Beginning today, May 11, Virginia Tech to honor 2022 graduates during weeklong commencement ceremonies

Virginia Tech will hold in-person commencement ceremonies at Lane Stadium starting today, Wednesday, May 11, and running through Sunday. The university will celebrate both graduating seniors and graduate students and their families.

The commencement ceremonies begin with the Graduate School Commencement Ceremony at 3:30 p.m. today. The Virginia-Maryland College of Veterinary Medicine will honor its public health graduates a little later at 7 p.m.

The remainder of the week will include in-person ceremonies for those receiving degrees. All commencement ceremonies will be held at Lane Stadium unless otherwise noted

On Friday, the University Commencement ceremony begins at 8:30 a.m. in Lane Stadium. Gov. Glenn Youngkin accepted the university's invitation to deliver the commencement address, continuing the school's tradition of inviting new Virginia governors to speak to graduates.

Three students will serve as the speakers at the graduate school ceremony: Neelma Bhatti, a Fulbright scholar earning a master's degree in computer science and applications; Coogan Thompson, who is earning a Ph.D. in chemistry; and Lia Kelinsky-Jones, who is earning a Ph.D. in life sciences and agricultural education.

Virginia Tech will honor 40 associate degree candidates from the College of Agriculture and Life Sciences and a total of 5,549 bachelor's degree candidates from all colleges throughout the week.

This year, 3,144 graduating Hokies completed their baccalaureate degree programs with honors, having achieved cumulative GPAs of at least 3.4 on a 4.0 scale.

Business information technology tops the list of most popular majors among this year's graduating seniors, followed by computer science; mechanical engineering; human nutrition, foods, and exercise; and finance.

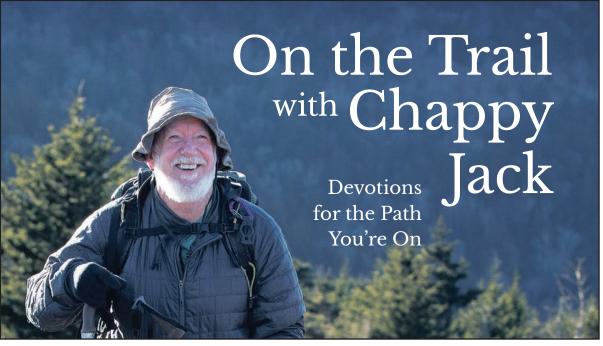

Here's a look at the number of bachelor's degrees being awarded from each college:

"Chappy Jack" to speak at libraries of his adventures of hiking Appalachian Trail

Appalachian Trail Chaplain Jack Layfield, known on the trail as "Chappy Jack," will share the adventures and inspiration he has found hiking the Appalachian Trail at the Jessie Peterman Memorial Library in Floyd on Monday, May 16, at 5:30 p.m. and at the Blacksburg Library on Tuesday, May 17, at 6:00 p.m.

For more than 30 years, Lay-field dreamed of hiking the entire Appalachian Trail. At the age of 68, he was an out-of-shape, soon-to-be-retired mental health counselor with a longing for an adventure. A chance encounter with the Appalachian Trail Chaplaincy of the Holston Conference of the United Methodist Church opened a door to a new life of service and a chance to fulfill his lifelong dream.

Layfield walked the entirety of the Appalachian Trail from March 4, 2019, to Sept. 22, 2019, as the 2019 Chaplain. In 2020, he wrote and published "On the Trail with Chappy Jack – Devotions for the Path You're On," which chronicles his journey through the famous footpath.

These events are free and open to the public. Books will be available for purchase and signing at both events.

What if edible bugs could benefit the health of humans, animals, and the planet?

Bugs get a bad rap. Some bite. Some sting. Some stink.

But what if they could be considered beyond their pesky traits? What if certain insects could actually benefit the health of humans, of animals, of the entire planet?

Virginia Tech scientists think they can, and they have the research to prove it.

Faculty at the Virginia Seafood Agricultural Research and Extension Center are testing – and eating – certain insects to develop alternative and sustainable food sources to support a world population forecasted to reach 10 billion by 2050.

Some of the insects, seven, in their lab so far, are edible on their own. Others are being converted to proteins that are rich in nutrients and antioxidants and incorporated into bars and cookies. And the bugs aren't just for human consumption. Some of the insects are being used in animal feed, as well.

Beyond its nutritional value, the consumption of bugs is also a boost for the economy and Mother Nature, explained Reza Ovissipour, an assistant professor in the Virginia Tech Department of Food Science and Technology and Virginia Cooperative Extension specialist.

"Blending our current agricultural practices with insect-based protein will increase the food supply to meet demand while reducing pressure on natural resources," he said. "Eating bugs is good for the Earth. It is good for the environment, and it is good for your health."

BARBECUE-FLA-VORED BUGS?

Ovissipour began the insect protein project in 2018, inspired by a problem that had been bugging him for some time.

"Many agricultural byproducts have high value, and they are being thrown away. Not only are they not being used, but they are also being added to the environment and causing environmental issues," he said.

In Ovissipour's lab, these valuable by-products aren't treated as waste, but rather, as insect feed.

"We are using different types of agricultural waste materials, which are really rich in proteins, fibers, and carbohydrates, to feed our •Appalachian Power Company ("APCo") has applied for and federal environmental laws and regulations.

•APCo requests approval of a revenue requirement of $33.6 million for its E-RAC for the rate year beginning December 1, 2022, through November 30, 2023. According to APCo, this amount would increase a residential customer's bill using 1,000 kilowatt hours per month by $0.80.

•The State Corporation Commission will hold a telephonic hearing in this case on September 20, 2022, to receive public witness testimony.

•The Commission will hold an evidentiary hearing in this case on September 21, 2022.

•Further information about this case is available on the SCC website at: scc.virginia.gov/pages/Case-Information.

On March 18, 2022, pursuant to § 56-585.1 A 5 e of the Code of Virginia ("Code"), Appalachian Power Company ("APCo" or "Company") filed with the State Corporation Commission ("Commission") a petition ("Petition") for approval to recover costs through its existing rate adjustment clause (the "E-RAC"), related to capital investments and operations and maintenance ("O&M") compliance expenses that are necessary to comply with state and federal environmental regulations.

In Case No. PUR-2020-00258, the Commission approved the Company's E-RAC, including actual and projected capital investment incurred to comply with the EPA's Coal Combustion Residuals Rule ("CCR Rule") at the Company's Amos and Mountaineer Plants (the "Plants"). The Commission denied, without prejudice, the Company's request to recover through the E-RAC its actual and projected capital investment incurred to comply with the EPA's Steam Electric Effluent Limitation Guidelines ("ELG Rule") at the Plants.

In its Petition herein, the Company seeks to recover a revenue requirement of $33.6 million during the rate year of December 1, 2022 through November 30, 2023 ("Rate Year") through the E-RAC. This amount includes: (1) actual and projected capital investment to comply with the CCR Rule at the Plants; (2) actual and projected capital investment to comply with the ELG Rule at the Plants; including those incurred up to August 2021; (3) new capital investments related to dissolved oxygen levels at the hydroelectric generating units at the Company's Claytor Hydro Project and the dry sorbent injection system at Amos; (4) actual and projected costs to comply with the regulation that established Virginia as a member of the Regional Greenhouse Gas Initiative associated with the dispatch of the Company's gas-fired Clinch River Plant; and (5) actual and projected O&M compliance costs incurred in complying with environmental regulations at the Company's generation units.

In the 2021 E-RAC Order, the Commission found that the Company had "not met its burden of proving the reasonableness and prudence of the proposed ELG investment costs," but held that the Company should be permitted to provide additional analyses and evidence to support the ELG investment, "should APCo conclude circumstances so warrant."

The Petition explains that on December 23, 2020, APCo filed a petition with the Public Service Commission of West Virginia ("WVPSC") seeking certificates of convenience and necessity authorizing both the CCR and ELG projects at the Plants, as well as a cost recovery mechanism. The Company states that the WVPSC approved the requests on August 4, 2021. On October 12, 2021, the WVPSC issued another order that confirmed its earlier decision, stating that, due to the Commission's 2021 E-RAC Order, "Virginia...jurisdictional customers should receive no capacity or energy from the Plants after 2028." The Company states that as the Plants will continue to operate past 2028, no matter how the Commission rules on this Petition, circumstances warrant re-filing its request to recover the costs of the ELG Projects.

APCo proposes a total revenue requirement of approximately $33.6 million during the Rate Year. Specifically, the Company indicates that its proposed revenue requirement comprises four elements: (1) a Forecast Rate Year Component of $29.6 million; (2) a Forecast Allowance for Funds Used During Construction Revenue Component of $4.3 million; (3) a True-up Revenue Component of $0.5 million; and (4) an Actual Revenue Component of $0.2 million. For purposes of calculating the revenue requirement, APCo states that it used an after tax rate of return on rate base of 6.817% based on the year ended December 31, 2020 capital structure. The Company further states that this rate of return included the 9.20% return on equity approved by the Commission in Case No. PUR-2020-00015.

APCo states that it seeks to recover the revenue requirement by allocating costs to the Virginia jurisdiction consistent with the Company's methodology approved by the Commission in its previous E-RAC proceeding. If the proposed E-RAC is approved, the impact on customer bills would depend on the customer's rate schedule and usage. According to the Company, the revenue requirement would be an increase of $6.2 million over the Company's existing E-RAC. APCo estimates that implementing this revenue requirement would increase a residential customer's monthly bill, based on 1,000 kWh usage per month, by $0.80, or 0.6%, when compared to rates effective December 1, 2021.

Interested persons are encouraged to review the Petition and supporting documents for the details of these and other proposals.

TAKE NOTICE that the Commission may apportion revenues among customer classes and/or design rates in a manner differing from that shown in the Petition and supporting documents and thus may adopt rates that differ from those appearing in the Company's Petition and supporting documents.

The Commission entered an Order for Notice and Hearing in this proceeding that, among other things, scheduled public hearings on APCo's Petition. On September 20, 2022, at 10 a.m., the Commission will hold a telephonic hearing, with no witness present in the Commission's courtroom, for the purpose of receiving the testimony of public witnesses. On or before September 15, 2022, any person desiring to offer testimony as a public witness shall provide to the Commission (a) your name, and (b) the telephone number that you wish the Commission to the learing to receive your testimony. Majority of Virginia employers experiencing labor shortage but remain optimistic about future

Ninety percent of Virginia CEOs are experiencing a labor shortage impacting their business.

That's the latest from the quarterly CEO Economic Outlook Survey conducted by the University of Richmond's Robins School of Business and the Virginia Council of CEOs.

In addition to the labor shortage, 75% of CEOs reported at least a minor impact resulting from supply chain shortages. Seventy percent of CEOs expect sales to increase over the next six months with 34% of those expecting at least a 10% uptick. Additionally, 67% of CEOs expect employment to increase over the same period.

The survey found expectations over the next six months for sales and employment were both positive and expectations were up compared with the end of Q4 2021. Expectations with regard to capital spending remained primarily flat.

More than half (70%) of CEOs indicated that they expect sales to increase over the next six months. Nine percent expected sales to be 'significantly higher." 61% expected sales to be "higher." Seven percent expected sales to be "lower." One percent expected sales to be "significantly lower." 21% indicated they expected no

Thirty-one percent of CEOs expect capital spending to increase over the next six months (compared with 41% last quarter), while 11% expect capital spending to decrease. More than 57% expect capital spending to remain flat.

Sixty-seven percent of responding CEOs expect employment to increase over the next six months. Additionally, 29% expect employment to remain flat while only 4% expect employment to fall. Taken as a whole, the

Buddy price reports, the cheapest station in Virginia was priced at $3.35/g Monday while the most expensive was $5.49/g, a difference of $2.14/g. The national average price of gasoline rose 13.6 cents per gallon last week, averaging $4.31/g Monday. The national average is up 19.6 cents per gallon from a month ago and stands $1.36/g higher than a year ago, according to GasBuddy data compiled from more than 11 million weekly price reports covering over 150,000 gas stations across the country.

"Gasoline and diesel prices alike saw strong upward momentum last week as oil prices continued to climb after the EU signaled its desire to sanction Russian oil," said Patrick De Haan, head of petroleum analysis at GasBuddy. "In addition, U.S. petroleum inventories saw yet another weekly decline as we near the start of summer driving season, Not only are diesel prices at a record high, they are at their largest differential to gasoline on record, surpassing the 98-cent difference in 2008 and currently standing at a $1.20 per gallon premium. While motorists filling with gasoline have seen a slight rise in prices, diesel's surge will be a double whammy as diesel prices will soon be passed along to retail channels, further pushing up the cost of goods.'

GasBuddy is the authoritative voice for gas prices and the only source for station-level data spanning nearly two decades. GasBuddy's survey updates 288 times every day from the most diverse list of sources covering nearly 150,000 stations nationwide, the most comprehensive and up-to-date in the country. "It's more than a new goal, it is a number that speaks to our legacy," said university president Tim Sands about the new figure that was announced April 30 at a gathering celebrating the university's sesquicentennial. "For 150 years we have tapped into powerful partnerships that have supported our students, advanced our university, and made great things possible," Sands said. Boundless Impact:

Campaign Virginia Tech was announced in October 2019 and is due to last through 2027. It's the fourth national fundraising campaign the university has run, though generous donors have stepped forward in support of the institution since its very begin-

Recent years have seen a dramatic acceleration in giving with the university setting multiple records for new gifts and commitments and cash raised while also bucking national trends of declining giving participation by alumni.

"Shortly after arriving, President Sands challenged the Hokie Nation to reimagine the scope of what Virginia Tech could be," said Charlie Phlegar, the university's vice president for advancement, who is responsible for fundraising. then, our community of alumni and friends have stepped forward to an extraordinary and inspiring degree. Tim boldly challenged us to increase how much we raise each year, increase how many Hokies we inspire to make gifts, and increase our endowment in a major way. He set a high bar, but he knew what we Hokies are capable of, and we have answered the call." Virginia Tech's current fiscal year, which started July 1, 2021, and ends June 30, 2022, has already seen the university announce its largest ever gift by an alumnus and conduct a recordsetting Giving Day that raised over $8.4 million from more than 15,700 donors. The university passed the $1 billion threshold for its Boundless Impact campaign toward the end of 2021.

Boundless Impact campaign goals also include engaging 100,000 Hokies in meaningful ways. As the university celebrates its 150th anniversary year, with numerous events planned through December 2022, the campaign is still shy of its midpoint, having begun in a quiet phase in July 2017.

Lynne Doughtie '85 serves alongside Horacio Valeiras '80 and Morgan Blackwood-Patel '03 as a tri-chair of the Boundless Impact campaign. When we agreed to co-chair this campaign committee we knew we'd reach our goal, but we had no idea how quickly it would happen," said Doughtie, who became KPMG's first female CEO in 2015 and served in that role and as chair of the company until 2020. "We are on track to not only meet, but surpass our [initial] Boundless Impact campaign goal of $1.5 billion. And because of this success, we're going to go even Loud and annoying with their buzzes and clicks, two of the most common insects used are black soldier flies and crickets.

Using fermentation and different bioprocessing methods, the insects are eventually converted to protein with high nutritional and medicinal value. Research suggests this source of protein may mitigate several health problems, including hypertension, Ovissi-

Once the protein is created, it is extracted and mixed with different ingredients to produce certain food items, such as cookies and protein bars with endless flavor possibilities. Some are savory. Some are sweet. Popular among Ovissipour's team is barbecue.

Ovissipour compared the process to that of brewing beer: Yeast converts glucose to create a value-added beverage.

Also in his lab are bugs such as cicadas, silkworms, and scorpions that are edible on their own. Their taste isn't preferred by everyone, but neither is the taste of seafood, beef, or poultry, Ovissipour pointed out.

The research team has been working with large companies and insect producers across the United States to put the products on the

Some, such as crickets, silkworms, scorpions, meal worms, sago worms, and Junebugs, are already on store shelves, Ovissipour said, so be on the lookout.

FROM THE LAB TO THE TABLE

Beyond insect harvesting, Ovissipour's team is also using similar research methods to create cultivated meat: animal cells grown in vitro to form anything from chicken tenders to salmon fillets.

This effort is an additional attempt to keep pace with the growing demand for food and

"Compounded with diminishing land and water resources and an accelerating climate crisis, new technologies that maximize resource efficiency and minimize waste are needed to feed an increasingly hungry world,' Ovissipour said.

The New River Valley Community Foundation's Third Thursday May session will be held in person on Thursday, May 19, from 9:30 to 10:30 a.m.

The 9:30 starting time is later than usual and will be held at the Virginia Tech Corporate Research Center at 1880 Pratt Dr. in Blacksburg (the Concept Conference Room on the second floor).

The speakers for this leadership-focused session are both from Radford University: Jason Clayton, Director of the Center for Career and Development; Talent and Joe Wirgau, Director of the Office of Undergraduate Research & Scholarship.

Together, they will discuss how leadership and career readiness competencies can be shared at the workplace as they teach participants how they can learn more about how to develop and articulate their leadership skills.

Harshbergers to celebrate 60th wedding anniversary

On May 1962, Kathleen Harvey and Richard (Dick) Harshberger, were married in the chapel of Villanova University near Philadelphia. As has become the case throughout their lives together, they were surrounded by many friends and family. Nevertheless, because they were so young, to return from military some doubts accompanied them down the aisle even though the couple had waited a year for at the reception when service in Germany to marry.

All doubts evaporated Kathleen's brother, Ted, Dick and Kathleen gave the crowd their first of their many performances as a married couple, a waltz medley that included "When Irish Eyes Are Smiling" and "Let Me Call You Sweetheart." An essential truth that contributed to 60 years of marriage was that not only were the newlyweds in love with each other, but they also liked each

So 60 years later, after three children, four grandchildren, so many theater performances and rehearsals they are beyond counting, political campaign victories, published books, dance competitions, tragedies and triumphs, the Harshbergers are on the doorstep of celebrating their diamond anniver-

The New River Valley has been fortunate that Dick and Kathleen found each other those many years ago. For most of their married life, they have called Radford their home, and they have served the city in countless ways in both their public and private lives as public servants, entertainers, and good friends.

Bad Boy Buck Blevins passes away

From the Sidelines

Marty Gordon

When he was 10, Buck Blevins asked his mother what she would do if a professional wrestler came to their house for a meal. She laughed and said it would never happen. Buck was not only determined to meet one but also to become one.

He had always been a fan of the sport, and a short time later, he met retired professional wrestler Jimmy Valiant, who ran a training camp in nearby Alleghany Springs.

At 4-8 and 140 pounds, the odds were against Blevins, but that didn't stop him. After graduating from Valiant's training camp, he met one of his heroes, Ricky Morton of the Rockin' Road Express.

He even served as Valiant's manager at several events.

Buck Blevins died this past week. He was 47. He was born with a condition simply called "dwarfism" and graduated from Pulaski County High School where he was the manager of the school's football team including the 1992 state championship. Cougar football was another one of those things he loved.

I met him through his relationship with former Radford radio disc jockey Robby Raggs. Buck followed Raggs to many public appearances and used his wrestling background to sign autographs.

Known as "Bad Boy Buck," Blevins won the National Wrestling League's Midget Championship. He also put on a clown suit and entered the then-World Wrestling Federation (now WWE), which was owned by promoter Vince McMahon.

He would come to the ring with Doink the Clown along with Dink and Pink. All of this took place before he turned 18 as he appeared on national television.

Injuries and health problems all associated with his condition forced him out of the ring, but he never forgot the wrestling chapter in his life.

Thanks, Buck, for all the memories and stories you kept close to your

often to register a dominating 7-0 victory over Smith Mountain Lake Christian Academy this past week.

Striker Clara Westcott scored twice in the first four minutes to give the Lions a quick 2-0 lead.

The second goal from Westcott came courtesy of a through-ball from midfielder Ashley Wiseman. Smith Mountain Lake recovered its poise and held Dayspring scoreless for the next 12 min-

Tegan Bailey, coming in for Westcott at the striker position, ended the scoring drought with a blast from just inside the penalty area. Susy McCurdy added a goal just two minutes later when she poked in a loose ball in front of the net.

Smith Mountain Lake had trouble maintaining possession and thus was forced to defend for most of the first half. Aliyah Castillo made the score 5-0 at the 30-minute mark when she made a strong run down the right wing and squeezed a shot inside the near post.

The first half scoring was completed in the 35th minute when left back Lydia Gorzycki made a run from the back weaving through traffic before finishing just inside the left post. That goal gave the Lions a 6-0 lead at the break.

Dayspring substituted liberally in the second half gaining valuable experience for several of their younger players. The SMLCA defense also stiffened giving up only a single goal to attacking midfielder Ruthie Buehrer who found a crease on the left side and finished just inside the near post.

In all, six different players found the net for Dayspring in the win. Keeper Hannah Cook recoded the shut-out with the aid of a stiff defense anchored by the backline of
