Lewisburg City Council approves bid for Green Space renovations, announces advancement in Hallmark competition

By Caleb Whisenant

At its regular monthly meeting Tuesday, the Lewisburg City Council unanimously approved a bid for planned renovations to the city’s Green Space.

City Manager Misty Hill presented the argument for the increased price of the chosen bid, stating issues regarding the replacement of key components of the fountain in the Green Space required special materials that were only available from the selected bidder. The council voted unanimously (4-0; Councilman John Little was not in attendance) to approve the bid.

During the meeting, Mayor Beverly White presented a wooden plaque the city received in recognition of the city’s All-Star Community Award. Mayor White extended gratitude on behalf of the city to City Manager Hill for her instrumental work in securing the award.

Council member Valerie Pritt announced that the city has advanced in Hallmark’s Merriest Christmas Town Contest to the finalist round. “Working on this project - I’m sorry - has brought me more holiday spirit than I’ve felt in a long time,” Pritt said visibly and audibly moved by what the city’s potential winning of the contest would mean for both Lewisburg and the entire Greenbrier Valley.

People can support the city’s bid by going to Hallmark’s designated contest website and voting. Each voter is allowed to submit one vote every 24 hours. The voting portal link can be found on the city’s social media.

The council, at the recommendation of the Finance Committee, also voted unanimously to approve two arts and humanities funding requests From Carnegie Hall to support two projects: Taste of Our Town (TOOT) and the renovation of the hall’s Ivy Terrace.

Additionally, reports were presented by the chiefs of the police and fire departments, and both officials reported that the only concerns their departments had were related to isolated traffic and fire incidents connected to traffic for the West Virginia State Fair and the flooding resulting from heavy rainstorms.

Airport Authority making progress on multiple projects

By D.L. Bowles

At its regular meeting on Tuesday, Aug. 18 the Greenbrier County Airport Authority accepted a bid to complete EDA Infrastructure Improvements from a locally owned company, Schleiff Construction, LLC. The bid is in excess of three million dollars. The project includes water and sewer upgrades as well as the construction of new t hangars. EDA Infrastructure Improvements are federally funded capital projects by the U.S. Economic Development Administration.

Projects that have been completed this year include a new airfield lighting control panel and runway construction. A project to rehab the taxiway is currently in progress. A project to expand the terminal building is in the works and slated to begin in 2027.

In other business, CFO Martha Livesay provided information on finances. With all July 2026 expenses paid, the airport realized an increase of its surplus and improved on the results from July 2025. Livesay said the GVAA has accrued solid cash reserves and is in a strong financial position.

The next meeting of the Greenbrier County Airport Authority is scheduled for Sept. 10, 2026.

State of Emergency extended in 12 WV counties as flood recovery continues

Gov. Patrick Morrisey announced the State of Emergency will be extended in 12 counties following the severe storms and flooding that struck West Virginia beginning July 21.

“West Virginians have made tremendous progress cleaning up and recovering from these storms, but there is still a lot of work ahead in some of our hardest-hit communities,” said Governor Morrisey

“This extension ensures our state and local partners have the flexibility and resources they need to rebuild and recover.”

The extension applies to Barbour, Doddridge, Harrison, Lewis, Pendleton, Pleasants, Randolph, Ritchie, Tucker, Tyler, Upshur, and Wetzel counties and will remain in effect through Sept. 19 as recovery operations and damage assessments continue in those counties. The State of Emergency for the remaining 43 counties will expire Aug. 20 as scheduled.

Local officials in a number of the affected counties requested the extension. Keeping the State of Emergency in place provides state and local officials with additional flexibility to respond quickly to recovery needs and provide communities with the assistance they need.

Morrisey declared a State of Preparedness for all 55 counties on July 21 as severe storms moved across West Virginia before declaring a statewide State of Emergency later that evening. The storms brought damaging winds, torrential rainfall, flash flooding, and landslides that damaged homes, businesses, public infrastructure, and essential services across the state.

Since then, state and local agencies, emergency responders, the West Virginia National Guard, volunteers, and community organizations have worked together to remove debris, restore affected areas, assist displaced residents, and support recovery efforts.

While substantial progress has been made, emergency operations remain ongoing in the 12 counties covered by the extension. Residents and communities continue to face impacts to homes, businesses, infrastructure, and critical services that will require additional recovery work.

The extension allows state and local agencies to continue coordinating personnel, equipment, and other resources necessary to support relief and recovery operations in the affected counties.

Encova Foundation helps fund WVSOM’s wilderness medicine elective rotation

Gear ranging from ropes, harnesses and helmets to splints, tourniquets and rescue stretchers will play a role in immersive rescue exercises during the West Virginia School of Osteopathic Medicine’s (WVSOM) wilderness medicine elective rotation, thanks in part to the Encova Foundation of West Virginia.

The WVSOM Foundation - a charitable organization that supports WVSOM through philanthropic investment - received a $25,000 grant from Encova to help fund the school’s 2026 elective. The two-week course provides training in emergency care, disaster response and patient stabilization in outdoor environments for third- and fourth-year medical students and resident physicians.

It will take place Aug. 24-Sept. 4, primarily at Greenbrier Youth Camp in Anthony, WV, and at additional locations including the New River Gorge area and Kanawha Falls in Fayette County.

The rotation is designed to strengthen physician readiness to serve rural and underserved communities across West Virginia and Appalachia. Participants will receive education on topics such as triage under resource constraints and adaptive clinical decision-making. The rotation prepares physicians to deliver care in settings where infrastructure limitations, delayed services and geographic isolation shape medical decisions.

The rotation will culminate in an all-day “grand scenario” on Sept. 3 at Greenbrier Youth Camp. Details See “Wilderness Medicine” _____ Page 6

We’re trying to get folks to understand that things in the world are changing quickly, and that we all, as human beings, need spiritual guidance. If you want truth from the Bible, you have to study the Bible... Jehovah’s Witnesses are all over the world; there’s more than nine million of us doing this work... We love people, and we want to share the truth. And that’s our main reason for coming out here, regardless of the heat... Love for people... And people who come to our Kingdom Hall don’t get judged. They find love, acceptance... because as long as we do God’s will, we’ll all be fine.

Danny Cook (Price Run, WV)

I’m 84. I converted back in 2020. I was searching for the truth. All I had to do was look around. This beautiful earth that we live on... Someone created all of this. It’s just beautiful. It just didn’t happen by chance... So, I wanted to find out more about who the creator was... You’ve heard what the rumors are. But we’re not a cult. And people who come to us listen.

A decade ago, lawmakers created a Future Fund to save coal and gas wealth. It never saved a penny.

States across the country have saved money to fund programs across the state from coal, gas and oil taxes. While other states built billions in savings, lawmakers wrapped West Virginia’s Future Fund in restrictions - then killed it outright.

By Henry Culvyhouse

In 2014, then-Senate President Jeff Kessler proposed an ambitious plan: Set aside some of the tax money from gas, oil, and coal, so the state would continue to reap the benefits long after the last stream of gas was sucked out of the state’s wells and the last cart of coal was hauled out of the mines.

The Democrat from Marshall County said the idea, called the West Virginia Future Fund, was simple: save back a portion of the state’s severance tax from coal and natural gas extraction and use the interest from that fund to invest in projects the state needs.

“It’s things that would lead to long-term sustainable development,” Kessler said. “Improving the education, the infrastructure, and the opportunities to help the welfare of the people of the state and to give them an even

Sheriff’s Office concludes investigation into online solicitation

The Greenbrier County Sheriff’s Office has concluded an investigation into allegations involving the online solicitation of a juvenile male through electronic communications and online gaming platforms.

According to the investigation, the juvenile reportedly met Adam S.Hamm of Summersville, WV, at the West Virginia State Fair in 2025. Investigators learned that contact between the two allegedly continued through text messaging and online gaming communications following that encounter. The investigation revealed alleged discussions involving requests for photographs and offers of gaming-related items associated with the video game Fortnite, including V-Bucks and Battle Pass purchases. Investigators further alleged that Hamm expressed interest in meeting the juvenile in person this year at the West Virginia State Fair.

This investigation was conducted by Sergeant D.L. Vaught in coordination with Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) and remains active. Additional charges may be pursued pending further review of the evidence and consultation with the Greenbrier County Prosecuting Attorney’s Office.

The Greenbrier County Sheriff’s Office would like to acknowledge the assistance provided by the West Virginia Internet Crimes Against Children (ICAC) Task Force, the Greenbrier Valley Drug and Violent Crime Task Force, the West Virginia State Police, and participating law enforcement partners whose collaboration was instrumental throughout the investigation.

Greenbrier County Prosecuting Attorney Nicole Campbell, and Greenbrier County Sheriff Bart Baker would like to remind parents to closely monitor who their children are making contact with on social media, gaming platforms or messaging apps. Child predators use these apps to make contact and groom children. The best protection is prevention. If you believe your child is being targeted please contact your local law enforcement immediately.

The Future Fund was then just the latest in these kinds of funds set up around the country by resource extraction states. New Mexico, an oil producer, has one. Oil-rich Alaska set up its fund after a major pipeline ended construction. North Dakota’s fund was introduced after a major oil boom. That fund, Kessler said, became the model for West Virginia’s fund.

Future Fund

Since then, New Mexico has used a portion of its fund to make child care available for all families, regardless of income. Alaska offers a stipend ranging from $800 to $3,000 to every man, woman and child in the state. North Dakota parlayed some of its fund into a low-interest loan program for water, electricity and natural gas infrastructure.

West Virginia didn’t do any of that. The state never made a deposit.

During the 2014 session, Kessler’s bill went through the legislative process, and lawmakers added a number of amendments. The result was a variety of conditions that had to be met before a deposit could be made.

There couldn’t be a hiring freeze in the state government. The governor couldn’t use the Rainy Day Fund to shore up the budget. The Rainy Day Fund had to be a certain size relative to the state budget.

Kessler said he wasn’t happy with the conditions, but he supported the legislation.

“I said we’re going to set up the framework. I’ll accept it this year as is. Next year, ain’t a damn bill gonna pass this damn Senate until we get this thing fixed,” he said.

But next year never came for Kessler. The 2014 election tossed Democrats out of power, and Kessler became the minority leader, not the president of the Senate.

The conditions for funding remained. Even if all the hurdles had been cleared, only 3% of the state’s severance tax per year would’ve been deposited in the account. At 6% annual interest, there would be around $219 million in that fund today.

While each year, the state failed to make deposits in the fund, state revenues soared due to increased funding from the federal government during COVID and a spike in gas production caused by Russia’s invasion of Ukraine. Those two factors were used to justify a massive income tax cut instead.

Today, New Mexico’s fund, which has been around since prior to statehood in 1912, is valued at more than $30 billion. Alaska’s fund, started in 1976, is valued at $91 billion. North Dakota is a late comer, starting theirs in 2010, but they already have an estimated $15 billion in the bank.

Had West Virginia committed 30% to the fund - the rate North Dakota does - it would’ve had $572 million in interest alone to address issues such as the state’s water crisis and closing schools.

“We estimate it would only take $28 million to keep the current list of schools open that are slated for closure,” said Sean O’Leary, budget analyst for the West Virginia Center on Budget and Policy.

“That kind of money could’ve been an additional amount used for any discussion in changing the school aid formula,” he added.

Had lawmakers committed 100% of oil, gas and coal taxes to the Future Fund instead of using it for general budgets, the state would have about $1.9 billion in available funds to fix the state’s most pressing needs.

“Something like that means fixing roads, water in a serious way,” O’Leary said. “We could start cutting checks like they do in Alaska.”

But funds like the Future Fund don’t just serve immediate needs. Rachel Jacobson, with the Center on Budget and Policy Priorities in Washington, D.C., said these funds should be used for long-term budget planning.

She said states should use these funds to transition from relying on severance taxes as markets get away from oil, gas and coal for energy needs.

“It’s important for states to take a range of actions to support their fiscal health amidst the energy transition, and sustainable, equitable use of fossil fuel revenues is one of those things that states need to do,” she said.

In 2023, the West Virginia State Senate revisited the Future Fund. Rather than fixing it, they killed it with little debate.

Kessler said he hopes someone down the road will revisit the topic.

“You got to start somewhere,” he said. “Better late than never. If you start your 401k when you’re 50 years old instead of 20, you’re not going to be able to save as much. But at least you started something.”

Old Time Revival

Old rough sawn tabernacle at Mt. Vernon Church

The old rough sawn tabernacle will be the revival site for the Mt. Vernon Church. The old tabernacle was constructed during the depression of the 1930’s to provide seating for huge crowds during summer revival services. Each summer the tabernacle provided space for services until the mid 1950’s when services were discontinued. In the early 1980’s maintenance was performed and annual revival services were started again. A few years ago theft of the benches that were used as pews prevented the continued use of the structure. The acquisition of some used pews has enabled the Old Tabernacle to continue as a site for proclaiming God’s word.

This year’s revival will begin at 7 p.m. each night on Aug. 30, 31 and Sept. 1. The speaker on Aug. 30 will be Phil Heckman with music provided by Ben Hersman. Paula McCoy will speak on Aug. 31 and Richie Holliday and Brianne Tuckwiller will add special music. Pastor Kathie Holland will bring the message on Sept. 1 with members of New Vision Baptist Church having special music. Please join us in rededicated The Old Tabernacle for the service of God. Gov. Morrissey statement on change of ownership of Greenbrier

West Virginia’s iconic Greenbrier Hotel is now under the majority ownership and controlling interest of Kennedy Lewis, a New York-based private credit and opportunistic asset firm. With Kennedy Lewis now officially controlling the resort, I welcome them to West Virginia. I also want everyone to know - especially those in Greenbrier County - that I will do everything in my power to protect this historic West Virginia jewel and its employees.

I have asked the Lottery Commission to take all necessary steps to prevent the loss of Greenbrier employees during this transition of ownership. I’m hopeful that Kennedy Lewis and the entire Greenbrier team will help restore the beauty of the resort to its former glory.

Wilderness Medicine

of the scenario remain confidential until the day of the event, but participants will be expected to use many of the skills they learned during the rotation, including search and rescue, rope access and incident command.

Mark Waddell, D.O., WVSOM’s executive director of rural and international medicine, said benefits of the rotation include a physician workforce trained to provide support during wilderness emergencies or natural disasters.

“The Encova Foundation’s generous grant provides vital rescue equipment that elevates the educational experience for WVSOM students, residents and our faculty and staff,” he said. “This long-term investment doesn’t just enrich our curriculum in the next several years - it directly translates into better-prepared rural physicians who are ready to respond when outdoor emergencies strike across our state, and to care for those who work and recreate in the outdoors.”

Outdoor recreational opportunities bring countless visitors to West Virginia’s mountains, but the terrain also creates unique medical challenges, Waddell said.

“The rotation prepares students and residents for the reality of rural practice, where a physician might be pulled from an ER or urgent care to assist in a search and rescue or to treat severe environmental injuries. It’s about building adaptable, highly skilled doctors who are ready to care for patients anywhere, from the hospital bed to the backcountry,” he said.

In addition to eight students from WVSOM’s Rural Health Initiative, Emergency Medicine Club and Wilderness Medicine Club, nine resident physicians from AccessHealth, CAMC Greenbrier Valley Medical Center, Cornerstone Care and Trinity Health System will participate in the elective. WVSOM students also will serve as simulated patients, portraying individuals in need of rescue or medical attention.

Besides in-person rescue experiences, the elective will include lectures and demonstrations on various aspects of wilderness medicine. Topics include lightning injuries, snakebites, waterborne illness and wilderness dermatology, among others.

TJ Obrokta, president and CEO of Encova, said the investment reflects Encova’s commitment to strengthening the health, safety and well-being of communities.

“We believe strong communities are built through access to quality education and health care. WVSOM plays a vital role in preparing physicians to serve patients across the region, particularly in rural and underserved areas. We’re proud to support this rotation through our foundation, helping to equip future health care professionals with the knowledge and hands-on experience needed to provide care in challenging environments,” Obrokta said.

Encova also assists WVSOM students through Encova Foundation scholarships, funded by an endowment created at the school in 2016, when the organization was known as the BrickStreet Foundation. To date, Encova has provided scholarships worth more than $1 million to students at WVSOM.

Donette Mizia, WVSOM’s executive director of foundation relations, said she is grateful to the Encova Foundation for the grant.

“Encova has long been one of WVSOM’s most valued philanthropic partners,” she said. “Their support for a program that equips future physicians with specialized skills to respond effectively in remote, resource-limited and disaster-affected environments is invaluable. It reflects a shared commitment to improving health care access and outcomes throughout West Virginia and other rural and underserved areas.”

Other sponsors of the rotation include the West Virginia Higher Education Policy Commission, the West Virginia Rural Health Association, PracticeLink, The Health Plan, Greenbrier Youth Camp, WVSOM’s Rural Health Initiative, the WVSOM Alumni Association, the WVSOM Foundation and WVSOM Rural Outreach.

“God is our refuge and strength, an ever-present help in trouble.”
Psalm 46:1 (NIV)

Sudden Storms

During the summer, we are sometimes subject to a random downpour after mistakenly thinking we had a full day of sun. Of course, we always understand the potential for an event which changes our course, yet we are not always sure how to react. Similarly, we are well aware of nature's unpredictability, yet still end up surprised when a perfect weather forecast does not hold true. In comparing a sudden storm to the sudden struggles we encounter in life, we understand that there is both a beginning and an end to them.

While these sudden disruptions can temporarily shake our confidence, we can find peace by anchoring our hearts in the one constant we can always rely on, knowing that no unexpected storm can separate us from God's protective care.

Dear Recycle Lady,
Inside one of the boxes containing a prescription were many sheets of directions on white paper folded into very tight folds and glued together in one place. Does this tightly folded paper need to be unfolded before recycling it?

Just Wondering
Dear Just Wondering,
Yes, the paper should be unfolded to help reduce the volume of the paper and to make it easier to transport. It also eliminates any contaminants that might have been inside the folds. Flattening the paper helps with sorting and improves the processing in the recycling facility. Thanks for taking the time to unfold the directions and remove any glue that might have been used to hold the paper tightly folded. The Recycling staff appreciates you!

Dear Recycle Lady,
I found some old, rusty pieces of scrap metal in the barn this morning and I don't know what to do with them. Can they be recycled? Do I need to clean them up?

Cleaning up the Barn
Dear Cleaning up the Barn,

Old rusty pieces of scrap metal of any size and any condition are recyclable at the Recycling Center. Rust occurs when iron reacts with oxygen from water or moisture and produces iron oxide. It is only on steel cans or steel objects. Aluminum cans don't contain iron and will never rust, regardless of how long they are left in water and Stainless steel is extremely resistant to rust. Since steel is the primary metal in engineering, rusty metal is likely to be found on many different objects around the house or barn. Nails, screws, auto parts, and furniture are only a few of the places where rust can be found. The Recycling Center accepts both auto and furniture parts but not nails and screws. Those can be taken to Boggs Scrap Metal Yard in Caldwell. While rust can be removed from metal using household products like lemon juice, baking soda, vinegar, and steel wool, or you can purchase chemicals to remove rust, it is not necessary. To prevent rust, metals can be coated ahead of time with several effective coatings. Epoxy Coatings provide a strong barrier against moisture as does a coating of oil, or commercially available rust converters. A coating of zinc protects metal from corrosion in a process called galvanization. There is also a dry powder that will create a hard finish resistant to rust after being cured under heat.

Dear Recycle Lady,
What is the difference between a clear plastic jug and a white plastic jug?

What's the Difference?
Dear What's the Difference,

The primary difference between clear plastics jugs and white plastic jugs is their light-blocking properties. Clear plastic jugs are translucent or transparent and their content is highly visible; while white jugs are opaque plastic containers that don't allow any light to pass through. Made of high-density polyethylene (HDPE) #2 plastic, some customers prefer white plastic jugs for milk because of their light-blocking property. Blocking UV light helps maintain the milk's freshness and prevents spoilage. Clear plastic jugs are made with Polyethylene Terephthalate (PET) or #1 plastics and often preferred for their visibility. Both #1 plastics and #2 plastics are recyclable.

Good News: A Cougar raising kittens was seen for the first time in 100 years in Minnesota. Cougars were believed to be extinct, but this sighting suggests that Cougars are breeding there again.

Bad News: A wildfire in Australia destroyed 70% of the Pink Cockatoos core habitat. Since most of the cypress pines were lost artificial hollows are being built for their use.

A Look Back

By William “Skip” Deegans

In August 1907, the Lewisburg Athletic Association organized an exhibition game between Green's Nebraska Indian Baseball Team and the Lewisburg team. The game drew a crowd of over 1,800 and was described as the largest gathering since the dedication of the Confederate war monument. The Nebraska team was founded in 1897 by University of Nebraska law school graduate, Guy Green, who recruited his players from Indian boarding schools and the Omaha and Winnebago reservations. They toured the country playing college and semi-pro teams. Jeffrey Powers-Beck, in a history of the team, wrote, “Fans came to be entertained, and the Indians obliged with a combination of Wild West showmanship and zany baseball antics.” In advance of the Lewisburg game, the Greenbrier Independent wrote, the players would be “dressed in native costume, war paint, etc.”

The Nebraska team initially traveled in wagons and later by train. They were barred by hotels and had to sleep in tents on baseball fields. They were often heckled with racist remarks by spectators. Nevertheless, they played into the 1920s and were reported to have won 80 percent of their games. They beat the Lewisburg team 11-2, and the Greenbrier Independent described it as a “spirted game throughout and was greatly enjoyed by the large crowd.” Ticket sales generated $600 or about $21,000 in today's dollars.

Ivy Terrace Series concludes with The Bing Brothers

Carnegie Hall will close out the 2026 Ivy Terrace Outdoor Music Series with a high-energy finale featuring The Bing Brothers Band on Thursday, Aug. 27, at 6:30 p.m. The performance will take place outside on Carnegie Hall’s Ivy Terrace, weather permitting.

Ivy Terrace concerts are a beloved Lewisburg tradition and a big reason the town is celebrated as one of the “coolest small towns in America.” Each summer, audiences gather on the expansive lawn in front of New River Community and Technical College to enjoy free, family-friendly performances in a relaxed outdoor setting. Concertgoers are encouraged to bring a lawn chair or blanket, pack a picnic, and settle in for an evening of live music under the open sky.

All Ivy Terrace concerts are sponsored by City National Bank, free to the public, and alcohol-free. In case of inclement weather, concerts move indoors; attendees are encouraged to follow Carnegie Hall’s Facebook page for updates.

A true West Virginia treasure, The Bing Brothers Band delivers driving old-time music steeped in Appalachian tradition. With lightning-fast fiddle tunes, banjo breakdowns, and an unmistakable rhythmic pulse, their performances capture the spirit and joy of mountain

“Better Than the Fair” Homemade Lemonade

Makes: about 48 oz.

REGULAR:
Ingredients:

- 1 1/4 c. freshly squeezed lemon juice (5-7 large lemons)
- 1 - 2 tbsp. freshly squeezed lime juice (1 lime)
- 1 – 1 1/2 c. white granulated sugar
- 1 – 1 1/4 c. crushed ice
- 4 c. water

SUGAR-FREE:
Ingredients:

- 1 1/2 c. freshly squeezed lemon juice (7-9 lemons)
- 1 - 2 tbsp. freshly squeezed lime juice (1 lime)
- 1 1/2 - 2 c. Splenda or sugar substitute
- 1 c. crushed ice
- 4 c. water

Method:

Process all the ingredients in a blender at high speed until completely smooth (about 10-15 seconds). Refrigerate for one hour, if desired. Serve over ice and drink the same day. (After 8-10 hours, the taste of the lemonade will start to sour.)

NOTE: Adding more crushed ice and/or sugar or artificial sweetener will dilute the tartness of the citrus juices. Begin with the low end of the ingredient amount ranges, taste, and if needed, add more to achieve desired taste.

Sweet, Spicy, and Scrumptious Grilled Cheese Sandwich

Makes: 4 sandwiches

Ingredients:

- 8 slices fresh sourdough bread
- 8–12 tbsp unsalted butter, softened
- 4 slices smoked Gouda
- 4 slices pepperjack cheese
- 4 slices white American cheese
- 4 tbsp hot pepper jelly, divided (4x)
- 2 tsp honey, divided (4x)
- 4-8 slices of tomato (optional)

Method:

Preheat a large skillet over low-medium heat. Spread softened butter generously on one side of each sourdough slice. The buttered sides will face outward.

On the unbuttered side of four slices, layer:

- 1 slice smoked Gouda
- 1 slice pepperjack
- 1 slice white American
- 1 tbsp. pepper jelly (spread evenly)
- 1/2 tsp. honey (drizzle lightly)
- 1-2 slices of tomato (optional)

Top each with a second slice of sourdough, buttered side facing out. Place in preheated skillet. Cook each sandwich 3–4 minutes per side until the bread is golden and the cheese is fully melted. Press gently with a spatula to encourage even melt.

When both sides of sandwiches are toasted to your preference, remove sandwiches from the skillet and place on a serving platter. Let each sandwich rest 1 minute before slicing.

Slice and enjoy!

Greenbrier East Senior Hydee Wykle named to first ever State Super STARS Council

Hydee Wykle is a senior at Greenbrier East High School (Greenbrier County), where she is a member of the health care career technical education program. Drawn to leadership, health care, and helping others, she has been involved in HOSA since her freshman year and currently serves as the West Virginia HOSA state president. She is also a two-time state officer. Wykle serves as student body president, member of the National Honor Society, and the Greenbrier East track team.

About the Council Members

The Super STARS Council features students with exemplary leadership ability and a desire to see positive change in public education.

State Superintendent of Schools Michele L. Blatt has established the inaugural Super STARS (Students Taking Action for Readiness and Success) Council that will be comprised of Grades 6–12 students. This is a student-led council that elevates student insights and ensures that their perspectives are heard by education leaders to impact initiatives, policies, and programs. Comprised of students from across the state, the council will provide diverse perspectives on public education throughout West Virginia.

The Super STARS Council will consist of 12-15 students, and it will:

- Ensure direct student feedback is heard by the State Superintendent and West Virginia Department of Education leadership
- Inform decision-making on key initiatives
- Elevate student voice in areas such as school culture, program development, and instruction
- Strengthen connections between students, schools, and statewide priorities

Regional Meetings

In addition to the council meetings, Superintendent Blatt will attend regional education meetings and invite local council members and their peers from surrounding schools to attend in-person. They will have an audience with state and local leaders to offer their thoughts and expertise on education topics. The Super STARS Council will meet four times each year - two virtual meetings and two in-person. Specific dates will be provided once students are selected.

- Winter 2027 In-Person Leadership Conference in Charleston

Volunteers: Farm Bill threatens child nutrition in WV

Roughly one in four kids in the face food insecurity and hunger in West Virginia each year, according to data from Feeding America.

By Nadia Ramlagan - Producer

Local West Virginia groups working to keep kids fed over the summer said the stakes are high for hungry families and the next Farm Bill must ensure greater access to nutritious meals.

The Farm Bill determines agriculture policy and funds major hunger relief programs like SNAP.

Artie Mullins, Feed and Read program project director for the Southern Appalachian Labor School, which primarily serves low-income kids in Fayette County, said proposed SNAP cuts or restrictions will further increase the burden on families. He noted the school’s summer lunch program - which also delivers daily meals to kids in low-income neighborhoods - has seen an uptick in demand.

“I have regulars who come every year and they come every day, and they’re looking forward for me to come, so I think a lot of the kids probably would not have lunch perhaps for that day,” Mullins observed.

Lawmakers already cut nearly $187 billion over a decade from the SNAP program through last year’s budget reconciliation law. The Farm Bill is set to expire at the end of next month. In the meantime, Congress continues to work on reauthorization.

Mullins pointed out the program works with the Greater Kanawha Valley Foundation, the West Virginia Department of Education and the U.S. Department of Agriculture but does not believe the organizations can replace the SNAP safety net. Mullins added this summer, staff and volunteers worked at capacity.

“Every day we serve around 40 to 50 meals in all four locations. We serve four locations, two in the mountainous area and two in the valley,” Mullins explained.

In West Virginia, one in six residents rely on SNAP benefits to help keep food on the table.
