New bench at Carnegie Hall dedicated to Janie Kirk

The Carnegie Hall Guild is pleased to announce that a new bench, placed on the Ivy Terrace of the Hall, has been dedicated to Janie Kirk. Janie is the founder of Carnegie Hall Guild which has been active since 2007. She also served as president of the Guild for two years. The mission of the Guild is to provide interest in the Hall and to provide financial and volunteer support.

Greenbrier County is fortunate that Janie and her husband Ron moved to Lewisburg in July 2006 following their retirement. Janie was raised in Claremont, CA. She and Ron met in California following Ron's transfer to California from Kansas City, MO. Ron, being a native of Nitro, WV, brought Janie to visit family there and soon discovered Lewisburg. They were impressed with how alive roots down here. And we are grateful they did.

They immediately became active in all the cultural activities and began volunteering at Carnegie Hall and at the North House Museum. Janie served on the Carnegie Hall Board of Directors as secretary for five years. She and Ron contributed countless hours developing and re-

Lewisburg intersection temporarily a four-way stop after accident

At approximately 8:43 p.m. on Wednesday, Feb. 22, a semi truck driving through downtown Lewisburg struck and knocked over a traffic light pole and streetlight at the main intersection. The traffic light pole that was struck is located beside the Green Space and hangs over Washington Street facing southeast.

According to Lewisburg Police Chief Chris Teubert, officers were made aware of the incident quickly, as a driver behind the semi called to report the accident. After making contact with the poles, the operator of the semi truck continued driving and later stated that he didn't realize he had hit the poles due to the large load he was hauling. He was stopped by police approximately one mile from the Hart's Run interstate exit. While he wasn't apprehended or issued a ticket, he was found to be at fault for the incident, and his insurance will be covering the costs of replacing the poles.

"The intersection will be a four-way stop intersection until we get a temporary light post sometime next week," explained Chief Teubert. "If possible, I'd advise drivers to avoid to area and to expect some delays."

The city is working with the state on securing the temporary pole. He explained that the damage done to the base of the traffic post makes it difficult to replace quickly.

The Chief noted that, "We are absolutely monitoring the intersection" for traffic backups and other issues, and said that they will direct traffic as much as possible when it is

select contractor for Meadow River Rail Trail

The Greenbrier County Commission met Tuesday, Feb. 22, to discuss ne approval of a grant application from the West Virginia Planning and Development Commission for the Greenbrier PSD#2 Clintonville Water Extension Project. Greenbrier County falls within Region 4 of the State Planning and Development Commission, and Region 4 Commissioner Donna Ward appeared via Zoom and briefed the commission and the public on the amount of money being requested, and answered questions from the community about the project. The grant application is for the amount of $2 million, which would replace that amount of money in loans for the project. According to Ward, the entire project will cost between $10 and $11 million. The new water line will run from Sam Black to Clintonville and will not run from Charmco to Rainelle. That will have to be a separate project. In other news, Matt Ford, representing the Meadow River Rails to Trails Planning Commission, reported, "The Meadow River Rail Trail has reviewed the bids, and with the help of Chapman Technical Services, we recommend Lynch Construction. With the base bid, we are below the estimated construction cost, so my recommendation is that we contract through Lynch Construction for the base bid, and alternates one through four." The motion to hire Lynch Construction was passed unanimously.

U.S. Senator Manchin tours 'world's first fully disabled-accessible hotel in White Sulphur Springs

By Matthew Young, WV Press News Services

U.S. Sen. Joe Manchin, D-West Virginia, visited White Sulfur Springs on Monday to tour the newlyconstructed "Schoolhouse Hotel." On hand to personally guide the tour was Charles Hammerman, president and CEO of the New York-based Disability Opportunity Fund (DOF), the organization behind the hotel project.

According to a statement from the DOF, the project, which began some 18-months ago, "will transform the historic WSS High School into a hub for the community and visitors alike." Once completed, the Schoolhouse Hotel, designed by architectural-firm Crabtree, Rohrbaugh & Associates, will be the "world's first hotel where every room is adapted for use by disabled peo-

The tour began in the hotel lobby, where Manchin was given a first-hand look at the multi-level reception desk, conceived to be accessible from either an upright or seated position. The counter's design allows for better service to those reliant upon a wheelchair.

"The other added part to it is the technology that we're bringing in," Hammerman told Manchin. "Let's say one of your constituents comes in and they need American sign language, but the person we have behind the desk doesn't know American sign language. We have a little iPad where you can push one button, and in literally 10-seconds somebody will be there who can speak American sign language."

The tour then proceeded down a hallway which will soon feature memorabilia salvaged from the old high school, before providing Manchin with his first look of a nearly-completed guest room. Hammerman took the opportunity to show off the room's large, wheelchairfriendly bathroom door, as well as the touchpad doorlatch feature.

"The beauty is that you (West Virginia) are the home to the first ever (fully disabledaccessible hotel)," Hammerman said. "And we're going to keep inviting the rest of the world to come and see this."

After being shown the hotel's bar and restaurant area, Manchin was led into the ballroom, where he greeted many of the contractors responsible for the building's conversion from dilapidated high school to world-class hotel.

After unveiling the fully-restored original 110-year-old schoolhouse bell which will be preserved within the hotel's lobby, Manchin took the microphone to briefly address See "Sen. Manchin" Page 2

WVSOM's Rural Practice Day focuses on improving emotional health

The West Virginia School of Osteopathic Medicine (WVSOM) brought alumni of disparate backgrounds together for its 11th annual Rural Practice Day, which took place Feb. 11 on the school's Lewisburg campus. Rural Practice Day, hosted by WVSOM's Rural Health Initiative (RHI), is intended to educate WVSOM students about what it's like to practice in rural communities and to encourage students to work in rural areas after completing medical school.

A total of 146 individuals, including 110 WVSOM students, attended this year's event, which was presented in a hybrid virtual and in-person format. The theme was "Emotional Health in Diverse Demographics," and in service of that theme, topics included providing care for the military and veteran community, for transgender individuals, and for patients with opioid addiction and other forms of substance use disorder.

In her introductory remarks, Linda Boyd, D.O., WV-SOM's vice president for academic affairs and dean, pointed out that the school and the RHI program are working to alleviate some of the health disparities that persist in the state.

"In West Virginia we currently have 62 medically underserved areas and more than 100 health professional shortage areas. These are areas that don't have adequate primary care physicians, have high infant mortality rates, high poverty and high rates of elderly people," Boyd said. "One of the most important factors in improving health care in medically underserved areas is putting a primary care doctor in that area. It improves health outcomes tremendously, and that's what our mission is at WVSOM."

The keynote speaker was Pat Browning, D.O., a WV-SOM Class of 2000 alumna and former primary care physician who lost two daughters to substance use dis-

Ronceverte to receive nearly $500,000 for sidewalks

Gov. Jim Justice announced this week that over $8.3 million in Transportation Alternatives and Recreational Trails Program grants for 29 improvement projects in 21 counties across West Virginia have been approved.

The City of Ronceverte is slated to receive $474,000 for Ronceverte Main Street sidewalks, specifically for the "design and construction of approximately 2,000 linear feet of replacement sidewalk along Main Street in Ronceverte."

These grants help towns and cities improve their network of recreational trails, biking/walking paths, sidewalks, and more, by either building from scratch or enhancing what they already have through various types

The program is administered by the West Virginia Department of Transportation and funded by the Federal Highway Administration.

"This program will provide millions of dollars that is going to be put to work making our cities and towns easier to get around and making our beautiful park trails even more appealing and accessible to West Virginians of all abilities," Gov. Justice said. "These projects will also draw tourism and visitation to new destinations all throughout our state and the positive economic ripple effects will be off the charts.

"I could not be more proud to make my recommendations for each of these deserving and exciting projects on behalf of these communities and the entire state," Gov. Justice added.

order. She spoke about how social stigma surrounding the disorder can lead physicians to lose their clinical judgment, resulting in a lower quality of care.

"Nobody starts out wanting substance use disorder. It can start because a person is self-medicating for a mental illness or anxiety, because they want to be like their peers, or because there are problems at home and they want to numb themselves," said Browning, addressing the audience from a lectern adorned with a photo of each of her daughters. "There are a lot of high-functioning people with substance use disorder, and we're all vulnerable to it."

Rob Snuffer, D.O., of WVSOM's Class of 2001, is an emergency department director, hospitalist and lieutenant colonel in the U.S. Army Reserve who has served seven deployments. He recounted anecdotes about patients he has cared for throughout his career, including the chilling story of one veteran who had an extreme reaction to learning that his wife had been unfaithful.

"Patients with a military background or with posttraumatic stress disorder have a different outlook on life," Snuffer told students. "You don't have to have been in combat to take care of veterans. What you have to do, and it's one of the hardest things, is to not try to understand what they've been through, but accept what they're telling you as the way it is."

Jessica McColley, D.O., of WVSOM's Class of 2009, is chief medical officer of Cabin Creek Health Systems in Kanawha County, W.Va. She spoke about how physicians can improve the emotional health and wellness of individuals who identify as transgender. McColley said America's culture often places a "veil" over important aspects of people's lives.

"As doctors, I want us to be able to take off the veil so that we can treat humans like humans," McColley said. "The first thing you can do to help any member of a community where they feel like they've been discarded is to say, 'I see you. I hear you. How can I help you?' You can build rapport just by validating that your patient is a person with feelings."

Other Rural Practice Day participants included Rhonda Hamm, D.O., of WVSOM's Class of 1993, who discussedhow primary care physicians and specialists can serve patients' mental health concerns, and Deborah Schmidt, D.O., a Class of 1988 alumna who chairs WV-SOM's Department of Osteopathic Principles and Practice. Schmidt demonstrated the National Acupuncture Detoxification Association (NADA) protocol, in which needles are placed into the exterior of the ear to decrease anxiety, ease symptoms of post-traumatic stress disorder and, in patients fighting addiction, reduce cravings.

membership chairman for the first "Guild" in support of the young Orange County Pacific Symphony. She garnered support from two additional couples, Pam and Jeff Graham and Liz and Jim Jeter (and of course, from Ron) and proceeded to organize the Carnegie Hall Guild.

In May of 2007, she formed an interest group which pledged their support of Janie's endeavor. By early fall of that year, the Guild had nearly 80 members. Close to half were active members and the others, patron members. Janie became the first president and was instrumental in organizing the Guild's first fundraising event - a fancy tea - along with former charter Guild member, Pam Graham. It was a huge success and attended by over 100 men and women realizing a profit of approximately $5,000. The rest is history!

Janie has been instrumental is so many of our fundraising successes and has taught members invaluable information on leadership and organization. We sincerely attribute the Guild's ongoing success to Janie's vision and leadership. The Guild has raised approximately $80,000 towards items needed by the Hall that are visible to the public. Examples of these gifts over the years include providing financial assistance to bring a symphony to Carnegie Hall to execute the Carnegie Hall New York Link-up music education program for 4th and 5th grade students in Greenbrier and neighboring counties, as well as providing recorders needed for each student. Additional items include the historical marker in front of the Hall, elegant and versatile Board Room tables and chairs as well as a new floor, large planters for the Ivy Terrace, hearing-assistance devices and a new stage lighting board for the Hamilton Auditorium, efficient window blinds, acoustic ceiling tiles for the Old Stone and Board Rooms, tall café type tables for receptions, the replacement of hammers for the Hall's Steinway grand piano, updated sound equipment etc.

Sen. Manchin

"White Sulphur sits right here," Manchin began. "And the world-famous Greenbrier is right up here. Did the two ever intertwine? You didn't see the town getting the benefits of all these people coming here. And then the 2016 flood hit."

Manchin then shared some personal tragedies from the flood before moving on, saying: "The town was devastated. I walked Main Street at that time. And to see what you all have been able to do, and the resilience that people have, and West Virginians are known for that. We don't give up - we can't give up."

From there, Manchin broadened his remarks beyond those relating specifically to the flood.

"We've always said ADA (Americans with Disabilities Act)," Manchin continued. "But when you think about those of us, by the grace of God, who take for granted the health that we have - if you have health, you have all the wealth in the world. What you all are doing here is showing that anybody with any type of a disability can enjoy the quality and the fruits of life that so many of us take for granted. I think to have it in West Virginia - more importantly, to have it in Greenbrier County, to have it in White Sulphur Springs, is pretty special.' "There's a lot happening in the world, I don't need to tell you," Manchin went on to say. "If you watch television, we have a troubled world and we have a divided country. But the country is not so much divided as far as our people, it's our politics that are divided. Just don't let them divide you, that's all I can tell you. We've got to be one people for one purpose. The American dream should be alive for everybody. We're still the best. We are the best in the world. We've got to make sure that everybody knows it - that everyone has an opportunity." After leaving the hotel, Hammerman led Manchin on a short walk down White Sulphur Springs' Main Street, where the senator stopped in to visit with several store owners. Lunch was then served at the GreenRiver Academy, the first private school for special-needs children to open in West Virginia.

WV Legislative subcommittee on flooding looking at American Rescue Plan Act funds to help with June 2016 flooding effort

By Autumn Shelton, WV Press News Sharing

Members of the West Virginia Legislature's newly formed legislative subcommittee on flooding held their first meeting on Friday, where they discussed their primary goal of getting federal American Rescue Plan Act funding into the hands of property owners who still need to tear down structures destroyed by the June 2016 flood.

The subcommittee, led by Senate Minority Leader Stephen Baldwin, D-Greenbrier, was formed following the announcement that the RISE WV Clearance and Demolition Program, created to assist with flood recovery efforts, had been under federal investigation and no longer had the funds to help all those who still need struc-

Also serving on the subcommittee are Del. Caleb Hanna, R-Nicholas, Del. Ed Evans, D-McDowell, Del. Dean Jeffries, R-Kanawha, and Sen. Chandler Swope,

During the subcommittee's meeting, members discussed the main ideas that should be included in the funding proposal, which must be submitted to the legislature before any federal money may be received.

Andrew Robinson, representing U.S. Sen. Joe Manchin, was present during the meeting. He said it was his understanding that American Rescue Plan Act (ARPA) funding could be used for structure demolition, but that structures would still need to have been damaged by the flood in some way before money could be allocated to property owners.

Greenbrier County Commissioner Tammy Tincher, who attended the meeting via Zoom, added that "counties had a huge part in being able to allow the demolition and abandoned structures inclusion in the final rule." She explained that through the work of county officials, the ARPA ruling on providing funding for flood damaged properties came into existence.

"In all honesty, it came from West Virginia because of our situation where we have so many structures across the state, and the impact that it has on our economic growth," Tincher continued, adding that she would like to see it written into the subcommittee's proposal that structures not originally included in the RISE WV Clearance and Demolition program be included in the ARPA funding proposal.

"I think that is very important," she stated, noting that it would give counties the ability to focus on "overall cleanup."

currently moving through the legislative process, and wanted to know if it would align with the goals of the subcommittee as they draft their proposal.

She then asked for a clarification of Senate Bill 552,

Sen. Swope responded to her question that the bill, announced by State Auditor John "JB" McCuskey on Feb. 1, is "focused on properties that are currently in the ownership of the state through forfeitures," adding there are "thousands of them" that need to be demolished. He continued that "the good news" about the bill is that Mc-Cuskey has asked Gov. Jim Justice for $30 million in surplus money to address the concern. "His bill will use the Department of Environmental Protection as the administrative agent, so any money that could go through the DEP program can be parallel to the program we are talking about here, depending on the ownership," Swope said. "If we get an amount like $30 million, we can make a pretty big showing some-

"I think each project you do almost has to be an isolated project," Swope continued, noting that a 2018 West Virginia University research study estimated statewide residential demolition projects will cost about $150 million and other building demolition projects will cost about $400 million.

The focus of the conversation then shifted to creating eligibility requirements to receive ARPA funding and finding an administrative agent.

Swope stated that he is willing to speak with DEP officials to determine if they would be the appropriate administrative agency and he suggested that all counties should pass ordinances giving them the right to condemn dilapidated structures and hire a building inspector.

House Bill 4319, also moving through the legislative process, would require county assessors "to identify defective and dilapidated properties for subsequent enforcement proceedings" and provide appropriate personnel training through the Division of Emergency

Swope added that he has been recommending this type of enforcement for some time. He also noted that through the current demolition model, the contractor has the right to salvage, but counties should utilize government owned property to set up a clearance and demolition landfill to avoid expensive flood debris disposal costs, often $30 a ton. Additionally, the state should partner with the DEP to create asbestos removal contracts, which would minimize final costs. Jennifer Ferrell, director of the Community Advancement and Development division of the West Virginia Development office, added that any bidding contract should include specifications for property remediation and include language for old car and outbuilding removal. At the meeting's conclusion, Baldwin stated "we will do our homework, put something together, send it out to everyone for feedback and have it ready for when we get back together." The counties that had been considered most impacted by the June 2016 flood include Clay, Kanawha, Nicholas and Greenbrier. Additional counties considered impacted by the flood include Fayette, Jackson, Monroe, Pocahontas, Lincoln, Roane, Summers and Webster.

Nature's Way

By Karen Cohen Master Gardener/Photojournalist/Artist Sweet Dreams

Want to add a visual and aromatic touch to your garden? Plant lavender! With grayish-green foliage and tiny purple flower spikes, lavender is not only attractive but the added benefit of growing it is for its scent. Both the leaves and the blossoms are picked for drying and then added to sachets, potpourris, and teas. I cut long stems and hang these upside down in a closet or on a bedpost to allow the fragrance to waft through spaces. You can dry the stems and leaves on a screen in the shade outside and then use it for various purposes. Tuck some under your pillow at night or fill a spray bottle with some sprigs and water and mist it on your duvet cover. One of the most luxurious hotels I stayed in at Provence offered a small bottle of lavender spray at each guest's bedside table. Obviously, they knew about lavender! It has been used for centuries to induce relaxation and sleep.

There are four types of lavender. French lavender is the most elegant with slim stems topped with purple flowers. The leaves have more scent than the flowers much like rosemary and can grow up to 3 feet in height. Spanish lavender grows about two feet tall. This variety grows two spikes per stem topped with purple flowers and leaves that hold the most scent. English lavender likes cool climates and is cold hardy. It will tolerate winter frosts and snow and it is deer and rabbit resistant. You will find this variety in our local nurseries. Lavandin is a hybrid that is also cold hardy but also heat tolerant. Its flowers are very fragrant and it grows about two feet tall. It only flowers once during the season. These are used for cosmetics and aromatherapy because its oils are stronger in camphor.

Lavender may seem exotic but it is easy to care for in your home garden. Annual pruning is mandatory to keep it from getting too woody and to encourage annual blooms. Be sure to wait until spring after new growth appears. Also in the summer after flowering, cut off the flowers but don't cut into old wood. You may get a second flush of blossoms. Good air circulation and low humidity is a must. Shade, soggy soil, and humidity can kill these plants. Plenty of sunshine and low acid soil will keep them happy. Work a sprinkle of lime into the soil before planting or annually.

Deer and most insects don't like lavender, and that's another plus. Plant some mixed into your flower beds for a splash of purple. I have planted the four corners of each of my garden boxes with lavender bushes. For winter protection, I cover them with a plastic pot turned upside down. They will die back in the winter and reemerge in freshly ground leaves to cake batter or pastry dough for sweetness. Toss a few sprigs in your salad for a distinctive delicate flavor. Surprise your guests with a lavender mojito or a lavender gin sour cocktail. You can easily make a simple syrup with sugar and lavender leaves for alcoholic beverages or lemonade. Just boil one cup of water with one cup of sugar with a tablespoon of lavender leaves, simmer for a minute and then let it sit for up to one hour, then put through a sieve and bottle it.

There's something very elegant about lavender. Is it because it is French or is it because it evokes memories of

The Back Pew

By Stephen Baldwin

It's crunch time at the capitol. Only two weeks remain in the legislative session. Things will move very quickly now, so stay up to date by following my updates on social media.

VIRTUAL TOWN HALL. Please join me for a virtual town hall on Tuesday, March 1, at 5:30 p.m. I welcome all constituents to ask questions about what's going on at the legislature. To participate, click on the Zoom link on my social media, email me, or call me. We will get you signed up. All the info will also be on www. baldwinforwv.com.

VETERINARY SCHOOL. There's a nationwide shortage of veterinarians and vet techs. Especially those who work on large animals in rural areas. On my recommendation, the Senate Agriculture Committee is calling for a formal study of adding a veterinary school and new vet tech programs in West Virginia. This will help secure the future of agriculture in our region for decades

TRAILS. A number of folks reached out to me this week regarding several bills which allow motorized vehicles on walking/horseback riding trails. One bill would allow ATVs, but it hasn't made it on an agenda yet. One would allow certain motorized bikes, and I voted NO on it. Trails designed for walking and horseback riding should remain that way. ATV trails should be just for ATVs. We need both types of trails in West Virginia, but they should remain separate.

STATE PARKS. A bill to privatize state park operations (SB485) passed committee by a single vote. It allows the director of the Division of Natural Resources to sign contracts of up to 50 years with private companies to provide services at state parks. I do not support this effort, because our state parks are affordable treasures. Why should we give away what has been built with taxpayer dollars? It's fine for private companies to provide certain services at state parks, but this bill takes it way MICRO SCHOOLS. Speaking of taking it too far, a bill allowing "micro schools" establishes a new category of schools which can have up to 100 students with zero health, safety, or learning parameters. They are fully unregulated. I'm supportive of educational choices, but this takes it too far. Schools are responsible for taking care of our kids and must be subject to basic health, safety, and learning parameters. When my amendment to do that was rejected, I voted NO.

ATHLETIC TRANSFERS. I voted against a bill (SB586) this week that allows student athletes to transfer schools more often. Several local coaches reached out to me arguing it was a bad idea, and I agreed. We shouldn't encourage recruiting. We shouldn't allow transfers to take roster spots from local students. High school sports should be a place where everyone gets a shot to play, learn, and grow.

FLOOD DEMOLITIONS. I'm chairing the subcommittee on flood demolitions. At our meeting last week, we took initial steps towards creating a proposal to find additional demolitions of flooded buildings across West Virginia using American Rescue Plan funds. Stay tuned.

RETIREES. Many folks are reaching out about SB432, which provides a one-time supplement for retirees in the state. I'm a co-sponsor, so I support it. Unfortunately, it does not look like it will be put up for a vote.

That's the view from the back pew, where it is my privilege to serve you. Don't hesitate to reach out. I'm here to serve you and your family!

Suddenlink and the importance of customer service

By PSC Chairman Charlotte Lane

When you sign up and pay for a service, such as a company promising cable television service, you expect the television to work when you turn it on. Unfortunately, for many who subscribe to Suddenlink for cable television and other services, that has not been the case for far too long. The Public Service Commission has received thousands of complaints from Suddenlink customers over the past few years. The complaints have covered all areas, from interruptions in service to billing problems. To make matters worse, customers calling to complain have had terrible experiences and very little success in getting their problems resolved.

Commission staff tried to intervene on behalf of customers over and over. The response from Suddenlink was always less than satisfactory. That's why the Public Service Commission recently took the extraordinary measure of fining Suddenlink $2.2 million and demanding 16 very specific corrective actions. The $2.2 million penalty fine will not be sent to the Commission or to any other government agency bank account. The Public Service Commission has ordered Suddenlink to refund that money directly back to its existing customers who have been forced to endure years of bad customer service.

The Commission has also put Suddenlink on notice that these penalties can continue to accrue until the Commission determines that the company is finally providing the safe, adequate and reliable service customers are paying for.

Consumers deserve to get the services they request and pay for. When the service breaks down, customers deserve to be able to report the problem and have the service fixed.

If you are a West Virginia customer of one of the businesses we regulate, know that the Public Service Commission will do everything in our power to make sure you get the service you are paying for and deserve. You have my word on it.

Annual 4-H fundraiser a success

Venison winners with guest judges, adult division: Katherine Thompson Collins (left), third place winner George Altizer, second place winner Lee Kidd, first place winner Joe Feury, Judge Mike Honaker, and Judge Ryan Franklin

Another year is in the books for our annual 4-H Venison Contest, Bingo and Live Auction. This is our biggest fundraiser of the year for local 4-H groups. All proceeds from this event go toward our 2022 4-H camps. Approximately 300 people were in attendance to help support our kids, and approximately $10,000 was raised.

There were four youth and nine adult entries for our Venison Cook-Off, with some intriguing recipes such as Venison Sauce Picante, Venison Enchiladas, Fiesta Venison Dip, and Venison Pizza. The winners were, in the youth division Jagger McNeely with Deer Camp Burger and in the adult division Joe Feury with Venison Sauce Piquant. Each winner received a $50 check for their efforts. Guest judges for this event included Ryan Franklin from the hit show Barnwood Living, as seen on Magnolia Network's hit reality television show Barnwood Builders; Katherine Thompson Collins, Chief Meteorologist from

Virtual exhibit 'Know Your School: Education and Opportunity at the Bolling School' opening Feb. 26

The Greenbrier Historical Society will virtually open a new permanent exhibit titled "Know Your School: Education and Opportunity at the Bolling School." Due to COVID restrictions, the grand opening of the exhibit will be online and livestreamed from the Greenbrier Historical Society Facebook page on Saturday, Feb. 26, at 12 noon. The video of the livestream will be available on our social media after it has ended for those who cannot watch the opening live.

The public opening of the exhibit at Greenbrier Community Schools will be at a date to be determined. We are also planning a celebration of this exhibit at a later date when public gatherings can be held more safely. This exhibit and event are made possible with funds from the Bolling Alumni Association.

"Know Your School" examines Greenbrier County's historic Black high school through the lens of its faculty members and demonstrates the school's valuable role in the community prior to integration in 1964. The virtual exhibit will be accessible through the Greenbrier Historical Society website and include more in-depth information about the history of the Bolling School for those interested.

The exhibit features several immersive activities to interact further with these valuable topics. One of these activities includes the oral histories of former students!

As part of the virtual exhibit opening event, GHS staff will be answering questions about the exhibit, its creation, and its significance in the community. The event is free to the public, but donations to the museum are welcomed. For more information about the exhibit or its opening, call the North House Museum at 304-645-3398.

This week's undated photo shows one of John Henry Hunt's (1871-1932) Morgantown oyster parlors. Hunt, an African-American, was a pioneer West Virginia entrepreneur. He began his career as a cook in Morgantown when he was 19. After honing his skills, he opened a restaurant in the basement of the Peabody Hotel. He soon sold that restaurant and opened another. Hunt continued to open restaurants and is thought to have owned 23 over his career.

He started the first ice cream manufacturing plant in Monongalia County and sold ice cream under the name of "Hokey Pokey." Since there was no ice plant in Morgantown, Hunt cut ice in the Monongalia River during the winter, stored it in ice houses, and sold ice to restaurants during the summer.

During World War I, drafted men from all over West Virginia were sent to Morgantown to be trained at West Virginia University. Challenged by how to feed all the draftees, WVU's president engaged Hunt for the task. Hunt took over the "Ark," where the basketball team played their games, and turned it into a cafeteria. So impressed with Hunt's capability, Governor Cornwell appointed him to the State Council of Defense for the Negro Race.

Towards the end of his life, Hunt developed summer resorts. When he died at age 61, his death was headline news in The Pittsburgh Courier. He left his wife, Anna, and six daughters and two sons.

Note shown in the photo on the left is Sam Possner's shop where he would repair your shoes while you waited (perhaps while eating oysters or ice cream).

LICENSED PRACTICAL NURSE (LPN)

Come join our team at Rainelle Medical Center School Based Health!

We are looking for a Licensed Practical Nurse (LPN) with an energetic personality to join our team in School Health two (2) days a week at Meadow Bridge Wellness Center and three (3) days a week at Midland Trail Health Center.

This position offers school hours, a competitive pay rate, and a healthy work/life balance.

We are also looking for a Licensed Practical Nurse (LPN) to work School Health between Rupert Elementary and Western Greenbrier Middle School.

Both positions are full-time and offer a nice benefit package to include: health, dental, vision and life insurance, medical care and dental care for employee, spouse, and dependents at any of our RMC locations, as well as discounted prescriptions, retirement, paid sick leave, paid ETO (earned time off), and paid holidays.

This position might require travel from time to time to other sites. Interested candidates should send resumes to the attention of Terra Skaggs, School Based Health Director, at tskaggs@rmchealth.org.

State Fair of WV adds Foreigner to 2022 lineup

Blaine Yates of Frankford.

Officials at the State Fair of West Virginia are excited to add rock legends Foreigner to the 2022 Concert Series on Saturday, Aug. 13, at 8 p.m. Ticket sales began on Friday, Feb. 25.

"The 97th Annual State Fair of West Virginia is on its way and we are extremely happy to add Foreigner to this year's grandstand lineup," State Fair CEO Kelly Collins stated. "If you haven't seen them in concert yet, you need to this August!"

With 10 multi-platinum albums and 16 Top 30 hits, Foreigner is universally hailed as one of the most popular rock acts in the world with a formidable musical arsenal that continues to propel sold-out tours and album sales, now exceeding 80 million.

Responsible for some of rock and roll's most enduring anthems including "Juke Box Hero," "Cold As Ice," "Hot Blooded," "Waiting

For A Girl Like You," "Feels Like The First Time," "Urgent," "Head Games," "Say You Will," "Dirty White Boy," "Long, Long Way From Home" and the worldwide #1 hit, "I Want To Know What Love Is," Foreigner still rocks the charts more than 40 years into the game with massive airplay and continued Billboard Top 200 album success. Audio and video streams of Foreigner's hits are over 15 million per week.

With more Top 10 songs than Journey and as many as Fleetwood Mac, Foreigner also features strongly in every category in Billboard's "Greatest of All Time" listing. At times, the band's weekly catalog sales have eclipsed those of Led Zeppelin, AC/DC, the Rolling Stones, the Who, Def Leppard, Van Halen, Aerosmith and most of their Classic Rock peers (Source: Nielsen SoundScan). Foreigner's catalog sales were recently celebrated in Business Insider as hitting the Top 40 among the Best Selling Music Artists of All Time.

Tickets will only be available via ETIX at http:// statefairofwv.com/entertainment/ or by calling 1-800-514-ETIX (3849) Monday through Friday, 9 a.m. through 6 p.m., or Saturday from 9 a.m. to 5 p.m. Tickets will not be sold at the State Fair Box Office until later in the spring.

The 10-day State Fair of West Virginia is celebrating 97 years of "Mountain Grown Fun," on Aug. 11-22. The State Fair of West Virginia, with a $13.8 million economic impact on the state of West Virginia, is a 501 (c) 3 nonprofit corporation committed to the traditions of agriculture, family entertainment, and education. COGNITIVE DECLINE RISK AWARENESS & HEARING HEALTH DECISIONS

A 25-year study shows hearing aid use can reduce the progression of cognitive decline in older adults.

Using your hearing, just like exercising a muscle, makes it stronger and more effective. Reduced hearing stimulation due to untreated hearing loss can lead to atrophy of functional brain pathways. This can negatively impact hearing ability and speech comprehension and may increase the risk of dementia.

Justice for All is American. Censorship is not. We CAN handle the Truth.

In West Virginia and elsewhere, numerous attempts are under way to ban discussion of some of our nation's less comfortable history, especially as it relates to race and gender, from classrooms and workplaces.

Dear Recycle Lady,

Dear Recycle Lady,

My child brought a Pringle's snack pack home from a friend's house that was a small container of potato chips covered with aluminum foil. Can this small piece of aluminum foil be recycled?

All For Using Foil

Dear All For Using Foil,

Yes, small pieces of aluminum foil can be recycled. Give it the "aluminum test" by crinkling it up, then release it. If it is aluminum, it will remain crinkled. Shiny materials that look like aluminum will spring back to nearly the original shape.

Recycle Dear Lady,

I must mail out several letters at a time and often use up all address labels on a page. Is the sheet of paper address labels come on recyclable? Why aren't address labels recyclable?

Uses Address Labels

Dear Uses Address Labels,

themselves are recyclable. If they are used on envelopes and white paper, they can be put in with office paper. If they are used on colored envelopes, they are recycled with magazines. It is the shiny paper that the address labels are stuck to that is not recyclable, as the sheet itself contains plastic that enables the labels to be removed. The glue on the labels is not a problem.

Dear Recycle Lady,

Why must colored envelopes be put in with magazines and not office paper?

Likes Color

Dear Likes Color,

Envelopes that are colored are difficult to dye, as the fibers they are made with are not white. Make a tear in the envelope. If the tear shows only color, the envelope is recycled with magazines. If the tear shows white inside, the envelope is recycled with office paper. The same thing is true with bright colored paper. Tearing them will show color that is impossible to dye for later recycling.

Kudos to the Shepherd's Center in Lewisburg for serving a tasty boxed/ in a light cardboard box that is recyclable cardboard and 100% compostable. Additionally, the delicious cookies were in a waxed paper baggie, not a plastic baggie. Also, kudos to the WVSOM O'Café for using the ecofriendly boxes and bags when they prepared the boxed lunches for the Shepherd's Center as part of their community involvement program. Hopefully, more groups will follow their example and not use hard plastic containers or Styrofoam take-out containers and plastic baggies.

Good News: Manchester City Football Center, England, has banned single-use plastics from their Etihad Stadium which will save 1 million plastic cups and 500,000 plastic bottles from being thrown away every football (soccer) season. (Fto.com)

Learn to Feel for the Wheel and Seize the Clay with Kelsie Tyson

Kelsie Tyson demonstrating during a Feel for the Wheel experience

Carnegie Hall introduces teaching artist Kelsie Tyson to its Spring Classes & Workshops Series students as she teaches two new pottery classes - Feel for The Wheel and Seize the Clay.

Feel for the Wheel is part of the Family Fun Classes and are singleday wheel experiences. In these classes, students will spend two hours learning the basics of throwing on the potter's wheel. During class, participants will make 2-5 pieces, picking their best to be fired. Students will have their choice of single glaze options for their pot.

Remaining classes include Feb. 26, Mar. 12, 26, Apr. 9, and May 7 and 21. Registration is $45 for members and $60 for nonmembers. Students must be at least six years old. Class size is limited.

Seize the Clay is a sixweek course that teaches basic hand-building and surface-design popular techniques. Students will complete four projects and no experience is necessary. Section 1 is on Thursdays, Feb. 24, Mar. 3, 10, 17, 24, and 31, from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Section 2 is on Thursdays, Apr. 7, 14, 21, 28, May 5, and 12, from 5:30-7:30 p.m. Registration is only $105 due to an automatic scholarship. Students must be 16 years of age or older. Class size is limited.

Kelsie Tyson is an artist currently residing in Lewisburg. She recently received her MFA in Ceramics and Glass from Tyler School of Art in Philadelphia, PA. She uses photography, fiber, ceramics, and large installations to pursue a visual exploration of body image, sexuality, and the intersections between them. Her goal for her art is to help other West Virginians to appreciate their own bodies. Her artworks are personal, open, and fearless.

To enroll and for a complete list of classes and workshops visit carnegie-hallwv.org/classes-and-workshops. A Classes & Workshops brochure is also available at Carnegie Hall.

Scholarships are available thanks to the generous contributions of the Katherine B. Tierney Foundation, the Mary B. Nickell Foundation, the Seneca Trail Foundation, and the United Way of Greenbrier Valley.

Carnegie Hall is a nonprofit organization supported by individual contributions, grants, and fundraising efforts such as TOOT and The Carnegie Hall Gala. The Hall is located at 611 Church Street, Lewisburg, WV. For more information, please call 304-645-7917 or visit www.carnegie-hallwv.org

Fun Fridays Writing Workshop at NRCTC

If you like to write or think you'd enjoy writing, join author Belinda Anderson in a new writing workshop called "Fun Fridays" offered by New River Community and Technical College. The three-week conference call workshop starts Mar. 18.

"Think about how as a kid you loved creative play," said teacher Belinda Anderson. "It was a great way to stimulate your imagination. We're going to do the same with words."

Anderson will present a variety of writing concepts, followed by playful prompts, to stimulate both new writers and practicing writers of both fiction and nonfiction. "It's an hour of fun intended to inject energy into new and ongoing projects," Anderson said.

"Fun Fridays: Creative Writing as Play" meets for three weeks at 10 a.m. on Fridays through an audio-only conference call. The class can be accessed either through an internet conference call connection or by landline telephone - high-speed internet is not required. The hour-long conference calls will provide time for questions and participant sharing, with group e-mail follow-up as needed. The workshop is open both to new and experienced writers.

Anderson, the author of four books, likes to have fun in her own writing. "Belinda Anderson writes with warmth and humor about people whose lives are both ordinary and extraordinary," author Denise Giardina said of Anderson's book "The Bingo Cheaters."

Tuition for the class is $75. The registration deadline is Mar. 4. Participants will be emailed the conference call number and access codes after registering for the class.

Visit www.newriver.edu/community for information on upcoming classes or register for the course or contact Gloria Kincaid (304-793-6101, gkincaid@newriver.edu).

Learn more about Anderson and her work online at http://www.BelindaAnderson.com
