WalletHub releases report on best Black Friday places to shop

With last year's Black Friday sales drawing 66.5 million Americans to shop in person and 88 million to shop online, the personal-finance website WalletHub has released its report on 2022's Best Places to Shop on Black Friday. WalletHub surveyed nearly 4,000 deals from 16 of the biggest U.S. retailers' 2022 Black Friday ad scans to identify the stores offering the biggest discounts in various product categories such as "Appliances," "Jewelry," and "Toys." The following are some highlights from the report: Best Black Friday Retailers (Avg. % Discount)

 1. JCPenney (64.71%)
 2. Belk (64.23%)
 3. Macy's (53.05%)
 4. Office Depot and

OfficeMax (49.93%)
 5. Kohl's (44.23%)
 6. Lenovo (40.67%)
 7. Target (32.87%)
 8. Big Lots (32.86%)
 9. Academy Sports + Outdoors (31.10%)
 10. The Home Depot (30.90%)

Key Stats
 JCPenney has the highest overall discount rate at 64.71 percent, whereas Costco has the lowest at 16.80 percent. The overall average discount for Black Friday is 37 percent. Consumers should aim for this discount amount or higher to avoid Black-Friday traps. The "Apparel & Accessories" category has one of the biggest shares of discounted items, 21.09 percent of all offers, whereas the "Furniture" category has the smallest at 3.73 percent.

Travelers should pack a lot of patience for a busy holiday travel season as the industry recovers, says expert

While travelers are feeling more comfortable about resuming holiday travel and celebration, they will continue to face delays, cancellations, and other frustrations, says Virginia Tech travel and tourism professor Mahmood Khan.

"The backbone of the travel industry is affected due to the blockage of the supply chain, acute labor shortages, and coming out of the lockdown psychology," says Khan. "The problems facing the travel industry are evident by last minute flight cancellations, lost baggage, delays, and unruly customer stories."

Khan says that expecting travel to be as normal as it was pre-pandemic will bring more disappointment. Airline prices have gone up considerably, which requires advance planning, particularly for Christmas travel.

"Even when travelers are mentally prepared to pay a little more for getting out of the isolation, the sticker-shock can be stressful. The Thanksgiving break will be a pre-test of things to come, and Christmas travel may prove to be a nightmare," says Khan.

Khan says the holiday rush will likely be more for domestic vs. interna-

Glencoe Mansion to host gallery show featuring works by Yvonne Alderman

Glencoe Mansion, Museum & Gallery will present a new gallery exhibit, "Visions in Mixed Media and Wood," featuring the works of artist Yvonne Alderman that will open with a reception on Saturday, Nov. 26, from 11 a.m. until 1 p.m.

The reception coincides with the museum's Small Business Saturday event to promote shopping locally to support local business and artisans, which will be from 10 a.m. to 4 p.m.

The title of Alderman's show, "Visions in Mixed Media and Wood," reflects much of the process she uses to create her works. The visions relate to pictures that come into her thoughts as she drives through the mountains, washes dishes, or considers political issues and other elements of her life. She then decides whether to create the vision in mixed media or wood.

Similarly, she often looks at the objects around her and the materials she has on hand. She can begin by painting a background in various colors, add material and paper, and then decide the direction the piece is going.

Alderman is a native of Southwest Virginia, hailing from Carroll County. Growing up in the Blue Ridge, she absorbed the culture and environment around her. She experienced the many ways that people of the region expressed themselves from gardening and quilting to telling family stories and painting. She was also inspired by the mountains and the flora and fauna that inhabit them. Alderman's early art

"The Castle" is among the works by Yvonne Alderman on display at Glencoe Mansion, Museum & Gallery beginning Saturday, Nov. 26.

"What's Happening" by Yvonne Alderman at Glencoe Mansion, Museum & Gallery training took place while earning her degree in education and English at Radford University. She continued her education with a Masters in English from Virginia Tech and ultimately a doctorate in British Literature at the University of North Carolina at Greensboro.

Returning to the world of the visual arts, Alderman studied privately in Santa Fe, New Mexico, and at the Studio School in Roanoke.

The opening reception is open to the public, is family friendly, and is free.

Tips for avoiding family feuds over the holidays when dealing with 'hot button' topics

A Virginia Tech expert says the dinner table, after a heavy meal and a few drinks, may not be the most productive space for contentious conversations. Creating the time and space to hold these conversations can be vital when discussing polarizing issues.

The holidays are a great time for family and friends to reconnect. Unfortunately, it is also a time for feuds to brew and dinners to be ruined when controversial topics boil over. Virginia Tech expert Todd Schenk, an associate professor in the Virginia Tech School of Public and International Affairs, offers tips on how to better manage conversations around contentious issues.

"No one wants the holidays to be unpleasant, yet they can quickly become so in these polarized times," says Schenk. "Family members often do not agree on important issues such as climate change, immigration, election integrity, crime, and abortion."

Schenk said that although many may attempt to avoid these conversations, it is often only a matter of time before they come up.

"Civil discourse around issues offers the clearest path to shared learning and increased empathy," said Schenk. "It's also critical if we seek to be persuasive; changing opinions is really hard, but virtually impossible through insults and adversarial approaches."

When these conversations do eventually come up, Schenk offers the following advice to make the exchanges worthwhile.

"Being thoughtful in the when and how of approaching sensitive topics is key to having productive conversations," said Schenk. "We often fall into talking about 'hot topics,' but I would suggest explicitly seeking agreement among the parties that you are going to 'go there' and perhaps set aside a time for doing so."

Schenk notes that creating the time and space to hold these conversations can be vital when discussing issues that matter deeply to the family. In addition, it may be helpful to set ground rules such as 'no personal insults' and 'no interrupting.'

"Ideally, the parties involved will agree to approach the conversation with genuine curiosity and respect for the personhood and perspectives of others," said Schenk.

Schenk also emphasizes that utilizing 'active listening' techniques can be key to productive conversations.

Active listening involves:

Listening to understand and not respond; asking to clarify probing questions; speaking from the "I" and avoiding the "you"; interrogating the issues, not the people; providing data and information when appropriate; sharing personal experiences as appropriate; aiming to speak honestly; being mindful of the way you communicate, verbally and non-verbally; communicating with a healthy level of respect; Making space and taking space; approaching discomfort with curiosity.

With these tips in mind, family gatherings can not only be fun and relaxing but also safe spaces to share thoughts and feelings about the world around us.

Todd Schenk is an associate professor in the School of Public and International Affairs at Virginia Tech. He has extensive research and consulting experience working on collaborative governance and environmental policy and planning issues, including involving climate change adaptation.

Christiansburg Lions Club's holiday Christmas craft show set for Dec. 3 at Rec Center

The Christiansburg Lions will welcome some 145 vendors to their holiday Christmas craft show on Saturday, Dec. 3.

The Christiansburg Lions Club will present its 30th annual holiday Christmas craft show on Saturday, Dec. 3, from 9 a.m. to 4 p.m. at the Christiansburg Recreation Center.

According to club member Doug Kanney, over the years, the craft show has welcomed more than 50,000 shoppers to an average of 110 vendors with their handmade crafts. Kanney estimates that the craft show has put back into the community more than $300,000 for various local, district, and international Lions Club projects including leader dog for the blind, diabetes awareness and prevention, children's programs around the world, providing vision testing and glasses for local school children, financial support for earthquake and hurricane victims. The craft show also helps support MCEAP (Montgomery County Emergency Assistance Program), the Christmas Store, Scout troops, Boys and Girls State and scholars for high school students, and local rescue and fire departments.

Kanney said he expects 145 vendors at this year's show. They will bring their crafts and homemade goodies to share with shoppers from Christiansburg and the New River Valley.

Over the years, the crafters have made Christmas shopping a happy time, allowing shoppers to do some tional travel. “Domestic airfares will be much higher than in the last few years. The opportune time has already passed for the best deals, and travelers should grab whatever deals they can find,” Khan says. “From Thanksgiving onward, the prices will go up almost on a daily basis until the New Year. Redeeming points earned may not be as easy as it seems due to the lack of available options.” Travel challenges aside, more people will travel this year than during the past two years. This will cause an increased demand for limited services. The demand for pilots and crew members remains, and delays and cancellations should be expected.

“Avoid peak travel days surrounding Christmas and Thanksgiving to eliminate a lot of stress and mishaps,” says Khan. “Limit the amount of luggage, particularly hand carrying bags, to reduce waiting times considerably at airports. Also avoid narrow connecting times.” Khan warns that getting rental cars could be another problem to consider due to the lack of available cars. Many rental places reduced their inventory by selling cars during the pandemic. Hotels are also still unraveling from serious labor shortage and earlier planning will help. “Checking cancellation and refund policies is a must since it is not easy to get refunds if the policies do not permit. Some credit cards have good coverage when flights are canceled or for the lay-over situations,” says Khan. Travel challenges aside, Khan says that safety should be the priority, and taking precautions are a must. “Considering all the negative aspects, the best part will be to enjoy the holidays with family and friends in spite of certain inconveniences.”

Home Country by Slim Randles: A deviated what?

“No, Doc,” Windy said, “don’t hurt or nothin’ like that, but you know, with all the plagues goin’ on right now, figured it’s better to be safe than ...”

“Sorry?”

“I ain’t never sorry I come to see ya, Doc. You know that. Fell to sleep c’other night when all them ad shows is on ... you know. Like how to cut yer boots with a knife and feel younger by wearin’ a new shirt ... that stuff.”

Doc nodded. Windy Wilson was one of his closest pals, as well as being a patient. The adventures of this old cowboy camp cook and mule packer were usually good for a laugh, anyway. But ol’ Windy really seemed upset this morning.

“Windy,” Doc said, kindly. “I’m thinking this is a sorta personal problem. I deal with personal problems all the time, so why not just tell me about it?”

“Thass what’s so strange,

Doc. I only caught a part of it when I was a-dozin’ off, ya know? But I told myself ... Self, I better go talk to Doc, ‘cuz that jest might be whass been holdin’ me back on startin’ some colts.”

to know better! So what’s this problem that the teevee said is keeping you out of the saddle?”

Windy looked up shame-faced. “They called it a deviated rectum.”

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

A new Thanksgiving tradition: Reading George Washington’s proclamation

Dear Editor,

On Oct 3, 1789, during his first term of office as our first president, George Washington issued a Thanksgiving Day Proclamation. Among all the founding fathers, who pledged “to each other our Lives, our Fortunes, and our sacred Honor” as they signed the Declaration of Independence, I believe Washington, who had already assumed command of the Continental Army, had the greatest opportunity to see the providential hand of God in the formation of this country.

He saw it not only in the documents and in the events leading to independence, but he saw it most clearly on the battlefields where improbable victories occurred time and time again. And he acknowledged God and gave thanks.

On this Thanksgiving Day, let us do the same and begin a new tradition at the family dinner table in these United States. Let us take turns reading this proclamation while gathered around the dinner table. Each one can read a small portion, ponder these words, and end with our prayer of thanksgiving.

Happy Thanksgiving to all and may God bless America! The proclamation follows.

Sincerely,

Joe Hester Radford

By the President of the United States of America, a Proclamation.

Whereas it is the duty of all Nations to acknowledge the providence of Almighty God, to obey his will, to be grateful for his benefits, and humbly to implore his protection and favor and whereas both Houses of Congress have by their joint Committee requested me to recommend to the People of the United States a day of public thanksgiving and prayer to be observed by acknowledging with grateful hearts the many signal favors of Almighty

God especially by affording them an opportunity peaceably to establish a form of government for their safety and happiness.

Now therefore I do recommend and assign Thursday the 26th day of November next to be devoted by the People of these States to the service of that great and glorious Being, who is the beneficent Author of all the good that was, that is, or that will be-- That we may then all unite in rendering unto him our sincere and humble thanks--for his kind care and protection of the People of this Country previous to their becoming a Nation--for the signal and manifold mercies, and the favorable interpositions of his Providence which we experienced in the course and conclusion of the late war--for the great degree of tranquility, union, and plenty, which we have since enjoyed-- for the peaceable and rational manner in which we have been enabled to establish constitutions of government for our safety and happiness, and particularly the national One now lately instituted--for the civil and religious liberty with which we are blessed; and the means we have of acquiring and diffusing useful knowledge; and in general for all the great and various favors which he hath been pleased to confer upon us and also that we may then unite in most humbly offering our prayers and supplications to the great Lord and Ruler of Nations and beseech him to pardon our national and other transgressions-- to enable us all, whether in public or private stations, to perform our several and relative duties properly and punctually--to render our national government a blessing to all the people, by constantly being a Government of wise, just, and constitutional laws, discreetly and faithfully executed and obeyed--to protect and guide all Sovereigns and Nations (especially such as have shewn kindness unto us) and to bless them with good government, peace, and concord--to promote the knowledge and practice of true religion and virtue, and the increase of science among them and us--and generally to grant unto all Mankind such a degree of temporal prosperity as he alone knows to be best.

Given under my hand at the City of New York the third day of October in the year of our Lord

George Washington

Financial Focus: Here’s your ‘recession survival’ checklist

It’s unfortunate, but recessions are a fairly normal part of the economic landscape. When a recession occurs, how might you be affected? The answer depends on your individual situation, but regardless of your circumstances, you might want to consider the items in this recession survival checklist:

Assess your income stability. If your employment remains steady, you may not have to do anything different during a recession. But if you think your income could be threatened or disrupted, you might want to consider joining the “gig economy” or looking for freelance or consulting opportunities.

Review your spending. Look for ways to trim your spending, such as canceling subscription services you don’t use, eating out less often, and so on.

Pay down your debts. Try to reduce your debts, especially those with high interest rates.

Plan your emergency fund. If you haven’t already built one, try to create an emergency fund containing three to six months’ worth of living expenses with the money kept in a liquid account.

Review your protection plan. If your health or life insurance is tied to your work, a change in your employment status could jeopardize this coverage. Review all your options for replacing these types of protection. Also, look for ways to lower premiums on home or auto insurance, without significantly sacrificing coverage, to free up money that could be used for health/life insurance.

Keep your long-term goals in mind. Even if you adjust your portfolio during times of volatility, don’t lose sight of your long-term goals. Trying to “outsmart” the market with short-term strategies can often lead to missteps and missed opportunities.

Don’t stop investing. If you can afford it, try to continue investing. Coming out of a recession, stock prices tend to bottom out and then rebound, so if you had headed to the investment “sidelines,” you would have missed the opportunity to benefit from a market rally.

Revisit your performance expectations. During a bear market, you will constantly be reminded of the decline of a particular market index, such as the S&P 500 or the Dow Jones Industrial Average. But instead of focusing on these short-term numbers, look instead at the long-term performance of your portfolio to determine if you’re still on track toward meeting your goals.

Assess your risk tolerance. If you find yourself worrying excessively about declines in your investment statements, you may want to reevaluate your tolerance for risk. One’s risk tolerance can change over time — and it’s important you feel comfortable with the amount of risk you take when investing.

Keep diversifying. Diversification is always important for investors. By having a mix of stocks, mutual funds, and bonds, you can reduce the impact of market volatility on your portfolio. To cite one example: Higher-quality bonds, such as treasuries, often move in the opposite direction of stocks, so the presence of these bonds in your portfolio, if appropriate for your goals, can be valuable when market conditions are worsening. (Keep in mind, though, that diversification cannot guarantee profits or protect against all losses in a declining market.)

A recession accompanied by a bear market is not pleasant. But by taking the appropriate steps, you can boost your chances of getting through a difficult period and staying on track toward your important financial goals.

Coming up: Highest Thanksgiving gas prices ever

As Americans prepare to hit the road for Thanksgiving, average gasoline prices will be at their highest seasonal level ever for the weekend according to GasBuddy, the leading fuel savings platform saving North American drivers the most money on gas.

The national average is projected to stand at $3.68 on Thanksgiving Day, nearly 30¢ higher than last year and more than 20¢ higher than the previous record of $3.44 set in 2012. But that won’t slow many down with 20% more Americans planning to hit the road this year.

2022 has been a challenging year for drivers, breaking several records thanks to less global refining capacity and sanctions brought on by Russia’s war on Ukraine. The number of Americans traveling over the weekend this year is up from 32% last year to 38%, a nearly 20% rise, with 62% of Americans not planning on road tripping for Thanksgiving. Twenty-one percent say they are choosing not to drive due to high fuel prices.

“It has been a dizzying year at the pump, with motorists likely feeling nauseated not from the eggnog, but from the roller coaster ride at the pump with record gasoline prices earlier this year, which have fallen significantly since mid-summer,” said Patrick De Haan, head of petroleum analysis at GasBuddy.

“Americans, however, are proving that while we’ll openly complain about high gas prices, most of us aren’t deterred from taking to the highways to observe Thanksgiving with those that matter most to us, especially as precautions from the pandemic have eased,” said De Haan.

Travelers can expect Wednesday afternoon between 11 a.m. and 2 p.m. to be the busiest on the nation’s highways, and on Friday between 8 a.m. and 11 a.m. Twenty-three percent of respondents to GasBuddy’s Thanksgiving survey say they will spend one to three hours in the car, compared to 2021, when most indicated they would travel less than an hour away.

While 21% say high fuel prices are impacting their travel, surprisingly fewer are citing high gas prices this year (46% vs. 51% in 2021) for impacting their travel plans. Seventy-three percent of Americans traveling won’t be crossing state lines to do so.

GasBuddy offers several money-saving tips for motorists on the road this holiday season:

- Shop around for the best prices. The first gas station you see isn’t always the cheapest and driving a few extra blocks can save drivers upwards of 30 cents per gallon. GasBuddy also offers a Search Along Route feature to help drivers plan stops on their road trip.
- Pay with GasBuddy. A free payments service that offers up to 25 cents off per gallon on every fill-up at hundreds of thousands of gas stations nationwide.
- Slow down on the road. Aggressive driving habits like speeding, rapid acceleration, and hard braking can cost drivers hundreds of extra dollars per year in additional fuel consumption.
- Watch out for state lines. Differences in taxes can cause big differences between states. If traveling through multiple states, check the GasBuddy app to fill up on the lower priced side.

Auburn wins another volleyball title

Marty Gordon
NRVsports@ourvalley.org

The word “dynasty” was used last season when Auburn High School won its third straight Class 1 volleyball. Now, it becomes “dynasty01” after the school won yet another championship Saturday at the Salem Civic Center.

The school entered this year with a 70-plus win streak, but Bland County said not so fast, handing the Eagles a loss in week number one. From there, Auburn had to battle to reach this week’s state finals including a district championship loss to Giles, but they rebounded with a regional win over the same Giles squad.

In the finals Saturday, the Eagles claimed a 25-13, 20-25, 25-21, 25-20 win over Rappahannock.

Auburn Coach Sherry Millirons told reporters after the game that the season had its speed bumps, but the team had grown since that Bland loss.

The Auburn Eagles hoist their newest state championship trophy.
