Greenbrier County Schools celebrate milestones and new beginnings

By Debra Smith
Two Greenbrier County elementary schools marked important milestones Tuesday, Sept. 15, 2026, with ceremonies celebrating progress in school facilities and future opportunities for students.
Frankford Elementary School hosted a ribbon-cutting ceremony celebrating the completion of a $7.3 million renovation and construction project. The improvements, made possible through West Virginia School Building Authority funding and local contributions, include additional classrooms, a secure entrance, updated administrative offices, accessibility improvements, and upgraded student drop-off areas.
The celebration included student participation through the Pledge of Allegiance, the national anthem, and a fourth-grade choir performance of “I’m Ready to Go.” School and community representatives gathered to recognize the completion of the project and its benefits to students and staff.

Later in the day, White Sulphur Springs Elementary School held a groundbreaking ceremony, marking the beginning of a $14.4 million modernization project.
The planned improvements include a new multipurpose room designed to serve as a gymnasium and gathering space, a secure main entrance, updated administrative offices, HVAC and electrical improvements, new windows and roofing, restroom upgrades, and improved bus and parent drop-off areas.
School officials and community members celebrated the investment in the school’s future, highlighting the importance of providing students with safe, modern, and functional learning environments.
Together, the two projects represent a significant investment in Greenbrier County’s educational efforts to improve schools for current and future generations.

Alderson Council updates water project; dates for 2026/27 Urban Archery Deer Season

By D.L. Bowles
On Thursday, Sept. 10, the Alderson Town Council provided information on the water projects that include both a new water plant and expansion and rehabilitation of water lines.
The water plant portion of the project is estimated to be 83% complete with construction of a new tank starting soon. As for the water line segment of the project, materials for the construction of the project, piping and related materials will be arriving in Alderson during the week of Sept. 21.
The council announced the dates for the Alderson Special Urban Deer Archery Season (A-SPURS). The season is from Sept. 5 through Dec. 31, 2026 and Jan. 11 through Jan. 31, 2027.
The WVDNR legalized urban archery hunts in 1996. According to wvdnr.gov, urban deer archery hunts provide additional hunting opportunities and help control deer populations.

Alderson Town Council

In a WVDNR press release from 2020 a WVDNR wildlife biologist said “As deer populations grew, we saw an increase in vehicle collisions and got complaints from homeowners. By allowing hunters to come in and harvest deer in these areas, they can help alleviate the problem in their community.”
Alderson is currently the only municipality in Greenbrier County to allow Urban Deer Archery Season. In addition to having a valid WV Hunting License, hunters must apply for and receive a permit from the Town of Alderson continue to face issues to this day.

City Manager Manager Misty Hill provided an update on the Green Space renovation. Hill advised the engineering portion of the project is complete and work should commence the week of Sept. 21.
Other matters presented to the council by Hill included a proposed contract for The Mills Group to address revisions of the Historical Landmarks Commission Guidelines; a request for the approval of a contract to renovate the HVAC system of the Greenbrier County Public Library; and a request of funding to repair a sinkhole at the intersection of Court and Foster Streets. The council approved each measure.
The council briefly discussed the Hallmark Merriest Christmas Contest which will name 25 towns from across the nation Hallmark Christmas Towns. Contest voting closed on Sept. 4 and the winners will be announced on or about Oct. 31.
The council noted this year’s trick or treat will be held on Halloween, Saturday, Oct. 31, from 6 to 8 p.m. The annual Christmas tree lighting will be held on Saturday, Nov. 21 at 7 p.m. and will include hot chocolate and cookies.

Morrissey’s data center plan includes local involvement. WV communities are still in the dark

Gov. Patrick Morrissey’s 20-year data center development plan promises protections for communities, water and power bills. But some provisions aren’t backed by law, and local officials say projects are moving ahead without their input.

By Josephine Johnson
Gov. Patrick Morrissey’s 20-year data center development plan promises protections for communities, water and power bills. But some provisions aren’t backed by law, and local officials say projects are moving ahead without their input.
Mason County Commission President Rick Handley is not against data centers. In Point Pleasant, construction is already underway on Nscale’s Monarch data center. Handley said he appreciates that they give money back to the community and partner with schools to give job training.
But, he said, county officials have no control over when and where these data centers are coming. “They can come into your county,” he said. “They can put them where they want to. They can put as many as they want to. And we can’t do anything.”
Gov. Patrick Morrissey last month unveiled a plan for data center development in West Virginia that makes collaboration with local communities a pillar of the process. But key parts of the plan aren’t backed up by law, and the state is moving forward on projects as communities are left without a voice.
Morrissey’s 20-year plan for the state’s data center development welcomes data centers to West Virginia while prioritizing tax redistribution, limiting electricity rates, and promoting effective water usage. The plan also outlines strategies to involve and protect local communities in the process.

The governor announced the plan at a press conference last month amid growing pushback in communities across the state to data centers. Opponents from Mingo to Berkeley counties have criticized the state’s law that stripped local communities of oversight, control and tax revenues.
That legislation, passed last year, serves as a basis for some of the plan’s principles. But some of the plan’s strategies, for example how water and power are used, aren’t backed up by law.
And some principles - like giving local communities a voice - haven’t stopped the state from racing forward with projects while keeping local communities in the dark.
Communities left out of decision-making
The plan details that after a potential project is identified, the Department of Commerce will “engage directly with local leadership to align private sector investments with municipal needs.”
Just three weeks after Morrissey made it a pillar of his data center development plan to give local communities a voice, he announced high-

Fall colors set the Mountain State ablaze

Autumn is once again preparing to paint West Virginia’s mountains in brilliant shades of gold, orange, red and crimson. As temperatures begin to cool, the Mountain State’s forests and scenic valleys will provide spectacular views for residents and visitors alike. West Virginia’s extensive forests, winding country roads and mountain overlooks make it a favorite destination for fall foliage enthusiasts. Foliage begins changing at the higher elevations before spreading into lower valleys, creating weeks of changing scenery across the state. Whether taking a scenic drive, hiking a mountain trail or simply enjoying the view from a favorite overlook, fall offers a beautiful reminder of why West Virginia is know as Almost Heaven. West Virginia Fall Foliage 2026 Late September-Early October: High elevation areas like Dolly Sods, Canaan Valley, and Spruce Knob show the earliest brilliant reds and crimsons. Early-Mid October: Color spreads across the Potomac Highlands, Davis, and Blackwater Falls State Park. Mid-October: Moderate elevations peak, bringing rich displays to the Greenbrier Valley and central West Virginia. Late October-Early November: Lower river valleys, the Eastern Panhandle, and southern regions reach their final autumn peak.

WV Land Trust completes largest corporate land conservation project in state history

38,000 Acres of Working Forest, Waterways, and Recreation Lands Permanently Protected Forest, Waterways, and Recreation Lands Permanently Protected

In a historic milestone for land conservation, the West Virginia Land Trust (WVLT) has finalized the largest private conservation project in the state’s history - protecting 38,000 acres of land in Monroe, Summers, and Fayette counties (with additional acreage in Nicholas and Greenbrier counties). This significant project retains large timber tracts forever under forest cover, ensures their management with professional sustainable forestry, provides special attention to waterways and special wildlife resources, and considers the expansion of public recreational access for specific locations in the future. The project began in June 2025, when Aurora Sustainable Lands approached The Conservation Fund with the opportunity to conserve thousands of acres of privately owned forestland through permanent conservation easements. Because The Conservation Fund does not hold easements, the organization turned to the WVLT. A Statewide Conservation Achievement The effort includes five separate easements:

- Monroe County: Forestland bordering Back Creek, protecting headwaters and wildlife habitat.
- Summers County: Land surrounding Keeney Knob, safeguarding high-elevation forests and downstream water quality.
- Fayette County (three easements including acreage within Nicholas and Greenbrier Counties): A large forestland adjoining the New River National Gorge, offering new opportunities for recreation, hunting, fishing, hiking, and rock climbing, particularly along the Meadow River corridor.

“This project is extraordinary not only because of its size, but because of the lasting benefits it creates for West Virginians,” said Ashton Berdine, The Conservation Fund’s West Virginia state director. “These easements protect drinking water, strengthen outdoor recreation economies, sustain working forests, and preserve places that communities have valued for generations.”

The project delivers several major outcomes for West Virginia’s lands, waters, wildlife, and communities. First, it protects significant working forestlands by preserving large, contiguous tracts, that support sustainable forest management. These protections strengthen local economies tied to timber, recreation, and tourism, buffer public lands with conserved forests, sustain critical wildlife habitat and ecologically important areas, and

The event will also feature fun activities for attendees while highlighting the important work of the Humane Society. This open house is a celebration of recovery, resilience and second chances - for both people and animals. Community members are encouraged to come out, show their support, meet the shelter animals and perhaps find a new four-legged family member.

(SRE) is in the works, pending the receipt of a grant that has been awarded. The SRE loader will reduce the airport’s expense for clearing snow, ice and debris from the runway, taxiway, and apron. There was some discussion about the upcoming project to expand the terminal. McCalmont advised the TSA will have some input related to the design. One goal of the project will be to increase the passenger capacity and amenities of the “sterile area”, which is the area passengers wait to board their flight after passing through security. That project is slated to begin in 2027.

As part of the report on Infrastructure, Councilperson Audrey VanBuren advised the city’s swimming pool has had a good year. Recorder David Dillon asked residents, with the changing of seasons, to keep an eye on their drains and other areas for decluttering if necessary. Dillon advised citizens to contact the city if they need help doing so. The council approved measures for payments related to ongoing projects to include the Mapledale Water Storage Tank, The Ridges and the Bike Park. In new business, the council briefly discussed a requested change to the lease terms of the cell tower on Mill Hill Drive. The council agreed to table the discussion pending consultation with the city’s attorney. Mayor Taylor advised Lieutenant J.R. Byer was appointed to the position of Police Chief on Sept. 9. Taylor advised the vacancy for the chief position was created by the recent departure of the previous chief but did not elaborate further. City Hall and Police Department offices will be closed on Monday, Oct. 12, in observance of Columbus Day. Garbage collection scheduled for Monday, Oct. 12 will occur on Tuesday, Oct. 13. The next White Sulphur Springs City Council meeting will be Tuesday, Oct. 13 at 7 p.m.

Alderson to participate in the program. The council had a first reading of a proposal to address food truck licensing. While the first reading was moved forward, the council expressed a need to gather additional information before finalizing the ordinance. In other business the council approved an upgrade of the lock systems of both city hall and the fire station, noting the cost would be shared between the town and the fire station. Council also approved the appointment of Melissa Stidom to the Alderson Public Library Board of Trustees. The next scheduled meeting of the Alderson Town Council is Thursday, Oct. 8.

safeguard forests along waterways, wetlands, and headwater streams.

Second, the project safeguards vital waterways and watersheds that supply drinking water for communities throughout the Greenbrier and New River basins, including designated Source Water Protection Areas. In total, it protects 81 miles of streams and rivers. By keeping forests intact, the easements ensure natural filtration of sediment and pollutants, reduce municipal water treatment and stormwater management costs, and lessen flood impacts by allowing forested watersheds to capture, store, and gradually release rainfall and snowmelt.

Third, the conserved lands protect rare species and critical wildlife habitats, including federally listed endangered and threatened species. Habitat for Virginia spiraea along the Meadow River, multiple endangered bat species such as the northern long-eared, Indiana, and Virginia big-eared bats, the proposed endangered tricolored bat, and endangered mussels in high-quality streams will now be permanently protected. The project also preserves habitat for eight globally rare plant species, two dozen plant species rare to West Virginia, and a dozen rare animal species - including snails, salamanders, butterflies, and bats - as well as four species found only in the Central Appalachians, such as shale barren wildflowers and a burrowing crayfish. These protections align with priorities established by the West Virginia Division of Natural Resources.

Fourth, the project expands opportunities for potential non-motorized outdoor recreation. The easements support future development of new public access points and trails, enhance recreational use for hiking, fishing, and climbing, maintain open space around public lands, and ensure continued access for hunting and fishing in designated areas.

Finally, these conservation easements serve as powerful tools for community resilience. By preserving forests, waterways, and outdoor recreation landscapes, the project strengthens local tourism and outdoor economies, protects beloved natural places, ensures cleaner water and healthier ecosystems, and reduces long-term environmental and municipal costs.

“This project sets a new standard for conservation in West Virginia. Thanks to the collaboration of the West Virginia Land Trust, The Conservation Fund, and local partners, 38,000 acres of unique working forests are now permanently protected. Aurora is proud to have helped make this happen and looks forward to continuing.”

WV State Police to conduct Sobriety Checkpoint

By D.L. Bowles

On Thursday, Sept. 24, the West Virginia State Police will conduct a sobriety checkpoint in Greenbrier County. The checkpoint will be conducted in Fairlea along U.S. Highway 219 North from 6 p.m. until midnight.

The purpose of a sobriety checkpoint is to detect and deter impaired drivers as well as to educate the motoring public of the dangers created by operating a motor vehicle while impaired by alcohol or drugs.

According to the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration, about 32 people in the United States die in drunk-driving crashes every day, which is one person every 44 minutes. About 30% of all traffic crash fatalities in the United States involve drunk drivers.

In West Virginia, a conviction for impaired driving resulting in death carries prison sentences from 3 to 30 years depending on the circumstances. A conviction for impaired driving causing bodily injury carries sentences ranging from 2 to 10 years depending on the circumstances.

As a determination for a DUI charge, West Virginia law sets blood alcohol concentration (BAC) limit at .08% for those over the age of 21. For those under the age of 21, the BAC limit is .02%. A driver with a BAC over .149% faces increased penalties. Penalties for a DUI conviction result in suspension of drivers license, fines, and varying amounts of jail time. Driving while impaired by drugs carries the same consequences as driving while impaired by alcohol.

There are numerous websites (and even apps) with charts and calculators to learn about factors that combine to determine one’s BAC. Understanding how factors affect BAC can help one avoid legal problems, but more importantly, save lives.

The West Virginia State Police urges the public to assist law enforcement in helping to keep the streets and highways of communities safe by reporting impaired drivers.

OBITUARIES

Vivian Conly

Vivian Conly, 76, of Wilmington, NC, passed away peacefully on Aug. 30, 2026. She was born Oct. 24, 1949, in Chester, PA, to Hobart and Nancy Swan.

Vivian was deeply curious about the world around her, with a creative spirit and an energy that carried through every chapter of her life. She and her husband Sam made their home on Church Street in Lewisburg for nearly three decades and raised their two children there. They kayaked the Greenbrier River, skied at Snowshoe, and enjoyed daily walks together through the beautiful neighborhoods they called home.

Vivian’s most significant professional legacy was her tenure as Executive Director of Carnegie Hall. She took leadership of a struggling institution in a deteriorating historic building and, with the support of many in the community, helped transform it into a thriving center for arts and culture. She led fundraising for the restoration of the building while expanding Carnegie’s programming and its place in the cultural life of Lewisburg and the wider region.

Her connection to the Greenbrier Valley extended beyond Carnegie Hall. Vivian spent many years at The Greenbrier working in sales, conference services, and community relations. She also served on the Lewisburg City Council and was active in civic and political causes throughout her years in the area.

Art was a constant in Vivian’s life. She created mosaics, painted and decorated wooden bowls and furniture, and was always experimenting with something new. She had a life-long appreciation for music and the arts and shared that enthusiasm freely with her family and friends.

In retirement, Vivian traveled extensively and continued to seek out new places and experiences. She lived for periods in California and Sunset Beach, NC, before ultimately making her home again in Wilmington. She built friendships across the country while maintaining many that began during her years in Lewisburg.

Vivian had a quick wit, a beautiful smile, strong opinions, and an unmissable personality. She loved her family and took particular joy in being a grandmother.

She is survived by her daughter, Amy Koh and her husband Andrew Koh; her son, Drew Conly and his wife KC Cox; her grandchildren, Sam, Pearl, and Maeve; and her siblings, Joanne Hogg, Karen Layton, Hobart Swan, and Tim Swan.

She was preceded in death by her parents, Hobart and Nancy Swan, and by her husband Samuel S. Conly, whose absence she felt deeply throughout the years that followed.

Vivian leaves behind the art she created, friendships spanning decades and miles, and an enduring contribution to the cultural life of Lewisburg and West Virginia.

A memorial celebrating Vivian’s life will be held on Saturday, Oct. 17, at Carnegie Hall in Lewisburg. A reception with live music will be held from 1 to 2 p.m., followed by the memorial service from 2 to 3 p.m. The service will also be available virtually for family and friends unable to attend in person, with details to be shared prior to the memorial.

Perry Kenneth “Ken” Proffitt

Perry Kenneth “Ken” Proffitt, 83, of Alderson, passed away on Sept. 10, 2026, after a long illness. He was born on Nov. 7, 1942, in Lockland, Ohio, a son of the late James Perry Proffitt and Matilda (Brock) Proffitt.

Howard William Ogden

Howard William Ogden, 77, of Sinks Grove, passed away on Sept. 15, 2026, at the Carilion Roanoke Memorial Hospital. He was born in Philadelphia on July 25, 1949, a son of the late Howard Ogden and Anne (Anastowski) Ogden.

He and his wife later made their home first in Greenbrier County and then for many years in Monroe County. Howard was an armchair historian especially of American history, and as an avid reader and book collector he carried that interest with him throughout his life. He loved walking the Greenbrier Trail at every opportunity and working in his year round vegetable garden. Music was his life-long passion and he was deeply devoted to American and Appalachian music. He played several instruments but in particular, he loved the banjo, and he was one of the best contemporary old-time banjo players in West Virginia.

Above all, Howard valued his family. impact certifications for Nscale and a new $12-billion project from Starwood Digital Ventures in Mason County.

But Handley said Mason County didn’t learn from the state when these data centers are coming. Instead, they often learn about new projects when locals start selling their homes.

“The lack of communication has really bothered county commissioners throughout the state,” he said.

Elaine Matheny is a member of Mason County United, a group of locals who have organized in opposition to data centers in the county. “I’m frustrated and discouraged and angry that all this can be done without anyone in the public knowing about it,” Matheny said.

In Tucker County, locals created Tucker United to oppose a proposed data center and power plant near Thomas and Davis. Amy Margolies, executive director of Tucker United, worries that local communities will remain uninvolved in the data center approval process. “One of the principles is: West Virginia must protect and grow our communities. How can we do that if we’re completely removed from the process?” she said. “We have no vote. We have no decision in the projects that are put into our communities.”

A Data Center Advisory Council

Morrissey’s administration plans to create a Data Center Advisory Council composed of experts from local government, academia, and conservation and industry groups who will give recommendations on where and how data centers should be developed.

The council will hold meetings to discuss and recommend standards for noise mitigation, aesthetics and site security. It will also make recommendations on how far developments will be from property lines, neighborhoods, schools and houses of worship, but the plan does not include a timeline for the council’s formation and recommendations, or information on how it will interact with local communities.

In the meantime, the state has certified multiple data centers, including in Mason county, where Nscale’s data center site encroaches on a residential neighborhood and has repeatedly flooded homes.

The council will provide input on long-term planning and future recommendations, said Lars Dalseide, a spokesperson for the governor. “We will always evaluate the Council’s recommendations,” Dalseide said. “And if a good recommendation requires changes to state law or legislative rules, we will work with the Legislature through the appropriate process.”

Key parts of the plan aren’t backed up by law

During his August press conference, Morrisey, flanked by Commerce Department employees and legislative leadership, said that the principles reflect how existing laws already, including House Bill 2014, will be enforced. “It doesn’t require additional changes to the law,” Morrisey said. Morrisey pointed to his signing of President Donald Trump’s Ratepayer Protection Pledge as an example of enforcement.

The data center plan aims to keep West Virginians’ energy prices low by making data centers fund themselves, following the standards set in the pledge. Dalseide said that Commerce has required companies who want the high-impact designation to comply with the pledge.

Gov. Patrick Morrissey’s data center plan outlines seven principles for “responsible” development. But while “several” parts of the plan are grounded in existing law, Dalseide said, other parts, including principles related to how water and power are used, are “policy and planning initiatives.”

“Where those initiatives require additional legislation, we will work with the Legislature through the appropriate process.”

Our History Matters ‘The British Take New York’

By T.J. Cox

Washington and his men were defending New York City. On Sept. 15, 1776, William Howe’s troops landed at Kip’s Bay, northeast of Manhattan along the East River. The American army was cut off and might not be able to retreat. General Howe had defeated Washington and his troops a couple of weeks earlier at Long Island; Howe now intended to cross the river and capture New York City. This area was a weak point in Washington’s Manhattan defenses.

The area was defended by Col. William Douglas’s 1,500-man brigade; about one third of them were sick, and only about half of the rest were fit enough to man the trenches and oppose the landing.

At 10 a.m., the first wave of 80 British flatboats moved into the river with 4,000 British and Hessian troops aboard. By 11 a.m., the British fleet opened a cannonade against Douglas’s position. Approximately 80 guns fired on the militiamen for more than an hour. Their shallow ditches and weak defenses were no match for the British artillery. The troops were also “green,” with little training. Being new troops, they were not able to hold the British; the overwhelming show of force by the British army and navy caused them to retreat without any order. General Clinton’s aide-de-camp, Francis Rawdon, from his boat saw Douglas’s men break and run. Clinton’s landing party thus, “pressed to shore . . . landed, and formed without losing a single man.”

As the first wave of British and Hessian troops landed and secured the beachhead, not all of the Patriot soldiers were able to escape. They retreated north toward King’s Bridge Road. Bartholomew James wrote in his journal that he “saw a Hessian sever a rebel’s head from his body and clap it on a pole in the entrenchments.” One historian asserted that, as other Americans surrendered, hands upward, the Hessians shot or bayoneted them.

While Douglas’s men fled, George Washington finally arrived near the Patriot position at Kip’s Bay. “As soon as I heard the firing, I rode with all possible dispatch,” Washington wrote to Congress the next day. Somewhere on Murray Hill, Washington came across General Putnam, who also rode towards the sound of the British salvos. “To my great surprise and mortification,” Washington recounted, “I found the troops that had been posted in the lines retreating with the utmost precipitation . . . flying in every direction. I used every means in my power to rally them into some order; but my attempts were fruitless and ineffectual.”

Washington “drew his sword and snapped his pistols, to check them; but they continued their flight,” noted James Thacher, an army doctor. As Washington’s ire at his fleeing men raged on, Col. William Smallwood reported that the Connecticut troops in flight “were caned and whipped by the Generals Washington, Putnam, and Mifflin, but even this indignity had no weight; they could not be brought to stand one shot.”

Approximately 2,000 Continental soldiers now appeared under the command of Brig. Gens. Samuel Parsons and John Fellows. Seeing the retreat of the Connecticut Militia and a pursuing enemy was enough to break these reinforcements. “The Panic that struck Gen. Fellows’s & communicated itself to Gen. Parsons’ Brigade disgraced the last Retreat,” General Greene recalled. “The 2 Brigades run away from about 40 or fifty men and left General Washington standing alone within a hundred yards of the enemy.”

Washington was enraged by the cowardice of his men, and General Heath saw the normally reserved general break. “General Washington threw his hat on the ground, and exclaimed, ‘Are these the men with which I am to defend America?’”

As the despondent commander tried in vain to rally and inspire his men, only the bravery and stubbornness of two of the general’s aides led them to grab the bridle of Washington’s horse and turn him around to leave the field of battle. The Americans lost about 380 men killed, wounded, or captured, while the British only lost about 12. It was a terrible day for the patriots.

ing this work together,” said Aaron Paul, Chief Commercial Officer at Aurora Sustainable Lands.

A Legacy for Future Generations

By preserving a historic stretch of forest and watershed, WVLT and its partners have created a generational conservation success that will benefit local residents, outdoor enthusiasts, and West Virginians across the state.

By preserving these lands as sustainable, working forests, the project ensures that West Virginia’s timber industry can continue to thrive - supporting local jobs, strengthening rural economies, and providing a steady supply of high-quality hardwoods for generations.

The project builds on West Virginia’s growing national reputation as an outdoor recreation destination and protects the landscapes that make the state unique - its rugged mountains, clear rivers, and wild, unfragmented forests.

“These forests are more than just individual parcels on a map - they are vast, connected landscapes of mountains, valleys, streams, and wildlife habitat. Across this 38,000-acre conservation project, we are protecting individual forest tracts of more than 4,000 acres, as well as connected groupings of parcels exceeding 10,000 acres. That scale is incredibly meaningful. It means these forests can remain intact, healthy, and economically viable working forests for generations to come. In a state where forest fragmentation and parcelization are among the greatest threats to our forest resources, protecting large, unbroken tracts is one of the most important things we can do for the future of West Virginia’s forests. Knowing that 38,000 acres will remain forests forever is something we can all be incredibly proud of,” said Amy Cimarolli, WVLT Land Protection Program Director.

tional legal authority, they would go through the Legislature or appropriate rulemaking process.”

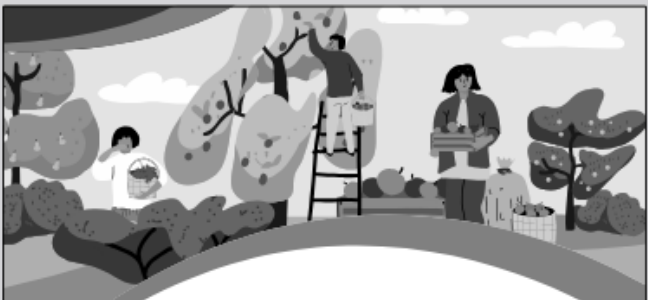

Del. Evan Hansen, D-Monongalia, who sits on the Joint Committee on Energy and Public Works, said the plan is “a step in the right direction, but my concern is that it’s just a plan and nothing has the force of law.”

Ann Ali, spokesperson for Speaker of the House Roger Hanshaw, R-Clay, said Hanshaw would take recommendations from the advisory council into the legislative process. “If additional legislation and/or rulemaking processes are necessary, Speaker Hanshaw would take the usual and customary steps of House leadership for that to happen prudently through the legislative process,” Ali said.

Senate President Randy Smith did not respond to a request for comment.

Margolies, of Tucker United, said the state needs clear, strong guidelines to protect the state and its residents.

Otherwise, “we’re going to get taken advantage of,” Margolies said. “Not just our small communities, but the state itself.”

“Rejoice always, pray continually, give thanks in all circumstances; for this is God’s will for you in Christ Jesus. 1 Thessalonians 5:16-18 (NIV)”

Harvest Gratitude

We all have gratitude for much in our lives, even in times we may not realize it. Oftentimes, we may find ourselves unsure of how to convey our gratitude to those we’d like to show appreciation for. This is typically to no fault of our own, though the issue can be remedied by the simple and oft suggested method of taking account of all that for which we are grateful. Beyond this, however, are even more ways to reinforce our feelings of gratitude and their display. On a number of occasions, Christ alludes to the importance in sharing with others the grace which He has shared with us (ie. Matthew 18: 21-35, Matthew 5: 3-12, Luke 6:31, and John 13: 34-35). Ways in which we can do this to convey our gratitude, as the fall begins, are numerous. Spending time with family and friends, enjoying the beauty of the autumn nature, can certainly allow us to share our feelings of thankfulness with these people, while upcoming holidays allow us to do the same, potentially with even larger groups. Additionally, charitable acts can often help one truly realize their gratitude and also find contentment in helping others. As school begins for many this month, donation drives for supplies are sure to be found locally, while many organizations work year-round to provide clothes and food to those who need them.

Dear Recycle Lady,
I have a large collection of workbooks. They have a soft-cover and the pages appear to be made of paper similar to newspaper. Are these workbooks recyclable?

Dedicated Recycler
Dear Dedicated Recycler,
Since workbooks are made of paper, and paper is the most commonly recycled material worldwide, chances are your notebooks will be recyclable with a few checkups. Most workbooks are made of sheets of paper bound with a magazine-type cover, a cardboard cover, or a plastic cover. This cover must be removed before recycling the pages. The magazine cover (your soft cover) recycles with magazines, the cardboard cover recycles with cardboard, and the plastic cover goes in the trash. Before recycling the pages, check for heavily marked pages or pages with stickers. These pages should be torn out and trashed. The remaining pages with their soft cover can be recycled with magazines. After removing the cardboard cover or the plastic cover, the pages also recycle with magazines. Recycling these notebooks instead of sending them to the landfill is good for the environment. Every piece of paper recycled saves forests and minimizes energy usage. It means less rubbish sent to landfills, which produce methane that creates climate change. Have you considered donating your workbooks to a school or a group that works with children? Used notebooks can often be reused, particularly if they have empty pages.

Dear Recycle Lady,
Has the number of people using plastic bottles decreased after all the information that has been published about the hazards of drinking bottled water?

User of Steel Water Bottle
Dear User of Steel Water Bottle,
It appears that information about microplastics in plastic water bottles is finally having an effect. According to worldmetrics.org, 83% of U. S. households used plastic bottles regularly in 2023, whereas in 2026, this number decreased to 70%. However, the 40 billion plastic water bottles produced in the US indicates that the use of plastic bottles remains robust. Besides harmful microplastics found in bottled water, another concern is that BPA can leach from the plastics bottles during high temperatures leading to potential hormonal effects and hot water in plastic water bottles leach acetaldehyde molecules, a carcinogenic. Nano plastics that are smaller than micro plastics that leach from plastic water bottles can penetrate the blood-brain barrier causing inflammation in 93% of samples. Only 23% of plastic bottles in the U.S. are recycled and a single plastic water bottle takes 450 to 1,000 years to decompose in a landfill, releasing microplastics over time. The estimated 500 billion plastic water bottles used globally each year are a major contributor to the 60 million tons of plastic waste created globally every year. The cost to produce these plastic water bottles on the global market is projected to reach $78 billion dollars by 2028.

Dear Recycle Lady,
What are boxes like cereal boxes made of when it comes to recycling? I know that they aren't considered to be made of cardboard.

Need to Know
Dear Need to Know,
Cereal boxes actually are made of cardboard.

Check the inside of your cereal box. If it looks like cardboard, it recycles with cardboard. Some boxes are made of white board, rather than cardboard, but they still recycle with cardboard.

Good News! Hawaii is testing a clever way to give ocean plastic a second life. They have found a way to turn discarded fishing nets and other recycled plastic into pellets that can be mixed into asphalt for roads. Researchers are studying whether these plastic-enhanced roads are durable and environmentally safe. The idea could help tackle two problems at once - marine debris and limited landfill space. Talk about making the road less wasteful! (fto.com)

A Look Back

By William “Skip” Deegans
This week’s circa 1933 photograph shows children sleeping in the Arthurdale nursery in Reedsville, West Virginia. Arthurdale was a subsistence homestead project that was part of President Franklin D. Roosevelt’s New Deal. The federally-funded project was designed to house displaced and out-of-work northern West Virginia coal mining families. The project included new houses, garden areas and industries such as furniture making, metal working, tractor manufacturing, vacuum cleaner repair, and weaving. President Roosevelt’s wife Eleanor championed Arthurdale and hired Elsie Ripley Clapp, a Columbia University graduate and progressive educator, to start a community school and the nursery shown in the photograph. The nursery enabled mothers to work in the industries and learn new skills.

The need for pre-school care in West Virginia continues. According to a recent article in the Charleston Gazette-Mail, Amelia Kinsley reported 260 child-care facilities have closed in West Virginia since 2024, and that more than 28,000 West Virginia children do not have access to childcare.

Fiddle and banjo champions lead two days of contests, performances and jams in Marlinton

Award-winning musicians Becky Buller, Ned Luberecki and Hunter Berry are among the performers and judges coming to Marlinton for the fifth annual Hammons Family Fiddle & Banjo Contest + World Class Jam, set for Sept. 25-26, 2026.

The weekend brings old-time and bluegrass musicians together for a free Friday square dance, four Saturday contests, seven billed acts and jam sessions led by 34 host musicians around downtown Marlinton.

Saturday’s music lineup includes Becky Buller & Ned Luberecki; the Bing Brothers featuring Jake Krack; the Black Mountain Bluegrass Boys; Tessa McCoy & the State Birds; Mudhole Control; Kanawha Tradition; and the Hunter Berry Band. Gerry Milnes and Kirk Judd will serve as masters of ceremonies.

Buller is an acclaimed fiddler, singer, songwriter and bandleader whose International Bluegrass Music Association honors include Fiddle Player of the Year and Female Vocalist of the Year. Luberecki, an IBMA Banjo Player of the Year, is also known to bluegrass listeners as a longtime host on SiriusXM’s Bluegrass Junction. Berry is a respected bluegrass fiddler who has performed and recorded with artists including Rhonda Vincent and the Rage.

The contests include Old-Time Banjo, Bluegrass Banjo, Old-Time Fiddle and Bluegrass Fiddle. First place in each contest receives $500, second place $200 and third place $100. Ribbons will be awarded through fifth place, with youth contestants recognized through third place.

Berry, Buller and West Virginia fiddler Bobby Taylor will judge the fiddle contests. Luberecki, Tim Bing and Todd Sams will judge the banjo contests.

Contestants may register online in advance. Each person must submit a separate form for every contest entered. On Saturday, contestants or their proxies must draw numbers from 11 to 11:45 a.m. at the computer station beside the judges’ tent at Discovery Junction. The contests begin at 1 p.m. at the Pocahontas County Opera House.

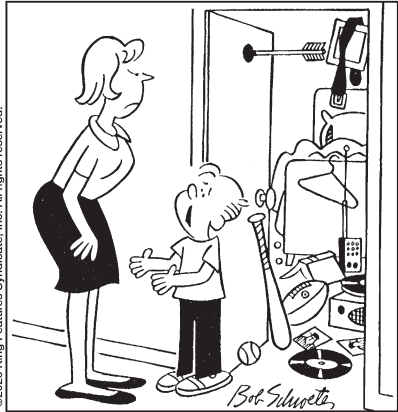

The World Class Jam extends the day beyond the stage. Thirty-four host musicians will lead sessions at locations around Marlinton, giving visiting players opportunities to sit down with experienced old-time and bluegrass musicians. This year’s hosts include Trevor Hammons, the great-grandson of Lee Hammons, continuing the family tradition the event honors.

The weekend opens with a free square dance from 7 to 9 p.m. Friday, Sept. 25, at the Pocahontas County Opera House. Juanita Fireball & the Clifftop Drifters, The State Birds and special guests will provide the music, with Lou Maiuri and Joe Burdock calling the dances.

The Saturday program takes place at the Pocahontas County Opera House, Discovery Junction and other downtown locations. Admission to the contests, performances and jams is free.

Registration and additional event information are available at HammonsFiddleBanjo.com.

9th Annual New River CTC Invitational announces 2027 field, launches scholarship fundraising campaign

New River Community and Technical College has announced the field for the 9th Annual New River CTC Invitational, scheduled for Jan. 4-9, 2027, at the Beckley-Raleigh County Convention Center.

The six-day event has grown into one of West Virginia’s premier high school basketball events, bringing boys and girls teams from across the state to southern West Virginia while raising funds for student scholarships through the New River Community and Technical College Foundation.

The field announced to date includes teams representing 26 high schools: Bluefield, Greater Beckley Christian, Greenbrier East, Greenbrier West, Herbert Hoover, Huntington, Independence, James Monroe, Liberty, Lincoln, Man, Nicholas County, Nitro, PikeView, Princeton, Ripley, Scott, Shady Spring, Sherman, South Harrison, Summit Christian Academy, Summers County, University, Webster County, Woodrow Wilson and Wyoming East.

The Invitational will also welcome back the West Virginia University Institute of Technology (WVU Tech) Golden Bears men’s and women’s basketball teams for their second appearance in the event. With several student athletes from southern West Virginia and the surrounding region, WVU Tech’s participation also provides an opportunity to continue strengthening the partnership between the two institutions and expanding post-secondary educational opportunities for students throughout the regions they serve.

Additional teams may be announced as the field and schedule are finalized.

“The Invitational has grown tremendously over the past nine years, both in the quality of basketball and in the impact it has on students,” said Michael Green, Vice President of External Affairs, Executive Director of the New River CTC Foundation and Tournament Director. “What makes this event special is the generosity of our sponsors and the opportunity to turn six days of great high school basketball into meaningful scholarship support. Their investment benefits the participating teams, their communities and, most importantly, students pursuing their education at New River CTC.”

The Invitational serves as an important annual fundraising initiative for the New River CTC Foundation. This year, the Foundation awarded more than a quarter of a million dollars in scholarships to deserving New River CTC students. Sponsor support also allows the Foundation to provide a $1,000 scholarship on behalf of each participating team and post-game meals for participating student athletes.

With the 2027 field taking shape, the Foundation is launching its sponsorship campaign for the 9th Annual Invitational. Opportunities are available at several levels, including presenting sponsorships, and offer businesses and organizations an opportunity to support student scholarships while receiving recognition throughout the six-day event.

“Our sponsors are essential to the success of the Invitational and to the impact we are able to make through this event,” said Kayla Saunders, Director of Business Development and Fundraising. “We are excited to begin working with returning sponsors and developing new partnerships with businesses and organizations that share our commitment to students and education. Every sponsorship helps us build on the success of the Invitational while expanding the scholarship support we can provide.”

Businesses and organizations interested in sponsorship opportunities for the 9th Annual New River CTC Invitational should contact Kayla Saunders, Director of Business Development and Fundraising, at 304-929-5001 or ksaunders@newriver.edu.

The complete game schedule, ticket information and additional event details will be announced at a later date.
