Blacksburg cuts the ribbon on new police station

The Town of Blacksburg officially cut the ribbon on its new, $16 million, state-of-the-art police station (the William H. Brown Building) Wednesday, June 22, at 10 a.m.

Blacksburg deputy town manager Chris Lawrence opened the ceremonies with some brief remarks. He welcomed everyone to the day's festivities and explained why the town needed the new building, which includes a 300-space parking garage and a community room/training center named after Police Chief Anthony Wilson, who is retiring this summer.

"This is a building we can really be proud of that gives our police department a great home," Lawrence said.

Blacksburg Town Manager Mark Verneil was next to stand behind the lectern and declare, "This is a building we can really be proud of that gives our police department a great home."

Blacksburg Mayor Leslie Hager-Smith told the gathered crowd, "We in Blacksburg have inherited a legacy of enlightened, generous, and courageous leadership," and said "citizens will be welcome to gather in this building. It marks a growing and expansive downtown. Our vision was to keep our facility in the center of downtown."

Retiring police chief Anthony Wilson said he was "honored to be here and to be a part of a once-in-a-career type thing in this building. The design process had to forecast the future staffing for this, our new home, and had to make the building secure for our family, which is what the Blacksburg Police Department is. Our task with this building was to glorify the past and prepare for the future."

The building bears the name of former police chief William Brown. It was dedicated in his honor at an earlier session of the Blacksburg Town Council.

Wilson said, "The building bears his (Brown's) name because his life still guides us. The hallways of this new Chief Brown, you instilled this building in our hearts and we're proud to have it named after you."

Ribbon, cake-cutting launch new location for Montgomery Museum of Art & History

The new Blacksburg Police Department building wasn't the only scene Wednesday, June 22, of a ribbon cutting as the members of the Montgomery County Chamber of Commerce cut a ribbon at 9 a.m. at the museum's new location, 4 East Main St. in downtown Christiansburg.

The ceremony began a day of festivities for the museum. It was followed by the sharing of coffee and pastries provided by Brugh Coffee and Bollo's Cafe & Bakery.

Aloha Eddie's and Sam's Hot Dog Stand Blacksburg joined the celebration by kicking in with some food and desserts.

At 10 a.m., a bouncy house was placed on-site in the back parking lot and provided fun for children and the young at heart until 3 p.m.

At 12:30 p.m. and at 2:30 p.m., the fun continued with Storytime for Children with Jolene Kathryn Shenk. A children's museum was on hand with coloring books and a "What would you put in your museum?" activity until 2 p.m.

A bubble machine in the back parking lot provided more fun for children, who also had some fun with face painting until 3 p.m.

At 4 p.m., a bonus "happy hour" signaled the official opening of a free art show that displayed the work of 27 artists from across the New River Valley. A meet-the-artist reception then capped off the day's activities.

National collegiate sportscasters program recognizes two Hokies for work behind the microphone

Every year, hundreds of college students submit their sports broadcasting reels for the Sportscasters Talent Agency of America (STAA) All-America program, which recognizes the nation's outstanding collegiate radio and TV sports broadcasters.

The program culminates every spring with the Jim Nantz Award to honor the nation's outstanding collegiate sportscaster. On May 27, STAA streamed its announcement show to reveal these top sportscasters as chosen by a panel of judges.

STAA CEO Jon Chelesnik announced 14 names that made up the second and third team All-Americans. But 2022 Virginia Tech graduate Kevin DiDomenico did not hear his name. Chelesnik started reading off the first team All-Americans in alphabetical order and began with Nick DeLuca, a senior from Fordham University. DiDomenico quickly ran through the alphabet in his head. Phew. 'E' in DeLuca comes before 'I' in DiDomenico, so there was still hope.

"Another senior, from Virginia Tech, Kevin DiDomenico," Chelesnik said. It was official. DiDomenico, a 2022 sports media and analytics graduate from the School of Communication, was named one of the top five collegiate sportscasters in the country.

"I was thrilled when my name was called," DiDomenico said. "It was just an unreal experience. To have another Virginia Tech guy up there in the top five was awesome. For the program, it just shows what we're doing and what we're going to continue to do."

Evan Hughes, a 2021 multimedia journalism graduate, earned All-American honors as a junior in 2020 and was named the top collegiate sportscaster in the country by winning the 2021 Jim Nantz Award. The talent stemming from students in the School of Communication continues to be recognized on the national stage.

DiDomenico transferred to Virginia Tech as a sophomore largely because of a conversation he remembered with Bill Roth, a professor of practice in the school of communication, as a high school senior. Roth encouraged DiDomenico to think of himself as a sports broadcaster five, 10, and 15 years down the road because of the experience he would be able to garner at Virginia Tech in conjunction with the sports media and analytics major.

As Roth noted, over the past three years, DiDomenico has found himself calling all kinds of sporting events as the play-by-play voice for the Salem Red Sox, Pulaski Yankees, Radford University men's basketball on ESPN+, and all sorts of Virginia Tech athletics assignments on the ACC Network Extra.

"I want to say I called over 200 games throughout my time at Tech," DiDomenico said. "There's no way I would be the broadcaster I am without that experience. I'm not Jim Nantz or Mike Tirico. I didn't come out of the womb with a microphone in hand. Without that experience, I wouldn't be where I am. It felt like that hard work paid off."

The good news didn't end there. Giovanni Heater, a Virginia Tech freshman majoring in sports media and analytics, was named an honorable mention All-American. It marked the first time that Virginia Tech had two students honored by STAA in the same year.

"Gio is our first-ever freshman honoree," Roth said. "He is a really talented broadcaster. I'm looking forward to watching him develop over the next three years at Virginia Tech."

Heater immediately jumped into the action, getting involved with 3304 Sports, the multimedia platform for student sports journalism at Virginia Tech. In his first year on campus, Heater was calling games for football, basketball, and the ACC Women's Basketball Tournament in Greensboro, North Carolina. These opportunities are offered to freshmen entering the sports media and analytics major at Virginia Tech.

Calculating the future of mathematics at Virginia Tech

Leaders in the Virginia Tech College of Science laid out plans before the Virginia Tech Board of Visitors earlier this month for a series of enhancements intended to again make the university a leader in undergraduate mathematics education.

The changes initially will take place in courses offered in the Math Emporium, former College of Science Interim Dean Ron Fricker and Irish Hammer, associate dean for faculty affairs and graduate studies, told the Board of Visitors.

Though all the changes are not yet in place, the goal is to offer students more flexibility in how to learn math. The self-paced, instructor-assisted format at the Math Emporium works well for some students, but others are more successful in traditional, instructor-led classroom learning.

“People learn differently,” Fricker said, “and Virginia Tech students will have the opportunity now to choose the learning style in which they are most successful.”

Mathematics education affects nearly all students who come to Virginia Tech. More than 98 percent of students take at least one class in the College of Science, due to requirements that students in engineering, business, architecture, and other majors have in foundational courses such as mathematics and chemistry.

“Mathematics education is so big that we have to move carefully,” said Hammer, who obtained her bachelor’s, master’s, and doctoral degrees from Virginia Tech in mathematics. “It’s important that we move strategically and thoughtfully and get this right.”

Math courses account for an astonishing one of every 16 credit hours taught at Virginia Tech. When the Math Emporium opened more than two decades ago, it was not only lauded as a leading edge of mathematics education, but the Virginia Tech model was adopted at scores of universities across the country. The method of self-paced math courses in large rooms with hundreds of students at computers and roving instructors is now known far and wide as “the emporium model.”

But through the years, detractors emerged, calling it “large and impersonal.” The Emporium may have been innovative in its heyday, but Hammer said now is the time to re-fashion a new model based on everything learned during the past two-plus decades. The college also will incorporate teaching method innovations that mathematics instructors adapted during the COVID-19 pandemic, Hammer said.

“Imagine a ‘studio day’ in your introductory math course,” Hammer said. “It will be very interactive. It will have a flavor of the Math Emporium, with instructors walking around and students able to work independently then get help when they need it.

“Our goal is a cutting-edge blend of the two models,” Hammer said.

hundreds of colleges and universities across the country, helping students find the right college to meet their educational and career goals.

The organization relies on more than just an overview of institutional data, statistics, and endowment size. The Colleges of Distinction selection process comprises a sequence of in-depth research and detailed interviews with the schools, accepting only those that adhere to four distinctions: engaged students, great teaching, vibrant community, and successful outcomes. Founder Wes Creel created Colleges of Distinction to draw more attention to schools like Radford University where student success and satisfaction are primary goals and student-centered education prevails while fostering a dynamic learning community.

“When we focus all of our attention on how schools stack up against one another, we lose track of what really matters, which are the students themselves,” said Creel. “Every student has individual needs and their own environment in which they’re most likely to thrive. We want to extend our praise to the schools that prioritize and cater to students’ goals.

“We’re inspired by the ways in which Radford University immerses students in their fields, all while fostering a welcoming community that will support them through and beyond their college years,” Creel said.

In addition to the institution-wide recognition, Colleges of Distinction highlighted several academic programs and student services at Radford University for their excellence. Among the markers of quality that each program or service had to meet were stability, accreditation, practical experience opportunities, collaborative learning experiences, courses in ethics, high-impact practices, industry connections to help build professional relationships and multidisciplinary, or offering multiple majors and minors to meet the diverse needs of students.

The academic programs recognized by Colleges of Distinction were the undergraduate business program, which excels at graduating students into the workforce with solid, well-developed critical thinking skills as well as the ability to adapt to an ever-changing society.

The undergraduate education program, which delivers leading-edge undergraduate education programs as education transforms alongside constant changes in technology, public policy, employer demands, and more.

The undergraduate nursing program, which prepares its students to excel and take action in high-pressure situations and challenges them to remain curious and compassionate throughout their rigorous careers.

The student services recognized by Colleges of Distinction were Career development, which is well-equipped to help students graduate with confidence through offering comprehensive four-year plans, advising and more.

Military support, which provides personal and academic support for the unique challenges veterans and active military personnel face, helping these students overcome obstacles and achieve success.

WORSHIP DIRECTORY

I Need Help

Read Psalms 11:1 through 18:50

Many of the Psalms are full of praise to God. We sometimes visualize David as peacefully strumming a harp as he quietly watches a flock of sheep grazing on a grassy slope. Psalm 13 presents a different picture.

David apparently had doubts, troubling thoughts, and enemies. Things did not always go well for him. In the first part of this psalm, David, in authentic transparency, expressed some real concerns. He apparently had enemies who were getting a little too close for comfort. The amazing part is how, in spite of the chaos around him, David made a decision to trust God.

But I trust in your unfailing love; my heart rejoices in your salvation (Psalm 13:5).

Everything does not always go well for us either. We face challenges that seem overwhelming, and we do not always see a clear path through the jungle of everyday life. But God is our Source of help, and we can trust Him to get us through!

Prayer Suggestion: Father, I do not feel up to the task that is before me at times, but I have decided that I will trust You.

Quicklook: Psalm 13:1-6

Slow rolls may be performed on I-81 in the north and southbound lanes from mile marker 98 to 109. Speed limit is reduced to 60 miles per hour in the work zone. Shoulder closures will remain in place though the duration of the project. Project completion is estimated by summer 2023.

East Mont's Bruce, Auburn's Neal named Class 1 soccer players of year

The Virginia High School League has announced that Eastern Montgomery midfielder Maddie Bruce is the Class 1 women's soccer player of the year, East Mont coach Whitney Shaver is the coach of the year, and Auburn midfielder Chris Neal is the Class 1 boy's soccer player of the year.

Bruce capped her junior season with two goals in the Mustangs' 4-0 win over Auburn for their second straight state championship. 18-0 this spring, under Coach Shaver's leadership, the Mustangs have won 32 straight games. Eastern Montgomery did not allow a goal in either the state semifinals or the finals.

Bruce finished 2022 with 27 goals and 36 assists and has 61 career goals and 59 career assists in just two seasons (COVID canceled her freshman season in 2020).

Sixteen players are selected first-team all-state and second-team all-state (four forwards, four midfielders, four defensive players, one goalie, and three at-large from any position). Only those players selected to the first-team all-region teams are eligible for selection to the all-state team. Each all-state selection committee is made up of eight soccer coaches (two from each region).

Eastern Montgomery placed nine players on the first team: Aija McHone, Madeline Mirolli, Lilly Underwood, Laken Smith, Morgan Bahnken, Nayda Hubbard, Mackenzie Kidwell, Logan Boone and Bruce.

Auburn's Katie Light and Katelyn Lafon were also named to the all-state first team. Eastern Montgomery's Yesenia Mercado and Hannah Blankenship were joined on the second team by Auburn's Logan Mundy and Stacy Lewis.

The Virginia High School League has also announced its 2022 Class 1 All-State boys soccer team. Auburn senior midfielder Chris Neal is the Class 1 Player of the Year, and Galax head coach James Kohl was named the Class 1 Coach of the Year.

Neal, who will play soccer at Mars Hill University (NC) in the fall, made 21 appearances for Auburn this spring, scored 22 goals, and had a school-record 15 assists. He finished his high school career with 32 assists.

First-year head coach, James Kohl, led Galax to a 14-8-2 overall record and a 2-0 win over Northampton in the Class 1 state finals.

Radford U upgrading broadcast capabilities

Radford University is looking to expand its efforts to produce sporting events with the addition of a new broadcast trailer.

This past week, the university announced a campaign to raise money for the trailer, which would expand the Highlanders' Digital Broadcast Network.

Nathan Wise is the communications director for the athletic program at the school. He said this is something RU has wanted for a long time.

Wise said it can be a challenge to broadcast all of the RU sporting events, especially when broadcasting equipment needs to be moved around to all of the Highlanders' athletic facilities.

"The main benefits would be to stream more of our games on ESPN Plus to give a better learning experience to students at Radford University who are helping us out in those plans," Wise said. "The truck will also let us give more exposure to Radford Athletics and our sidelines whether it is for fans or alumni or the general public to support the fan base and family all around the world," Wise told members of the media this past week.

The university has not announced a timetable, but there is some hope the truck could be in place by the fall.

Moris leaving VT for Northern Iowa

Pete Moris, the communication leader for Virginia Tech's athletics program, is leaving to head up university relations at the University of Northern Iowa, according to an announcement from the school and pending approval from the school's Board of Regents.

Moris has more than 15 years' experience leading strategic communications, marketing, and public relations in the higher education, entertainment, and elite sports sectors.

He will take high profile media relations and marketing experience to Northern Iowa. Since 2015, Moris has served as Associate Athletics Director for Strategic Communications at Virginia Tech where he led marketing and communications campaigns to grow the donor base and increase the national profile of VT athletics. In 2021, he was part of a campus team that launched the $400 million Reach for Excellence fundraising campaign.

At the University of Oklahoma, Moris led a public relations and media campaign to unveil the $370 million renovation project of Oklahoma Memorial Stadium. As Associate Director of Public Relations for the Kansas City Chiefs, Moris coordinated public relations and event management for four Super Bowls. He has also served on the media relations teams for the NCAA Final Four, the College Football Playoff Championship Game, and multiple major collegiate bowl games.

"Pete's public relations background and leadership experience are exactly what UNI needs to enhance our marketing and recruitment strategies to prospective students and their families, and to continue to expand UNI's reputation for serving the needs of our students and the state," said UNI President Mark A. Nook.

"I am grateful to President Nook and his leadership team at the University of Northern Iowa for placing their trust in me," Moris said. "I am excited to begin this role and promote the great work being done by so many talented people at UNI. In addition, I'm looking forward to collaborating with UNI's faculty, staff, and alumni to recruit a diverse student body to an institution with such a strong academic tradition and history."

Moris holds bachelor's degrees in public relations and writing from Loras College, and he is a graduate of the Disney Customer Service Training Program.

He will join the UNI community beginning July 1.

New assistant at RU women's basketball

The Radford University women's basketball program announced Friday afternoon that Alex Tomlinson has joined the team as an assistant coach for the upcoming 2022-23 season.

Tomlinson brings to the New River Valley an impressive résumé including most recently being named the Women's Basketball Coaches Association's Division III Assistant Coach of the Year last season with Christopher Newport. Tomlinson helped guide the Captains to a 26-1 record as the team won 26 straight games to advance to the NCAA Sweet 16.

Tomlinson was also part of the staff that collected Coast-to-Coast Athletic Conference Coaching Staff of the Year honors.

She spent three seasons in Newport News with Christopher Newport. While there, the team had a 51-5 record that included two tournament and regular-season titles. The program won four NCAA Tournament games over that span. The 2021-22 season was a historic one for the program as the Captains earned a number-one ranking for the first time in program history and had a 43-game winning streak, the ninth-longest in Division III history.

Before her tenure at Christopher Newport, Tomlinson was a graduate assistant with the University of North Carolina. She was a part of the coaching staff with the Tar Heels that guided the team to its first NCAA Tournament since 2015.

While at North Carolina, she helped grade film with the coaching staff, filmed all games, and assisted with game-day film exchange. She also assisted coaches with on-court preparation prior to practice and facilitated the UNC Women's Basketball Summer Camp production. While she was on staff, the Tar Heels defeated a pair of top-ten programs, including the number-one team in the country at the time, Notre Dame,

Ace Custis inducted into Hall of Fame

Former VT basketball player and current assistant coach Ace Custis has been inducted into the Northampton High School Hall of Fame.

At Northampton High School, Ace was part of cross-country, basketball, and baseball. He grew in stature, eventually reaching 6'8", and excelled on the basketball court.

At Va. Tech, Ace was the third player (fourth overall) in VT men's basketball history to score 1,000 points and bring down 1,000 rebounds. His No.-20 jersey was retired in 1997, just the third player in the history of the program to achieve such an honor.

Oklahoma State, Tech to play in Brooklyn

Virginia Tech and Oklahoma State will clash as part of the 2022 Basketball Hall of Fame Invitational at Barclays Center in Brooklyn, NY. The fifth all-time meeting between the two schools is part of a quadruple-header on Sunday, Dec. 11, that will also feature Tennessee vs. Maryland, Iona vs. St. Bonaventure, and UMass vs. Hofstra.

The game marks the second straight season the Hokies will play at Barclays Center. In addition to winning the 2022 ACC Tournament in Brooklyn, Tech played in the NIT Season Tip-Off last November at the same arena.

Oklahoma State concluded its 2021-22 season at 15-15, which included three top-25 wins – headlined by a 61-54 upset of then-No. 1 Baylor on Jan. 15.

Tech is 4-0 all-time against the Cowboys. The teams played a home-and-home series in 2011 (Stillwater) and 2012 (Blacksburg). They have also squared off in New York before – a 59-57 Tech win at Madison Square Garden on Nov. 25, 2011.

The Basketball Hall of Fame Invitational is one event in the Hall of Fame's series of collegiate events that continues to grow in an effort to celebrate the game outside the museum walls.

Farm women and youth more likely to be injured in ATV, UTV accidents

Farmers may believe all-terrain and utility vehicles are the greatest tools since the skid steer, said Dan Neenan, director of the National Education Center for Agricultural Safety. But studies indicate that injured ATV/UTV passengers are commonly female or youth.

Agricultural safety experts urge proper sizing when shopping for an ATV or UTV, and when choosing personal protective equipment.

"Stand on the footrests, and grasp the handles," Neenan advised in a webinar geared toward female agriculturalists and hosted by AgriSafe Network. "While holding this position, check that there is at least 3 inches of clearance between the seat and the back of your pants."

The same attention to sizing should be applied to PPE.

The rider's physical size, strength, experience level, coordination, visual perception, maturity, and reasoning also should be taken into consideration. This is as important as the vehicle manufacturer's minimum age recommendation, Neenan added.

The vehicles handle differently on various road surfaces, Fisher noted. Steering and braking capacity can change with fluctuating loads since some farm tasks must be completed in unfavorable weather conditions.

Farms and work sites can be spread out for several acres, leaving workers alone for long periods of time, he added. Employers should know the operator's destination, estimated time of return, contact information and alternate routes, and have check-in procedures in place.
