

Airport Authority hears updates on potential terminal and runway renovation, and entrance sign progress

By Adam Pack

The Greenbrier County Airport Authority met for their regularly scheduled meeting on Tuesday, Apr. 18, at the West State Fairgrounds Conference Room at 2 p.m. to discuss updates and suggestions for various types of work being done at LWB airport.

John McCalmont of Parrish & Partners Engineering was present to give an update on the status of the rehabilitation of the airport's runway, as well as give counsel on the best course of action regarding a renovation of the main terminal.

McClamont first reviewed progress with the airport's runway, stating, "Generally speaking, we're having a surveyor out tomorrow to do a final assessment of the area and just make sure that our reports and our designs are accurate and stay in line with what we've been saying and previous estimates. As of now, we're very confident that the estimates we've given before should still be accurate."

McCalmont also reported that the preliminary numbers from the architectural firm working with the airport on terminal renovations are in, and made it clear to the authority that it would be in their best interest to, "set up a committee, or maybe even start meeting as an entire board, whatever we have to do, to get this process started while we're within this grant cycle."

McCalmont underscored his urgency by relaying his experience with work like this and the timetable involved. "You can basically say that from the initial awarding of the grant, which comes after writing and submitting and waiting on review, you can add six months; after that you can add a year of design work, and you can add to that another year before construction can even begin."

Members of the authority were curious about the potential of the renovations to the pivot and modulate based on the needs of the airport. McCalmont responded that, "For years, we've had this plan in place and it's had multiple goals; one, to increase the space for seating in the terminal, of course, but another was to increase training facilities, so that is paramount for the facility renovations." Interim Airport Director Martha Livesay added, "Our guys have to go through various training throughout the year, and they're doing that in a small office and can only do it five or six people at a time, and it just takes forever." Lastly, Livesay announced that the new entrance sign was delivered last Monday, and that stone work began last Thursday. "This should be done by the end of the week, at which time it can be placed and hooked up to electricity. So far it looks really good, and we're really pleased with it."

The Greenbrier County Airport Authority meets monthly. An agenda detailing meeting times, place, and topics of discussion can be acquired by emailing georgeann@gvairport.com

Josiah & Abby Spangler 'full of hope' as new directors at Wellspring

By Stephen Baldwin, RealWV

Abby and Josiah Spangler began their professional careers as Intensive Care Unit (ICU) nurses in Charleston...just as the pandemic hit. Despite the challenges that presented, they loved their jobs.

They got married, bought a house, and began to build a beautiful life together. They had the world at their fingertips, earning good salaries and playing music together after hours in their band. But something wasn't quite right.

They are creating a long-term care plan for their community. It includes facets such as access to food, mental health care, home construction, providing a safe space, and referring clients to other local providers like The Marvel Center, Valley Works, God's Way Home, and Seneca Health. They plan to begin offering free counseling and meetings (AA, NA, Al-Anon) in the near future.

"This may sound silly," Josiah shares, "but I started having this recurring dream."

"I was in an empty room with an old rotary-style telephone in the center. It kept ringing and ringing. I knew I could either pick it up and be blessed beyond measure...or keep living the life I had in front of me. Either way, it would be OK. But something kept telling me to pick up the phone."

Abby says they went on a vacation in late 2021. It was their first vacation together as a married couple. "We felt God calling us to think about poverty, what that really means, and how we could help."

Her mom told her a few months later about Wellspring searching for new leadership in Rupert, as longtime directors Fred & Scarlett Kellerman were retiring. They had been searching for new directors for almost five years, without any luck.

"I had volunteered at Wellspring before," Abby remembers. "I actually played guitar here at a bluegrass supper once. It's just an amazing place." She and Josiah also volunteered there as part of their community clinic hours during nursing school.

After lots of prayer and conversations in the community, Josiah said it became crystal clear what they needed to do next. "We decided to pick up the phone."

shoes to fill after following in the footsteps of Fred & Scarlett Kellerman, who began and ran the place for nearly two decades. But so far, it's going exceedingly well.

"We are happy," Josiah says.

"And tired," Abby adds with a smile.

They agree it's a different kind of stress than they faced in the Intensive Care Unit as nurses. But their medical background serves them very well in this new role.

"What we do is community nursing," Abby offers.

"It's the same model they taught us in nursing school-assess, diagnose, plan, implement, evaluate," says Josiah. "We just do it with the community rather than with patients."

'A food desert'

"Our biggest expense right now is food," Josiah says. "With emergency SNAP benefits ending from the government, we've seen a huge increase in demand for food.

Two arrests made in Alderson

On Tuesday, Apr. 4, Raeann Wright turned herself in to Police Chief J. T. Williams at the Police Department of the Town of Alderson because she had failed to appear on an earlier charge and a capias warrant had been issued. Chief Williams processed her; caused her to be searched; and prepared to transport Ms. Wright to the Southern Regional Jail. Since Easter was coming up and she was concerned that she would not be released before then, Ms. Wright asked if she could stop at her house and tell her child and boyfriend, Nathan Wilson, goodbye.

Chief Willams agreed to the request and made the stop. Once there, both Ms. Wright and Mr. Wilson became very nervous. With their four year old son between them, Wilson is alleged to have passed something to Wright. When challenged and faced with a search by a female EMT, Wright is alleged to have produced a black plastic bag containing an aluminum foil packet of methamphetamine.

Once Wright was delivered to the Southern Regional Jail, a search warrant was obtained for the residence. While serving the search warrant an unidentified female was detained upon leaving the residence and is alleged to have produced methamphetamine which she claimed to have just purchased from Wilson. Wilson was arrested on charges of delivery of a controlled substance and child neglect. Wright has also been charged with child neglect.

In addition to his fellow officers of the Alderson Police Department, Chief Williams wishes to thank the Greenbrier County Drug Task Force, Lewisburg Police Department, Greenbrier County's SWAT Team; and Child Protective Services.

Wellspring

We feed 300+ people every other week. That's more than ever. And we always run out of our free meals."

Abby puts it plainly, "We are in a food desert."

And they have a plan to change that. "People can get certain food items at Family Dollar and Dollar General," she says of the only place to buy groceries in Rupert. "Our idea is to supplement that with fresh produce."

They've started a greenhouse out back. Volunteers and community members will grow fresh produce which they will give to folks in need. Then they will offer cooking classes that specifically teach folks how to cook fresh, healthy meals using produce from the greenhouse and items they can get in town at the dollar stores.

Large base of donors and volunteers

As you might imagine, it takes a large donor and volunteer base to make Wellspring work. They operate completely on private grants and donations with no government funding.

"Our volunteers have kept us going," Abby says.

"Lewisburg United Methodist Church and the recovery community are our biggest supporters," Josiah adds. "We get lots of help from lots of people, but those two groups have been huge supporters for years."

Barb and Craig Miller are retirees who volunteer regularly at Wellspring. Craig jokes, "It keeps us off the Wellspring's future, saying, "We are blessed to have them."

How you can help

Wellspring welcomes volunteers - for the greenhouse, to answer phones, distribute food, sort clothing, serve meals, work the greenhouse, and help with home construction projects. Call them at 304-392-2095 or email them at info@wellspringofgreenbrier.com

They welcome financial support from individuals, churches, and community groups. Checks can be mailed to Wellspring, PO Box 43, Rupert, WV 25984. They are in the process of adding a donation button to their website now.

They also welcome donations of non-perishable foods.

'Young & dumb & full of hope'

The Spanglers are all-in on Wellspring. They live upstairs. They work more hours than they probably should. They try and help everyone who walks through the door. "We're young and dumb and full of hope," Josiah

"We're young and dumb and full of hope," Jos says.

That's the goal of everything they have planned - instilling hope in the community. By introducing art, live music, partnerships with the library, hosting events with community groups, and partnering with public health "People are struggling," Josiah offers. "But this area has so much potential. We are here for the whole county, not just one part."

"We're where God wants us to be," Abby says confidently.

Stop by and visit the Spanglers at an Open House on Thursday, Apr. 27 from 4 to 7 p.m.

State official says WV's economic future depends on proper flood mitigation and resiliency strategies

By Autumn Shelton, WV Press Association

West Virginia's Director of the State Resiliency Office, Bob Martin, delivered his agency's first quarter report to members of the Joint Legislative Interim Committee on Flooding on Sunday, telling lawmakers he believes the economic future of the Mountain State depends on proper flood mitigation and resiliency strategies.

"This is the world according to Bob," Martin concluded. "I think flood resiliency and flood mitigation in the state of West Virginia is probably the baseline of economic development for the state. I think that's what will create the most prosperity for the state. If we can control the water, and utilize the water to our good and bend it to our will, we will get there. It will create schools that don't flood regularly. We will have children who want to come back and stay in the state because they didn't live and grow up in a flooded area. Business, industry and homes won't flood regularly, and people will stay in them. Economically, I think that's the way to go."

During the meeting, in response to a question from Del. Evan Hansen, D-Monongalia, about a new "shift" from protection to resiliency in the state's flood plan following passage of SB 677, Martin explained that "the resiliency side has been there."

"Mitigation and resiliency work hand-in-hand," Martin stated. "One is prevention, and the other one is so you can live and survive with it. We have to embrace both. I think that's the only way we are going to get through it." SB 677 was passed during the 2023 Legislative Session, and was signed into law by Gov. Jim Justice on March 29. The bill eliminates the state's Flood Protection Plan and requires that it be replaced with the Flood Resiliency Plan. This new resiliency plan must be in place by June 30, 2024, and be updated biannually, Martin stated. "This document will have to have a little bit more depth to it," he noted. The bill also created the West Virginia Flood Resiliency Trust Fund, which "requires that 50% of disbursements be expended to benefit low-income communities," and requires that a portion of its disbursements be used to "implement nature-based solutions" - like restoring natural wetlands. The bill states that the fund may be "granted an initial allocation" of $40 million from the state's general revenue fund, and the state resiliency office may request up to $40 million each year to replenish funding. Additionally, the bill placed the administrative authority of the West Virginia Disaster Recovery Trust Fund under the state resiliency officer, and notes that the fund "may be granted an initial one-time allocation" of $10 million, with allowable requests of up to $10 million in funding annually. "As far as Senate Bill 677, we'll really be looking for the Legislature to put together an idea of funding for it, and the guidance that would come with that," Martin stated. "If we look at the federal side of it, the federal side will come with its own guidelines as to how that money has to be administered."

Water Line construction update: Dwyer Lane closure in Lewisburg

The City of Lewisburg has announced that Dwyer Lane will be closed from Crowfields to Mary's Lane from Tuesday, Apr. 25 through Thursday, Apr. 27, from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Please use Lee Street.

Construction work will continue on Dwyer Lane and it will be down to a single-lane road with flaggers. Please use caution in the area.

Director of Homeland Security and Emergency Management for Greenbrier County, stated that following the June

2016 flood, work in his county still needs to be done. "What's remarkable - we're still working on recovery," Honaker stated, adding that people often want to know what takes so long. "The response I give is complexity."

Honaker then addressed the Milton floodwall project along the Mud River in Cabell County, which had been discussed by Martin earlier in the meeting.

According to Martin, the congressional passage of the Water Resources Development Act of 2022 increased the federal share of the project costs from 65% to 90%. This increase, along with the recent announcement by U.S. Senators Shelley Moore Capito and Joe Manchin that the project would receive $190.7 million in federal funding, and with $16 million provided by the state, is allowing the project to move forward.

"You mentioned the 90/10, 65/35 split . . . it seems like the emergency managers throughout the state look at this as limbo. They are just looking for an answer. Are they going to get an answer?" Honaker asked, noting that, at times, "cost is being pushed back" to counties.

Martin responded that the state must "have money to put forward" to receive certain grants.

"They've created it so there is some leeway now because of communities that are under-served," Martin explained. "So, if they are an underserved community, they can get a better percentage to work with, but yet still the state, right now, is not able to come up with all the dollars. So, that's one thing that we would hope that from this funding that the Legislature would put it forward that way." Martin continued that legislators could help him, help those in his office and help residents of the state by placing funding into the two accounts that "don't have any money in them," and by looking at any new legislation from a "flood resiliency perspective" - like including floodplain managers into discussions on building and project management.

Martin also said that the state will continue to see flood events

"I think, on average, we normally have about six a year," Martin noted. "Of those six, six to eight, we usually only get one or so, maybe two, that get public assistance for them."

As for the state's economic future, Martin said that it's important to create livable, workable areas that "don't flood on a regular basis."

Answering a question from Committee Chairman Chandler Swope, R-Mercer, regarding a computer program that has analyzed the flood risk of every area in the state, Martin said that the flood tool provides an even better analysis of flood risk than FEMA mapping.

Although predictive modeling is not yet able to determine how much flooding will occur in a certain area, its data can be used to determine social vulnerability and identify "pockets" of residents who should have flood insurance, Martin said.

Waste Not, Want Not

Originally published May 13, 2022

Since I was a kid, I helped my mom in our backyard planting flowers and annual tomatoes. I credit her with my green thumb and deep interest in growing things from seeds. As I grew up, I continued to learn about gardening and was lucky to score a job at an organic farm/ produce market. Long story short, the universe smiled on me and said, "This is what you want, and this is what you need."

I enrolled in many types of gardening programs over the decades and have adapted biodynamics and organic ways to grow food. Many folks who plant gardens aren't familiar with these methods of growing; my best suggestion is to order a book online or go to the library to see what they offer for growing food naturally. Books I highly recommend are Square Foot Gardening by Mel Bartholomew, No Work Garden by Ruth Stout, and any book by Elliot Coleman. Two of these writers I have been lucky to have met in person!

Just the other day a young man at our local grocery store asked me what the word organic meant when he saw me selecting organic lettuce. For those not familiar with growing food without chemical help, here is the definition straight from the internet. Organics: relating to or derived from living matter and/or food and farming methods produced or involving production without the use of chemicals or artificial agents. Does that sound complicated?

Way back in time when your grandparents planted their vegetable gardens they used manure for fertilizer from their chickens, goats, horses, or cows. Applied in the fall or early winter, the manure would break down over months and worms would multiply in it and break up the soil clods. It was an easy and natural way to repurpose waste materials, methods passed down from the preceding generations. Weeds, vegetable waste, grass and hay clippings would be tossed into a big pile that would shrink in size as it decomposed, giving a warm spot for the worms to gather and chomp away. Worms produce something called worm castings, also a great fertilizer. They eat something and excrete the waste which becomes worm castings. You can buy this or just go the natural route as explained and grow your own worms! As the saying goes, build it and they will come, as long as it doesn't contain any chemicals.

Just as important as worms are to our gardens, so are the bees. Bees have always been and still are nature's pollinators. Without bees, we wouldn't have many of the vegetables and flowers that rely on their pollen being carried on the hairy legs of bees from plant to plant. According to some sources, bees are responsible for $15-30 billion annually in various crops. Albert Einstein said many years ago that if bees disappeared all together, humans could survive about four years before our own extinction. Why? Food crops would not be pollinated as they are now with bees. A pollinated plant produces a flower, fruit and/or vegetable. Did you ever try pollinating a plant by hand? I once used a paint brush to tickle off some pollen from one plant to pass it to pollinate another. It is time consuming and highly impractical on a large scale. Big scale food production relies on bees to pollinate fruit trees, blueberries, cherries, some nut trees, avocados, grapefruits, the list goes on and on. It is essential that we keep our bees alive even if you fear them; they are key to our existence bees. When we eventually mow the lawn, we will rake up the cut grass and add it to our compost piles along with brown leaves and spent coffee grounds. I'd rather feed the earth in a productive way than feed a dumpsite we call the landfill. If you love gardening like I do, you will always be exploring new options and ideas.

Commentary Governor urges safe driving in Work Zones

Gov. Jim Justice held an event this week at the State Capitol to kick off the 2023 highway construction season and remind drivers to slow down and pay attention in work zones. The Governor was joined by state and federal officials, as well as a representative from the West Virginia Contractors Association.

"Today in West Virginia, on every street corner, we've got orange cones, workers everywhere, and the roads are improved," Gov. Justice said. "Now, Is it too much to ask that workers deserve to be able to get their dinner bucket, go to work, and deserve to go home safely? It only takes one wrong turn, and we have a catastrophe.

"We have a lot of contractors in the Contractor's Association of West Virginia that are second and third-generation owned," Executive Director of the Contractors Association of West Virginia Jason Pizatella said. "I had one tell me that if he could hire 100 people tomorrow, he would hire them. With all the pieces of federal and state funding coming through West Virginia in the next five years, there are going to be a lot of projects. It's going to be a busy time for West Virginia!"

When Gov. Justice took office, he vowed to do something to fix West Virginia's roads and put thousands of people to work. Gov. Justice called for a massive series of road bonds to raise the money needed for the largest investment in road construction and repair in the state's history

The program also freed up millions of additional dollars that the WVDOT has been able to put back into the smaller roads across West Virginia through the Governor's Secondary Roads Maintenance Initiative.

Since March 2019, when Gov. Justice directed WV-DOT leaders to make road maintenance its top priority, the WVDOT has completed more than $1.2 billion in highway maintenance projects, including patching on nearly 89,000 miles of roadway, more than 34,000 miles of ditching, and over 190,000 miles of mowing along the state's highways.

In that time, the WVDOT has paved more than 6,015 miles of roads with fresh, smooth blacktop.

"From the big, regionally significant projects to our secondary roads, it's all important and it's what our citizens deserve," Wriston said. "Projects like the I-70 bridges in Wheeling, Coalfields Expressway, and Corridor H, I don't know how long those would have taken to get done, we would have no end in sight."

Roads to Prosperity, combined with the other state and federally funded highways projects coming down the pike, have created a huge demand for labor in the Mountain State.

Roads to Prosperity has also allowed WVDOT to place a renewed emphasis on basic roadway maintenance

"In 2019, I got our DOH together and told them to focus on maintenance first," Gov. Justice said. "That year, they did more roadwork than any year on record in West Virginia history! In 2020 and 2021, they broke the record again. And in 2022, they did it again!"

During 2023, WVDOT plans to: ditch a total of 10,477 miles of roadway, mow 70,400 miles of roadway, and stabilize 16,412 miles of roadway. More than 26,500 miles of roadway will be reviewed for pothole patching in 2023.

With all this work going on in all corners of the state, WVDOT urges drivers to use caution in work zones. In 2022, there were 800 crashes in West Virginia work zones, killing eight people and injuring 276. All crashes were avoidable.

"Our citizens, our drivers, our roadway users are just as responsible as we are," Wriston said. "We need to give them every possible way to be able to follow these rules. We need to give them every possible way to be able to follow these rules. We need to give them clear directions through these work zones. We can do that and we're going to."

"We're here today to make people abide by work zone speed limits, and excuses will not be accepted," West Virginia State Trooper Sumner Brody said. "If you're pulled over in one of our work zones, you can expect a citation. You need to slow down and abide by our work zone speed limits. Put your phone down. Leave it in your console. Don't be texting or distracted driving. You will be pulled over. You will be cited. You will be subject to double fines. You will be subject to double points, and that could lead to you losing your driver's license. We're taking this very, very seriously." "We're all here today because we want to save lives," Transportation Enforcement Officer at Public Service Commission of West Virginia Matthew Epling said. "We are all always in a hurry, but saving a little time is never worth another person's life. The West Virginia Public Service Commission and other agencies have posted extra patrols in high-traffic construction zones. Rear-end crashes are common in construction zones. We also have to remember large trucks have blind spots and require extra distance to stop. So be mindful of those large trucks as you operate through construction zones. Don't wait until the last moment to merge. We want to encourage drivers to drive responsibly, but remember that we will be out there and issuing citations." "Work zones play a critical role in upgrading and maintaining our nation's roadways," Deputy Division Administrator for the Federal Highway Division in West Virginia John Rogers said. "The new Inflation Reduction Act laws have provided a lot of funding to improve roads, resources, and opportunities for states like West Virginia, improving the safety and mobility of all users and helping us strive for Vision Zero." The Governor also unveiled a new West Virginia Fallen Worker Memorial that will be placed at the state's seven Welcome Centers. Bearing the names of the 58 workers who have been killed in work zones in West Virginia. The memorial reminds drivers to slow down and avoid distracted driving so that everyone goes home safe at the end of the day.

This month I read a suggestion from a natural gardener and I held off mowing our lawn to allow buttercups, violets, and any flowering weeds to attract and feed

On Oct. 7, 2017, West Virginia voters passed the historic Roads to Prosperity road bond plan. Since passage, 1,134 of the 1,266 projects funded through Roads to Prosperity have been completed, with 65 currently under construction.

"Without the Governor's bold vision for Roads to Prosperity, we wouldn't just be struggling to complete these projects, we wouldn't be doing these projects at all," Transportation Secretary Jimmy Wriston, P.E. said. "This big, bold vision the Governor brought to us saved the Division of Highways and saved the future of transportation in the Mountain State. This puts us on the path to succeed."

Five Roads to Prosperity projects are scheduled to begin construction this season, including the replacement of two rural bridges. Funding through Roads to Prosperity has allowed the WVDOH to replace dozens of smaller rural bridges around the state that might have taken years to address otherwise.

Contractors are already on the job to replace the Philip Run Bridge in Calhoun County. Construction is also expected to begin this season to replace the Middle Fork Bridge in Grant County and the bridge at Hedgesville High School in Berkeley County. Roads to Prosperity money will also completely repave Henry Camp Road in Pleasants County, and Liverpool Road in Roane County this construction season.

Contractors will also soon begin on a $15.3 million Roads to Prosperity project to repair concrete, seal and completely repave a five-mile stretch of Interstate 64 in Raleigh County from Airport Road to the Glade Creek Bridge.

This year, WVDOH has scheduled 126 paving projects statewide, in all 55 counties. Over 260 total miles of highway to be resurfaced. Total investment is $290 million.

Gov. Justice and Secretary Wriston also unveiled the WVDOT's 2023 Statewide Interactive Roadwork Map, marking the fifth year that West Virginians will be able to access this online tool and see what roads near them are scheduled to be improved this year.

The map also provides real-time statistics on how much roadwork has been completed across a variety of categories, including Gov. Justice's Secondary Roads Maintenance initiative and Roads To Prosperity program.

But big ideas come with big needs for equipment, resources, and most of all, people.

He then attended Muskingum College in OH, a Presbyterian school where many of his ancestors were educated and graduated in 1950 prepared for a career in medicine. However, he received the call from God to the ministry, and attended Pittsburgh-Xenia Theological Seminary (now Pittsburgh Theological Seminary) from which he was graduated in 1953. Jim died one week prior to attending his 70th reunion from the seminary. In October 1952, the Big Spring United Presbyterian Church in Newville, PA, called Jim to be the student supply pastor until his graduation in May 1953. He was then ordained and installed as the pastor of the church. The congregation co-hosted the United Presbyterian Church of North America General Assembly meeting in June 1953, where Jim officiated at his first communion service. Jim and Sally Lee Gilbert were married June 17, 1953. The Leitchs answered a call to camp ministry at Camp Fairfield in Ligonier, PA, in 1955. When the camp closed in 1976, he accepted a call to the Clearwater Forest Presbyterian Camp in Deerwood, MN. During his camp ministry years, he also served as pastor on a regular basis in area congregations, and in 1981 Jim transitioned from camp ministry to pastoring the Crosby-Ironton Presbyterian Church in Crosby, MN. It was during this time Jim's wife Sally passed away, and also where Jim met his second wife, Marcia Lee Brandt, as she was called to serve the church as Director of Christian Education. Jim and Marcia married in Sept. 14, 1985. Jim also served the Troy Presbyterian Church in Troy, KY, from 1987 until his retirement in 1993.

Upon retirement Jim and Marcia began their new life creating a wonderful home they call "Dayspring," in Lowell, WV. Jim poured his love of the earth, creativity, skills, and energy into finishing the log home, and developing the property into the gorgeous place it is today. His creativity never stopped coming up with new ideas, most recently a paved path from the driveway to the pond level, with a fire pit along the way, so he would have access to the pond level with his power chair. Dayspring is an illustration of the special bond that Jim and Marcia shared.

Jim's memorial service will be at 2 p.m., Saturday, Apr. 22, at the Old Stone Presbyterian Church in Lewisburg. The Reverend Jeff Binder will be officiating. A reception will follow at the church.

Dear Recycle Lady, Are sandwich baggies recyclable? Baggie User

Dear Baggie User,

Yes, sandwich bags can be recycled. This includes Ziploc, Hefty, and other comparable bags. In fact, most plastic bags are recyclable, including grocery bags, bread bags, cleaning bags, and the sleeves that newspapers come in. Just be sure your bags are empty, clean, and dry before putting them in the recycling bins at Kroger, Walmart, or Lowes. Do not leave plastic bags at the Recycling Center as they will end up in the landfill. The good news is that reusable Silicone baggies are now available in many colors and sizes.

Dear Recycle Lady,

In several of the articles I have read lately microplastic particles have been mentioned. What are microplastic particles and where do they come from?

Need Information

Dear Need Information,

According to www.nationalgeographic.org, microplastic particles are tiny plastic particles that result from the breakdown of larger plastics, consumer products and industrial waste. Generally, they are smaller than can be seen by the naked eye. Microplastics have been discovered in the lungs, blood, and placenta of humans. They can be harmful to the health of humans, the ocean and aquatic life, wildlife, birds, and animals. Textiles and clothing account for 35% of the ocean microplastics due to the erosion of polyester, acrylic, and nylonbased clothing, often during the washing process.

Dear Recycle Lady When is Earth Day this year? Want to Celebrate It

Dear Want to Celebrate It,

Earth Day this year is Saturday, April 22. It is celebrated each year on the day the spring equinox occurs. The first Earth Day in the U.S. was in 1970 when more than 20 million Americans joined in teach-ins, protests, and other events. They were calling on the U. S. Government to get serious about protecting the environment. In December of 1970, the Environmental Protection Agency (EPA) was formed to regulate and enforce U.S. legislation on national pollution. Also, the Clean Water Act and the Endangered Species Act were passed that year. Several studies now show that more than 97% of climate scientists agree that climate change is happening and is primarily caused by human activity. Rachel Carson's "Silent Spring" published in 1962 detailed the significant environmental impact of DDT and other chemical pesticides. Her book created a public awareness of humankind's impact on nature and the need for industrial regulation to protect our planet. Earth Day and every day we must work to build a more just and sustainable future.

Happy Earth Day! Enjoy one or both of two local events that celebrate Earth Day. The first one is the Open House at the Greenbrier Recycling Center at 450 Monroe Avenue in Ronceverte on Friday, Apr. 21, from 11 a.m. to 2 p.m. There will be tours of the Recycling Center and explanations or demonstrations of all the equipment. Free hot dogs (with chili and all the extras!), chips and drinks will be available. The second Earth Day celebration is the Earth Day Fashion Forward 2023 Show, downstairs in the Greenbrier County Public Library, at 3 p.m. on Saturday, Apr. 22. Join us for an exploration of sustainable fashions, celebrating the reuse, repurposing of materials to reduce waste in our landfills, and to promote the health of our planet. See www.edfashionforward.com for more information. Tickets are available at the door.

Have questions about recycling, or interesting information about recycling? Send questions or requests to recyclelady@greenbrier-swa. com. Dear Recycle Lady is sponsored jointly by the Greenbrier Recycling Center and Greenworks Recycling.

By William "Skip" Deegans

When homemade cardboard signs with the word "Ramps" appear along Route 60, digging ramps in the snow on Cold Knob and the numerous community ramp suppers we had in Greenbrier and surrounding counties come to mind. What also comes to mind is Jim Comstock (pictured).

Comstock published a folksy weekly newspaper from 1957 until 1971 called The West Virginia Hillbilly. While it is difficult to aptly describe the newspaper to someone who had not read it, Matthew Neill Null came close to it when, in The Paris Review, he wrote, "The Hillbilly wasn't just a paper - it was an art project, a platform for historic preservation, a conservative wailing wall, and above all, an exploration of the West Virginian id." Comstock had a weekly column called the "Comstock Load" that he used to lampoon just about everything, but especially politicians. At one point, the paper had a circulation of 30,000.

Comstock was born in Richwood in 1911 and graduated from Marshall University. After serving in the U. S. Navy in World War II, he returned to Richwood where, with a partner, started the Richwood News Leader in 1946. In addition to the two newspapers, he published a 51-volume encyclopedia on West Virginia history. He was a conservative, and in 1964 when Republicans were few and far between in West Virginia, he ran for the U.S. Congress and was beaten badly.

What did Comstock have to do with ramps? After smelling some perfume in a magazine, Comstock came up with a clever idea to promote the Feast of the Ramson, Richwood's annual ramp dinner. He mixed ramp juice with ink when he printed the West Virginia Hillbilly. Since most of the newspapers were mailed, postal workers had to handle the ramp-infused newspapers up and down the postal chain. While Comstock got a dressing down from the Postmaster General, he accomplished his goal.

Richwood's 84th annual ramp dinner is Saturday, April 22 beginning at 10 a.m. and will go to 3:00 or until they run out of food.

WVSOM introduces second summer camp for high school-aged students

This summer, the West Virginia School of Osteopathic Medicine (WVSOM) will add a second educational camp for high school students, supplementing its popular Just Say KNOW camp. The inaugural Clinical Anatomy Summer Experience (CASE) camp will take place 8:30 a.m. to 4:30 p.m., June 26-30, on the school's campus in Lewisburg.

There is no cost to attend CASE, which is designed for high school students 15 and older and will focus on hands-on clinical anatomy education in the classroom and WVSOM's gross anatomy lab. A total of 10 students will have the opportunity to learn about anatomical structures and their clinical importance through a series of interactive activities.

Applicants must submit a letter of recommendation from a teacher and an essay outlining their experience in learning anatomy and what they hope to gain from attending the camp. Students may apply by June 2 at www.wvsom.edu/summer-camps or contact Karen Wines, M.S., atkwines@osteo.wvsom.edu for more information.

Wines, a WVSOM anatomy instructor who will lead the camp in conjunction with a medical student intern, said CASE will expand on the Anatomy Lab Educational Program in which WVSOM has hosted high school students and allied health profession students for nearly40 years.

"We're excited to present this unique opportunity to selected students who have shown an interest in gaining a deeper understanding of how the body is built," Wines said. "Our goal is to provide an experience in WVSOM's gross anatomy lab that will allow participants to gain a greater appreciation for the human form, learn about clinical correlations resulting from findings during lab investigations, and experience how the osteopathic approach encompasses care for the mind, body and spirit. The camp also will give participants a peek at what it's like to be a medical student and a better understanding of a variety of healthcare careers."

The CASE camp will take place the week following the school's long-running Just Say KNOW camp, which is scheduled for 9 a.m. to 4 p.m., June 19-23. In its 11th year, Just Say KNOW will have a theme of lifestyle medicine.

Just Say KNOW is available at no cost to ninth through 12th-graders and recent high school graduates. Those interested may apply by June 2 at www.wvsom. edu/summer-camps by submitting a teacher recommendation and an essay on what they hope to gain from participating, or contact Crystal Boudreaux, Ph.D., at cboudreaux@osteo.wvsom.edufor more information. There are 20 spots for attendees.

Boudreaux, a WVSOM biomedical sciences faculty member who oversees the Just Say KNOW program, explained the decision to highlight lifestyle medicine. Previous camps have focused on topics such as pharmacology, anatomy, neuroscience and pandemics.

"This year, we wanted to highlight two WVSOM programs that contribute to lifestyle medicine," Boudreaux said. "Our Exercise is Medicine and culinary medicine programs are nationally recognized and are part of the school's curriculum. Just Say KNOW provides an opportunity to showcase these programs through practice, including cooking in the Clingman Center for Community Engagement kitchen and performing exercise routines to promote a culture of wellness and optimal health. Students will learn the basis of nutrition and the physiology behind a healthy diet and exercise."

The CASE camp is funded by a grant from the Jeanne G. Hamilton and Lawson W. Hamilton Jr. Family Foundation, with support from the WVSOM Foundation and WVSOM Alumni Association. Just Say KNOW is sponsored by the WVSOM Foundation and WVSOM's Rural Health Initiative.

First-ever book on nearly forgotten 1940s passenger train, 'The Chessie,' published by Chesapeake & Ohio Historical Society

Chesapeake & Ohio's The Chessie, the Train that Was, but Never Was provides detailed imagery, specifications, and diagrams of each car and their purpose on board the never-operated luxury train. Originally to be named "Belle Island Dome," this mid-train dome car survives and currently serves on CSX Transportation's business train under the name "Moonlight Dome" (1948, courtesy of the Chesapeake & Ohio Historical Society, archive # COHS-21271)

The Chesapeake & Ohio Historical Society has released the first-ever fulllength book on a nearly forgotten passenger train that was developed, built, and announced by the C&O Railway in the 1940s, but abruptly cancelled before entering revenue service. A story previously told only in pieces through scattered magazine articles from 1969 to 2019, the saga of The Chessie, a passenger train named after the railroad's famous mascot, "Chessie the Railroad Kitten," has now been compiled through decades of research with information in the nonprofit organization's extensive archives. The book, titled Chesapeake & Ohio's The Chessie, the Train that Was, but Never Was, tells the complete story of the fabulous passenger train that the C&O Railway's Chairman, Robert R. Young and his research chief, Kenneth Browne, designed and had built for ultra-luxury coach service from Washington to Cincinnati. Predicting a post-World War II war passenger boom, the design of The Chessie incorporated most of Young's forward-thinking ideas about how railroads could recapture their market share of the traveling public by providing more luxurious service and amenities than could be offered in other modes of transportation, giving rail travel a competitive edge over fastdeveloping American superhighways and airlines. The train had two bi-level spaces for dome-view seating, family cars, children's theaters and playrooms, ample lounge space that included a tropical fish aquarium, twin-unit dining cars that converted to theatres showing first-run films, and newly-designed observation cars on the rear. The dome cars, the first set to operate over the Chesapeake & Ohio, were set to give the train's riders the best possible appreciation of the scenery in Virginia, West Virginia, and Kentucky, through which

The Chessie was scheduled to travel mostly during daylight hours.

Especially for the 1940s, the innovative technology installed for use by passengers on board The Chessie was set to revolutionize American traveling comfort and style. For example, the train's seats featured plugins for piped-in music and, for the first time in history, passengers could place telephone calls from on board the train. All the train's cars were built out of stainless steel with the most up-to-date mechanical arrangements. However, for mysterious reasons, the train's entrance into service was cancelled just before it was to be inaugurated and its almost-famous cars were sold to several different railroads throughout the country. In developing the concept for The Chessie, Robert R. Young used the C&O Railway's rich treasury (primarily from coal hauling) to finance the train's development and construction. When the cars were delivered from the manufacturer to the C&O Railway in mid-1948, coal strikes were impacting the railroad's revenue stream. In addition, passenger traffic also was in steep decline as post-war Americans turned to automobiles for travel. For these known reasons, likely combined with unknown reasons, the train's debut was cancelled, and the carefully designed luxury cars were instead used on other C&O trains until all but four were sold in 1951. Perhaps the best-known detail about The Chessie known today surrounds the locomotives built to pull the passenger cars on its fastpaced schedule. The train was to be powered by three innovative, groundbreaking steam-turbine-electric locomotives, each of which were the largest passenger engines in the world. The "M-1" burned coal in a standard boiler to turn a turbine that supplied electricity for traction motors. These huge engines with "streamlined" exteriors complemented the design of the streamlined passenger cars, giving the entire train a striking appearance.

Compiling both familiar and never-seen information from the C&O Historical Society over its 100 pages, Chesapeake & Ohio's The Chessie, the Train that Was, but Never Was is softbound on heavy 100-pound glossy paper and includes over 150 illustrations, including an equipment roster and diagrams for The Chessie's groundbreaking passenger cars. Explaining the chain of events and research that made the completed book possible, author Thomas W. Dixon, Jr. shared, "I first became fully aware of the fantastic concept of The Chessie when I read the article in Trains magazine in the summer of 1969. Ever since then, I have explored information about it, finding material from time to time. When the C&OHS finally acquired enough material to make the story complete, I was enthusiastic about pursuing it with this book." C&OHS President Mark Totten commented on the enduring interest of a passenger train that never publicly operated, "Almost like the Titanic that sank on its maiden voyage in 1912, there is some tragic romance surrounding the entire story of The Chessie."

Complimenting the original author who rescued the story of The Chessie from near-obscurity in 1969 with his article in Trains magaziQne, Dixon summarized his vision for his now-completed book, "Herb Harwood led the way in the Trains magazine article; I hope to have completed 'the rest of the story' with this book. There is more to say, I'm sure, though, for that wonderful 'train that was, but post-war market. Not only was The Chessie designed as the rail industry's first strike to keep the era of rail travel alive, but three complete train consists were actually built with much fanfare from the C&O. Had The Chessie operated successfully, today we might have more diversified transportation in our country. Totten concluded, "After World War II, the United States was at a crossroads over which form of transportation would dominate the ous ever built, and the hopes Robert Young had for it, suddenly vanished."

Ladies of Henning hurch of God plan Yard Sale

The Ladies of the Henning Church of God held their regular monthly meeting Tuesday, Apr. 11, in the church fellowship hall. President Carole Spencer presided and Kim Brookman led in prayer.

Dyan Hefner presented the devotion, "Grab Your Fly Swatter," with scripture reference I Corinthians 10:31. A fly is small and annoying by buzzing around you and landing on you. It will never go away until you get the fly swatter and kill it. You have to pursue it, just like a bad or spiritual habit. You can swat it and never get rid of it without the word of God. (II Timothy 3:16) God's word acts like a heat seeking missile. Where had that fly been? What had that fly landed on before you?

We could end up with unspiritual bad habits. We need to take a good look at ourselves and pursue good things. (Colossians 3:1-2) Study the word of God and set your affection on the word of God. (Colossians 3:5) Make things dead in all parts of body such as fornication, uncleanness, affection beyond normal limits, evil, and covetousness. (Colossians 3: 8-9) Put off anger, wrath, malice, blasphemy, filthy communication, and do not lie to each other. Replace bad habits with good. (Colossians 3: 9-10) Put on the new man. New things will replace the bad things. Practice meekness and kindness. Keep habits under control. Hand over your bad habits and do all for the glory of God. Are there things you need to swat? Kim Brookman brought the missionary education report by first telling the group about missionaries Tim and Joy Coppess. They are in Botswana, Africa. They have established training programs for pastors and church leaders there. Tim grew up in Indiana with four siblings, his father died at 37 years of age and his mother raised them by herself. She was happy to have a family of lifelong learners. Joy grew up in Illinois and her parents were pastors. She worked in church run daycares until accepting the call as a missionary. She also shared about some calling the United States a post-Christian nation now. The article is by gospelcoliation.org and asks western Christians about our involvement with missionaries. They want to thank us and for us to stay involved. Many national churches have taken root because of us. Continue to recognize new missions and help to shape them. For instance, in 1910, there were 9 million Christians in Africa, now there are 700 million Christians in Africa. Come along and work side by side for the glory of God. The world of missionaries can work together. Pauline Perkins read last month's minutes.

We will join next month and pay dues. Carole thanked Angie for taking items to the Children's Home Society that the group collected. The group will be serving the Maxwelton Ruritans with the help of the youth group on Apr. 27. The group will be having an indoor yard sale on Saturday, May 6, from 8 a.m. to 2 p.m., with plenty of donated items. The group will also be serving hot dogs with all of the toppings. Homemade baked goods will also be sold that day.

Marty Burns gave the mile of pennies report which started in 2014. The total balance needed is $844.80 and the group needs $28.77 to make a mile of pennies.

Cindy Fleshman dismissed in prayer. The next meeting will be May 9.

Attending were: Alice Coff, Angie Scott, Barb Seldomridge, Christine Cullen, Carole Spencer, Cindy Fleshman, Donna Scott, Dyan Hefner, Joan Vance, Kim Brookman, Marty Burns, Patty Owens, Pauline Perkins, Peggy Seldomridge, and Sue Hunt.

STEPPIN' OUT 1 Gallery features

Old Stone Room Gallery features William Todd Gambill

"Introvert" by William Todd Gambill

Carnegie Hall's Spring Exhibits are underway with three new galleries featuring the works of regional artists. The Old Stone Room Gallery features works by artist William Todd Gambill. The gallery is located on the ground floor of Carnegie Hall.

William Gambill is a passionate artist with a lifetime of experience in various forms of art. Even before formal training, William was already showcasing his artistic skills by drawing his favorite cartoon characters in the margins of his school papers. Although it was never apparent to him or anyone else at an early age that he could make a living through art, William's artistic abilities have been his key to success through graphic design and fine art.

William's father was his first influence, teaching him to look at things differently and draw what he saw with his own eyes. This skill has been invaluable to him as an artist. Both his mother and father were always supportive of his artistic pursuits, for that William is eternally grateful. That tradition is continued by the support of his wife Cathy and children, Logan, and Luke.

The second major influence was his high school art teacher, Glenn Toler. Toler recognized that William had a natural talent and pushed him to work harder, which helped him grow and mature as an artist.

Over the years, William has experimented with various art mediums. Some he enjoyed immensely, while others were just not his cup of tea. As a young artist, William did not have much patience for oils, but now it is one of his absolute favorite mediums. He has also used acrylics, pen & inks, watercolors, pencil, ballpoint pens, markers, and even Photoshop to create his artwork.

For William, art is all around us, and there are no right or wrong methods of making it. It all comes down to the final product.

For more information on William Gambill visit williamgambill.wixsite.com/website.

Carnegie Hall exhibits are free and open to the public, Monday through Friday, 10 a.m. to 4 p.m., and run through Jun. 30. For more information, please visit carnegiehallwv.org, call 304-645-7917, or stop by the Hall at 611 Church Street, Lewisburg.

A design is cut into the linoleum surface with a sharp knife or V-shaped chisel. The linoleum sheet is inked with a roller (called a brayer), and then impressed onto paper. The actual printing can be done by hand or with a printing press. All materials are provided and no experience necessary.

Guest soloists join Chorale for Anniversary Concert

Dan Slavin

The Greenbrier Valley Chorale will kick off its 30th anniversary season with a concert on Sunday, May 7, at 3 p.m. at Carnegie Hall in Lewisburg. Artistic Director Barbara Wygal Lutz has selected a program of beautiful and challenging choral works that showcase the choir's ability to interpret a wide range of musical styles. The 50-member ensemble has been directed by Barbara Lutz since its inception in 1993, and Teresa Bryant has been their accompanist for many of those years.

The musical landscape of the concert ranges from "If Ye Love Me" by Sixteenth

West Virginia's own Rock and Roll Hall of Fame inductee, Bill Withers. The program also includes the Shaker tune "I am Loved as I Loved," arranged by Jeffrey Douma; the Hebrew folk song "Hine Ma Tov," in an arrangement by Neil Ginsberg; and an evocative arrangement of the American folk song "Shenandoah" by James Erb. An array of uplifting contemporary and traditional choral works rounds out the program. The Chorale is delighted to welcome back two guest soloists who have performed with them in the past. Kiersten White will be featured in Frances Smith Thomas' "My Feet are Tired, but My Soul is Resting" arranged by Shawn Kirchner. A West Virginia native, White received her B.A. in theatre from Millikin University. ### Barbara Nissman

By John Cuthbert

Barbara Nissman is widely recognized as one of the world's finest concert pianists. Hailed as "one of the last great pianists in the grand Romantic tradition of Liszt, Rachmaninoff and Rubenstein," she has performed with leading orchestras on almost every continent. Her recordings of Prokofiev, Bartók and Ginastera are considered "definitive," and she has garnered lavish praise for masterful renditions of the works of Beethoven, Chopin, Liszt, Schumann, Brahms and Rachmaninoff. She is also in demand as a writer, lecturer, guest artist and clinician both in the U.S. and abroad.

A West Virginia resident since 1989, Nissman was born in Philadelphia on Dec. 31, 1944, to Albert and Sophia Nissman. She fell in love with the sound of the piano when her older sister started playing. She begged for lessons but soon discovered that she was definitely not a musical prodigy!

"Don't waste your money," her first piano teacher told her mother, "your daughter will never play the piano." Undaunted, Nissman proved to be a radiant "late bloomer." When the first blossoms appeared at age 11, she knew what she would do for the rest of her life. Nearly seven decades later, she is still in love with the piano and the great music written for the instrument.

Commuting to the Julliard School in New York City for lessons during high school, she was awarded a full scholarship to attend the University of Michigan's School of Music. She graduated with both a bachelor's and a master's degree in 1966 and won the School's Stanley Medal honoring the highest achieving student. She completed a doctorate at Michigan three years later, and in 1981 received the University's Athena Medal for outstanding professional and humanitarian endeavors.

Nissman's international career was launched by legendary conductor Eugene Ormandy who, after hearing her perform as a doctoral student, arranged her debuts in all major European capitals. She subsequently made her American professional debut with the Philadelphia Orchestra with Ormandy conducting.

Since then, she has performed with the leading orchestras in both Europe and America. She has also worked with some of the major conductors of our time including Ormandy, Riccardo Muti, Stanislaw Skrowaczewski and Leonard Slatkin. She was inducted into the inaugural class of Steinway Legends chosen by Steinway from more than a century of Steinway Artists.

From 1970 to 1982, she was based in Amsterdam and London. While in London, she initiated a TV series, "Barbara & Friends," for BBC Television. Years later, collaborating with the Greenbrier Obituary _

COGNITIVE DECLINE RISK AWARENESS & HEARING HEALTH DECISIONS

A 25-year study shows hearing aid use can reduce the progression of cognitive decline in older adults.

Using your hearing, just like exercising a muscle, makes it stronger and more effective. Reduced hearing stimulation due to untreated hearing loss can lead to atrophy of functional brain pathways. This can negatively impact hearing ability and speech comprehension and #### may increase the risk of dementia.

THE SOONER, THE BETTER. Many people with gradual hearing loss delay vital testing.
