

RAAP modernizing facility for U.S. Army requirements

RADFORD - BAE Systems Ordnance Systems Inc. is modernizing an existing production building at the Radford Army Ammunition Plant to better meet the needs of the U.S. defense industry.

BAE Systems has chosen Hanwha Defense USA (HDUSA), the U.S. defense subsidiary of Hanwha Aerospace in South Korea, to complete the modernization project. Company officials said the project will further cement RAAP as an important manufacturer for the U.S. Army.

"BAE Systems is fully committed to modernizing the Radford Army Ammunition Plant and furthering its support of the U.S. Army's requirements," said John Swift, vice president and general manager of BAE Systems Ordnance Systems Inc. "We are excited to collaborate with Hanwha Defense USA, as they will use their proven expertise to help us integrate advanced chemical processing capabilities into a manufacturing environment."

"Modernization of World War II-era facilities is important for national security," according to BAE Systems. "As BAE Systems continues to deliver vital capabilities to the warfighter, the focus on improving the safety of the process remains. BAE Systems' legacy of modernizing while manufacturing, supported by HDUSA's past experience in energetics facilities, will result in a state-of-the-art process to manufacture propellants."

"The upgrade is based on technology and experience that Hanwha has already completed in their Korean energetics facilities," said John Kelly, president and CEO of HDUSA. "We look forward to implementing this upgrade at Radford and expanding our modernization collaboration with BAE Systems and the Army."

BAE Systems OSI has been the operating contractor of the Radford Army Ammunition Plant since 2012, and in December 2023, received the contract to continue operating the Holston Army Ammunition Plant in Kingsport, Tenn. through 2035.

CHRISTIANSBURG - The Town of Christiansburg celebrated spring this past Saturday, April 20, 2024 with the Third Annual Spring Kickoff Festival at the Christiansburg Recreation Center.

Event Coordinator, Rachel Vinson and 14 other event staff, including Christiansburg Police officers and Parks and Recreation staff, hosted the event that, since its conception, welcomes over 500 residents per year.

This year's event was jam packed with family fun and games such as Giant Jenga, cornhole, and Connect Four. Residents supported and enjoyed goods from local vendors such as: The Taco Bout, Slings Weiners and Catering, Squeeze'um & Shake'um and 800 Degrees Woodfire Pizza with their 800° Fuego Truck. This is Squeeze'um & Shake'um's second year at the Spring Kickoff Festival, owner Samantha aka "Sam" disclosed.

At the 800° Fuego Truck, owner Dan and his family worked hard kneading dough, firing it in their wood burning stove, and boxing it to-go so that residents could still wander and enjoy the festivities. Par Golf had their golf simulator at the festival for residents to practice their best swings.

Local band, Jimothy, fronted by Jim Bohon, provided the festival with an array of music spanning from pop to soul to rock and even covering crowd favorites such as "All the Small Things" by Blink-182. Residents gathered around the bonfire at tables or in lawn chairs to listen and enjoy as the sun set over Christiansburg.

Event Coordinator Rachel Vinson said what makes an event like the Spring Kickoff Festival successful for Christiansburg, is, first and foremost, safety.

"An event can only be considered successful if it was safe," she said. "An event can only be considered successful if it was safe. Offering events that fill a want and need in the community is what we strive for. Success is often measured by numbers, and rightfully so, but we don't just look at attendance of an event. We want to ensure event attendees had a great time, that their expectations were met, and vendors were successful. We are always asking ourselves how an event can be

The Rotary Club of Christiansburg-Blacksburg names 2024 Citizen of the Year

The Rotary Club of Christiansburg-Blacksburg recently presented its 2024 Citizen of the Year Award to Dr. John Galbraith at their April 8 meeting.

The Citizen of the Year Award honors a non-Rotarian whose voluntary acts and services have made the Christiansburg-Blacksburg area a better place in which to live. Galbraith's life of volunteerism and service has unquestionably improved lives throughout the New River Valley and beyond. He is an outstanding example of the Rotary motto of Service Above Self.

Galbraith is a Professor in the Virginia Tech School of Plant and Environmental Sciences where he teaches nine courses, researches wetlands, and works with Virginia Cooperative Extension in the area of Soil Sciences. He also coaches the Virginia Tech Soil Judging Team which is the second most successful collegiate judging team in the nation with six overall national championships and four individual national champions. Students have gone on to be members of the US Soil Judging Team and Galbraith has been the coach of that team as well.

In his spare time, Galbraith is the Director of the New River Valley Glean Team; a quality control volunteer and organizer for Sleep in Heavenly Peace in the NRV; and a volunteer for Habitat for Humanity in his hometown of San Antonio, Texas. He participates in the ministries of St. Mary's Catholic Church in Blacksburg including His Hands, which helps elderly and disabled parishioners with home repairs, the flower ministry which helps to fund other church outreach, and Youth Group projects including sending cards and books to a prison in Texas.

Galbraith volunteers for Virginia Tech's Big Plant and Big Event and has helped Historic Smithfield remove invasive trees and old fencing and then replant native trees. As one of his friends and fellow St. Mary's volunteers, Rick DiSalvo said, "almost without fail, one of the first people to raise his hand to volunteer is John."

In 2012, Dr. Galbraith co-founded the NRV Glean Team ministry at St. Mary's Catholic Church with Christy Gabbard, Mike Quinn, Marilyn Galbraith, Dick Neves, and Harriet Shaw to deliver fresh foods to organizations that serve the hungry. The Glean Team, a group of 75-100 volunteers, does this by gleaning excess foods from local farms during harvest season to prevent waste; growing foods in local gardens at St. Mary's, Historic Smithfield, Northside improved for next year.”

With the Spring Kickoff being a newer event for the Town of Christiansburg, Vinson said she hopes the event will continue to grow and become an anticipated event for the community. For first time vendors, like Slinging Weiners and Catering, this event boasts an opportunity to participate in community events and build a rapport with local residents. For returning vendors, such as The Taco Bout and the 800° Fuego Truck, this event allows them to reconnect with familiar faces.

Residents enjoyed spending time with friends, family and even their pets.

“The Spring Kickoff Festival is a fun, yet simple event that allows our community to come out grab a bite to eat from a food truck, play some games and sit by a bonfire while listening to a great local band,” Vinson said. “It's a low-key kickoff to our event season.”

With a season kickoff like this, residents may want to mark their calendars and come out for other events hosted by The Town of Christiansburg, Christiansburg's Parks and Recreation, as well as their partners.

characteristics of the ideal teacher that we all want for our children,” said Montgomery County Public Schools Superintendent Bernard Bragen, Jr. “Her passion and enthusiasm for teaching and children is reflective in the performance of her students. We are grateful to have her as a member of our faculty.”

As a senior in high school, Carrier's Future Farmers of America (FFA) Advisor encouraged her to apply to the agricultural education program at Virginia Tech. His exact words were, “you would make an excellent educator.” All it took was for one person to believe in her to convince her that she could be a teacher.

A pioneer for women in career and technical education, Carrier was recently hired as the first female adjunct welding instructor at New River Community College. She started the dual-enrolled welding program at Blacksburg High School and previously served as the first female agricultural teacher at Broadway High School in Rockingham County. A firm believer in leadership by example, Carrier hopes to empower her students by serving as an example of an underrepresented person excelling in the agricultural mechanics and welding industries.

Presbyterian Church, and Hale Community Garden, and at St. Mary's high tunnel; and hosting a potato drop delivering 50,000lbs of potatoes in the fall and winter. The NRV Glean Team has grown significantly since its beginnings of gleaning a few thousand pounds of fresh food. Much of this growth has been due to Galbraith's vision. As Mike Quinn said, “when John says, ‘What do you think of...?’ It means he has already conceptualized the idea and has a plan.”

Last year, the NRV Glean Team gave away about 217,000 pounds of fresh fruit and vegetables across Southwest Virginia and Southeast West Virginia, to the Monacan and Upper Mattaponi tribal food banks in Central Virginia, and in San Antonio, Texas. This is the equivalent of 650,000 servings of fruits and vegetables. In past years, over 75,000 eggs have been donated locally as well. The Glean Team also collects about $5,000 in donated seeds from big box stores to send to Haiti, New York City Parks, Detroit Community Gardens, First People's Reservations in South Dakota and Arizona, and Virginia Cooperative Extension for use in school and community gardens. Seeds saved from winter squash are shared with the Society for Saint Andrew (the Gleaning Society).

Upon receiving the 2024 Citizen of the Year Award from the Rotary Club of Christiansburg-Blacksburg, Dr. Galbraith said, “I feel fortunate to have been put into a good place surrounded by and supported by (my wife) Marilyn and some very valuable volunteers.” Rick DiSalvo and Mike

Quinn both noted that they didn't know how he has time to do all that he does. Dr. Galbraith acknowledged that Marilyn does all of the little things for him and that “without Marilyn Galbraith, there wouldn't be a successful John Galbraith.”

The Rotary Club of Christiansburg-Blacksburg has exemplified the Rotary motto of Service Above Self in the community for over 100 years. Local leadership recognition, youth development programs, and community service projects as well as participation in Rotary International programs such as PolioPlus exemplify this motto. Free community Kitchen Supply Swap this Saturday

Blacksburg Library will be holding its first ever Kitchen Supply Swap this, Saturday, April 27 from 1- 3 p.m.

This free event is open to everyone in the community who has kitchen supplies, dishes, pots and pans, utensils, baking dishes, gadgets, and thingamabobs to donate, as well as those who need such items. The goal of the community swap is to encourage people to reduce waste and save money by exchanging their gently-used kitchen supplies and items with others.

To participate in the community swap, attendees are encouraged to bring their gently-used kitchen supplies to the library the week prior or on the day of the event. All donated items must be clean, useable, and in good condition. Once at the swap, attendees can browse the available items and take what they need for free.

"We want to make this event as accessible as possible," said Kerri Copus, Library Program Coordinator. "No one should have to go without basic supplies, and we hope this event will help fill that need for our community. This serves to provide a space to meet up, give away items you may no longer need, and find items that need a new home - all while participating in sustainable living!"

Any leftover items will be donated to the Montgomery County Emergency Assistance Program (MCEAP).

Please plan to join the free fun at the Blacksburg Library at 200 Miller Street, on Saturday, April 27!

AARP Virginia fraud alert: Social Security scams

One of the most popular ways for criminals to steal money and sensitive information is by impersonating a trusted source — often a government agency. According to the Federal Trade Commission, victims of government impostor scams reported theft of nearly $617 million in 2023.

A frequently impersonated agency is the Social Security Administration. Here's what you need to know to spot and stop a Social Security impostor scam.

Criminals rely on getting their target into a heightened emotional state, such as fear, panic or excitement. They know high emotions can block access to logical thinking. Social Security impostors tend to use fear (your number has been suspended, call immediately) or excitement (you are eligible for a higher monthly benefit).

If you get a call claiming to be from Social Security and you are not already engaged with them on a specific matter, hang up. Concerned? Look up the number to your local office at ssa.gov/locator and find out if the agency has been trying to reach you.

Be a fraud fighter! If you can spot a scam, you can stop a scam.

Report scams to local law enforcement. For help from AARP, call 1-877-908-3360 or visit the AARP Fraud Watch Network at www.aarp.org/fraudwatchnetwork.

My favorite men of the cloth and the lessons they taught along the way

I am writing this column during Easter week while taking a short holiday, so I thought it might be fun to do a piece on my favorite “men of the cloth”. I have done lists of my favorite restaurants and athletes and bars, so why not take a slightly irreverent look at the most reverent of my friends? While most of my readers will not know my subjects, I hope this writing stirs some personal memories or provides a little insight into some interesting and important people in my life. These wonderful folks are listed in no particular order.

Rev. Ira Astin. The minister at St. Paul Methodist in Christiansburg during my early childhood and great friend of my dad. In fact, my dad hired him and retained him during his tenure at our church, serving as chair of the Board of Stewards in those days. My dad also served as chair of the building committee for the new church building on West Main where St. Paul moved in 1962 while Ira was pastor, the two of them working closely to complete that beautiful structure that celebrated its 60th anniversary a couple of years ago.

My main memory of Rev. Astin is that, while he had a priestly, holy appearance in the pulpit, he also had a warm and kindly and gentle nature and made me feel like I was not destined for eternal damnation like my Baptist friends felt they were when they left their church. He seemed jovial and welcoming, in stark contrast to the minister my Presbyterian friends sat in front of on Sunday mornings, those kids no doubt leaving church in dark funks feeling they had no control of their own fates. I jest, at least a little.

Other memories of Rev. Astin are that he and his wife came to Sunday dinner at our house after church about once a month, delaying my attention to the Redskins or Colts or the baseball game of the week, depending on the season, to my impatient chagrin, and that my dad had a habit of quoting Rev. Astin when making decisions. My dad rarely lacked for the ability to make his own decisions and rarely trusted others’ judgment more than his own, but Ira was the exception. For example, if sitting at an intersection waiting for traffic to slow so he could pull out, my dad would say, “Rev. Astin always says, ‘wait, there’ll be a lull,’” or “Rev. Astin says, ‘you’ll never go wrong going with your first instinct.’” In my memory, Ira had a kindly, Buddha-like quality that endeared him to those whose lives he touched.

Evans “Buddy” King

Rev. Dale Waters. Bridgeport United Methodist for many years, the “Ira Astin” of my adult life. He was the first minister I met after moving to West Virginia, both immensely human and highly spiritual, a warm and comforting friend to all. I had the high-pressure job of being head of Staff-Parish Relations while Dale was at BUMC and so I had the responsibility for making certain that the powers that be within the conference didn’t whisk him away to another church.

Dale baptized my second daughter on her first Christmas Eve morning and was with me when my dad passed away even though I no longer attended his church. That’s all you need to know to understand the type of person Dale is.

I have lots of “Dale stories.” One involves playing in the Bridgeport Church Softball League (which he helped start) against our fierce rivals, All Saints Catholic. There was a close play at third; I had tagged the runner out, but the ump called him safe. I chose some particularly non-spiritual words in my argument with the umpire, a member at our church, and I realized Dale, our pitcher, was standing right behind me. I turned and expected to hear rebuke or a calming word from Dale. Instead, he looked at the ump and yelled, “Buddy’s right, you blew that one.” Another time I lined into a double play with the bases loaded to end the game and walked over to the bench, sat down and took my cleats off and threw them in the creek next to the field and drove home in my socks. I never see Dale without hearing this story repeated.

There is another great story involving Dale, a passionate WVU football fan. While a young minister at a church in Parkersburg, he had his tires slashed by a Pitt fan after a game in Morgantown. The fan had boarded a bus full of Panther fans to head back up the road when Dale arrived and someone pointed out the culprit. Dale charged on the bus, malice no doubt in his heart, with his wife in full pursuit. She got Dale to calm down and retreat by yelling, “Dale, Dale, think of the headline, Methodist minister arrested in brawl after Pitt game”. Dale, the most spiritual, the most human, the most special of men.

Rev. Doug Kanney. Long time minister at St. Paul in Christiansburg after I had moved away from home.

State budget work will continue in special May session

On Wednesday, April 17, members of the General Assembly returned to Richmond in order to consider Governor Glenn Youngkin’s amendments and vetoes to legislation passed during the 2024 session – to include the Commonwealth’s budget. Now that the dust has settled, I’d like to give you a brief update on where things stand.

First, the general assembly and governor have come to an agreement to continue work on the budget and return for a special session in May to vote on a reworked proposal. The Governor proposed over 200 amendments to the budget, and rather than remain in Richmond for an indefinite period, budget negotiators will now work with the administration in the coming weeks to identify areas of common ground. This is a positive step toward implementation of a state budget before July 1 – the date at which the current budget expires. It’s my sincere desire that budget negotiators work toward a product that does not raise taxes, but also spends responsibly on teacher pay raises, transportation infrastructure improvements on secondary roads and I-81, and increases in law enforcement salaries. Virginia is on solid financial footing, and we do not need to raise taxes in order to commit to these investments.

Delegate Jason Ballard

As to other legislation considered during the reconvened session, as anticipated, all of Governor Youngkin’s vetoes were upheld. This is good news for anyone concerned about a raft of far-left legislation similar to what we saw in 2020 becoming law in Virginia. This includes a wholesale ban on popular sporting firearms, an extension of a tax on plastic grocery bags, lessening criminal penalties for those who peddle fentanyl and other dangerous drugs, and more. Democrats have a slim majority in the House and Senate, which means that there wasn’t much that Republicans could do in the 2024 session to play defense and stop bad legislation from advancing. Fortunately, Democrats do not control a two-thirds majority in either the House or Senate, which means the Governor’s vetoes were secure.

After much has been reported about the negative tone of budget negotiations – especially from the Senate budget conferees toward the Governor – I believe we’ve reached a point where both sides understand the necessity of working together to preserve the Commonwealth’s sterling AAA bond rating and funding Virginia’s bond priorities. As with any negotiation, neither Republicans or Democrats are going to get everything they wanted. For example, Senate Democrats have been reticent toward the governor’s desire to relocate the Washington Wizards and the Washington Capitals to Northern Virginia. Now it’s time for Democrats to come back to the table with the understanding that serious compromise must be undertaken to keep Virginia moving forward. I look forward to updating you in the coming weeks as the General Assembly progresses toward that goal.

As the Delegate representing the 42nd House District in the Virginia General Assembly, your concerns are my greatest priority. If ever I may be of assistance to you and your family, please do not hesitate to reach out to me at DelJasonBallard@House.Virginia.Gov. You can also follow me on Twitter @JasonBallardVA or like my Facebook page, Jason Ballard for Delegate, to keep up to date with what I am doing in Richmond and in our community on your behalf.

Which IRA is right for me?

Josh Smith, CRPC

Ameriprise Financial Services, LLC

Individual Retirement Accounts (IRAs) are recognized as one of the most attractive retirement savings vehicles available to investors. IRAs allow investors to save and grow money in a tax-advantaged account. Utilizing a retirement savings vehicle like this can greatly enhance your long-term financial prosperity, but deciding which type of IRA is right for your investment goals can be a challenge. Here are answers to common questions around this important topic.

1. What types of IRAs should I consider?

At its most basic level, there are two types of IRAs – traditional and Roth IRAs. The biggest difference between the two is the tax treatment of contributions and distributions. Contributions are the process by which an investor puts money into an account and a distribution is the process of taking that money out.

2. How does a traditional IRA work? Contributions

With a traditional IRA, you either make after-tax contributions or (if you qualify and choose to do so), tax-deductible contributions. If you are not covered by a retirement plan at work, your contributions can be fully deducted from income tax. If you or your spouse are covered by a plan, income limits apply. To claim a full deduction on 2024 taxes, a single person can’t earn more than $77,000 and a married person filing a joint return can’t earn more than $123,000.

Distributions

Money held in a traditional IRA grows on a tax-deferred basis, a characteristic that allows your money to grow faster. However, when withdrawals are taken, all earnings are subject to tax at your applicable ordinary income tax rate in the year of the withdrawal. If you claimed a tax deduction at the time you made contributions to your IRA, those too are subject to tax. With some exceptions, withdrawals before age 59-1/2 also may incur an early distribution penalty. One important note is that traditional IRAs are subject to required minimum distribution (RMD) rules which define the age at which an investor must begin to take money out of the account. Under current law, distributions must begin by April 1 in the year after reaching age 73 and continue every year thereafter.

3. How does a Roth IRA work? Contributions

All Roth IRA contributions are made with after-tax dollars that grow tax-free until you start making withdrawals. However, income limits apply that determine whether you qualify to make full Roth IRA contributions. In 2024, the ability for single individuals to make full Roth IRA contributions is phased out if income is higher than $146,000. For married couples filing a joint return, you cannot make a full Roth IRA contribution if gross income is more than $230,000.

Distributions

If a five-year holding period requirement is met, all distributions (contributions and earnings) after age 59-1/2 are eligible for tax-free treatment. In addition, RMD rules do not apply to Roth IRAs.

4. How much can I contribute to IRAs?

In 2024, you can contribute up to $7,000 ($8,000 for those age 50 and older) or up to 100% of earned income, whichever is less. This is the maximum contribution amount for both traditional and Roth IRAs for the year.

Note that contributions can’t exceed 100% of your earned income if you earn less than the limits stated above. Also, these limits apply to total IRA contributions for the year. This is applicable even if you hold multiple IRAs or make contributions to both Roth IRAs and traditional IRAs.

5. Which IRA is right for me?

The answer is different for everybody. Determining how much to set aside for retirement and in what types of savings vehicles is best determined through careful planning. A financial professional can help you understand which account is best suited to meet your long-term financial goals.

MONTGOMERY SPORTS

Virginia first in nation to NIL starting line

Marty Gordon

NRVsports@ourvalley.org

The state of Virginia is trying to get out ahead of the issues dealing with college athletics' Name, Image and Likeness (NIL) dealings.

In an effort to position the Commonwealth and its schools at the forefront of the next evolution in college athletics, Virginia governor Glenn Youngkin signed House Bill 1505 into state law Thursday with an effective date of July 1, 2024.

Name, image and likeness is a phrase that is used to describe a student-athlete's ability to earn compensation from a business, individual, entity, etc. that utilizes their name, image, likeness, signature, voice, caricature, etc. for commercial and/or non-commercial purposes.

"We are thankful to the state legislature and Governor Youngkin for their proactive work in the NIL space," Tech Athletic Director Whit Babcock said. "We take care of our student-athletes and recognize the value they bring to ensure the longstanding success of our athletic programs.

"Not only does this position us more competitively among other states during this critical time, but it also allows for more school involvement as we continue to enhance our recruiting and retention efforts to bring the most talented student-athletes to Virginia Tech."

The Virginia bill will allow public and private institutions of higher education within the Commonwealth to create and facilitate name, image, or likeness opportunities for student-athletes. In other words, NIL operations will become more streamlined through school involvement.

Virginia's bill bypasses the NCAA and will directly allow universities to pay student athletes as the Commonwealth is one of the first in the nation to enact such a law. Other states have already said they will follow Virginia's lead.

The law takes effect July 1 and was signed by Youngkin one day after the NCAA cutback some of its own NIL restrictions.

The governor said the bill is a very important step in making Virginia the most competitive place not just to compete in college athletics, but also the most competitive place for our universities to really take care of their student-athletes and drive this to the next level.

"This is going to be a program managed by Virginia's universities and colleges and not by outside institutions and associations. It enables us to be competitive across the nation with other power conferences and major universities and enables our athletes to fully benefit (from) their God-given skills," he said.

Three years ago, the NCAA announced the NIL plan to allow college athletes to earn money from deals with brands or businesses that compensate them for such things as endorsements or personal appearances.

Virginia's plan has been called "cutting edge."

Bringing NIL operations in-house will enable schools to efficiently manage monitoring and funding. Simultaneously, Tech donors will no longer face the dilemma of allocating funds between a collective for NIL or directly to the athletic department for scholarships and facilities.

"I commend our state leaders for their proactive work in the evolution of college athletics," Pry said. "This positions us favorably and competitively at a critical time. The bill is a win-win for our school, our student-athletes and our donors."

The bill was sponsored by Del. Terry Austin, R-Botetourt. Austin worked closely on the NIL legislation with state Sen. Aaron Rouse, D-Virginia Beach, an All-ACC safety for the Hokies in 2005 and the Green Bay Packers' third-round NFL draft pick in 2007.

"We're truly appreciative of the diligent work by the state legislature and governor to enact this groundbreaking bill during a pivotal time in college athletics," Skiera said. "This legislation is beneficial for all parties involved, especially our student-athletes, who accomplish remarkable things on and off the field."

Below is a list of FAQs as it relates to the Virginia NIL bill.

Institutional Involvement

Q: Are Virginia colleges and universities required to pay student-athletes for their name, image or likeness?

A: No, the Virginia name, image or likeness law is permissive and provides Virginia colleges and universities discretion to compensate student-athletes for their name, image or likeness.

Q: Are the new policies and procedures necessary to compensate student-athletes for their name, image or likeness?

A: If Virginia colleges and universities compensate student-athletes for their name, image or likeness, they must develop new policies and procedures approved by their governing board (e.g., Board of Visitors).

Q: Are student fees going to be used to pay student-athletes for their name, image or likeness?

A: The Virginia name, image and likeness law expressly prohibits student fees from being used to pay student-athletes for their name, image or likeness.

A ceremonial signing for the NIL law going into effect in Virginia was held at the Patrick Henry Building in Richmond with Governor Glenn Youngkin, state leaders and institutional representatives in attendance. Virginia Tech's director of athletics Whit Babcock, head football coach Brent Pry, head lacrosse coach Kristen Skiera and the HokieBird were on site.

Q: What is considered a student fee?

A: A student fee is any fee a student is charged to support any intercollegiate athletics programs.

Q: How can Virginia colleges and universities assist student-athletes with name, image and likeness activities?

A: The Virginia name, image and likeness law allows Virginia colleges and universities to educate student-athletes about name, image and likeness issues and identify, create, negotiate, facilitate, support, engage with, assist with, or otherwise enable name, image, or likeness opportunities for student-athletes.

Q: Are Virginia colleges and universities permitted to incentivize support for name, image and likeness activity?

A: The Virginia name, image and likeness law allows Virginia colleges and universities to provide assets, resources, or benefits as an incentive to individuals or entities that support name, image, or likeness opportunities.

Q: Is compensation for name, image and likeness opportunities considered pay-for-play?

A: No, it's considered compensation for the proprietary interest in a student-athlete's name, age or likeness.

NCAA Rules

Q: Does Virginia's name, image and likeness law conflict with NCAA rules?

A: Virginia colleges and universities are subject to Virginia law. Virginia colleges and universities will independently determine whether any action permitted under the Virginia name, image and likeness law conflicts with NCAA rules.

Q: Can a student-athlete be penalized for participating in name, image and likeness activities pursuant to the Virginia name, image and likeness law?

A: The Virginia name, image and likeness law provides student-athletes protections for engaging in name, image and likeness activity pursuant to the law.

Collectives and Donors

Q: Does the Virginia name, image and likeness law preclude the existence of collectives?

A: Nothing in the Virginia name, image or likeness law states collectives cannot exist.

Q: Does the Virginia name, image and likeness law still prevent contributions to a collective?

A: Nothing in the Virginia name, image or likeness law prevents individuals or entities from contributing to a collective to support name, image or likeness opportunities.

Student-Athletes

Q: What impact will the Virginia name, image and likeness law have on Olympic and non-revenue generating sports?

A: The Virginia name, image and likeness law can greatly benefit student athletes who participate in Olympic and non-revenue generating sports.

Q: What impact does the Virginia name, image and likeness law have on international student-athletes?

A: The Virginia name, image and likeness law doesn't impact international student-athletes being able to earn name, image and likeness compensation. Federal immigration law, and visa status, control whether an international student-athlete can be compensated for their name, image or likeness.

BHS player garners special scholarship

Marty Gordon

NRVsports@ourvalley.org

A Blacksburg High School soccer player is this year's recipient of a memorial scholarship, which honors a former local player who was tragically killed in an off-road accident.

Kallan Malabad was honored during a special ceremony before a Bruin game this past week.

Adrian Newcomb is a former NRU player and standout at Blacksburg High School, who went on to play soccer at Mary Washington University. She ultimately graduated from Virginia Tech and was living and working in Fort Collins, Colorado when she was killed in 2019.

She played recreation league soccer as an adult at Virginia Tech, in Roanoke and in Fort Collins. Adrian was committed to a career in child development and education.

Unfortunately, Adrian lost her life in an accident before fulfilling her full promise. In her memory, and to assist those following similar career paths, NRU joined with the Newcomb family to put in place an endowment dedicated to supporting a perennial $500 scholarship.

According to the NRU Soccer

Association, thanks to many generous donations from community members, the Newcomb family and New River United (NRU) have established a memorial scholarship to honor the passionate, talented and tenacious Newcomb.

During the presentation, NRU said Malabad is an excellent student, athlete, and community member - because of her well-rounded dedication to not only her own pursuits, but also helping others through the Alopecia Justice League, and her plans to continue volunteering with the alopecia community and youth soccer, Kallan was chosen as this year's recipient of the Adrian Newcomb Memorial Scholarship.

Newcomb has played soccer with NRU since age four - including being chosen as captain of both club and high school soccer and track teams. She will continue her soccer career and education at Saint Michael's College in Burlington, VT.

Funds donated (via the GoFundMe link below) to NRU in Adrian's name will help to continue this scholarship for a college-bound NRU player.

Weekly reports: Blacksburg boys, girls remain unbeaten

The Blacksburg High School's boys' basketball team remained unbeaten on the season with a 2-1 win over Patrick Henry. The Bruins picked up goals from Paul Distler and Sean DeLorenzo. Craig Huxtable and Peyton Cruise had individual assists, while Simon Pratt had four saves in goal.

Blacksburg is now 9-0, while Patrick Henry fell to 6-3-1.

Blacksburg girls also unbeaten

Blacksburg girls team defeated Patrick Henry 3-0 on Friday night at Bill Brown Stadium. Scoring for Blacksburg was Ginny Crawford with two goals and Kallan Malabad with one goal. Erin Bishop and Claire Langlinais, each had an assist. Paige Miller had two saves in collecting her 10th shutout of the season.

Blacksburg improves to 9-0-2, 5-0-2, while PH drops to 5-1-3, 3-1-2.

Auburn nails down two wins

Auburn broke open a close game last Monday with three runs in the fifth and four runs in the sixth to defeat Giles 10-1. Auburn collected 13 hits with every starter collecting at least one hit. Mitchell Hale led the offense with three hits and three RBI. Jared Lavergne and Brody Hensel had two hits each and Landon Marrs added three RBI's for the Eagles. It was a combined effort on the mound from Lavergne, Hensel and Matthew Altizer allowing one run, four hits, five walks and 11 strikeouts.

Also last week, Mason Underwood for Blacksburg and Josh Givens for Auburn hooked up in a pitchers' duel with the Eagles coming out on top 2-0.

Givens threw a complete game shutout allowing only three hits, three walks and striking out nine.

Underwood had a no-hitter through 4 1/3 before Auburn broke through with 2 runs and 3 hits in the fifth. Landon

Marrs doubled to break up the no-hitter followed by a run scoring single by Mitchell Hale. With two outs and Hale on second, JJ Cockram singled to center to plate Hale with the second run of the inning and make the score 2-0.

In the seventh, Blacksburg had the tying runs on but Givens calmly retired the last two batters on infield pop-ups to secure the victory. Underwood finished with six IP, allowing five hits, two runs, one walk and four strikeouts.

BHS Lax slips by Salem

The Blacksburg High School girls lacrosse team beat Salem 9-8 for the first time in program history this past week.

Hayli Williams and Karlyle Gresham both scored three goals. Maria Addikis, Emmie Swift, and Madison Stewart all had one goal each. Charis Krouscas had four assists and Emmie Swift had two. But the true star of our game was the Bruin defense as they played as an amazing unit, with goalie Leo McCoy having 12 saves.

Carroll 2-1 over Radford in softball

On Thursday, it was an old-fashioned pitcher's duel Thursday night at Veterans Field that took extra innings to decide. Carroll County's senior pitcher Emma Leath earned the win going all eight innings, striking out 18, giving up five hits and walking none. Radford Sophomore Quinn Burton took the loss also going all eight innings, surrendering 5 hits, striking out eight and walking none. Addie Saunders led the Bobcats with two hits, with Ella Cox, Burton and Kat Price each adding a hit. Adding to her work at the plate, Saunders had an incredible diving catch in center field to end the third.

Staff Report

He was a great comfort and friend to my parents in their later years and presided at both their funerals. Known as "Ole Doug, the Emory & Henry Flash," he attended E & H with several Christiansburgers of his day, including Tommy Barber and Buddy Shull and Mike Griffith, mid 60's CHS heroes of mine, and met his lovely wife Penny on campus.

Doug served as pastor at the Methodist churches in the three towns I resided in before my move to West Virginia - Christiansburg, Charlottesville, and Williamsburg, and luckily for the local community, he and Penny chose C'burg as the place they wanted to retire. "Flash" and I have become very close friends over the last several years, and we worked together to establish the King-Earp-Ross Scholarship at Emory last year. Doug loves his church and his community, and I have been blessed to call him a friend. A very special person.

Rev. Ken Ramsey, Assistant Pastor to Rev. Waters at Bridgeport Methodist before returning to that church as head minister after several stints in between, beloved by all everywhere he has gone in his journeys. Ken had been an excellent high school basketball player in central West Virginia and had the opportunity to play Division I at an Ivy League school before getting the "calling" and attending a small Methodist college in West Virginia and doing a "circuit ministry" at several rural churches while getting his education. At 6' 3" and 26 years of age, Ken was the star of our Wednesday night "30 something" pickup games at our church. Although I only attended his church a few years early in his career, he always remembers me and greets me with a smile and a hug.

Rev. John Koerner. Recently retired from First Presbyterian Church in Clarksburg, the church I have attended for the last 30 years of my life. Another high school basketball star, who came from the tiny community of Helvetia in central West Virginia and played on a state championship team at Pickens High, graduating class of 18 or so. John and his wife, also an ordained Presbyterian minister, teamed to lead our church through changing demographics and declining membership, focusing on "doing good" in the community. He was always there for those in need, without regard to whether members of our church or their social status. And his sermons were always understandable and humorous and meaningful.

Rev. Floyd Carroll. Minister at St. Paul during my high school and college years. He presided at the service honoring St. Paul seniors at CHS the year I graduated and at my wedding in 1976. He was loved by the teenagers in our church, a difficult thing to pull off. My Dad liked to tease Rev. Carroll that he was the only person he knew who was named after two counties in Virginia. Simply a nice and kind man.

Father Hilarion Cann. The most educated of my list by far, Father Cann came from a large Italian family in Clarksburg, during the time such families would "dedicate" at least one son to the priesthood and one daughter to the convent. He studied for many years at the Vatican, and after returning from Rome, he was the priest at All Saints Catholic Church in Bridgeport. I attended many weddings and funerals where he was celebrant. I also knew him socially, as Father Cann rarely passed up an opportunity to attend a party at the house of his parishioners. He used to say, "Buddy are you sure you aren't Catholic?"

You seem Catholic!" Eventually he would say, "you're my favorite non-Catholic." I am good friends with several of his nephews. When I pass his grave site in the cemetery at the end of my street where I have jogged for years, I always take off my ball cap and say hello.

Rev. Eric Faust. The first non-Methodist minister whose church I attended. He was the pastor at First Presbyterian in Clarksburg when my second wife and I "compromised" after we became a couple. I guess it was pre-destined (inside joke - it's something Presbyterians are famous for). Eric was another fine and caring member of the community he served, and he married Joyce and me on a Thursday night on short notice.

Rev. Kurt Busiek. My next-door neighbor for several years while he was the minister at a large Baptist Church in Clarksburg, raising four small children with his great wife, Mona. Kurt was a runner and told me that when he ran in local races, he would repeat a Bible verse to himself - "I will run and not grow weary, I will run and not grow weary" - changing the tempo of his recitation depending on whether he needed to speed up or slow down. He was also the backup quarterback in high school to Payne Stewart, the famous golfer who tragically died in a plane crash while Kurt was my neighbor.

Rev. Carl Haley. I really didn't know Rev. Haley. He was my dad's roommate at Emory & Henry, and while I was at UVA, he was the minister at a large Methodist Church just across the street from the campus. For my four years in Charlottesville, whenever I came home, my dad would ask me if I had attended Rev. Haley's church and introduced myself. Unfortunately (and sadly now), my response was always something along the lines of, "we have different schedules, but I'll get there soon".

Blessed to have known these folks.
