hand. West Virginia Senate Bill 181 shores up long-term stability for the Call Center as well as its connection to regional crisis centers where those seeking help can receive evaluation and treatment. She said, "When you or your loved one is in crisis, instead of calling the police or going to an emergency room, you should be able to immediately reach a crisis counselor who has the training to provide needed support and referral. Senate Bill 181 will ensure that West Virginia's Crisis Call Center is prepared to answer the need in our Babydog, had no record

Anyone feeling depressed, suicidal, or in need of the Greenbrier County emotional support can reach the National Suicide Lifeline 24/7 at 1-800-273-TALK.

School, and Big Elm Elementary School would be the first schools to participate.

Under the Governor's leadership as "head coach," the WV GameChanger initiative is emerging as a national leader in opioid and substance misuse prevention.

GameChanger is a student-powered substance misuse prevention movement, connecting West Virginia students and the educators who care about them with the Hazelden Betty Ford Foundation to build school environments that prevent student opioid and other drug use before it starts.

"I am determined to break the cycle of addiction that has plagued our communities for far too long," Gov. Justice said. "We are already making great strides with the GameChanger initiative. But we won't stop working until every single school in West Virginia has the tools they need to change the game for all of our students

Delegate Bates announces 'Save All Baby Dogs Act of 2022'

Proposed legislation will repeal county dog tax

House of Delegates member Mick Bates, R-Raleigh Co., has proposed the "Save All Baby Dogs Act of 2022" that will keep dogs like Governor Jim Justice's pet English bulldog, Babydog, from being taxed and possibly killed in West Virginia.

House Bill 4051 seeks to repeal the collection of the head tax on dogs by county assessors. The current state code requires assessors to assess and collect a $3 head tax on each dog owned by West Virginia residents. If the tax is not paid, the sheriff is authorized to impound and sell the dog to recover the delinquent taxes. If the dog goes unsold, the Sheriff is required to kill the dog.

"Dogs are considered a member of the family by most West Virginians," said Bates whose household includes two rescue dogs - Bella and Millie. "They provide companionship and help comfort us during stressful times. It is unconscionable that we still have a law on the books in West Virginia that requires the county sheriff to kill the family pet over a $3 unpaid tax bill."

A fiscal note prepared by the Department of Tax and Revenue estimates the tax only generates $250,000 annually statewide and states the bill would reduce costs to the county assessors as they would no longer be required to collect the head tax on dogs.

"Because of the responsible conservative leadership of the Governor and Legislature, West Virginia is experiencing unprecedented growth and record surpluses" stated Bates. "We have a tremendous opportunity to review our antiquated tax code that overburdens our citizens. The repeal of the dog tax is a commonsense example of how we can eliminate arduous taxes and fees from state law that don't produce value for our resiacross the state."

WV GameChanger plans to offer its Opioid and Substance Misuse Prevention Program to all West Virginia elementary, middle, and high schools by the fall of 2027.

Gov. Justice was joined at the mid-morning announcement by West Virginia State Board of Education Member Tom Campbell, Greenbrier County Superintendent of Schools Jeff Bryant, Greenbrier East Principal Ben Rouston, Greenbrier West Principal Amy Robertson, and GameChanger Executive Director Joe Boczek.

"I have been privileged to watch GameChanger since its inception and am incredibly proud that Greenbrier East and Greenbrier West high schools will be a part of such a fantastic education initiative," Bryant said. "I know first-hand how much Governor Justice genuinely cares for the people and children of West Virginia, and I think programs like GameChanger serve as proof of just how much he cares."

Desirae Vasquez, Director of Professional Education and Continuum Solutions Programming for the Hazelden-Betty Ford Foundation, joined the announcement virtually from her offices in Massachusetts.

"The GameChanger prevention approach, guided by the Hazelden Betty Ford Foundation, harnesses real-life skills known to be effective at helping children and teens choose not to use substances and get early help if they need it," Vasquez said. "These skills are practical, accessible, non-threatening, fun, and easy for students to use for weeks, months, and even years after they learn them. This student-powered approach to prevention can change West Virginia's trajectory and legacy, creating healthier lives and brighter futures." GameChanger Executive Director Boczek took time to laud the Governor, whose leadership, Boczek says, is the reason GameChanger is quietly emerging as one of the nation's leading programs for opioid and substance misuse prevention.

"Governor Justice's vision and determination, coupled with the reputation of The Hazelden Betty Ford Foundation, gives GameChanger a chance to save and improve lives every day," Boczek said.

GameChanger works directly with schools to implement, monitor, and sustain the Hazelden Betty Ford Foundation's student peer leadership programs, which have been found by research to help children make healthy choices about alcohol, opioids, and all other drugs. As a youth-led prevention, positive development, and community enhancement initiative, GameChanger programming is designed to educate, support, and empower young West Virginians to live healthy, drug-free lifestyles, while preparing to be our leaders of tomor-

By Karen Cohen

Master Gardener/Photojournalist/Artist

Time is Ticking

Winter is here and is deep in the soil and in our bones. The recent brief respite we had in the high forties did not send me to our attic to fetch my shorts, but it sure felt good.

We may wish for a spell of warm weather but be careful of what you wish. Too much warm temperatures over a few days causes the plants, bulbs, and bugs to rear up their heads and say good morning sunshine.

A rose of sharon tree that I clipped a branch from my father's yard many years ago has some sprouts showing. I am thrilled that it continues year after year to grow taller but tender green shoots now will encourage the woodland critters to munch on them since there's not much else around.

Before the winter hit, I broadcasted annual rye grass seeds on top of the garden beds as a future cover crop. When the spring comes, the seeds will germinate and grow grass. When it gets a few inches tall, it acts as a windbreak and keeps the soil intact. It has extensive root growth that helps to break up clay soil and clods of hard dirt. If left, it will die on its own when the summer heat comes along. I use it as compost turned into the garden before it goes to seed.

I did notice that in all my daffodil beds about 1-2 inches of green shoots were popping up in the warm sun. Thankfully, these flowers are cold tolerant and will just go dormant again when the next snow or ice covers them. I like to mulch them and my iris beds with a light blanket of shredded dried leaves. I will rake that off when the time's right in early spring.

A friend mentioned that this past December his dogs were picking up ticks in their fur from the backyard. Research shows that black legged ticks, the kind that carry lyme disease and harmful bacteria, have a two year life cycle and do not die in cold temperatures; they go dormant. To work at clearing them from your outside spaces keep tall grasses mowed short and clear brush, leaves, etc. from areas where the dogs and cats visit. Ticks do not drop out of trees, they come from the ground up, up your shoes and socks or up your dog's legs searching for blood! They crawl up to about two feet on bushes or tall weeds and await a victim to walk by. Once they attach to a body, whether it be human or four legged, they burrow their heads under the skin to draw blood. Yuk. It is best to use sterilized tweezers to grasp and remove it at its head, do not twist it or jerk it, just pull outwards. Don't be surprised how much they can hold on! Tick bites can last for months.

Do ticks have a predator? Yes, chickens, turkeys and guinea fowl eat ticks. Opossums can kill up to 90% of the ticks they encounter outdoors and can consume up to 5,000 ticks per season. Well, now we know that there is some good that those hairless, pink-eyed creatures bring us.

Warner offers guidance to county clerks and the public on absentee voting for Primary Election

Secretary of State Mac Warner offered clarifying guidance on West Virginia's laws to County Clerks and voters pertaining to the qualifications for eligibility to vote absentee in the 2022 Primary Election.

Last week's release of guidance for absentee voting includes information regarding absentee voting by mail, military and overseas (UOCAVA) voters, electronic absentee for voters with certain disabilities, eligibility for the special absentee voting list and eligibility for emergency absentee voting. This guidance can be found at GoVoteWV.com.

Regarding the release of this guidance, Secretary Warner said, "West Virginia has many different options to ensure every voter has the ability to cast a ballot in every election. Between our robust in-person voting options on Election Day and during the early voting period as well as our absentee and emergency opportunities, no voter will be disenfranchised from casting a ballot."

According to WV Secretary of State Mac Warner, legal eligibility to vote an absentee ballot in the 2022 election cycle remains unchanged in law. The only difference from the 2020 election cycle is the State is no longer under a "stay at home" Executive Order. COV-ID-19 continues to qualify as a medical reason to vote absentee, but only voters confined to their home or other location due to COVID-19 are eligible under that reason.

Voters who are confined due to following CDC or medical professionals' guidance to quarantine for their specific situations, including preexisting conditions, displaying virus symptoms, exposure to a positive individual, or personal quarantine for a medical reason, are eligible to vote absentee by mail. Any changes to the excuse-based procedures would require legislative action.

Absentee Ballot Applications for the May 10th Primary Election are currently able to be accepted by the state's 55 county clerks. The deadline to file an application is May 4th.

tion is May 4th.

If you have questions contact your county clerk or the Secretary of State's Elections Division at (304) 558-6000. To learn more about the Absentee Ballot Application process visit GoVoteWV.com for more information.

WV celebrates 211 Day Get connected. Get help.

On Feb. 11, West Virginia 211 will celebrate 211 Day, recognizing this critical service that has answered more than 31,000 calls in 2021, connecting people to the services and benefits they need.

"Our team of trained call specialists who answer the phones at 211 every day is truly amazing," said Margaret O'Neal, president of the Board of Directors. "Every day, they connect thousands of West Virginians to resources and services they need. Often, this means digging into an individual's story, and helping get to the root of the problems they are facing."

211 provides a vital service leveraged by millions of people across North America. Every day, clients contact 211 to access free and confidential crisis and emergency counseling; disaster assistance; food, health care and insurance assistance; housing and utility payment assistance; employment services; veterans services; child-care, family services and more. Last year on this special day, WV 211 launched the capability to search for resources on their website. This new feature saw over 45,000 searches in its first year.

"One persistent local barrier to improving access to resources is simply knowing where to turn when you're in need," said Brett White, chair of the West Virginia United Way Collaborative. "Often times, individuals would rather search for the information on their own instead of speaking to our representatives. This new feature allows them to do just that."

With the release of their 2021 Impact Report today, they have also published their top five requests, which include: utility assistance, rent/mortgage assistance, COVID-19 information, homeless shelters/coordinated entry, and food insecurity.

"As we continue to determine the best way to help area residents who struggle to pay their bills despite having full-time employment, 211 has remained a vital resource for the people and communities we serve," added O'Neal. "From assistance with tax preparation, utilities assistance, and employment services, 211 is there, 24 hours a day, every day of the year. And it remains one of our best tools for building strong and stable communities."

The Back Pew

By Stephen Baldwin

Business is definitely picking up in Charleston. Happy to provide you a no-nonsense look at major issues.

JAIL BILL. County commissions pay about $50 per day for every prisoner in a state jail from their county. As you might imagine, that adds up. For years, they've asked for financial assistance. I am proposing a fix with broad support. It will make clear data available to each county, give each county a target based on population for how many prisoners they should have, and incentivize counties to keep the numbers down by charging them less when they meet their targets. This will save money, allowing counties to fund important services like police, recreation, and infrastructure.

ANTHONY CORRECTIONAL CENTER. The new Anthony facility is set to go to bid this month. I have a meeting next week to work on details and will update the community afterwards. We've fought hard to fund this new facility and have it all in place.

VETERANS NURSING HOME. The first bid for the new veteran's nursing home we fought hard to build came in...way over budget. That forced the Veterans Department to look at scaling back the nursing home to something smaller. A very upsetting idea. I want to thank Governor Justice who found out about that situation and stepped up to the plate in a major way, saying we would NOT scale it back. We will fully fund the planned veteran's nursing home.

WATER QUALITY STANDARDS. Yet again, state

WATER QUALITY STANDARDS. Yet again, state water quality standards are being weakened. I voted no, just as I always have. This comes up almost every year, unfortunately. In a state with high cancer rates and exquisite natural beauty, the last thing we should be doing is weakening our standards.

UNEMPLOYMENT BILLS. Several bills related to unemployment are moving through the legislature currently, but the idea garnering the most attention is not in black and white...yet. "Jumpstart" would provide $1,500 to folks reentering the workforce. No bill has been introduced by the governor. Citizens are voicing serious concerns over the idea, as the unemployment rate is at an all-time low. Why would we need to incentivize folks to work again when so many jobs are available? SB2 and SB3 are moving through committees. SB2 would cut the period of time people could receive unemployment from 26 weeks to 12 weeks. SB3 would impose additional requirements on those who do receive unemployment and allow them to take part time work while they search for a full time job.

PRAYER. This week, I led the Senate in prayer for the officers who died protecting students at Bridgewater College and the 14 historically black colleges and universities who faced bomb threats across the country. (WV State University and Bluefield State College are HBCUs but did not receive one of the bomb threats). Our country is bitterly divided right now. We must not fall prey to the misguided belief that we are enemies with each other because of difference. We are the UNIT-ED State of America - one nation, under God, indivis-

That's the view from the back pew, where it is my privilege to serve you. Don't hesitate to reach out during this legislative session with your feedback!

Greenbrier County in 1900 to study theology. Also purported to be in the photo is a young Charles Ira ("C.I.") Wall from Muddy Creek Mountain.

Wall went on to graduate from the Maryland Medical College in Baltimore in 1903 and returned to Greenbrier County to practice in Williamsburg. In 1910, he moved to Rainelle where he became the physician to the Meadow River Lumber Company until 1927. Afterwards, Wall and Dr. Carl C. Jackson bought the Midland Trail General Hospital in 1930, renamed it the East Rainelle General Hospital and moved it from the east end of East Rainelle to the west end. A grandson of Wall, Haven Wall, became a physician who has practiced in Fairlea.

Appalachian Power Files for Approval of Renewable Projects

Renewable energy legislation helps bring economic development success

Appalachian Power, along with Wheeling Power, has submitted two filings to the Public Service Commission of West Virginia (PSC) requesting approval and cost recovery for multiple renewable energy projects. Customers who purchase renewable energy from the projects would do so through a proposed Renewable Power Plus (RPP) tariff. The tariff is aimed primarily at attracting larger companies with ESG (Environmental, Social and Governance) needs, while providing a stable, reasonable cost renewable solution for all existing customers.

It is anticipated that the costs of the renewable projects will be paid by the subscribing customers and further offset by the cost of service benefits produced by the renewable projects. Over the first decade of operation the proposed renewable projects are expected to result in a roughly $22 million reduction in West Virginia customer rates.

"In 2020 state political leaders passed renewable energy legislation, Senate Bill 583, touting it as an important tool to recruit businesses with sustainability goals to West Virginia without displacing coal-fired generation," said Chris Beam, Appalachian Power president and COO. "Having renewable energy in the mix was a key factor in Nucor Corporation's recent decision to locate its $2.7 billion steel mill in the state. In fact, between Nucor's commitment and interest from existing large energy users, we can fully subscribe the West Virginia share of energy from the renewable projects we are filing today and still need more."

One filing is for approval and cost recovery of the proposed 50 MW Bedington solar project, which will be constructed in Berkeley County. The project is Appalachian Power's first to follow provisions of Senate Bill 583, signed into law in 2020, which encourages solar project development on brownfield sites in West Virginia.

A second filing requests approval and cost recovery of a 204 MW wind energy project in Logan County, IL, a 150 MW solar facility in Pittsylvania County, VA, and a 4.9 MW solar project in Amherst County, VA, all of which the company will own. The filing also seeks regulatory approval to enter into power purchase agreements (PPAs) for three Virginia solar facilities that will add approximately 89 MW of power to the company's energy supply.

West Virginia jurisdictional costs of the Bedington solar project will be collected through the new West Virginia Solar (WVS) rider. Costs for the solar and wind projects the company will own would be collected through a construction surcharge until new base rates are implemented. Costs of the PPA solar facilities would be recovered through the Expanded Net Energy Cost (ENEC), like any other purchased power expense.

On December 30, 2021, Appalachian Power filed with the Virginia State Corporation Commission (VSCC) for approval of the same projects, as well as cost recovery for the Virginia jurisdictional share of those projects, as part of its plan to meet requirements of the Virginia Clean Economy Act (VCEA).

Microloan funding available to local businesses

The Greenbrier Valley Economic Development Corporation is now accepting applications for their Microloan Program. Funding is available for entrepreneurs and small businesses located in Greenbrier, Pocahontas or Monroe counties.

"We've designed this program to stimulate startups, foster expansion, and increase creation and retention of jobs in the Greenbrier Valley," said Ruthana Beezley, Executive Director of the Greenbrier Valley EDC. "We understand that for various reasons traditional bank financing is out of reach for small businesses owners, and we hope this will help bridge that gap."

The Greenbrier Valley Microloan Program provides loans from $5,000 to $30,000 with interest rates at prime plus 1% and terms up to 15 years. The funds can be used for any business need including renovation, working capital, new construction, equipment, down payments and more. Loans require an application fee of $150, a personal guarantee and additional collateral.

Tammy Jordan, owner of Fruits of Labor, Inc., is a past recipient of the loan program. "We were so grateful for that funding because it leveraged the opportunity to open in Rainelle which allowed us to launch employment for our students for the very first time," Jordan said. "It's such an integral part of being able to see the success not only of coming into community but also the expansion of our recovery mission."

The loan program is locally administered, funded by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The Green-by the U.S. Department of Agriculture. The Greenbrier Valley Economic Development Corporation is an equal opportunity provider, employer and lender.

Government is doing big things in West Virginia, but House Bill 4260 will make it harder for you to know it.

Just last year, the West Virginia Legislature passed a law to create a government website to add online publication of the state's public notices and legal advertisements to the traditional newspaper publication.

That law increased public notice. All West Virginians benefited.

Now this year — before that website is even complete — some Delegates want to change the law and reduce public notice.

HB-4260 could eliminate the second and third public notice you now get in the local newspaper, making it less likely residents will see news about items such property forfeitures, tax sales, changes in mineral and natural gas rights, plans to locate waste facilities and many other issues that could impact you.

Let your Delegate know you oppose HB-4260 Find your representative's contact information at wylegislature.gov

Dear Recycle Lady,

I am in the process of gathering information for filing taxes and have collected a large pile of paper that must be shredded before disposal. Is the Recycling Center a safe place to take confidential papers for shredding?

Dear Recycle Lady,

Hates Tax Prep

Dear Hates Tax Prep,

Yes, the Recycling Center is absolutely a safe place to take confidential papers for shredding. They have a totally enclosed room with a locked door in which to store material until it is shredded. Then, when it is shredded, it is mixed with other papers that have been shredded so there is no chance of them being put back together.

Dear Recycle Lady,

Last week you said that black plastics were not recyclable. Are there any other plastics that are not recyclable?

Big Recycler

Dear Big Recycler,

Generally, #3, #4, #5, #6, #7 plastics are not recyclable due to the lack of a market for them. Some larger cities have the capacity to recycle these plastics, but the Recycling Center is unable to do so. Fortunately, there are folks that are still working to finds ways to recycle #3 - 7 plastics. For the sake of the environment, let's hope they are successful in their endeavors.

The Weekend Paper For The Greenbrier Valley - February 5, 2022 - Mountain Messenger - 9

Dear Recycle Lady,

What exactly do the numbers on the bottom of a plastic container mean? Why do they put the recycle symbol on the bottom of a plastic container if it is not recyclable?

Just Curious

Dear Just Curious,

The recycle symbol, which is a triangle formed by three chasing arrows with a number inside, has become the symbol of recycling. However, this was not the original use of the symbol. When created, the intent of the symbol was to indicate the type of chemicals used to make the plastic. This is why products that carry the recycle symbol may not actually be recyclable. Perhaps we need a new symbol that would indicate a non-recyclable plastic.

Dear Recycle Lady,

Since large batteries, such as car, boat and lawn mower batteries, are banned from the landfill, how can large lead batteries be disposed of safely?

Need Information

Dear Need Information,

Large batteries can be taken to Recycling Center, Belchers' in Caldwell, or Clendenen's in Caldwell. They will all dispose of these batteries properly.

Dear Readers,

Did you know there are now chlorine-free ice melting products that are safe for your dog's paws? There are now several brands that are not only safe for your dog, but also better for the environment than saltbased products. Lowe's, Chewy, and PetCo all have these chlorine-free ice-melting products.

Have questions about recycling, or interesting information about recycling? Send questions or requests recyclelady@greenbrier-swa. com. Dear Recycle Lady is sponsored jointly by the Greenbrier Recycling Center and Greenworks Recycling.

More March Madness at NRCTC Writing Workshop with Belinda Anderson

Author Belinda Anderson is offering a new writing workshop at New River Community and Technical College, "More March Madness: Chasing Characters." The three-week conference call workshop starts Mar. 2.

Whether you're writing fiction or nonfiction, how you portray your characters is crucial to success. Learn to hone that skill through Anderson's newest workshop.

Anderson introduced the concept

last year as "March Madness: Down the Rabbit Hole in Pursuit of Elusive Characters." "There is always more to explore in terms of character development, in terms of character development, character in motion and character in setting," Anderson said. For those who attended the first March Madness class, the workshop is designed with new material that also provides a comprehensive approach for new students.

"More March Madness: Chasing Characters" meets at 10 a.m.

Wednesdays through an audio-only conference call. The three-week class can be accessed either through an internet conference call connection or by landline telephone - high-speed internet is not required. The hour-long conference calls will include lecture, with time for questions and participant sharing, and group e-mail follow-up. The workshop is open both to new and experienced writers of both fiction and nonfiction.

Reviewers have commented on Anderson's memorable characterization. West Virginia's Poet Laureate Marc Harshman wrote of her book, "Buckle Up, Buttercup," saying, "In this novel-in-stories, her third major publication, Belinda Anderson offers an attractive panoply of characters rich with nuance and diversity."

Anderson, who has a reporting background and writes nonfiction as well, also is dedicated to helping writers who want to write about the lives of others. "It's important to convey those people as fully dimensional, just as you need to help readers picture a fictional character," she said.

Tuition for the class is $75. The registration deadline is Feb. 16. Participants will be emailed the conference call number and access codes after registering for the class.

Visit www.newriver.edu/community for information on upcoming classes or register for the course or contact Gloria Kincaid (304-793-6101, gkincaid@newriver.edu).

WVDOE Seeks Organization Partners to Feed Children this Summer

The West Virginia Department of Education (WVDE) is seeking partnerships with organizations across the state to participate in the Summer Food Service Program (SFSP) to help feed children and provide supervised activities this summer. Summer months can pose a challenge to children receiving proper nutrition because school is not in session. Community programs and organizations can fill this gap through the SFSP to ensure children across the state receive the nutrition they need.

County boards of education, local government agencies and other nonprofit organizations are eligible to participate in the SFSP, which is open to children (ages 18 and under) in low-income areas. Sites often include schools, churches, community centers, pools, parks, libraries, housing complexes and summer camps, which offer an alternative to the School Breakfast Program or National School Lunch Program that operate during the school year.

"Supporting these sites in your community is one of the most important things you can do to ensure all children have uninterrupted access to nutritious meals this summer," said State Superintendent of Schools W. Clayton Burch. "Children require consistent, quality nutrition for the development of their minds and bodies. We want to make certain every child returns to the classroom in the fall ready to learn."

An average of 202,273 children in West Virginia, about 78% of school children, depend on free and reduced-price meals at school. It is vitally important to continue to offer meals in the summer months when children are at their highest risk for food insecurity.

"In 2021, 571 Summer Food Service Program sites provided nutritious meals to children in West Virginia, and we believe many organizations will renew their commitment for 2022," said Amanda Harrison, director of the Office of Child Nutrition. "We encourage new organizations in communities all across the Mountain State to join us so the number of sites can grow and more children have access to healthy meals."

Organizations interested in becoming a 2022 summer sponsor should contact Cybele Boehm or Samantha Reeves with the Office of Child Nutrition at cboehm@k12. wv.us or snsnuffer@k12.wv.us or by calling (833) 627-2833. Summer sites will be announced in June 2022.

For media inquiries, contact

Christy Day, West Virginia Department of Education Office of Communications, at 304-558-2699 or Christy.Day@k12.wv.us.

and multi-instrumentalist Amy Helm on Friday, Feb. 18, at 7:30 p.m. in the Hamilton Auditorium. Masks are required.

Multiple Grammy Awards winner Amy Helm will be out promoting her third album, What the Flood Leaves Behind. It is her most autobiographical yet, both in content and creation. Out now on Renew Records/BMG, the album's 10 songs represent a gathering of ideas and experiences, friends and collaborators. Yet, the album also marks a landing - a pause for the traveling musician and mother of two young boys who was seeking clarity in her calling and career. After making multiple albums and performing in far-flung places, Helm returned home to Woodstock's Levon Helm Studios - casually known as The Barn - just before the pandemic to record What the Flood Leaves Behind and reclaim a sense of self.

The Barn became what Helm calls "the tuning fork" for the record - an ethereal, elemental component that helped her and musicians Phil Cook

Additionally, musical polyglot Josh Kaufman (Taylor Swift, The National, Muzz, Bonny Light Horseman) produced and contributed on piano, guitar, and mandolin. Their immediate musical connection helped guide Helm's powerful, emotive vocals to the forefront of the album.

"We tried to make it about her voice and about the musicians responding to her and not the other way around," explains Kaufman. "I wanted her to feel like she had that freedom to be herself on the recordings and she just filled up the whole room. Her singing was coming from this deeply rooted place of family and music and wanting to convey a beauty." In particular, "Verse 23," the track from which the album title is derived, that encapsulates themes of What the Flood Leaves Behind. Written by M.C. Taylor (Hiss Golden Messenger), the song serves as a sort of "reckoning," says Helm, "of the good and the bad and everything in between."

Throughout the record, Helm sings stories of life's relentlessness. But like she extrapolates from "Verse 23," the most productive, and often the most healing response, is to create. As a result, What the Flood Leaves Behind serves as a defiant form of self-expression, as Helm steps fully into

TRICKS TO KEEP FLORAL ARRANGEMENTS FRESH

Who doesn't enjoy receiving a fresh bouquet of flowers on a special occasion? Flowers traditionally are given for Valentine's Day, Mother's Day, anniversaries, and other special events. While a beautiful bouquet can make a lovely gift, fresh flowers have finite lasting pow-

Recipients of floral arrangements need not fret. Various strategies can help prolong the life of freshly cut flowers. Florists employ certain tricks to keep cut flowers fresh longer. In fact, that's a person's best bet to keep cut flowers fresh purchasing arrangements from knowledgeable florists who have done their part to ensure flower longevity. Some additional strategies to consider are:

Valentine's Day gifts couples enjoy together

Valentine's Day is a time to bring smiles to the faces of loved ones particularly the special someone in a person's life.

Gifts that appeal directly to spouses or significant others may be the standard, but gifts couple can use together can bring them closer together. The following are some great Valentine's Day gifts couples can enjoy together.

Quirky mugs: Mug sets come in all shapes and sizes and express various sentiments. Some even feature interlocking designs designed to symbolize that couples are two pieces of one puzzle. Kissing mugs, which look like lips touching when they are brought together, are perfect for couples who enjoy their morning coffee together. Look for them at www.uncommongoods.com.

Matching robes: Plush terry cloth robes need not be reserved for luxurious stays at premiere hotels. Coordinating robes can be monogrammed and worn on lazy days when gathering in front of a cozy fire.

Charcuterie set: A romantic meal is the start of ny Valentine's Day celebration. Invest in a compact charcuterie board with two matching wine glasses and enjoy the set on date nights at home.

MasterClass lesson: Purchase a MasterClass instructional (www.masterclass.com) and learn photography tricks or insider tips from established professionals together.

Travel excursion: Jet set to an exotic locale with a planned adventure. Parents can arrange for a sitter, friend or relative to look after the children so the trip provides some one-on-one time. This trip can serve as the second honeymoon couples dream about.

Custom cornhole set: Couples who love tailgating or opening up their homes (and yards) to guests can purchase monogrammed or custom-carved bean bag toss boards.

Fancy coffee maker: Couples who spend more time in take-out coffee shops than they probably should can brush up on their barista skills at home. There are plenty of coffee makers on the market that can help couples whip up lattes, cappuccinos or espressos with ease.

Wine club membership: Couples who enjoy sampling the latest vintages and flavors may enjoy a wine subscription. Winc. com is just one of the delivery services available. Or couples who prefer to be a little more hands-on can experiment with winemaking kits.

Hot tub: What can be more relaxing than soaking in a warm bath of bubbling water? A backyard hot tub turns up the heat on relaxation and time spent together.

Tokens of love: Matching or coordinating bracelets, necklaces or even tattoos can serve as enduring symbols of a couple's love.

Valentine's Day gifting may be even more enjoyable when gift-giving focuses on presents couples can enjoy together.

Make fresh cuts in stems

Think back to the last time you purchased a fresh Christmas tree. What is the key to ensuring it gets enough water while on display? You guessed it: making a fresh cut in the trunk of the tree. The same concept applies to floral arrangements. Use a sharp scissor or pruning shears to cut about one inch from the bottom of each stem at a 45-degree angle. Continue this process every three days or so. The 45-degree angle prevents the stem from squishing during the cut and enables it to absorb more water.

Get them in water quickly

Place the flowers in a vase or other vessel with water promptly after making the cuts. Some florists like to cut the stems under water to prevent air bubbles from forming in the stems. Choose an arrangement first, then cut and place the flowers in water quickly. This gives fresh arrangements a good chance to last awhile.

Monitor water temperature

The temperature of the water in the vase should coordinate with the flowers on display. Do not use hot water or the stems will cook. Room temperature is best for most flowers, except for blooms from bulbs that flower during cooler months, such as tulips and daffodils. They'll be more likely to thrive in cooler water, according to Consumer Reports.

Chill your arrangement

The experts at FTD by Design tested various theories for keeping floral arrangements fresh, including adding aspirin to the water or using sugar or concoctions that contain vodka. Sugar and vinegar served as a runner-up for long-lasting blooms, but the best solution for prolonging the flowers was putting the arrangement in the refrigerator each night for roughly eight hours.

Prune the foliage

Before placing cut flowers in a vase, remove extra leaves at the base of the stems that will fall underneath the water line. This helps to limit bacteria growth in the water and cuts back on foul odors. Plus, removing foliage focuses flowers' energy on the main blooms rather than the leaves.

These steps can add life to cut flowers, helping arrangements thrive in any home.

VALENTINE'S DAY JEWELRY TIPS TO MAKE YOUR OWN

Romantic sentiments are the standard come Valentine's Day. Dinners at upscale restaurants, floral bouquets and even getaways to exotic locales can all create an air of romance each February. Crafty individuals can express romantic sentiments in other ways, including making homemade jewelry.

A survey from Statista found that 10 percent of Valentine's Day gift shoppers gave jewelry in 2017. Jewelry remains a popular way to express romantic sentiments, and such gifts can be even more meaningful when they're home-

Individuals who want to try their hand at makhomemade jewelry this Valentine's Day can consider these tips as they try to go the extra mile for that special someone in their lives.

» Purchase a jewelrymaking toolkit. Even skilled do-it-yourselfers with a kit full of useful tools can benefit from a toolkit designed specifically for making jewelry. Jewelry toolkits may feature an assortment of pliers, such as round nose and chain nose varieties, that can be useful for different projects or even different components of the same project. Additional tools to look for in a jewelry-making toolkit include wire cutters, clasps and peg boards to bend wire.

Start with something simple. Stone might be the most expensive component of items sold by licensed jewelers, but those hefty price tags also reflect the labor necessary to produce the beautiful items on display. Making jewelry is a complicated process, but beginners can narrow things down by looking for simple projects like homemade button earrings and ring pendants. Many crafts stores even sell kits for specific projects that include all the materials DIYers will need as well as the tools they'll need to turn those materials into beautiful jewelry.

- Watch online tutorials. Lessons from skilled crafts workers are only a click or two away. The internet offers plenty of tutorial videos that can help DIYers accumulate the right supplies and offer advice on projects that correlate to individuals' skill levels.
- » Practice, practice, practice. If the goal is to really impress that special someone in your life, then don't plan to give the first piece you've ever made this Valentine's Day. Though that's an option if you discover you're an especially skilled jeweler, it's best to plan for some trial and error. So leave yourself ample time in advance of Valentine's Day to experiment and learn the craft. This ensures that your sweetheart won't just be excited by the sentiment homemade jewelry conveys, but the jewelry itself as well.

Homemade jewelry is a unique gift that conveys romantic sentiments that are synonymous with Valentine's Day.
